The Corn Trade.

GENERAL REMARKS.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, FEBRUARY 22.

Supply.—The supply of home-grown wheat has been rather in excess this week of the preceding sen'night, but the quantity of barley and oats materially less than in the corresponding period.

Imports.—Wheat still constitutes the largest proportion of grain imports. There is a falling off in the arrivals from America, which is compensated by an increased quantity from the South of Europe and from the North. Flour continues imported principally from the United States of America. Barley.—Nearly the whole of this week's imports are from the South of Europe, and somewhat larger than in preceding weeks. Oats.—The importation, which had nearly ceased a fortnight ago, has again recommenced with the opening of the Baltic and North sea. Maize.—The latest returns indicate smaller imports than in the preceding week. Larger imports of grain from Denmark and the Baltic may now soon be expected, unless cut short by the threatened war between Denmark and Germany.

The British Corn-trade.—The restrictions imposed upon trade by the unsettled state of the money-market has also this week fettered the activity of the corn-trade. Operations have been, principally confined to supplying the wants for immediate consumption. Wheat—superior sorts have been freely taken at fully last week's prices, and in some markets at an advance of 1s. per quarter. Inferior sorts, however, have again been at a discount, and in order to force off a sale, 1s. to 2s. per quarter less money than a week ago had to be taken. Flour—the bulk of the English-made is little, if at all, relished by bakers; it makes a bad loaf, and requires a considerable addition of foreign flour in order to counteract its defects. The large quantity of American pressing on sale has added to the downward tendency of prices, without, however, causing any material reduction. Barley—superior sorts have been firmly maintained in price, but inferior are 1s. to 1s. 6d. per qr. lower. Oats—withstanding the continued paucity of imports, the trade in this article has also been depressed, under the general contraction of business. The current wants of consumption are freely met by supplies of home-grown grain. Maize—quiet in demand, but maintained in price. Beans—little inquired after, with prices unaltered. Peas quiet, and rather cheaper.

In Mark-lane to-day the attendance of the trade was small, and the tone very dull. Wheat, English, was slow in demand, at last Monday's rates. Foreign, quiet, with prices tending downwards. Flour, dull and unchanged; Norfolk, 32s. to 40s. per 280lb.; barley, nothing doing, at last Monday's decline; oats, unaltered, at last Monday's prices; beans and peas firm.

The Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway was officially opened last month by his Excellency the Governor, Sir George Clerk. The Bombay Gazette, of Jan. 12, says:—

His Excellency the Governor will probably leave the Presidency for Surat by steamer soon after the departure of the next overland mail. The intention of Sir George Clerk seems to be to make himself personally acquainted with all the native princes and chiefs subordinate to or in alliance with the Government of Bombay. We have already recorded his progress through the Southern Mahratta country, and he now proposes, we understand, to visit the Guicowar, the management of the relations with whose court has, as our readers are aware, been again submitted to the control of the local government. Sir George Clerk will travel by rail from Surat, the formal opening of the line having been postponed till his Excellency's arrival, though it is already finished, and trains run the whole distance. The Governor's departure for Surat in the Victoria (I.N.) is fixed for to-morrow. Sir George Clerk will remain in Surat about four days, and then proceed by rail to Broach and Baroda. The sanction of the Government has been given to the resumption of the works lately abandoned on the section of the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway between Bombay and Surat.

The sixth and final call of £2 is to be paid on the shares in the Great Southern of India Railway Company by the 13th of April.

MADRAS RAILWAY COMPANY.

Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India having authorised the Directors of this Company to raise the sum of £1,000,000 on Debentures not convertible into Stock, the Directors are now prepared to comply with applications to that extent for DEBENTURES at par, bearing interest at 5 per cent. per annum, payable by coupon, half-yearly, at the Union Bank of London.

The payment of the principal and interest is guaranteed by the Secretary of State for India in Council. The Debentures will be for five years, from the 1st of January, 1861, transferable by endorsement without stamp, and renewable at the option of the holder for a second term of five years, at the same rate of interest, upon notice being given by him twelve months previous to the expiry of the first term. Failing such notice, the Debentures will be paid off at the expiration of the first five years.

Debentures will not be issued for any less amount than £50.

The Directors will also receive applications for the limited amount, £194,000, which remains to be allotted of the previous Debenture Loan of £1,000,000 convertible into Stock of the Company. These Debentures are for five years, or four years, at 5 per cent. per annum, payable by coupons, half-yearly, at the Union Bank of London.

The payment of the principal and interest is guaranteed in like manner by the Secretary of State for India, and the holders of these Debentures have the option at the end of twelve months from their date, and thenceforward, upon giving notice at any time before the Debenture becomes payable, of converting it into Capital Stock of the Company, bearing 5 per cent. interest, guaranteed under the contract entered into with the East India Company.

Forms of application for either or both descriptions of Debentures may be obtained at the Offices of the Company.

By order of the Board,

TO RAILWAY COMPANIES and others interested in the Safety and Economy of Railway Wheels.

Accidents from the Breaking of Tyres effectually PREVENTED by the use of R. BROTHERHOOD'S PATENT FASTENINGS, by which the tyres are so firmly fixed to the wheel that, should they become broken, they cannot possibly fly from their proper position. This mode of fastening can be adapted to nearly every kind of wheel, whether new or old. Hundreds of those wheels have been running for some years on the Great Western, Wilts, and Somerset, and other Railways, and some have just returned to the Works, which have been working constantly for nearly seven years with heavy loads, and have run upwards of 115,000 miles with the tyres severed in two without failure, and are still in working order; and £1,000 will be paid to any party using these wheels should any tyre fly off from the effect of crystallisation or frost.

Railway Bridges, Plant, and Fittings supplied for Home or Exportation.

Every information can be had on application to ROWLAND BROTHERHOOD, RAILWAY WORKS, CHIPPENHAM, WILTS.

BRITISH AND FOREIGN INVESTMENT.

MR. THOMAS SPARGO, of Nos. 224 and 225, GRESHAM HOUSE, OLD BROAD-STREET, LONDON, E.C., TRANSACTS every description of BUSINESS in the PURCHASE and SALE of SHARES in BANKS, CANALS, RAILWAYS, BRIDGES, INSURANCES, and all other BRITISH and FOREIGN STOCK.

MR. SPARGO GIVES ADVICE and ACCURATE INFORMATION as to the position and prospects of all mining undertakings upon application, either personally or by letter, and has published the following, from which those unacquainted with mining can enlighten themselves thereon, viz.:—Statistics and Observations upon the Mines of Devon and Cornwall, for 1859, price 2s. 6d.; ditto for 1860, 2s. 6d.; Physical, Geological, and Parish Map of Cornwall, 10s. 6d.; Geological Maps of various Mining Districts of Cornwall, showing Boundary Lines of every Mine, with the Lodes, Cross-courses, and Elvans traversing each, 2s. 6d. each; and a Relief Model Map of Cornwall, price £5. 5s.

MINES, RAILWAYS, BANK, STEAMSHIP, and INSURANCE SHARES BOUGHT, SOLD, or EXCHANGED.

Capitalists who seek safe and profitable investments, free from risk, should act only upon the soundest information; the market prices of the day are for the most part governed by the immediate supply and demand, together with the operations of speculators without reference to the bona fide merits of the property.

Mines afford a wider range for profit than any other public securities, and pay dividends bi-monthly, varying from 15 to 30 per cent. per annum. Instances frequently occur of young Mines rising in value 400 to 500 per cent. The undersigned devotes special attention to the above, and affords every information to capitalists, and effects purchases or sales upon the best possible terms.

THE BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS: THE ADVERSE BALANCE OF TRADE; AND THE DRAIN OF GOLD.

THE Board of Trade Returns for the month and twelve months ending the 31st December, 1860, which were published on Monday last, enable us to compile a variety of details of much value, since they illustrate, not merely the general course of the foreign and colonial trade of the country, but also the causes of the drain of gold, which has led to so much disturbance in the money market.

Glancing first at the exports, we find ample ground to conclude that the value of capital must rule high. The greater the extent of our trade, the greater must be the demand for capital to move it with, and the higher must be the rate of interest. Were the aggregate of the transactions of the nation equal to only one-half or two-thirds of its present amount, there would probably be abundance of unemployed money. The number of lenders would exceed that of borrowers, and the consequence—a lower price for capital—would quickly be determined by the ordinary laws of supply and demand. But the trade of the country for the past year appears from all the figures presented to have been unprecedently large. Whether the profit was in an equal proportion may be doubted. There is no mistake, however, with regard to the general drift of the aggregate figures. The total exports of British and Irish produce and manufactures have been in the last three years as follows:—

Whole year—1858	...	...	...	...	£116,608,756
" 1859	...	...	...	...	130,411,529
" 1860	...	...	...	...	135,842,817

This shows an increase in 1860 over 1859 of £5,431,288, and an increase in 1860 over 1858 of £19,234,061.

Next we will glance at the exports for the last quarter of the three years. These were:—

Last quarter of 1858	...	...	...	...	£30,304,002
" 1859	...	...	...	...	32,403,116
" 1860	...	...	...	...	34,118,471

The increase in 1860 is £1,715,355 compared with 1859, and £3,814,469 compared with the corresponding quarter of 1858.

Still pursuing the same examination, let us look at the exports for the month of December, which are the latest that our dilatory public servants have as yet condescended to favour us with. The result is as under:—

December, 1858	...	...	...	...	£10,053,194
" 1859	...	...	...	...	10,827,242
" 1860	...	...	...	...	12,128,541

The increase in December, 1860, amounts to £1,301,299 compared with December, 1859, and to £2,075,347 compared with December, 1858.

But it must be remembered that in the month of December the country had not felt the effects, either of the crisis in America, or of the disturbance in the money market at home. The shipments of gold to America commenced on the 28th of November, but throughout December the Bank rate of discount was only 5 per cent. It was not until Monday, the 31st of December, that the directors raised the minimum from 5 per cent. (at which it had been fixed on the 29th of November) to 6. This action, indeed, was not resolved upon until nearly £2,000,000 in gold had been sent to America, the Bank being as slow to move in the earlier stages of the American drain, as they have been quick to move since.

It follows that, to see the effect produced upon our export trade by the many adverse influences latterly in operation, we must wait for the official returns for January and February. Even these will not exhibit their full effects, for there is too much reason to fear that at this moment we do not completely realise the evils of the time. The commercial machine, when in full work, cannot be checked all of a sudden. It is well for us that it is so—well for us that the difficulty of one of our largest customers—America—is to no small extent compensated by the influx of orders from many other customers far removed from the influence of her trouble. It would be a great error to overlook the marvellous development of our commerce, and the vast variety of the channels—each independent of the other—through which it passes; but, although the check to trade, internal and external, as well as to railway traffic, operates only gradually, it would likewise be an error to imagine that the temporary loss of a large portion of our American trade and the benumbing influence of the crisis in the money market will not yet make themselves felt in a form more or less painful in many departments of industry.

These remarks, however, refer to the future. So far as we have followed the Board of Trade figures—namely, to the end of December—they indicate very large exports; and this, of course, means a large locking up of capital, and the giving of a considerable amount of credit to foreign customers. Hence one reason why money must be dear.

Particular interest attaches to our American trade. We therefore recapitulate below the exports to the Atlantic ports of the United States for the last three years :—

Whole year—1858	...	...	...	...	£13,994,815
" 1859	...	...	...	...	22,116,372
" 1860	...	...	...	...	21,018,500

The comparison with 1858—the year following the panic—affords no criterion. Comparing 1860 with 1859, the decrease is only £1,097,872. For the last quarter of the three years, the shipments to the United States have been—

Last quarter of 1858	...	...	...	...	£4,187,541
" 1859	...	...	...	...	5,046,183
" 1860	...	...	...	...	5,253,486

There is an increase of £207,303 in 1860 compared with 1859.

The question then arises—But what was the amount of our exports to the United States in the month of December, when the crisis had set in there, and was beginning to overshadow us? Upon this point the official tables afford no explicit information. We have, therefore, compiled the following table, exhibiting not all, but all the principal items of exports to the United States for that month. It affords a reliable view of the general course of this branch of our foreign trade for December :—

MONTH OF DECEMBER.

	1858.	1859.	1860.
Cottons ...	£511,034	£550,474	£553,237

Woollen and worsted stuffs ...	86,830	99,097	116,997
Total of the above	1,534,042	1,667,129	1,831,087

This table shows, remarkably enough, that the shipments of the above-mentioned articles to the United States during December, when the crisis had fairly set in, were £163,958 more than in 1859, and £297,045 more than in 1858. No doubt many old orders were still being acted upon or being completed.

We will next ask our readers' attention to a particularly interesting statement. We have shown that the total exports of all commodities to all parts were £135,842,817 in the whole year 1860, being £5,431,288 more than in 1859, and £19,234,061 more than in 1858. The Tables now issued furnish a statement of the "computed real value" of the principal imports, but they do not come down to so late a date by one month—that is to say, they extend only to the end of November. The total imports for the eleven months are computed thus :—

Eleven months of 1858	...	...	...	£115,146,095
" 1859	...	...	...	122,538,694
" 1860	...	...	...	144,887,078

This statement suggests very unfavourable inferences respecting the balance of trade and the effect upon our money market. In the eleven months we imported no less than £22,348,384 more than in 1859, and £29,740,983 more than in 1858, whilst, as above shown, comparing 1860 with 1859, we did comparatively little towards redressing the balance by increasing our exports. In 1860 we largely extended our investments in or consumption of foreign commodities, whilst the foreigner only slightly increased his purchases of our commodities. This comparison, per se, points to a drain of gold, and we have had a drain of gold.

The principal article of foreign production of which we have enlarged our purchases is, of course, breadstuffs. The value of the wheat imported in the eleven months of the three years is :—

1858	...	...	...	£8,576,628
1859	...	...	...	8,064,614
1860	...	...	...	14,010,570

The increase in the eleven months of 1860 over 1859 is £5,945,956 sterling.

Throwing together barley, oats, beans, peas, and Indian corn, the imports of the eleven months were valued at—

1859	...	...	...	6,049,333
1860	...	...	...	9,631,717

The increase in 1860 over the eleven months of 1859 is £3,582,384.

Finally, we cite below the imports of flour for the eleven months :—

1858	...	...	...	£3,031,960
1859	...	...	...	2,244,552
1860	...	...	...	3,677,916

The increase in 1860, compared with 1859, is £1,433,364.

Recapitulating the results of the three last comparisons, we find the increase in the imports of breadstuffs in the 11 months of 1860, as compared with 1859, to stand as under :—

Increase in imports of wheat	...	...	...	£5,945,956
" " oats, Indian corn, &c.	...	...	...	3,582,384
" " flour	...	...	...	1,433,364

Total increase in breadstuffs in 11 months of 1860 ... 10,961,704

These figures illustrate the effects of the bad harvest in a more striking manner than any that we have yet met with. They prove that the real cause of the disturbance now witnessed is mainly the falling off in our supplies of food at home. When it is considered that the drain has fallen with especial force upon the last quarter of the year, the effect experienced becomes still more intelligible.

To illustrate the consequences of our bad harvest still further, we will quote below the value of the breadstuffs imported in the single month of November (being the latest date to which the official statement gives the "computed real value" of the imports) :—

Imports of wheat in Nov., 1858	...	...	...	£548,471
" " " 1859	...	...	...	736,146
" " " 1860	...	...	...	2,853,735

The increase in Nov., 1860, compared with Nov., 1859, is £2,117,589.

Next we take, as before, barley, oats, beans, peas, and Indian corn—still for the month of November :—

1858	...	...	...	£719,535
1859	...	...	...	798,260
1860	...	...	...	1,162,243

The increase in Nov., 1860, over Nov., 1859, is £363,983.

The statement will be completed by bringing in the imports of flour for the month of November :—

1858	...	...	...	£183,147
1859	...	...	...	132,765
1860	...	...	...	441,309

The increase in 1860 over 1859 is £308,544.

A recapitulation shows the total increase in the imports of the various kinds of breadstuffs in November, 1860, compared with November, 1859, to be as follows :—

Increase in imports of wheat	...	...	...	£2,117,589
" " barley, oats, Indian corn, &c.,	...	...	...	363,983
" " flour	...	...	...	308,544

Total increase in November ... 2,790,136

This is pretty well for a single month. It stands to reason that we cannot bear so rapid a drain without being severely pressed. As we have already observed, the official tables do not give the value of the imports to a later date than November, but they give the quantities imported for December. The total supplies of foreign wheat for that month were :—

1859	...	...	...	273,675 "
1860	...	...	...	865,722 "

Of flour the arrivals in December were :—

1858	...	...	...	203,401 cwt.
1859	...	...	...	197,382 "
1860	...	...	...	758,579 "

Of the above, the United States sent us in December, of wheat :—

1858	...	...	...	20,882 qrs.
1859	...	...	...	18,826 "
1860	...	...	...	420,937 "

And of flour :—

1858	...	...	...	27,586 cwt.
1860	...	...	...	466,996 "

We think our readers will own that we have shown the real cause of the drain of bullion, and of the adverse balance of trade with the United States in particular. The force of figures can go no further. A deficient harvest searches us out instantly. In the partial failure of our crops in 1860 is the key to nearly the whole of the changes, commercial and financial, which have marked the close of that year and the beginning of the present one. Its influence is not yet by any means at an end.

THE POSITION OF THE GREEK INTEREST.

UPON two or three occasions recently we have called especial attention to the embarrassments in the Levant trade, and to the exceedingly creditable manner in which the Greek community have encountered a most serious combination of adverse circumstances. They have exhibited a degree of strength which has surprised even those best acquainted with their shrewdness and sagacity as men of business. It only remains for us now to refer with satisfaction to the belief which prevails in the best informed quarters that, in contradiction to the tone of the alarmist Constantinople despatches published in London, the crisis in the Greek trade in England and France has virtually been surmounted. It is understood that ample provision has been made for the numerous bills which fall due this day (Saturday). It is likewise confidently expected that all the Constantinople bills drawn on M. Mirés, of Paris, will be met in full, notwithstanding his stoppage. We are enabled to state that two of the most eminent bankers and capitalists of Constantinople are now either on the way to, or have actually arrived at Paris, land by means of coupons attached to them. This will enable the holders to detach the coupons and receive the interest without parting with the bills. By the arrangement hitherto in force, the bills must be lodged for a certain number of days for examination.

But this is not all. The holders of Exchequer Bills may pay them in for duties at any time during a period of six months prior to their falling due.

This is a boon to the banking and commercial interests, the importance of which does not seem to be generally understood. Assuming that there are £16,000,000 of Exchequer Bills, which fall due in the March and June of each year, it is evident that from October to March, and from January to June, Exchequer Bills for all practical purposes will be as useful as bank notes or gold. Under these circumstances we would suggest the advisability of the aggregate of the Exchequer Bills now floating being divided into four equal amounts, so as to let them fall due in January, April, July, and October. This is important to ensure that no undue action shall take place in any particular quarter.

The effect of this measure will be, under ordinary circumstances, to keep Exchequer Bills at par, and to make them much more eligible securities at all times for bankers and traders. Moreover—a very important feature—by being made receivable for duties—(we presume by “duties” are meant Excise and Customs, which together amount to about £42,000,000)—Exchequer Bills become, to a certain extent, part and parcel of the circulating medium. This may tend in no small degree to relieve the stringent operation of the Act of 1844.

We may fairly congratulate the banking and discounting interest on this important measure. They can now keep their reserves much more largely than before in Exchequer Bills with full security that they will be always available, and that they can never fall for any length of time below par.

It was time that some measure of the kind was adopted, for it is understood that, in consequence of Mr. Gladstone's allowing only £3. 0s. 10d. per cent. per annum (2d. per £100 per diem) on the renewal of the March bills, a not inconsiderable amount had already been sent in for payment. Probably Mr. Gladstone's main object is to diminish the cost of the Exchequer Bill debt. Small economies are his forte, as appears from his recent successful attempt to squeeze £50,000 a-year out of the Bank of England. The banking interest, who are the chief holders of Exchequer Bills, were naturally much dissatisfied at the exhibition of parsimony presented in the offer of 3 per cent. interest at a time when money commands 8. Meanwhile, we are, we think, rendering them a service in drawing their attention to the important advantage by way of set-off against the low rate of interest which is involved in the provision that Exchequer Bills shall, during half the period of their currency, be as useful, for the purposes specified, as notes or gold.

The following are the resolutions which the Chancellor of the Exchequer is about to move in Committee on the Consolidated Fund of Exchequer Bills Act:—

1. That it is the opinion of this Committee that the principal moneys of Exchequer Bills issued under the authority of Parliament, together with the interest thereon, which may become payable from time to time, shall be charged upon and paid out of the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom, or the growing produce thereof.
2. That the interest on such Exchequer Bills shall during their currency by law be payable half-yearly by coupons, and shall be paid at the Bank of England.
3. That an option shall be given at the expiration of each twelvemonths to the holders of Exchequer Bills to be paid the principal moneys of all Exchequer Bills held by them, and such principal moneys when paid shall be paid to the holders at the Bank of England; and that all Exchequer Bills not so paid off from time to time shall have currency for the next twelvemonths following the date of such option.
4. That, when such Exchequer Bills shall be paid off, the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury may issue the like amount of Exchequer Bills to replace the Exchequer Bills so paid off.
5. That all Exchequer Bills shall be receivable for duties granted to her Majesty during the last six months of each year during which such bills shall have currency by law.

Monday next is the last day for sending in the March Exchequer Bills for renewal.

INVESTMENT OF TRUST FUNDS IN INDIA STOCK.

In the House of Commons, on the 22nd February, Colonel Sykes asked the Secretary of State for India whether the notice issued recently by the Court of Chancery, authorising the investment of trust funds in Bank stock and East India stock, was confined to the old East India stock of the Company, to be paid off at 200 in 1874, or whether it extended to all the stocks and loans contracted by the authority of the Secretary of State for India in Council.

Sir C. Wood said that, in order to enable him to answer the question of his honourable friend, he had applied to the proper authority, and he had been informed that the order in Chancery applied to the old East India stock, and did not apply to the new.

The Government of India has promised to publish monthly statements of the cash balances in the various treasuries in India, and to furnish other information relating to the finances periodically.

THE STATE OF TRADE.

(COMPILED FROM NUMEROUS LOCAL REPORTS.)

THE accounts from most of the manufacturing districts continue to report increasing dullness. In many quarters the employment of the manufacturing operatives is falling off.

The accounts from Manchester state that the market continues in much the same state of depression as reported last week, and the prices of India shirtings and madapollams are about 1½d. per piece down. Lighter fabrics for the same market are cheaper in the same proportion. Printing cloths are even more depressed, and longcloths and T-cloths have at length begun to feel the weight of the depression more severely. A very small business has been done, and manufacturers generally are becoming very anxious sellers. Only a portion of the Blackburn weavers resumed work on Monday. The yarn market has greatly disappointed expectations. A larger business would have been done, it is thought, but for the fear that money would be dearer. Messrs. John Slagg and Co. report:—“The market continues in the same depressed state as it has been for the last two weeks. Indeed, so far as India and China goods are concerned, there is, owing to the telegrams received yesterday, even less disposition to buy, and prices continue very irregular, but decidedly lower since Tuesday last. There is still a moderate demand for some kinds of long-cloths and T-cloths, and last week's prices are sustained; but in almost all other descriptions the business is quite insignificant in amount, and prices continue to droop.”

At Leeds there has been a moderate market for woollen goods in the cloth-hall. Still, considerable quiet exists in the trade, and purchases are confined to small parcels of spring and summer goods, with a few lots of ordinary cloths. The weather has rather improved, still it is so cold that winter garments are mostly worn. Hence spring goods are not going very fast into use. With warmer and more genial weather the woollen trade will become more active. Prices continue steady.

At Rochdale the market has been flat both for wools and flannels. In general wools maintain late prices. Some of the flannel manufacturers are reducing their rate of production, being unwilling to overstock the market. Except for lincys, which may be bought for less money than they could a month ago, prices of goods remain firm.

The master spinners of the Bolton district have held several meetings for the purpose of considering the present state of trade, with a view either to a reduction in wages, working short time, or both; but we believe no definite understanding has yet been come to.

At Leicester the hosiery trade remains quiet, and there has not been much doing this week in the warehouses. Many operatives, both in the town and in the adjacent hosiery districts, remain only partially employed.

At Nottingham there has been a little more doing in the lace trade this week, although business in most branches is still very dull. The silk lace trade, although flat, is a shade improved. There are, however, still many good workmen out of employ. In many branches of the hosiery trade, as respects the home department, there is a fair amount of business doing, and business generally is assuming a more healthy tone. The export trade is dull.

At Halifax every branch of the worsted trade is very dull.

The accounts from Bradford, dated Thursday, report no improvement in the demand for worsted yarns, either for export or home consumption. Speculation is almost unknown, so little inducement exists at the present unremunerative rates. Prices are somewhat irregular, but, as a whole, firmer than could be looked for. The working classes feel severely the effects of short-time work, but there is not as yet much actual distress. There is no improvement to notice in pieces. The demand continues very dull in nearly every department, and manufacturers are mostly placed under the necessity of further curtailment of production. The American houses buy next to nothing, and Continental buyers do but little. Altogether the aspect of the trade is unsatisfactory.

On Tuesday work was resumed at most of the mills and sheds in Blackburn and the neighbourhood. All the large establishments are now at work, with nearly their full complement of hands.

At Huddersfield there is little or no improvement to notice in the market, business having been exceedingly flat in the cloth halls and the warehouses also.

The manufacturing trades of Birmingham and of the district are still suffering from depression. At most of the large manufactories the workpeople are making average time; but, notwithstanding this, the entire tenour of the reports is to the effect that business is dull. In the iron trade of this district there is not any improvement; neither is it worse than it was a month ago.

The manufacturing trades of the Wolverhampton district generally are, upon the whole, dull. The factors report an absence of animation in the home trade. There is still very little doing with the United States; and the high rate of discount has checked foreign trade in other departments.

THE Bombay Chamber of Commerce are still moving against the import duties imposed by the late Mr. Wilson on English manufactured goods and yarns.

In consequence of the failure of the Poole Bank the Wilts and Dorset Banking Company are about to establish a branch at Bournemouth, the fashionable watering-place near Poole.

SOUTH AUSTRALIAN REUNION.

On Wednesday evening a number of old South Australian colonists, and gentlemen connected with the Australian provinces, dined together at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street. Upon the occasion a memorial was presented to Mr. John Ridley, an old South Australian colonist, for the great boon conferred upon the province by the invention of the "Ridley Reaping Machine," which cut and thrashed the corn at one operation.

The memorial was a handsome candelabrum of silver filagree, resting upon a pedestal of polished Australian blackwood, and ornamented with shields of Australian malachite, the whole being surmounted with a model of the Ridley machine. Its design and execution are highly creditable to the art of the young colony. By the direction of the Duke of Newcastle, and upon the solicitation of Mr. E. Stephens (the vice-chairman), the memorial was admitted into England duty free.

Among those present were Captain Bagot, who presided; Sir Rowland Hill; Col. Gawler, late Governor of South Australia; Hon. John Baker, Member of the Legislative Council; Messrs. John Ridley, G. S. Walters, A. L. Elder, E. Stephens, W. Paxton, J. B. Graham, F. Levi, E. Levi, C. Bonney, W. Marchant, M. Smyth, J. Fisher, Dr. Tidmarsh, T. Hawden, W. Purdy, T. Fenn, T. Hancock, S. R. Pattison, W. Mansell, C. Grierson, J. E. Cole, A. Andrews, and W. A. Tweeddale.

The healths of "The Queen," "The Prince Consort, the Prince of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," having been drunk with the usual honours,

The CHAIRMAN proposed the "Army, Navy, and Volunteers," which toast was responded to by Colonel GAWLER, who said he found himself placed between those two links which were most interesting to him upon earth—the British Army and South Australia. It was not the first time that he had returned thanks to South Australians on behalf of the British Army. On the part of the officers it would be bad taste in him to say anything, but on behalf of the British soldier he must say that a finer set of men did not exist upon earth, and he was quite sure, let foreigners say what they would, that the British soldier was as superior to the foreign soldier as the mastiff was to the common dog. (Hear.) For the British Navy he also returned thanks, as also for the Volunteers.

The CHAIRMAN next proposed the health of Mr. John Ridley, and in doing so said the day on which they were assembled was very nearly the twenty-fifth anniversary of the day of the departure from the river Thames of the first expedition to establish the colony of South Australia. (Hear.) The bold adventurers sailed with that expedition, but they did not go there to be idle. They went to occupy land which was then unknown and unvisited by Europeans. They discovered it to be suited, not only for the necessities, but the luxuries of life—corn which was unrivalled in any part of the world, and the fruits of Europe and the tropics. In the spring of 1851 they were blessed with a most abundant harvest, but "though the harvest was great the labourers were few;" and notwithstanding that every man, gentle and simple, stripped his coat and went to work, much of the crop was lost. Then it was that the inventive mind of Mr. Ridley went to work, and the result was the production of the "Ridley Reaping Machine," a model of which surmounted the elegant memorial before them. Mr. Ridley did not protect his invention by patents, but gave it cheerfully and freely to the colonists; and as a tribute of the great services thus rendered, the South Australian colonists had subscribed for and sent to this country the magnificent token which then stood before them—the work of an Australian artist. As a proof of the growing prosperity of South Australia, he instanced the fact that in the four years ending 1859, the cereals alone exported amounted, upon the average, to £600,000, which was equal to £5. 4s. per annum for each inhabitant of the colony. The exports of Great Britain, amounting to £136,000,000, divided over the whole population, gave but £4. 14s. for each individual, while the total exports from the colony of South Australia averaged £13 per individual. Seeing the very great benefits which had been conferred upon that colony by the invention of Mr. Ridley, he hoped and believed they would unite with him in drinking his health with enthusiasm.

The toast having been drunk with great acclamation,

Mr. RIDLEY responded, expressing his heartfelt thanks for the very great honour done him, and concluded by proposing the "Prosperity of South Australia."

The Hon. J. BAKER (a member of the Colonial Legislative Council) responded. He saw around him so many well-known faces of those who had been resident in South Australia since its first settlement, that it was unnecessary for him to go through its past history, or record the facts with regard to the rapid progress which it had made; but he considered he should be guilty of an act of great omission if he did not say that he believed there was no country on the face of the earth, with an equal number of inhabitants, that could show such satisfactory results as South Australia. (Loud cheers.) Taking into consideration the number of its population, he emphatically asserted that there was not a colony in the world, not excluding the far-famed Victoria, that could compare with South Australia, either as to its present state of prosperity or its healthy condition. (Hear, hear.) In South Australia, not like Victoria, they were accumulating capital in the improvement of their lands, an amount of capital beyond what could be expected from a population so comparatively small, and in a time so comparatively short. (Hear, hear.) But at the same time he could not help thinking that the prosperity of the colony had been somewhat checked by the colonists having obtained from the Imperial Government the entire disposal of the waste lands—the immigration had been thereby suspended, which was to be regretted. The producing capabilities of South Australia were not fully known. He believed that in South Australia they could grow as fine cotton as any in the world; they had the soil, they had the sun, and they had the moisture necessary for the growth of that plant, but at present they were without the labour. With such men as Stuart, who had opened up such important pastoral resources, and with such men as Finke, who had made such extraordinary and valuable discoveries of mineral in the colony (the Great Northern Company's mines), there could be little doubt that South Australia would be proved to be, if provided with labour, the most important colony in the world. (Hear, hear.) In those newly-discovered mineral resources, as also in those on Yorke's Peninsula, he believed they had very many Burra-Burras in store. (Cheers.) There was no want of prosperity, neither was there any limit to the occupation that could be given to labour. (Hear.)

—WALTERS, Esq., proposed "The Governor and Parliament of South Australia."

E. STEPHENS, Esq., acknowledged the toast. Although Sir Richard Macdonnell was a hard-headed Governor—(hear, hear)—he believed him to be desirous of promoting the interests of the colony.

C. BONNEY, Esq., toasted "The Neighbouring Colonies," which was responded to by J. HAMDEN, Esq.

E. STEPHENS, Esq., here stated the fact that Mr. Hamden was the first person who took stock overland to South Australia, and thus had formed the great high road by which stock was now taken by thousands and tens of thousands. (Hear, hear.)

"The Guests," was then proposed by Mr. PAXTON, and acknowledged by Sir Rowland HILL, who remarked that the best proof of the prosperity of South Australia was the large and respectable company then assembled.

A. L. ELDER, Esq., as an old colonist, proposed "Our Fatherland."

The health of "The Ladies" was then proposed by E. LEVI, Esq.

The health of the Chairman having been drunk with all due honours, and acknowledged in graceful terms, the company separated, evidently much gratified with having had the pleasure of meeting old associates, each of whom had experienced his proportion of anxiety and trial in the establishment and development of the now prosperous colony of South Australia.

NATIONAL LIFE ASSURANCE ASSOCIATION.

The annual general court of the members of this Association was held on Wednesday, February 27, at the offices, in King William-street; J. C. COLQUHOUN, Esq., in the chair.

The SECRETARY having read the advertisement calling the meeting, the statement of accounts was presented and taken as read.

The CHAIRMAN—I am afraid, gentlemen, you will think that I make a very monotonous statement when we meet here year after year, for it is, I am happy to say, still the monotony of a prosperous and progressive society. I have nothing to say but what I have said before, that is, that we are doing a good business—a better business than we did in the previous year. The capital of the association is increasing—its income is increasing—the deaths, God be praised, have not been above the average; and consequently, from all these circumstances combined, we have been enabled to do that which must be a satisfaction to you, as it is to us—to announce the same reduction in the rate of premiums that we did on the last occasion, viz., 40 per cent. (Hear, hear.) Therefore, except I were to reduce this result into the actual figures which is in your hands, I should be almost inclined, having said so much, to sit down. But there are some misapprehensions put forward by certain gentlemen (and they are perfectly right in stating their views publicly if they think proper), which I am anxious to take this opportunity of correcting. I will first deal with a printed letter, dated Feb. 6, and signed "One Interested," so that I presume the writer, though he does not give his name, is a member of this association. Now, I am very happy to be in a position to re-assure that gentleman, and to tell him that his property is in a better position, a great deal, than he seems to imagine—that the insurance office of which he is a member is in a much more flourishing condition than he anticipates—and that there is not the slightest foundation for that gloomy view which, influenced, probably, by a too bilious habit, he appears to take of the state of this society. This gentleman says, "Here is an office doing £4,000 a-year in new business, and expending £6,000 a-year in charges of management. You are on the high road to ruin; there is nothing for you under the circumstances, but what I should recommend—that is, to wind up the business, submit your affairs to a competent actuary, and seek that which is the only resource left, viz., amalgamation with some other office." This would certainly be an alarming state of affairs; but I wonder it has not occurred to this gentleman, before putting forward these alarming statements, to ascertain what is the true state of the case. I will state what the charges of management really are. Last year the charges for management were £4,432: this year they are £5,088—not £6,000. Then, says this gentleman, "Your new business is an important element in the society, and it may be well worth while to look to this matter. An insurance society must have new business—for life is brief and fugitive, and we are every year losing a certain amount of our old business by the falling out of the assured lives; it is necessary, therefore, that we should have new business to take the place of the old, as it drops off by the lapse of lives." But when the writer knows the charges of management—£4,000 or £5,000, not £6,000 a-year—he will permit me to remind him that we have an income of £60,000 a-year, that we have a capital of £378,000, and, looking at the question in that light—that is, the extent of our business, the amount of our income and of our capital—it cannot with any justice be said that our management charges are high. (Hear, hear.) If you go round among the various offices of London, and, taking the amount of business and income into account, examine their charges for management, you will find that in the comparison ours, so far from being excessive, are extremely moderate. I am happy to be able to add, while upon this point, that during the last five years our charges have averaged exactly £8. 5s. 6d. per cent., which any one at all acquainted with the business and management of life insurance offices, must know are low. But, urges this gentleman, "we ought to amalgamate with some other office, for we are dying of inanition." Now I will tell him for his satisfaction that in the 11 years from 1850 to 1860 the insurances now in our office being in round numbers a million and a half, we have had out of that million and a half £1,161,000 of new business—(hear, hear)—and so far from our dropping into that state of inanition, that stationary condition, which this writer alleges, we are advancing steadily and rapidly. (Hear, hear.) So much for this printed letter. The other letter to which I would refer is one from Mr. Roy. That gentleman's statements, coming as they do from one who has been a policy-holder in this office for several years—since 1848, I believe—are entitled to be received with respect, and with all the weight which is due to them. He, however, seems to be under the impression that we are not progressing. He says the society has been unfortunate for some years past, and that our business is nearly stationary; and then he proceeds to compare the policy which he has with us here with a policy he has in another life assurance office. He imagines that our position is almost stationary. If that were the fact—if I were obliged to tell you that we were stationary, and that the stationary position we had reached was one that enabled us to put into your pockets every year a reduction of 40 per cent.—I should still say that that was a position so advanced and so satisfactory, and so favourable to our pockets, that I should not be particularly anxious to see it disturbed. (Hear, hear.) But, as a matter of fact, a more inaccurate statement can scarcely be imagined. But this, after all, is a question of figures, and to the figures I will now refer. I might go back to the very origin of the society, but if I take the last ten years it will be sufficiently ample as a range. Taking, then, the period from 1851 to 1861; in 1851 our new business was thirty-seven policies, covering £33,000, the amount received in the shape of premium upon these new policies being £1,072. What has been the amount of new business in the year which has just closed? The number of new policies taken out has been 161 instead of 37; and the sum assured by these new policies is £138,000 against £33,000 in 1851, and the amount paid upon them in premiums £5,115 as against £1,072. (Hear, hear.) Of capital we had in 1851, £264,000, our annual income was £43,000, and the cash bonuses we put into the pockets of the policy-holders in the shape of reduction in the premiums, £9,774. In 1860 our capital was £378,000, our income £66,000, and the cash bonus we put in your pockets in the shape of reduction from the premiums was £117,000.

Mr. ROY—The printed statement says it was £19,000 received on new premiums in 1850.

The CHAIRMAN—That is for two years.

Mr. ROY—As you quote my circular, will you refer to the figures of 1859, which is the last year to the accounts of which I had access when that circular was written?

The CHAIRMAN—But that makes your case worse, for in 1859 we had 166 new policies, not 161.

Mr. ROY—But you will find the amount received less.

The CHAIRMAN—We assured £138,395 instead of £138,301.

Mr. ROY—And the new premiums?

The CHAIRMAN—They are £4,507, and that is the only point in which you are right.

Mr. ROY—But that is the point.

The CHAIRMAN—Excuse me, but you must take a larger view of the business of an office like this than to take up results of a single year, and of one portion only of the accounts and, pointing to a reduction in that one instance, say here you have only received in that particular year £4,500 for new premiums, having largely progressed previously and since; therefore the business is stationary, and the management is to be condemned. (Hear, hear.) The real test in a concern like this is the steady-going prosperity of the office. (Hear, hear.) We know there are backwaters in everything, and it would be quite possible, no doubt, to pick out one particular year in the history of any society when the results do not come up to the expectations of its members. Unfortunately, we have had on one occasion, in order to meet certain charges, and to place, as we believed, the institution upon a sounder footing by sweeping them from our liabilities, to make a reduction in the bonus we had previously applied to the diminution of the premiums of our members, and though we have not only gone back to the previous rate of division, but have increased it, we are altogether unable to give any assurance of what may happen in any one year. Societies of this kind, as you are aware, depend upon the casualties of life, and those casualties may be greater in one year than another, and our profits diminished in proportion to the larger amount we may have to pay on the falling in of policies. But the real test of progress is to be found in the increased capital of the company, the increased amount of the annual premiums received, and in the increase of the new business; and to all these essential elements of prosperity this society can point with satisfaction. (Cheers.) If we look to the five past years we find them all prosperous. We have made during that time 28 per cent. increase on our capital, 25 per cent. increase on our annual income, and we have increased the cash bonus as applied to the reduction of premiums 17 per cent. The property assured is more than quadrupled within ten years, and the premiums have increased five times over. What evidence can I offer so satisfactory as these simple figures? (Hear.) The test which had been laid down by a committee of Parliament is, that the amount in hand should be equal to half the amount of the premiums received. We go beyond that. We ought to have 50 per cent. in hand—we have 56 per cent. (Hear, hear.) Whether, therefore, you take the test which any commercial man would apply, or the test laid down by the Parliamentary committee, I say that this office is in a sound and satisfactory state. The last statement in Mr. Roy's circular is one of comparison. He refers to another office in which he holds a policy, and says that the results in the way of reduction of premium are not so favourable in this office as in that. Now on that point, when you compare this office with the London Life, which is the one, I believe, alluded to, you must bear in mind that whereas that is an office of 60 years old, ours has only existed about 30, and all who know anything of life assurance must be fully aware that in its earlier history the business was more and the profits larger. Now we are all driven into a corner as it were by the competition of the numerous offices which have sprung up, so that a comparison with an office of sixty years' standing is scarcely in place. But even as compared with the London, we are very little behind. When Mr. Roy first went into the London Life office, he found a reduction on premiums declared of 66 per cent.; now it is 72½. (A Voice: No; 82½.) I am informed 81½. The reduction at the National at that time was 35 per cent., now it is 40. I think when we are compared with our great competitor on our onward steps, if not quite so rapid, mark a very respectable pace. (Hear.) But if Mr. Roy will compare our progress with other offices of our standing, he will find the result largely in our favour. I will not mention the name of any other office—but I could mention one in which, though the income is three times that of the National, the reduction is only 37 per cent. against our 40. Another, and a very old established one, in which, with an income of £300,000, the reduction is only 35 per cent. A friend of mine has compared his policy in this office with one which he holds in another, and he finds that he has paid to that other office 6 per cent. more than he has paid with us; and he speaks of a friend of his who has paid 15 per cent. more than he would have paid with us. Last year a gentleman compared the results as regarded his policy in another office with what they would have been in the National Provident, and found that he had in ten years paid £403 in the other office, whereas he would have paid only £336 in this. I think, then, that as to our progress, whether judged by comparison with any other office, or by any other test you may choose to apply, we have reason to claim your continued and increased confidence. I move, in conclusion, that the statement presented be received and adopted.

The motion having been seconded,

Mr. COLLIER put some questions as to the details of the accounts, and the mode in which the assets of the company, other than those specially mentioned as invested in Canada debentures and India stock had been dealt with. He also complained of the increased charge for management.

Mr. LOCK, the actuary, in reply, stated that the £427,000 referred to in the account, was secured upon mortgages of the highest class, mostly on freehold properties, except £10,000, which was held in Southampton Dock debentures, and £5,000 in Stockton and Darlington debentures. With regard to the expenses, they had been increased by an addition of £300 a-year to the remuneration paid to the directors, and additional charges as agency consequent upon the greater difficulty of getting business now as compared with thirty years ago. He submitted, however, that £8. 5s. 6d. per cent., including everything, was a very low average.

Mr. ROY at some length defended the view he had taken in his circular, and

Mr. SIMMONDS suggested a committee to consider the state of the society, examine the securities, and report to the proprietors, and submitted an amendment to the effect that such a committee be appointed, and that the meeting be adjourned to receive its report. (Oh, oh.)

There being no seconder, the amendment fell to the ground.

After some observations from Mr. JEFFRIES and Mr. GARTH against the view taken by Mr. Roy, and expressing satisfaction at the position of the society,

The original resolution was agreed to; the directors retiring by rotation were re-elected; Mr. Neville Lubbock was appointed to the vacant auditorship; and a vote of thanks and confidence to the president, vice-president, and directors terminated the proceedings.

LONDON, CHATHAM, AND DOVER RAILWAY.

The sixteenth half-yearly general meeting of this company was held at the Westminster Palace Hotel, on Wednesday, February 27th; the Right Hon. Lord SONDES in the chair. In proposing the adoption of the report, his lordship said the management of the line had had to contend with some difficulties, from the state of the road caused by the bad weather, and also from the want of rolling stock. But every exertion had been made by the directors to get proper rolling stock, and in that respect they would soon be better off. Passengers now very naturally complained of having to get out and change at the Crystal Palace if they wanted to go into the city. That was a great inconvenience, and inconvenience was caused by the Brighton Company refusing to book them from London-bridge. But the directors hoped that arrangements would soon be made to remedy both those evils. The line to Dover would be finished, he had every reason to believe, in May; but the directors would take great care to see that all the necessary arrangements were completed before it was opened. They had given orders for several large and improved steam vessels to run between Dover and the Continent; and two vessels were already in course of construction. All the shareholders would agree that it was important they should have a line of their own to the City as soon as possible. Meantime, one of their directors, who lately inspected the works of the Western Metropolitan Extension, reported that they were progressing in a very satisfactory, indeed a surprising, manner. When these extensions should be open, there would be no more difficulties at the Crystal Palace or at the London and Brighton Railway terminus. The directors had endeavoured to select a traffic manager, and were now in great hopes that, within a few days, a gentleman of undoubted ability and experience would accept the post. With regard to the projected new line between Beckenham and Bickley, the details of it would be submitted to the proprietors at a Wharnclyffe meeting. The extension of the Metropolitan Railway to Finsbury, and the embankment of the Thames, were two projects of the day, which deserved the consideration of this company, and if carried into execution would be of the greatest benefit to this company. He would only refer to the engineer's reports of the works in progress for this company, which were quite satisfactory.

Lord HARRIS, the deputy-chairman, seconded the adoption of the report with a few remarks. He congratulated them on the great rapidity with which the Metropolitan Extension was carried on. It was absolutely necessary for the prosperous traffic of this company that it should have not only its line to the City, but its own particular line to the Victoria station, instead of being dependent, as now, on the convenience of the Brighton Company for the times at which the trains should be run. In providing the new rolling stock and engines the directors had gone to manufacturers of the highest reputation in the kingdom, and had sought to secure both speed and safety.

Mr. HARTTRIDGE observed that the report alluded to certain difficulties in working the traffic between Beckenham and Bickley, to obviate which this company was about to go to Parliament for power to construct additional mileage. He believed this was unnecessary, as the only question was whether this company should book passengers at two stations on the South-Eastern line, and the Board of Trade might decide the matter.

Alderman SALOMONS, M.P., thought it desirable that the shareholders should support the policy of the board, and not insist on a narrow, short-sighted economy. They ought to make this company entirely independent of the South-Eastern, and after having already laid out so much in order to have an independent access to all parts of London, it would not do for them to have a short piece of their line controlled by the South-Eastern Company, which must always be in hostility to this company. He would take objection to one mysterious paragraph in the report, which spoke of commuting the portion of the profits applicable to the Western Extension for a fixed rent. That was a subject, however, which might be more suitably discussed at the board than at this meeting.

Mr. WILSON said he should protest against any such arrangement, as the Western Extension was quite a distinct concern.

Questions on various points having been put by the Hon. W. M. Jervis, by Mr. Ward, Mr. Magnus, and other gentlemen,

Sir C. RONEY, one of the directors, replied to all the questions. He stated, firstly, with respect to the Metropolitan Extension shareholders at this meeting, that as they were in fact shareholders of the London, Chatham, and Dover Company, they had the same right to be present as those of any other section of the railway, although the capital was separate. As for the proposed alternative line between Bickley and Beckenham, the directors of the company were driven into it, and it was not of their seeking. He should be glad if any other arrangement could be made, but they had experienced from the South-Eastern Company every possible hostility and opposition, and without the measure proposed their own traffic could never be properly developed. With regard to the question raised by Alderman Salomons, the directors found that the accounts of traffic in connection with the Western Extension and various railways adjacent would necessarily be extremely complicated, and they would propose, if it should be desired by the shareholders of this company, to substitute for the working agreement another arrangement, which must have the sanction of the shareholders before a permissive Act of Parliament could be obtained for the purpose. The width of the land taken for the Metropolitan Extension was 66 feet, instead of 44, so as to give room for laying down four lines of rail, though it was not the intention of the directors to proceed with more than two lines until the state of the traffic should be such as amply to justify it. There would be no doubt that the four lines would be required for the Metropolitan Extension, after its opening, and it was better to purchase the land now.

Alderman SALOMONS wished it to be understood that his objections were not satisfied by the explanation just given, but he would say no more about it at that meeting.

Mr. CONYBEARE thought the directors were adopting a wise policy in making their line independent of the South-Eastern Company, which, as he knew, created all sorts of impediments to the Brighton Company's traffic from Croydon to Reigate, and served this company in the same way. He asked whether the capital to be raised for the Metropolitan Extensions would be sufficient to complete them?

Sir C. RONEY said yes, they had every reason to believe it would be sufficient for the two lines. An opinion having been expressed by several speakers that the Metropolitan Extension shares now being issued should not be signed by the secretary alone, Sir C. Roney stated that they were all sealed in the actual presence of one of the directors, namely, Sir Robert Carden, who took care to check them off by the entries in the books. If it were the wish of the shareholders, however, they should also be signed by one or more of the directors.

The CHAIRMAN proposed that this practice should be followed in future.

Mr. EDWARDS invited the Board to support an effort which was about to be made by the parishes on the south side of Blackfriars-bridge to obtain the establishment of a steamboat pier on that bank of the river, for which object a memorial to the Board of Conservancy was about to be presented.

The report was unanimously agreed to; the four retiring directors, namely, Mr. G. Cobb, Mr. E. W. Edwards, Mr. C. J. Hilton, and Sir J. M. Tylden, were re-elected; and Mr. Coleman was re-elected an auditor. Some conversation passed on the propriety of holding the future meetings of the company in the City, instead of at Westminster; but it was agreed to leave that to the discretion of the Board. A vote of thanks having been given to them, on the motion of Mr. J. M. Garel, the proceedings ended.

THE MALTA AND ALEXANDRIA CABLE.—Mr. Forde, of the firm of Messrs. Gisborne and Forde, the Government engineers, has proceeded to Malta to arrange all the preliminaries for laying the Malta and Alexandrian cable, and will be assisted in his survey of the route by two of her Majesty's ships. According to the present arrangements the laying of the cable will commence in May, and if successfully done, the cable will be open to the public for the transmission of messages in July, and as the defects in the Suez-Aden section of the Red Sea cable are believed to be trifling, it is probable that it may also be in working order in July, and thus place London in electric communication, via Malta, with Aden.—London and China Telegraph.

The tendency of the Bank accounts is still improving. The increase in the coin and bullion is larger than could have been reasonably expected, considering the drain to America. The influx of private deposits has chiefly contributed to swell the reserve.

THE MONEY MARKET.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 1.

There has been a good demand for money in the discount market throughout the week, and, the supply being but scanty, some tightness prevails. There is, however, no absolute pressure. Much uncertainty is manifested with regard to the action of the Bank of England. The rate for the best short paper to-day was  $7\frac{3}{4}$  to 8 per cent., but four and six months' bills are taken at  $7\frac{1}{2}$ , or less, in many quarters. At the Bank of England the amount of business has been moderate.

To-morrow (Saturday) will be an extremely busy day in the discount market, as a heavy amount of bills fall due on that day as well as on Monday (the 4th). In some quarters the maturing of these heavy engagements is looked forward to with some anxiety. It is understood, however, that the Greek interest is now becoming strong.

In the Stock Exchange there has been considerable pressure for money throughout the week. To-day seven and eight per cent. were paid for short loans on English Government Securities.

The high range of the exchanges is beginning to draw gold over from the Continent. This is an important feature. About £55,000 arrived on Monday, of which it is understood that a portion has gone into the Bank of England, whilst the rest has been passed on to New York. Injudiciously, as many people think, the Bank have selected this moment for notifying a reduction of one penny per ounce (namely, from 76s.  $7\frac{1}{2}$ d. to 76s.  $6\frac{1}{2}$ d.) in the price at which they will buy Russian half-imperials. The alteration, made at a critical moment, may have a tendency to discourage the influx of that coin. It is well known that, upon former occasions, when our money market has been so tight as to draw gold from the Continent, the bulk of the supplies have come in half-imperials, a coin which has a free circulation in nearly every market in Europe.

The shipments of specie to the United States since last Friday comprise £75,402 by the Niagara, £263,000 by the Etna, and £7,500 by the Palestine.

The news by the Vigo which was telegraphed from New York yesterday, announces a recovery in the exchange to 105. This may tend to prevent the shipments by to-morrow's packet from exceeding £250,000 or £300,000.

Fifty-thousand sovereigns were sent into the Bank of England on Wednesday by an Irish bank.

The present price charged by the Bank of England for bar silver is 5s.  $1\frac{1}{2}$ d. per ounce, or  $\frac{3}{4}$  above the rate current in the market. At the moment, therefore, in the absence of any active demand for India, there is no draught upon the Bank in this form.

The bullion in the Bank of France is said to have experienced a further increase of more than £400,000 since the publication of the monthly return on the 14th Feb.

An instalment of 20 per cent. falls due on the new Indian loan on the 12th March.

The Ellora, which sailed on Wednesday, took £186,690 in silver, and £11,000 in gold for Bombay, making together £197,690. The total sent for Bombay by the steamer of the 12th Feb. was £526,705.

The Ceylon, which will leave on the 4th inst., will take £160,156 in silver, and £7,261 in gold, making together £167,417. Subjoined are the particulars:—For Ceylon, £3,700; Madras, £12,271; Calcutta, £106,590; Singapore, £485; Hong Kong, £30,123; Foo-chow-foo, £845; and for Shanghai, £13,403.

A further considerable amount of gold, estimated at £60,000 or £70,000, has just arrived at Marseilles from Constantinople.

THE BULLION MARKET.

With reference to the movements in bullion and in the Indian Government paper, Messrs. Pixley, Abell, and Langley, report as follows:—

GOLD.—The gold mentioned in our last circular as having arrived from Australia, viz., £350,000, has all been sent into the Bank, there not having been much demand for bar gold for export, and we have now to report the arrival of the Hebe from Melbourne, with £29,000. The export of sovereigns and coin to New York has continued during the week, the Niagara having taken £75,400, and the Etna £250,000; the greater part of this last amount consists of Russian and French gold coin received from the Continent. The Arabia, to leave on Saturday, will also take a considerable amount. The Ellora has taken £11,000 to Bombay.

SILVER.—The market for silver has been rather buoyant during the week. The bars per Atrato have been sold at 61d. per ounce standard, and the price afterwards improved to 61½d. per ounce standard; we quote the rate now at 61½d. per ounce standard. The West India steamer has, however, arrived with $1,500,000, and this will doubtless influence the price. The Ellora has taken £195,490 to Bombay, and the Delta has brought £2,715 from the Peninsula.

MEXICAN DOLLARS.—There are but very few dollars in the market, and we quote the price as 4s. 11½d. per ounce, nominally.

EXCHANGE ON INDIA for Bank drafts at 60 days' sight remains about the same—2s. to 2s. 0½d., Bombay and Calcutta; Madras 60 days' sight Bank drafts, 1s. 11½d. to 2s. 0½d.

INDIA GOVERNMENT LOAN NOTES are inactive, but prices are about the same as last week, perhaps a little weaker. We quote Five-and-a-Half per Cents. 100½ to 101, and Five per Cents. 94½ to 95.

The report of Messrs. Haggard and Co., dated this day, observes:—

Since our last circular our market has been rather more active, both as regards silver and gold, the principal features of interest being a resumption of gold shipments to America, and the reception of gold from the Continent. The amount of gold sold to the Bank of England is £145,000, composed principally of the late Australian arrivals, and a few amounts from the Continent. Some portion of the shipments to America consist of gold received from abroad, which is immediately transhipped. Owing to a telegram just received from New York, showing a rise in the rate of exchange to 105, it is probable that the steamer of to-morrow will not take so large an amount of gold as was anticipated. Silver has been in good demand, a rather large amount having been sold for the Calcutta and China steamer at 5s. 1½d.; the market is, however, again rather weaker, owing to the arrival of the West India steamer, and a slight decline in the price may be looked for. For dollars there is a small demand, but prices show no alteration of importance.

THE EXCHANGES.

The Continental Exchanges this week have continued very firm, and in several instances a fresh improvement has occurred, owing to the tightness of our money market.

REDEMPTION OF THE DANISH FIVE PER CENT. LOAN.

Danish Five per Cents. for £691,300, the remainder of the loan contracted in London in 1850, were payable this day, in accordance with the notice given in August last. The holders were offered the alternative of a conversion into Four per Cents., which presented no attractions.

SPANISH THREE PER CENTS.

The Stock Exchange Committee have this day passed the following important resolution:—"That a representation be made to the Spanish Ambassador that the new Coupon Sheets now being issued to the holders of the Exterior Three per Cent. Stock are not in accordance with the tenor of the Bonds, and that a special committee be called on Monday next to consider the subject."

ANGLO-PERUVIAN FOUR-AND-A-HALF PER CENTS.

We understand that the whole of the £136,000 of Anglo-Peruvian Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Stock required by the Peruvian agents this month for the sinking fund, has been purchased to-day at 96 ex div.

MEXICAN BONDS.

The following memorandum from the Committee of Mexican Bondholders was published this morning :—

The Committee of Mexican Bondholders have received a letter from Mr. Whitehead, dated Mexico, the 28th January. There had been a change in the ministry (the new Minister of Finance being Signor Dn. G. Prieto), and among the candidates for the presidency Signor Lerdo de Tejada seemed to have the best chance. The archbishop and the bishops (most of the latter having been assembled at the capital) had been expelled from the country, and a good deal of irritating sparring was going on between the civil authorities and the clergy generally. Among the conservative chiefs Mejia was at St. Luis at the head of 1,000 men, and Marquez was said to be with him; while about Tasco or Iguala, were Vicario, Zuloga, and La Garde, with a number of followers. A force of 3,000 to 4,000 had been despatched against the latter, but a report, which is hoped to be unfounded, says that this force had pronounced in their favour at Cuerna Vaca. Everyone was anxious for a conducta to go down to Vera Cruz, but it is usual to await the arrival in the capital of that from Guanajuato, and hitherto the Governor of that city had refused to give the necessary permission and escort. Mr. Mathew was still at Jalapa. The new Minister of Finance had given Mr. Whitehead the usual assurances that everything possible should be done to pay what was owing.

EXCHEQUER BILLS.

Exchequer Bills were dull to-day at 7s. to 3s. dis. These securities have not been improved by the official announcement that the interest on the March bills is to be raised from its present rate of  $1\frac{1}{2}$ d. per £100 per day to 2d., or equal to £3. 0s. 10d. per cent. per annum. The bills are to be sent in for renewal by the 6th of March.

It is understood that, owing to the inadequacy of the rate of interest offered by Mr. Gladstone on the renewal of the March bills, a considerable amount has been sent in for payment.

With regard to the announcement that the interest is to be paid on coupons at the Bank, and that the bills are to be receivable for revenue payments after they have run six months, we have offered some remarks in another part of our paper.

THE GREEK INTEREST.

We are requested to state that reports which have already found their way into print in some journals, that Mr. G. P. Lascaridi has stopped payment, are incorrect. We are assured that Mr. Lascaridi is prepared to pay any acceptances of his under discount.

A telegram received yesterday from Constantinople announces a movement in the exchange indicative of more confidence in commercial circles. The steamer which is due at Marseilles on Thursday next is expected to bring upwards of £100,000 in gold.

It is noticed with satisfaction that the Bank of France are acting with great liberality and indulgence towards the Greek interest.

M. MIRE'S AFFAIRS.

The advices from Paris state that M. Marcuard, M. Blount, and another have been named liquidators of the estate of M. Mirès. The advices continue to express confidence that all M. Mirès' engagements will be provided for. It is possible, however, that the shareholders in his Caisse may suffer.

AFFAIRS IN AMERICA.

THE FRAUDS ON THE COMMERCIAL BANK.

At Bow-street Police-court, to-day, John Durden and James Holcroft, who are charged with the great frauds on the Commercial Bank, were again remanded.

THE FRAUDS ON THE EAST AND WEST INDIA DOCK COMPANY.

From investigations made by the directors, it appears that the frauds upon the East and West India Dock Company do not amount to more than £5,000 or £6,000. They have been committed by one of the officials of the company, and extend over a period of nine or ten years. Repairs, which are always being carried out in some shape in the company's docks, have been overcharged, by means of a falsification of the accounts. The directors, although believing in the correctness of their examination, have called in the aid of a professional accountant.

THE ALLEGED TALLOW FRAUDS.

At the Central Criminal Court, on Thursday, Mr. Robert Fraser North, tallow merchant, was discharged, the Chief Baron and Baron Channell having come to the conclusion that the prisoner could not be convicted of larceny on the facts of the case.

THE RED SEA TELEGRAPH.

The shares of the Red Sea Telegraph Company have risen to  $18\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ , in consequence of its having transpired that the select committee of the House of Commons have decided that the company's guarantee is a perfectly unconditional one. Meanwhile, the shareholders, who embarked their money expressly upon this understanding, are kept waiting for their overdue interest, in respect of which a vote passed Parliament months ago.

THE EAST INDIA COMPANY.

A special general court of proprietors of the East India Company is called for the 6th of March, to consider a petition which is "proposed to be presented to her Majesty in reference to the inadequacy of the present provision for conducting the affairs of the East India Company."

THE TRUST AND AGENCY COMPANY OF AUSTRALASIA.

RAILWAYS.

A communication received this afternoon from the secretary of the Great Western Railway Company of Canada, informs us that "from the accounts of the half year ending 31st January, 1861, just received from Canada, the net earnings of the Great Western Railway of Canada during that period (and irrespective of the previous balance) will justify the board in proposing a dividend at the rate of 3 per cent. per annum for the past half year."

The report was adopted, and the customary votes of thanks passed to the chairman and his colleagues.

The directors of the Agra and United Service Bank on Tuesday declared a dividend of £2. 10s. per share for the past six months, with a bonus of £1 per share, which makes 12 per cent. distributed to shareholders for 1860.

ASSURANCE COMPANIES.

The following circular has been issued to the shareholders in the London and Provincial Marine Insurance Company. It appears to indicate successful and careful management :—

2, Royal Exchange-buildings, London, E.C., Feb., 1861.

Sir,—The several recently established marine insurance companies having published a statement of their accounts preparatory to their ordinary general meetings, the directors think that it may be satisfactory to the shareholders to know, in anticipation of their general meeting, which, under the deed, will be held in June next, what the operations of this company have been. They have, therefore, the pleasure to inform you that the character and amount of business transacted during the seven months from May to December last has been very satisfactory, the amount of the underwriting account on the 31st December, when the books were balanced, being as follows:—Net amount of premiums received, £63,970. 4s. 8d.; amount of claims settled, being 32 per cent. upon the account, £20,537. 13s. 9d.; leaving a balance to be carried over of £43,432. 10s. 11d. The business of the company since that time has been successfully and steadily progressing.—I have the honour to be, sir, your obedient servant,

HENRY J. LEEKE, Chairman.

At the seventh annual meeting of the Briton Life Association, held on Tuesday, the report for 1860 stated that 1,805 new policies had been issued, assuring £346,160, and yielding in annual premiums the sum of £10,023. The total income of the association was £30,613. After the payment of claims (£6,145), surrenders, dividends, and other expenses, the balance in favour of the association on the year was £10,533. The association was established some years since, for the introduction of a new system of dividing and appropriating profits, whereby assurance policies become payable during the lifetime of the party assured. After the business had been transacted, a vote of thanks to the directors, Mr. John Messent, the secretary, and the other officers, terminated the proceedings.

At the annual general meeting of the British Empire Mutual Life Assurance Company, held on Tuesday, it was stated that the new policies for the past year were 657, representing £170,019; the total income, £63,176; and the accumulated fund, £193,260.

At the first general meeting of the Thames and Mersey Marine Insurance Company, held on Thursday, the directors' report was agreed to, with very little discussion. The statement of the company's operations up to last Saturday shows that £12,655,000 of risks have in all been taken, of which £7,477,000 have run off, leaving £5,177,000 outstanding. The premiums received up to Saturday last were £154,000, and the losses £61,000, leaving a balance of £93,000 in hand. It will be remembered that the directors' report, issued a few days ago, stated the total premiums received up to Dec. 31st at £107,713, and the losses at £13,000, showing a balance of £94,365 in hand. The balance now is somewhat less than it was on the 31st December, so that the losses sustained in the interval appear to have swallowed up rather more than the whole of the premiums received in the interval.

The thirty-fifth annual general meeting of the Standard Life Assurance Company was held at the head-office, George-street, Edinburgh, on the 25th Feb.; George Patton, Esq., advocate, in the chair. The following statement was submitted, showing the business transacted for the year ending 15th Nov. last:—Sums assured during the year, £705,897; corresponding annual premiums, exclusive of single payments, £22,565; the total subsisting assurances as at Nov. 15, 1860, £6,968,825; the accumulated fund, £1,805,982; the annual income of the company, £304,161.

OTHER PUBLIC COMPANIES.

Intelligence recently received from Kurrachee shows that the Indus trade, which had suffered a temporary stagnation owing to the cessation of business at Bombay caused by the Income-tax agitation, had again recovered its former active condition. The Sutlej, belonging to the Oriental Inland Steam Company, left Sukkur on the 13th of Jan. on her fifth voyage to Moultaun, and again ascended through the pass with her load in tow with the same ease and success as on previous occasions. It also appears by advices brought by the same mail that the company's barges at Calcutta intended for the navigation of the Ganges are rapidly advancing towards completion. These vessels, from their great carrying capacity, will give important facilities in conveying large quantities of cotton, flax, sugar, and other similar products, from the interior to the coast at a cheap rate.

At the meeting held on Monday of the Mercantile Discount Company, the resolution previously passed in favour of the voluntary winding up of the undertaking was confirmed.

At the meeting, on Tuesday, of the Victoria Dock Company, the directors' report was agreed to. The number of ships which entered the company's docks during the year 1860 was 2,632, representing 850,337 tons, against 2,522 ships, or 716,131 tons in 1859.

At the meeting on Thursday of the Great Ship Company the directors' report was adopted. The sum required to supply the ship for sea is £10,000. Her proposed destination is America.

An extraordinary meeting of the Grosvenor and West-end Railway Terminus Hotel Company is called for the 5th of March, to consider the advisability of increasing or diminishing the number of directors.

The annual meeting of the Blacnavon Iron and Coal Company is called for the 2nd of April.

A call of £5 is to be paid on the preference shares in the City of London Brewery Company, by the 25th of March.

Creditors of the Union Discount Company are required to prove their claims in the Bankruptcy Court.

THE PARIS BOURSE.

At Paris to-day the Three per cent. Rentes opened at 68.05, and closed at 68.15, both for money and the account, being the same as yesterday and the same as on last Friday.

THE STOCK AND SHARE MARKETS.

The English Funds are weighed down by the dearness of money and by the supply of stock from banking sources. Consols which closed on Friday last at 91½ to 7, for the 7th March, left off to-day at 91½ to 7. For money, the last price was 91½ to 7. 1858 is now quoted ex the dividend due this day.

The "continuation" in Consols from the 7th of March to the 10th of April is as much as ½ to 5 per cent. The circumstance tends materially to check operations for the rise.

The Five Per Cent. Rupee Paper was quoted to-day 94 to 95, and the Five and-a-Half per Cent., 100 to 101, being the same as last week.

The scrip of the New Indian Loan was last quoted to-day 100½ to 100, being rather better.

Bank Stock has been more offered, and was last marked to-day 231 and 232½.

The transactions in the Foreign Stock market have been upon a moderate scale. There has, however, been an active demand for Mexican Bonds, which rose to 21½ to 1. To-day a relapse occurred. Spanish Passive Bonds have declined; the Coupon certificates are last quoted 6½ to 7.

The market for British Railway Stocks has experienced repeated variations. The principal feature has been a fall in Midland and Lancashire and Yorkshire. These stocks, after being carried up to high prices by purchases on provincial account, are now pressed for sale by operators in that quarter. There is also the usual disposition on the part of speculators in London to operate for a fall in most kinds of securities, in consequence of the state of the money market. North Eastern stocks are a good deal depressed. The general tendency of prices in this department is drooping.

The following shows the closing prices of the principal British Railway Stocks to-day, and the result of the week's variations. The share list in detail will be found in another column:—

At the settlement on Wednesday the supply of Midland Railway stock increased, and the "continuation" rose to 7-16 per cent. Great Western was scarce, and ¼ per cent. "backwardation" was paid.

Illinois Central and New York and Erie Railway shares continue to show much firmness: the former closed to-day at 28½ to 28 dis., and the latter at 27 to 28.

AMERICAN SECURITIES.

The report of Mr. E. F. Satterthwaite, dated Wednesday evening, is annexed:—

There is little change to report in the market in London for American securities, the transactions having been on a limited scale. State Stocks continue to be offered, without meeting buyers. Some moderate purchases have been made in Illinois construction, and Erie Third Mortgage Bonds.

Illinois shares have fluctuated between 29 and 27 discount, closing at 28 discount sellers.

Erie shares have been stationary, from 27 to 28 per share, closing 27 to ½.

The London agents of the Illinois Central Railway Company on Monday received the following report:—

Office of the Illinois Central Railway Company,
New York, Feb. 12, 1861.

Gentlemen,—We have again to report a large traffic for the first week this month, 75,906 dols. 55c., against 42,142 dols. 40c., a gain of 33,764 dols. 15c., making an increase of 168,531 dols. 32c. since the 1st of January: 70,000 tons weight was delivered last month, including 1,562,964 bushels of grain. Of this, 1,174,296 bushels were sent out of Cairo. The superintendent advises that it is beyond the capacity of our motive power to keep up this large freight traffic—the estimate of 3,500,000 dols. per annum contemplated—1,500,000 dols. of passenger earnings, and 2,000,000 dols. per annum of freight traffic. A freight business of 250,000 dols. per month, or 3,000,000 dols. per annum, cannot be carried on in the winter months without overtaxing our machinery. With the present supply of freight locomotives there is little margin of time for repairs, and we are liable to enter upon our spring traffic towards Chicago with the locomotives disabled. The case would be quite different in the warm summer months; in the present cold days of winter the action of frost on the locomotives causes the necessity for frequent repairs. It is quite impossible to determine whether the opening of the Illinois river, with the large quantities of corn held ice-bound on its banks, will or will not cut off our Southern trade materially.

South of Iowa the corn crop of 1860 was a failure, and immediately west of Missouri, in Kansas, there is actual starvation from the scarcity of corn. A great many deaths are reported. There is an absolute scarcity of corn in the South Western States, and many Western merchants believe that the demand will fully keep pace with the means of transportation, both by river and railway, until the 1st of August. St. Louis will require large supplies from Illinois for the Missouri River country.

The sale of such quantities of grain, pork, and other provisions this winter can hardly fail to have a very favourable effect upon the local freight traffic outward for the entire season. The farmers will purchase largely of timber especially, and from a careful examination of business which has followed sales of produce in years past, we are led to believe that 100,000,000 of feet of timber will be sent over our line this year, or about 25,000 car loads.

The evidence of the great abundance of corn in Illinois is in the fact that the price at Chicago continues so low, only 23 cents per bushel. Last year the price ranged in January and February at 43 to 49 cents per bushel.—Yours respectfully,
W. H. OSBORN, President.

It was very much desired that the report should go out by this steamer, but it was impossible to get it off. The Chicago accounts could not be brought to a point till after the 20th January, on account of returns for many items not coming in till after that period. Then the accounts had to be made up, and Mr. Ackerman to come on here to compare them with the accounts of this office, and take them back with him for completion. The President's report has been sent to Chicago some days since, and we confidently calculated on its return with the other parts of the report by to-day, so as to send hence to-morrow. It is now doubtful whether it can be got off before this week. The report will be a very interesting one, and will give a very particular account of the state of the company, and will show clearly and unmistakably a very strong position, and will, I have no doubt, meet the expectations of the shareholders in Europe as well as here.

Yours truly,

(Signed)

THOMAS E. WALKER,

Messrs. Robert Benson and Co., London.

Chairman Ex. Committee.

The half-yearly dividend is announced on Georgia State Five per Cent. Sterling Bonds.

INSOLVENCY OF A PRIVATE BANKER.—The recent death of Mr. John Crosby, banker, Kirkby Thore, Westmoreland, who during his lifetime was a man highly respected by all classes of society, has revealed a state of insolvency which has caused great surprise, and will cause great misery in the district. Mr. Crosby died very suddenly at his residence on the 12th February, and upon his executors going to examine his books after his death they found there was a great deficit. A meeting of the creditors was held on Saturday last at the George Hotel, Penrith, when it was stated that the liabilities amounted to £81,000, and the assets were £39,000, leaving a deficiency of £42,000. It is generally expected that the creditors will only receive about 5s. in the pound. This failure will cause the greatest misery in the neighbourhood, where Mr. Crosby was held in high esteem. The number of depositors was large. Many small farmers who had placed their money in the bank to be ready for their rent-day on the 25th of March will be almost ruined; others who had taken farms had their money accumulating in the bank, as they thought, to stock them; farm servants had deposited their savings in Mr. Crosby's hands, and have lost their all. The losses will be heavily felt in all the country side. It is supposed the insolvency must have been for a long time approaching a crisis, but the fact was shut up in Mr. Crosby's own breast, as he kept his books strictly private, permitting no one to examine them but himself, even his son, who was in the office, not having that privilege. The creditors, a large number of whom assembled at the meeting on Saturday, appointed a committee of investigation.

ASCENDING OF A GLASGOW MERCHANT.—The mercantile community of this city has been considerably surprised during the last day or two, in consequence of the sudden disappearance of one of its members, who had occupied a prominent position in the department of commerce with which he was more immediately connected, and who had all along borne an unimpeachable character. The person we have referred to was engaged in the sugar trade; and it appears that he fully availed himself of the opportunity of drawing upon the good offices of his private friends. It is stated that the obligations which he has incurred are so great that there is only too much probability of a deficiency of £20,000; and of this large sum his nearest relations and private friends are said to be sufferers to the extent of £12,000. It is stated that his embarrassments have arisen from a long course of reckless speculation in sugar, railways, &c.—Glasgow Herald.

Mining.

FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 1.

BUSINESS in the Mining Market this week has been to a moderate extent. There has been some excitement in East Caradon shares, which, after showing much firmness, have declined on the settlement. Generally, there is not much life in the market.

A fair amount of business was done to-day in some classes of mining stock; East Caradon shares were in demand, and have recovered. The inquiries extended to North Basset, North Downs, Marke Valley, Wheal Basset, Tolvadden, Tincroft, North Minera, West Bryn Gwilog, South Wheal Frances, and Carn Brea mines. Wheal Buller and East Basset were flat.

The following prices are reported to us from the Stock Exchange this evening:—

MERCANTILE EMBARRASMENTS.

The decision of Mr. Commissioner Holroyd, in the case of Messrs. Laurence, Mortimore, and Schrader, will be given in the Court of Bankruptcy on the 6th of March next.

The only failure announced last Saturday in the Levant trade was that of Mr. T. Gues, whose liabilities are stated to be about £30,000. The assets are mostly claimable from houses at Constantinople, and no definite estimate can yet be formed as to how they will turn out.

The statement in the Spanish advices recently, that Messrs. Lopez and Lemonier, of Barcelona, had suspended, is announced to be incorrect. The business of the firm has not been interrupted.

A petition for private arrangement was filed in the Birmingham Bankruptcy Court, on the 26th Feb., by Messrs. Beesley and Farmer, ironmasters, of Smethwick, the estimated liabilities are from £25,000 to £30,000.

A petition for private arrangement arising out of failures connected with the trade of the locality, was filed in the Birmingham Bankruptcy Court on Tuesday by Mr. George Vernon Blunt, of Birmingham, who has long been engaged in the American trade. The liabilities are said to be small.

At a meeting on Monday of the creditors of Messrs. O'Halloran and Co., East India and Ceylon merchants, who recently suspended payment, a balance that was presented by Mr. C. F. Kemp, the accountant, showing direct liabilities to the extent of £20,541, while the assets stand at £27,939, including £20,734 due from Messrs. Parlett and Co., the corresponding house in Ceylon. The failure has been caused by the speculative transactions of Mr. Greenhill, one of the partners, which have involved a loss to the estate of the large sum of £41,029. They were carried on during the absence in Ceylon of Mr. O'Halloran, and without his knowledge, by means of a falsification of the books. The capital in 1856 appeared by the books to be £70,081; in 1857, £73,345; in 1858, £61,957; and in 1859, £70,323; but, as already explained, the resources of the firm have been crippled by Mr. Greenhill's improper dealings. The profits in the last half of the year amounted to £7,465, but the trading since Christmas last exhibits a loss of £12,876. A resolution was adopted in favour of winding up the estate under inspection.

A meeting took place on Tuesday of the creditors of Messrs. C. W. Ede and Co., Levant merchants, who suspended payment on the 25th January. The balance-sheet, prepared by Mr. C. F. Kemp, the accountant, is subjoined:—

To bills payable in favour of C. Ede and Co., Constantinople	£16,662	1	0
To liabilities on bills payable	£84,583	12	2
Expected to be retired by the drawers, on whose account they were accepted.
To liabilities on bills:—
Receivable	£77,217	2	8
Considered good	73,820	17	4
May rank against this estate
	£3,396	5	4	3,396 5 4
To guarantee any probable loss on these liabilities, the capital of the firm at Constantinople is considered ample.
	£20,058	6	4

The assets are put at £23,200.

It will be seen by the above that the whole of the "bills payable," representing the drafts of some of the first houses in Constantinople and Smyrna, are expected to be retired by the drawers; and that nearly the whole of the liabilities on "bills receivable" are considered good, so that only a small amount is likely to come against the estate. It was explained that as the position of the Greek interest is improving, and as the engagements of the firm will probably run off in a very satisfactory manner, Messrs. Ede and Co. may soon be in a position to resume payment, or be able to state when and how their liabilities are to be met. Under these circumstances it was decided to adjourn until the 15th of April, when the whole of the bills will have run off. The attendance was very limited, the position of the estate having been explained previous to the meeting to the principal creditors, who had given their adhesion to the above resolution. The absence of unsatisfactory features also obviated discussion. The firm has been established thirty-five years, and the business has been conducted by the present partners during the greater part of that period. The advices from Constantinople state the capital of C. Ede and Co., of that city, at £30,000.

At the meeting on Tuesday of the creditors of Messrs. Schilizzi and Vuros, Greek merchants, who failed on the 3rd Feb., the liabilities were stated by Mr. J. E. Coleman, the accountant, at £31,893, and the assets at £16,386, apart from a balance of £21,153 due from the Constantinople house, but which is not expected to produce more than £7,500. The accountant assumes that the estate will ultimately show from 12s. 6d. to 15s. in the pound, but until the bills run off no exact estimate can be given. The liabilities on bills receivable are £25,087, of which £23,080 are expected to be paid in full. The firm at Constantinople has been written to for full particulars of its position. It was pointed out that in the absence of any definite idea as to how the estate will turn out it would be best to adjourn, and a resolution to that effect was accordingly adopted. Meanwhile a committee, which was appointed, will act here.

In the Bankruptcy Court on Wednesday, the choice of assignees in the case of Messrs. Nickoll and North was adjourned for a fortnight. The liabilities are said to be £40,000 or £50,000, and the assets £10,000.

At a meeting on Wednesday of the creditors of Mr. E. Vitalis, in the Levant trade, the balance-sheet presented by Mr. C. F. Kemp, the accountant, stated the net liabilities at £25,124, and the assets at £15,425. With reference to the bills payable (£68,094), which are expected to be retired, it was mentioned that the drawers are respectable firms at Constantinople. The liability in connection with bills receivable and with foreign bills (£73,872) is anticipated to prove very small. A liability of £13,704 on bills payable in favour of G. P. Vitalis and Sons, of Constantinople, will be covered by the capital of the latter firm, which amounts to £20,000. Until the bills run off, no correct idea can be formed of the ultimate position of the estate, and it was accordingly decided to adjourn to the 26th of April, when the liabilities will have matured. Inspectors were appointed to protect the interests of the creditors generally.

In the Bankruptcy Court on Thursday there was the first sitting under the bankruptcy of Mr. Henry Bateman, timber merchant, of Old Broadstreet. Trade assignees were chosen.

In the Bankruptcy Court yesterday (Friday), the examination in the case of Messrs. Smith, Patient, and Smith, leather factors, of Bermondsey, was adjourned.

The Produce and other Markets.

COLONIAL PRODUCE.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 1.

The transactions in the Colonial markets this week have been on a very moderate scale, and prices generally have tended downwards. Sugar remains unsettled, quotations being in many cases fully 6d. to 1s. per cwt. cheaper for refining sorts, while low brown qualities are most depressed. The Netherland Trading Company's sale, fixed for the 21st proximo, will consist of 70,600 baskets Java. Several parcels soft grain Rice and white Bengal have changed hands, at the recent decline. The limited quantity of Plantation Ceylon Coffee brought forward has realised full rates. No date is yet fixed for the Dutch Company's spring sale; their stock for which comprises 460,000 bags. Several kinds of Spice have sold with more spirit. The reported loss of a vessel containing 3,700 bags of Pimento rather stimulated the demand for that article. A few purchases have been made in Bengal Saltpetre at the previous reduction, but Bombay sorts are lower. The Tea sales concluded this week without further alteration in value. During the week 1,150 bales of Cotton have been sold at about previous rates. As regards Rum, the demand for West India descriptions has been very limited, and no sales of importance have taken place. Although holders of Cocoa are willing to submit to a reduction, buyers still hang back, and there are no sales to report. Small Pearl Sago is in rather more request, and sales of fair amount have been effected at full prices.

THE TALLOW TRADE.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 1.

The only change of any moment that we have to notice in the Tallow market this week, is an improved quotation for new 1st sort Y.C. in connection solely with the speculation in this article, which has so long been the chief feature in the market. We do not hear of any transaction of sufficient importance in itself to have caused this advance, and we can only attribute it to the general feeling of uneasiness in certain quarters, arising from doubts as to what may be the relative positions of the different parties interested in the speculation towards the close of this month, with respect to the settlements then to be arranged. Less agitation now attends these settling days than formerly, the practice now so general of carrying over the settlements to a future period often admitting of a crisis passing without much excitement or even material alteration in prices.

To-day the business done in 1st sort Y.C. Tallow has been very small, and limited to the speculation in question. The quotations are:—for ready delivery, 60s. 6d.; the same for all the month; April to June, 58s. 9d.; and 56s. per cwt. is quoted for October to December.

The arrivals of tallow since last Thursday have been 848 casks; deliveries for the same period 883 casks. Stock this day 70,957 casks, showing a decrease of 35 casks upon the week.

Town Tallow has been in fair request during the week, but the supply has not more than met the demand, the full nett quotations having been readily obtained. As far as we can ascertain the general melt is short throughout the country. To-day the "Letter-price" is again 60s. 3d. or 57s. 9d. per cwt. nett.

The following are the particulars of the public sales of yesterday:—

Odessa.—251 casks offered—61 casks sold, good to fine sheep, 58s. to 58s. 6d.; fine ox, bought in at 58s.; 1 cask dark sold at 56s. 6d. per cwt.

South American.—Only 19 pipes were offered (slightly greasy), bought in at 56s. 6d. fair quality; and 56s. per cwt. for some rather stained.

Australian.—88 casks offered, mixed, melted, of inferior to middling quality; 20 casks sold at 53s. to 54s. per cwt.

North American.—255 casks offered, mostly small; 126 casks sold. Fine pale Y.C. kind, 57s. to 58s. 3d.; fine bright, rather yellow, 56s. per cwt.; 31 casks, rather inferior, withdrawn.

French Tallow.—23 casks offered, and bought in at 56s. to 56s. 6d., quality sound, but dull colour; 11 casks fair Belgian were held for 58s.; and 11 casks dark and not quite dry were bought in at 55s. per cwt.

Gibraltar.—15 barrels were offered, good dry average quality, fair colour, but rather old, bought in at 57s. 6d. per cwt.

Palm Oil.—A very languid demand only exists for this article, and sales are difficult to effect. Some holders, however, refuse to part with their oil at present prices. 72 casks, good quality, rather full coloured, 12 casks sold by auction at 46s. per cwt. and the remainder later in the day at the same price. 5 casks good fair quality bought in.

Palm Nut Oil.—Only 8 casks offered, fine quality, and sold at 39s. 3d. per cwt. This article is scarce and in rather good demand.

Horse Grease (South American) is not in much request; 200 cases offered, and bought in at 39s. per cwt., which price was paid, after the sale, for a few cases.

Cocoa Nut Oil.—None has been offered at auction this week, but by private contract a very fair amount of business has been transacted, and rather improved rates have been obtained. There are several cargoes of Cochin and Ceylon due, but the bulk of it is, we believe, appropriated; 51s. 6d. to 52s. is obtained for fine Cochin, and 50s. 6d. to 50s. 9d. for fine Ceylon; 51s. for extra quality. Sydney Oil has been nearly cleared off the market, and it is not easy to get it at the prices quoted, say 48s. to 49s. per cwt. for fine quality, and 46s. to 47s. per cwt. for common to good fair oil.—Furnished by Messrs. Culverwell, Brooks and Co., Brokers.

LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET.

LIVERPOOL, FRIDAY MORNING, MARCH 1.

The improvement which occurred in this market on Saturday last was well maintained during the first three days of the present week, and the sales each day reached 10,000 bales. Yesterday, however, the market was heavy, principally owing to a belief that the Bank of England would again raise its rate of discount, and the advance above referred to was lost. In some cases the prices of last Friday were barely obtainable.

[BY ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH.]

LIVERPOOL, FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 1.

The market has been very dull to-day, and the sales amount to only 5,000 bales, including 2,000 on speculation and for exportation. The imports are 7,175 bales. Fair descriptions show a fall of  $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per lb., compared with the quotations current on the 22nd Feb. The sales of the week comprise 63,890 bales (against 25,900 bales last week), of which 2,300 were taken on speculation, and 11,070 for exportation, and the imports 119,044 bales. The stock now amounts to 834,600 bales.

The Corn Trade.

GENERAL REMARKS.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 1.

The weather in the United Kingdom has been changeable during the last eight days, rain alternating with sunshine. Farmers are busily engaged in making up for lost time, but the ground, especially on lowlands, is still too wet for ploughing and sowing. It is computed that from one-fourth to one-third of the usual surface of land is yet unsown, and that therefore the prospects for the coming harvest in the United Kingdom continue very unsatisfactory. It almost appears that the weather has got into the cycle of wet seasons.

The supply of home-grown wheat, barley and oats has been this week slightly in excess of the returns published in the preceding *sen't*night. As farmers are now fully engaged with spring sowing, a further falling off in the supply may be expected.

The imports this week are, in the aggregate, of less importance than in the preceding one. The largest quantity of grain imported is still wheat, being nearly one-half of the imports of all kinds of grain, and contributed chiefly from the United States of America and the South of Europe. Flour continues to arrive chiefly from the United States of America. Barley has come forward this week more largely than previously, chiefly from the South of Europe. Oats.—The imports are on the increase, and now that the Baltic ports are again open to navigation, larger imports may be looked for. Maize.—The imports this week are again small.

The British Corn-trade has continued depressed this week under the prevailing financial difficulties and want of confidence. The existing high discount rate, though less oppressive than in other trades—because bread must be had at any price—is yet sorely felt in the corn-trade as a drawback to business and a curtailer of profits. Wheat—superior descriptions continue supported in price at about last week's rates, excepting some forced sales, but inferior sorts are quoted 1s. to 2s. per qr. cheaper than a week ago. The large quantity of American wheat pressing for sale at Liverpool is increasing the downward tendency in prices. Flour was offered at 1s. to 2s. per sack and barrel cheaper. Barley—fine sorts are maintained in prices, but grinding sorts are sold at 1s. per qr. under last week's rates. Oats—in moderate demand, at previous prices. Maize has been less inquired after this week, but prices have been maintained at about last week's rates. Beans and peas have been sought after for seed, and realised full prices.

In Mark-lane to-day the attendance of the trade was moderate, and the tone quiet. Wheat, English, sold in retail, at last Monday's prices. Foreign, unaltered in price. Flour, dull and unaltered; Norfolk, 38s. to 39s. per 280 lb.; barley, slow sale, at last Monday's decline; oats, held at last Monday's prices; beans and peas unaltered.

The annual meeting of the Van Diemen's Land Company is called for the 14th of March, when a dividend is to be declared.

The Atlantic Royal Mail Steam Navigation Company's steamship Prince Albert sailed from Galway on Tuesday for St. John's, Newfoundland, and New York, with a full cargo, 30 cabin, and 620 steerage passengers.

FOREIGN OFFICE, JAN. 3.—The Queen has been graciously pleased to appoint Laurence Oliphant, Esq., to be secretary to her Majesty's Legation in Japan.

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION OF 1862.—Her Majesty's Commissioners for the Exhibition of 1862 on Saturday last came to a resolution as to the precise character of the building required for the great industrial and fine arts display of next year, and that as soon as the guarantee has been signed to the required amount, so that the Bank of England (who, it is understood, have offered very liberal terms) can advance the money, the commissioners will be prepared to enter into a contract with Messrs. Kelk and Lucas Brothers, the two firms who sent in the lowest tender, and who have jointly agreed to execute the works. It will be satisfactory to the guarantors to be informed that in the only event in which there can be a call on them—namely, a loss by the Exhibition, the liability of the Commissioners in respect of the building is limited to the sum of £200,000.

BRITON LIFE ASSOCIATION.—The progress made by this association during the past year, as evidenced by its seventh Annual Report, is very marked. The peculiar principles on which it is founded commend it particularly to the young, and to such as have none to whom it is desired to leave a legacy. In such cases the whole amount will be paid to the assured during his life, if desired, after a series of premiums extending over, on an average, some five-and-twenty years. To illustrate this, the case must be taken of a man aged 30, who pays a yearly premium of £2. 8s. 10d. to assure £100 at death. In ordinary offices he would have the privilege of leaving that sum to his heirs or assigns, but in the "Briton," after a certain number of years, he would cease paying his premiums altogether, and might have the entire £100 for his own immediate use, either as £100 cash down in the current coin of the realm, or an annuity for the rest of his life. The assurer, therefore, may in due time reap the full benefit of his provident forethought, whereas in other cases death must intervene before the family can enjoy the advantages of parental prudence.

INSTITUTE OF ACTUARIES.—On the 25th February (Charles Jellicoe, Esq., president, in the chair), a paper was read by Mr. Thomas Bond Sprague on Mr. Gompertz's Law of Human Mortality, &c. In this paper, Mr. Sprague investigated a celebrated proposition and certain mathematical deductions from it put forth by Mr. Gompertz some years ago in papers read before the Royal Society. He also examined with great minuteness the grounds of certain claims to the independent origination of the proposition, and to the extension of the deductions following upon it. Mr. Gompertz's proposition briefly was, that "If the average exhaustion of a man's power to avoid death were such that at the end of equal small intervals of time he lost equal portions of his remaining power to oppose destruction which he had at the commencement of those intervals, then at any given age ( $x$ ) his power to avoid death or the intensity of his mortality might be denoted by a certain algebraical expression ( $a q^x$ );" and reasoning from this basis, he showed what the numbers living at successive ages should be, as represented in a table of mortality, and pointed out that the numbers thus theoretically determined corresponded closely with those derived from actual observation. This most ingenious and subtle theory Mr. Sprague critically examined, clearing away many misconceptions and misstatements in regard to it, which had, in some measure, arisen from typical errors in the paper printed at the Royal Society's press; tracing with great clearness the several steps of Mr. Gompertz's reasoning, and establishing, in a most able and satisfactory manner, his title as its originator and developer in contradiction to the claims in question, the untenableness of which the writer demonstrated with remarkable force and perspicuity.

GREAT CALAMITY AT GALATZ.—OVERFLOW OF THE DANUBE.

The Ottoman Bank have received intelligence from their branch at Galatz of a very sudden and awful calamity which has befallen that city by the overflow of the Danube and of Lake Bratsch.

An enormous quantity of cereals has been destroyed, and fifteen thousand of the poor inhabitants ruined.

Five thousand of these, who would otherwise be in a state of starvation, are fed by daily rations administered by a committee consisting of the English and French consuls and the principal merchants of the place; but the funds locally raised are only sufficient to provide for the absolute wants of the moment, and ere many days these poor creatures will perish unless succour be afforded.

The following gentlemen have consented to act as a committee for the purpose of procuring subscriptions:—

MINES, RAILWAYS, BANK, STEAM-SHIP, and INSURANCE SHARES BOUGHT, SOLD, or EXCHANGED.

Capitalists who seek safe and profitable investments, free from risk, should act only upon the soundest information; the market prices of the day are for the most part governed by the immediate supply and demand, together with the operations of speculators without reference to the bona fide merits of the property.

Mines afford a wider range for profit than any other public securities, and pay dividends bi-monthly, varying from 15 to 30 per cent. per annum. Instances frequently occur of young Mines rising in value 400 to 500 per cent. The undersigned devotes special attention to the above, and affords every information to capitalists, and effects purchases or sales upon the best possible terms.

SEVENTEENTH REPORT OF THE STAR LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY.

presented at the ANNUAL MEETING held on MONDAY, March 4, 1861;

CHARLES HARWOOD, Esq., in the Chair.

The Directors have much pleasure in being able to present a very satisfactory Report of the operations of the Society for the year 1860.

The Directors have issued Nine Hundred and Two new Policies, for the assurance of £336,290, yielding an annual income of £11,312. 15s. 9d.—an amount exceeding that of any previous year.

The annual revenue, after deducting the premiums for policies fallen in by death and surrendered to the Office, now amounts to £89,439. 3s. 1d.

The Premium in Assurance Fund is now £360,530. 3s., showing an increase of £51,085. 17s. 10d. during the year.

The claims by death (after deducting sums assured in other Offices) amount to £21,942. 16s. 1d., assured by Sixty Policies; and the Directors have still, as on previous occasions, the satisfaction of reporting that this sum and number are below the average expected and provided for.

The following figures illustrate more fully the advance of the Society during the past five years; and present facts which will commend themselves to the judgment of those conversant with Life Assurance Societies, as affording the most satisfactory evidence of progress and prosperity:—

Year.	Number of New Policies issued.	Sums Assured thereby.	Ann. Premiums therefrom.	Total Accumulations from all sources.
1856	603	£204,451	£6,597 18 3	£202,110 7 2
1857	572	221,122	7,735 9 5	238,055 1 7
1858	658	235,350	8,582 0 9	274,797 15 4
1859	812	294,495	10,172 19 6	309,444 5 2
1860	902	336,290	11,312 15 9	360,530 3 0

Thus, it will be perceived that during the last five years the sum of £158,419. 15s. 10d. has been added to the Assurance or Premium Fund, while £204,531. 2s. 6d. has been paid since the establishment of the Society on Policies which have become claims by death.

These figures are very gratifying—they show the strong hold which the Society has upon the confidence of the public; and it is from no mere routine that the Directors advert to the valuable assistance obtained from their Wesleyan connection—a connection which has always had a considerable influence on the prosperity of the Institution.

It is hoped, however, that still larger results will be obtained; with more than 7,000 Policy-holders, an influential Proprietary, a staff exceeding 400 Agents, and its association with Wesleyan Methodism, the STAR is yet capable of very considerable extension.

The Deed of Settlement provides that four of the Directors should retire; in conformity therewith, EDWARD BALL, M.P., THOMAS HOLMES, JOSEPH THACKRAY, and WILLIAM BETTS, Esquires, vacate office; and being eligible, the Directors propose their re-election.

The Directors desire to call attention to the circumstance that the next division of profits will take place at the end of the year 1863, and that all Policies effected in the year 1861 will share in the Bonus to be then distributed, provided the premiums are paid annually.

CHARLES HARWOOD, Chairman.

This Corporation has granted Assurances on Lives for a period exceeding one hundred and thirty years, having issued its first Policy on the 7th June, 1721.

Two-thirds, or 66 per cent. of the entire profits are given to the Assured.

Policies may be opened under any of the following plans, viz.:—

At a low rate of premium, without participation in profits, or at a somewhat higher rate, entitling the assured, either after the first five years, to an annual abatement of premium for the remainder of life, or, after payment of the first premium, to a participation in the ensuing Quinquennial Bonus.

The high character which this ancient Corporation has maintained during nearly a century and a-half, secures to the public a full and faithful declaration of profits.

The Corporation bears the whole expenses of management, thus giving to the assured, conjoined with the protection afforded by its Corporate Fund, advantages equal to those of any system of Mutual Assurance.

All Policies are issued free from stamp duty, or from charge of any description whatever, beyond the premium.

THE POSITION OF THE LONDON AND NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY COMPANY.

OF the English railway companies' meetings lately held, not one has attracted more attention than that of the London and North-Western Company; and deservedly so, for the discussion was of an order far superior to that generally noticed upon such occasions. It was characterised by much judicious criticism of the management, accompanied by an absence of temper on the part of the various speakers. The proprietors availed themselves to the full of their legitimate privilege to canvass the acts of their directors, and the observations of several of them were marked by so much truth, and by so just an appreciation of the true policy of a great railway company, that we would commend them to the earnest notice of railway shareholders generally. It is an excellent sign when a railway meeting shows itself capable of passing a really intelligent judgment upon the management. It is a sign that railway finance is no longer a sealed book to shareholders, that they know how to discriminate between what is true and what is merely specious, between an unostentatious but sound policy of developing traffic, and the more ambitious but ruinous policy of constant extension of their undertaking, in which too many railway directors are ever ready to embark. Railway proprietors, as a body, are becoming, year by year, more deeply impressed with the conviction that it is to the constant growth of the Capital Account that the unremunerative position of their property is mainly owing. Railway revenue is, as a rule, constantly increasing: railway expenses also increase, and in far too large a proportion to the increase of revenue; but the grand evil which counteracts all beneficial influences is the increase in the amount of the capital claiming dividend. When, as is often the case, the addition to the capital comes in the form of extensions, guarantees, leases (all of which operate in the same sense), or of preferential stocks or debentures, it stands to common sense that the position of the ordinary stockholder is still more severely prejudiced. He sees the country advancing in wealth; he sees the gross returns of his business advancing in an equal ratio, yet he finds his net income stationary. Repeated disappointments of this kind lead him, not exactly to question the accuracy of the traffic returns, but, what is quite reasonable, to doubt whether traffic returns are to be regarded of themselves as any criterion of railway profits. Week after week he has jotted down in his memorandum book the amount of the increase in the traffic. In one week the addition is £2,000; in another, £4,000; in another, £3,000; and so on. From time to time the shareholder casts up the total of the increase, knocks off a liberal percentage for additional expenses, and finds so large a balance on the right side that, no matter how often similar conclusions may have proved deceptive, he arrives at a conviction that the next dividend must be ½ or 1 per cent. more than that declared for the corresponding period of the previous year. In due course of time the dividend is announced, and proves to be, perhaps, the same as in the previous year, but with a smaller surplus. The shareholder is not merely disappointed; he is greatly perplexed. He finds that all ordinary calculations go for nothing. He finds that a rule which holds good in the case of all other businesses, does not hold good in the case of railways. Increase of income may mean no increase of profit. He waits with impatience, accordingly, for the full report of the directors and for the statement of accounts, and he then has the disagreeable fact once more impressed upon his mind that the causes of his disappointment are two-fold. One cause is that railway enterprises have now grown so big, and so heavy to conduct, that it is extremely difficult for the managers to keep a tight hand over the expenses, which augment far more rapidly than they ought to do, in relation to the increase in the earnings. But it is perfectly clear, from a review of railway finance for a few years, that the second cause—the ceaseless increase in the capital—has a still more powerful influence in keeping down the rate of dividend on the ordinary stock. The shareholder discovers, in fine, as the real key to the mystery, that such portion of the augmented earnings as remain as increased net profit (after providing for the unduly large increase in the expenses) are swallowed up by a new class of claimants, who must be satisfied before he touches his dividend. This is the result of the system of ever-open capital accounts, of the mania of railway boards for more territory, and of the policy of extensions, guarantees, and leases, by which that policy is worked out.

Upon no former occasion have these truths met with a more lucid, energetic, yet temperate exposition than at the meeting of the London and North-Western Railway Company on the 22nd February last. If there be one fact which is impressed by the discussion that then took place, it is that the London and North-Western is already far too big a concern—so big, in fact, that it is almost beyond the control of a board. It has nearly a thousand miles of territory, and the amount of capital upon which dividend is paid has reached the enormous sum of £36,408,434. Why, it is an undertaking of a kind to be managed by a prince, a cabinet, and a host of public servants. It is an imperium in imperio. With so extensive a territory, so immense an invested capital, and so splendid an income (the total receipts for the last half-year were £2,312,210, being at the rate of £4,624,420 per annum). The London and North-Western Railway Company really towers in importance above many a foreign State. It has, too, a complete army of employés in its service. The whole concern has attained such a magnitude, that the expenses run away beyond the grasp of its administrators. And yet these administrators continue to talk from time to time of the necessity of extension!

We need not search far for illustrations of the truth of this. The chairman (Admiral Moorsom) at the meeting on the 22nd ult. alluded in terms of apology to an item of £45,133, which had been expended in the last half-year, although not previously voted, and which, therefore, required special explanation. It should certainly be accounted an irregular proceeding for money to be spent first and voted afterwards. How else are proprietors to exercise any real control? The difficulty experienced by the board in controlling the expenditure is patent from numerous indications. "What are we to do as regards these unforeseen items of expense?" was virtually the apologetic interrogatory put by the chairman. "If we call upon our officers to consider and intimate what they are likely to require, not immediately, but during the next six or eight months, the review has a tendency to suggest expenditure." Such a course, he afterwards repeated, would tend to engender an amount of expenditure that would not be easy to control." Is not this, we ask, very significant of the difficulty of working so huge a concern, and suggestive of warning that its size ought not to be increased on any account? The directors feel that, amid the multiplicity of their cares, they cannot search into every department, sift its requirements, and check, by personal investigation, the charges that may be laid before them. They dare not say to their servants, "Tell us, before the meeting comes off, if there is any outlay required for the next six months, in order that we may get the money voted;" for they know well enough that such an invitation would lead to a flood of applications which they would be unable really to investigate. It is the case of the gentleman farmer, who is going on a tour, and who dares not say to his steward, "Is there anything you want doing about the place before I start?" simply because he has not leisure enough to go into questions of bricks and mortar, and because he knows full well that the mere remark would cost him one or two hundred pounds.

We beg our readers to follow us through a few of the remarks made by intelligent shareholders at the London and North-Western meeting on the 22nd ult. Mr. Taylor led off by commenting upon the growth of the concern in size, and cited the fact that "the London and North-Western had increased the capital account within the last six years something more than six millions." Mr. Price took for his text the incontrovertible fact that "from ten per cent. the dividend has come down to five per cent. and a fraction." Referring to the proposal that the London and North-Western should "now join hand-in-hand with the Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Company," he pointed out that "if gentlemen would look to the capital account of the London and North-Western, they would find that they were shareholders to the extent of something like six millions in other railways,"—a fact which has a pretty close connection with the increase of like amount in the capital within six years, as already alluded to. "What," urged Mr. Price, "had brought down the stock of the London and North-Western Company from £200 odd to less than £100? What but improvident guarantees, improvident leases, improvident subsidies to other companies." There are always complaints of competition, but, as this speaker forcibly asked, "Could there be a greater premium on competition than guarantees and leases?" There can be no doubt whatever that the cases in which projects have been started upon the prospect of being bought up by and merged into a larger company are far more numerous than unsuspecting railway proprietors imagine. As to the effect of the system of subsidies and leases, Mr. Price observed, "Thus they had the Preston and Wyre deficiency, the Shropshire Union deficiency, the Manchester, Buxton, and Matlock deficiency, and other deficiencies every year. This was a very serious matter; and now they were going to hold out their hands to the Manchester and Sheffield." Next he referred to the prospectus of a new company, the "Newcastle, Derwent, and Weardale," in which he found the names of two directors of the London and North-Western Company: "he should like to know why the London and North-Western proprietors should be asked to subscribe their money." Of the capital, £450,000, it is proposed that the London and North-Western Company shall subscribe £200,000. Next, Mr. Price drew attention to the contemplated great extension of the company's operations in the direction of West Hartlepool. It is proposed that the London and North-Western Railway Company shall become warehouse-owners at that place, and shall work the West Hartlepool Railway. There is a Bill pending to enable the London and North-Western Company to subscribe to the West Hartlepool line "to the extent of one-fourth of its present and proposed capital. The total capital was £3,600,000 therefore the London and North-Western would have to subscribe no less than £900,000." The speaker earnestly deprecated this as "again a renewal of that leasing and subsidising system which had brought them down to their present wretchedly low state." Equally censurable, he thought, would be any attempt on the part of the London and North-Western Company to stretch out its arm to Harwich, a point upon which the chairman of the Eastern Counties' Company, at the last half-yearly meeting, made a public complaint. Citing, finally, the fact that even, the most sanguine estimates of traffic have been exceeded,

Mr. Price submitted to the meeting his conviction that "it was the increase of the capital account which had been the cause of the reduction of the dividends of the London and North-Western, and every other company," and declared that he viewed with the utmost alarm the whole system of subsidies "which would be the means of adding greatly to the capital without any adequate return."

We ask our readers—Are not the greater part of these objections thoroughly well grounded?—are not both the tone and the matter of the discussion excellent? Mr. Mitchel, the next speaker, was so convinced that "augmentation of capital means diminution of dividend," that he thought it would be "a most excellent and healthful thing if that sentence were framed and glazed and hung up permanently in the board-room." He declared that he and his brother proprietors "asked, expected, and demanded at the hands of the directors that they should devote themselves to the development of a concern which had now a capital of 36 millions and a mileage of 1,000 miles." Referring to the increase of £244,881 in the company's earnings in the year 1860, as compared with 1859, Mr. Mitchel observed, "if the directors would act in accordance with the impression of the proprietorial mind, they would devote themselves to the development of that gigantic concern, and eschew to the utmost possible extent all branches, amalgamations, and guarantees." Mr. Wrigley followed in a tone of strong complaint. He said that "when he entered the London and North-Western Railway Company fifteen years ago, he formed his opinion of the district through which the railway passes, and came to the conclusion that unless England went to the dogs the London and North-Western Railway, touching upon every important depot of traffic in connection with the great marts of manufacture and commerce throughout the whole kingdom, must of necessity pay a dividend larger than any other railway company at all times." Subsequently, after much experience, "he had seen the great additions which had been made to the traffic, and the conclusion upon his mind had been that they must have a great increase of dividend. When times were prosperous, and all commercial undertakings in a state of activity, he had said to himself, 'If the London and North-Western Railway does not pay 7½ per cent. now, whenever the cloud gathers it will pay only 3 per cent.,' and, to his great surprise, with all their increase of receipts they were that day only to receive a dividend at the rate of 5¼ per cent." We ask our readers' especial attention to the speaker's succeeding remarks, for they touch upon the very root of the shareholders' disappointment. He said that, "the London and North-Western had got to that magnitude when it was impossible to control the system, and great waste and extravagance must of necessity occur. He would compare the year 1856 with 1860, and show them, in the first instance, a comparison of the capital account between the two periods. In 1856 it was £32,700,000, in 1860 it was £36,000,000. The revenue account in 1856 was £1,870,000, in 1860 £2,467,900, or an increase of £597,900. It was a most extraordinary fact that there was an increase of revenue of £597,000 in 1860 over 1856, and yet the disposable balance for the shareholders at the conclusion of the account stood thus: in 1856 £673,000, in 1860 £678,000. How was it that, with an increase of more than half-a-million, the return to the shareholders was only that which he had referred to? In 1856 they paid 5½ per cent., and in 1860 5¼. His own opinion was that this was not so much the fault of the directors, and perhaps not the fault of the managers; but he thought that the thing had got to that size that it was beyond the control of the directors." There is a great deal of truth in this. "Every half-year," complained the speaker, "there was some new lease, some grand concoction, some plot or intrigue going on for the purpose of leasing or buying something or other. He found that there was a sum of £50,000 put down as Parliamentary expenses. Fifty thousand pounds in the half-year seemed to be looked upon with as much coolness as a ton of coals!" Mr. Wrigley concluded by declaring that "the crisis of the railway had arrived, and unless the shareholders would step in, depend upon it that which they said to-day would be infinitely worse to-morrow, for the dividend would go down to 2½ per cent." Mr. Entwistle was "opposed to all proposals for leasing such a line as the Sheffield; they had already expended upwards of £36,000,000, and he did not wish to see the dividend any further reduced."

When the Chairman rose to answer these weighty objections, his remarks were of the weakest and most unconvincing kind. He indulged merely in platitudes of this sort: "He quite agreed, and so did all his colleagues, that it was not wise to increase their capital; but would they let the traffic go from their line without making an effort to keep it? Lines must be made to protect it. They did not begin the filing system," &c., &c. Well may it be asked: Is this the tone in which shareholders are to be answered?

Why do we reproduce these details? Simply because, in our opinion, the spirit of intelligent criticism displayed by the London and North-Western proprietors marks really a new era in railway annals; because their example deserves to be followed by every railway proprietary in the country; and because the adoption of that course cannot fail to have a beneficial influence upon the policy of railway boards generally. Capital accounts must be closed, or, at the least, such additions as are absolutely necessary for the accommodation of increasing traffic must be watched with the utmost jealousy. Where is the present system to end?

Is the London and North-Western capital to rise to forty or to fifty millions? Is there any limit to be fixed at all? These are questions upon which depends the very existence of railway property. Let not our object in any way be mistaken. We believe firmly that railway proprietors—including those of the London and North Western—possess a veritable mine of wealth in the immense resources of this wonderful country. The richer people get the more they will travel, both for business and for pleasure, and the larger will be the amount of merchandise to be transported. Our railways are intimately identified with, and must share in the prosperity of the nation. But all this prosperity—all possible growth of traffic—will be fruitless, so far as railway proprietors are concerned, if expenses and the capital account are to grow in a still greater ratio. An undertaking which will yield a fine return upon a capital of five millions will yield a poor one upon a capital of ten millions, and will prove completely ruinous to all concerned, if the outlay be raised needlessly to fifteen millions. When a large company saddles itself with a smaller one which yields a lower rate of dividend, it requires no arithmetic to perceive that the dividend of the former will be diminished. We entreat railway proprietors, whilst giving all due credit to their boards, to ponder and act upon these truths, and practically to enforce them. Let them but be of one mind and there can be no real opposition. It is only by these means that railway property can be made what it ought to be—the finest and most improving investment in the kingdom.

THE NEW ARRANGEMENTS AS REGARDS EXCHEQUER BILLS.

WE are glad to perceive that the resolutions moved by Mr. Gladstone in the House of Commons, on Monday last, relative to the alterations about to be made in Exchequer Bills, met with the almost unanimous assent of the House. It is to be hoped that the suggestion which we threw out last week, of dividing the Exchequer Bills into four equal amounts and making them fall due at the expiration of each quarter, will receive attention when the clauses of the Bill about to be introduced, in accordance with the resolutions, are discussed in committee. It is also of great importance to the commercial community that a perfectly clear definition be given as to what is meant by "duties" for which Exchequer Bills are to be receivable "for 6 months before they become due," because if this is not made perfectly plain great inconvenience to the monied interest may hereafter arise. We are particular in urging this point because one portion of the Chancellor's speech does not tally with the other. Mr. Gladstone in one portion says "what he proposed was, that during the last six months of the year for which Exchequer Bills should have currency by law, those Bills should, at the option of the holder, be receivable in discharge of any claim for duties, or taxes due to her Majesty."

This is precisely what is required, namely, that Exchequer Bills during the last six months that they have to run shall be receivable for duties, or taxes; but the resolution which was passed says only "duties." Now it is necessary to know whether Exchequer Bills will be received for taxes and duties, or for duties only; and if for duties only, what duties. In another part of his speech Mr. Gladstone states that there is no danger of Government being inconvenienced by these Exchequer Bills being paid in in too large quantities, as the Customs' duties of the port of London only amount to £250,000 a-week. This would seem to imply that Exchequer Bills are to be receivable only for Customs' duties, and not for taxes in general.

We hope these points will be made quite clear during the progress of the Bill through Parliament, as the whole value of the arrangement hinges upon the Bills being receivable, equally with notes or coin, for all duties and taxes payable by the public. The arrangement, if put upon a large basis, will certainly tend to effect a considerable economy of the circulating medium. In this sense it is well deserving of the attention of every banker.

THE ABSORPTION OF SPECIE IN AMERICA.

THERE are a few points in American trade deserving of attentive consideration at the present time. As the banking system of the United States recognises the issue of notes of very small denominations, namely, of one, two, three, and four dollars, uneasiness has been for some time felt as to the probable influence these notes would have were a peaceful settlement of the present difficulties not to be made. It has been apprehended that an inconvenient run might be made upon the banks for specie, not under the ordinary conditions of commercial difficulty, but in a manner which could not easily be refused. In a word it has been feared that unless good sense characterised the inauguration of Mr. Lincoln, a certain amount of lawlessness would for a time prevail, and one of the means best fitted for counteracting, or moderating such a state of things, has been thought to be the giving of greater convertibility to the currency or of withdrawing small notes from circulation altogether. Acting upon this impression, some of the Southern States have been discussing Bills providing for the withdrawing of all notes from circulation under ten dollars or two pounds sterling. The propriety of following the example of the South in this matter is now also being discussed in the Eastern States, while Illinois, with the consent of all parties, and the strongly expressed approbation of the commercial classes, has made considerable progress in the passing of a new Bank Act which will go far to substitute a metallic for a paper currency.

These proceedings, of course, point to an absorption of the precious metals, and particularly of silver; but everything is at present so uncertain in the United States that until the proposed Bills become law there need be little uneasiness felt regarding this prospective drain. The Western States, however, for several years past have suffered greatly from the want of a well-secured and convertible circulating medium, and the banks of these States being practically without specie, may be required to provide themselves. This is a far more probable contingency than that either the banks of the Southern or Eastern States should at the present time abolish small notes. Neither South nor East, even with the large amounts of specie held in hand, are really in a position to withdraw permanently from productive use, any great amount of capital, to protect their circulating medium.

There is another question—that of the ability of the United States to continue to control the shipment of specie from this country. This question must be considered in connection with the tariff, and as it is yet questionable whether the House of Representatives will consent to all the changes made in the Bill by the Senate, before the 4th of March, after which date the present Congress constitutionally ceases to exist, information must be waited for. If the proposed tariff has really passed into law, and it becomes impossible for British manufactures to find a market in the Northern States, the question still remains whether the Southern States will be in a position to buy from us to nearly the same extent as the Northern States did before. Conjecture on this point would be useless. If the North excludes our manufactures, the grain shipments which by-and-by will be made from New York will create a trade balance against us. For the present, however, it is scarcely necessary to say that the interior communications are stopped, and will not be opened before the 1st of May. The North, therefore, is not in position to draw large sums from us; and this points, for the present, to a probable rally in the exchange. With the South there is, unfortunately, the means of taking from us a further sum to pay for the cotton that has still to come forward. In previous years these cotton shipments have been balanced by shipments from the United Kingdom; but this year it seems they will have to be paid to some extent in specie.

These considerations serve to explain the flow of gold witnessed this week from the Bank of England for the Bank of Louisiana—a feature which has attracted considerable attention. We do not hear, however, that there are at present any large orders in London for the transmission of specie to that quarter.

THE RECENT FAILURES AMONGST COUNTRY BANKS.

A GOOD deal of attention has been directed, particularly in the provinces, to the recent failures amongst private country bankers. It would not be correct to imagine that these events tend to detract from the importance or safety of the provincial banking system, considered as a whole, for it is universally admitted that as a body the country bankers have been mainly instrumental in developing the industrial and commercial enterprise of the country. Country bankers carrying on the business of borrowing or receiving money at interest, as well as lending upon security, form a connecting and very useful link in the commercial chain. They become the debtors of the capitalist, and the creditors of the producer, and afford a ready medium of adjustment between these two great classes. The system of country banking, as practised by men who understand their business, is directly opposed to speculation. The country banker feels, or ought to feel, that it is his interest, to distinguish the provident from the improvident trader. Indeed, it ought to be considered as a regular branch of his professional experience, that he should be able to test and gauge the credit of the various traders within the district of his operations. It does, however, sometimes happen, though fortunately not often, that a country banker neglects necessary precautions, and permits himself to be led astray by designing adventurers, regardless of the sacred trust which he has undertaken. He thus brings ruin on himself, as well as upon those who had, by intrusting their money to his hands, placed implicit confidence in his discretion and integrity. When the late Sir Robert Peel passed his celebrated Bank Act of 1844, he found certain country bankers issuing promissory notes,—i.e., notes payable on demand. The only authority for their doing so was, the payment of £30 per annum for the license, together with the stamp duty on their notes. Prior to that date any individual, or association of individuals, residing at a greater distance from London than sixty-five miles could establish a bank and issue notes, by simply complying with the conditions above mentioned. The parties who were issuing their own notes were by the 7 & 8 Vic., cap. 32, authorised to continue to do so to a certain fixed amount; at the same time the Act prohibited any further or other issues of notes by any existing or future bank. It is one of the anomalies of Peel's Bill that, while it compels the Bank of England to have in its coffers an amount of gold equal to that of its notes in circulation, less the amount of the Government debt, it permits private individuals to issue notes, not only without binding them down to have specie to represent them, but absolutely without any official inquiry having been instituted as to their position. The result of this loose kind of legislation has been that upwards of twenty of the country banks which were permitted by the Act of 1844 to issue their own notes to the aggregate amount of £345,700 have, since the passing of the Act, failed, and their failure has been attended in some instances with disastrous consequences to the holders of the notes. Within the last few weeks we have had to record another failure of a country bank of issue, that of Messrs. Ledger and Son, of Poole. The amount of the fixed issue of this bank was £11,800. Like all similar failures, the event has produced distressing results in the locality. Two country banks have also lately failed, which are not banks of issue. One was the Amphill Bank, conducted solely by Mr. E. H. Strange. This person seems to have been engaged in a trade similar to that in which many of the oldest country banks had their origin, for he carried on likewise the business of a draper and grocer, and, from his local position, was looked up to as a man of undoubted solvency. He was, before starting as a banker on his own account, the agent to Messrs. Sharples and Co., bankers, of Hitchin, but resigned the agency, and, finding that he had obtained great credit among his neighbours, he commenced banking on his own account. He managed to obtain deposits amounting to nearly £12,000. The various deposits ranged in amount from £5 to nearly £700. The distress caused amongst the humbler class by this failure was very lamentable. The other failure referred to occurred a few days ago, and was occasioned by the sudden death of the only partner in the bank—a Mr. John Crosby, of Kirkby Thore, who, during his life, was looked upon as a man of great wealth and of exemplary character. His habits were regular and unostentatious, and, in the circle in which he moved, he had secured unlimited confidence. He consequently became the recipient of the spare cash of a large number of persons. His sudden death has disclosed the fact that he had been for some time insolvent, and the amount of his liabilities is stated to be no less than £81,000. Among the sufferers are many small farmers, who, in making a provision for the payment of their rents due on the 25th instant, instead of keeping the money by them paid it into Crosby's bank. Other persons had practised self-denial and careful accumulation, and paid their savings into the bank, in order that it might hereafter be available to purchase a farm. These, together with a numerous body of the most industrious and frugal of the farm servants who also invested their savings in the bank, will consider such a calamity as the worst that could have befallen them. It is impossible at present to state with any degree of certainty what the result of the winding up of the affairs of this concern will be, but it is conjectured that there will not be more than 5s. in the pound. One circumstance connected with this failure has transpired, which ought long ago to have excited suspicion that all was not right: it appears that Mr. Crosby never allowed any one to look over his books. He kept all the accounts of his customers himself. No clerk was ever permitted to make an entry, much less to examine the ledger.

There are in the provinces, as in the metropolis, many excellent private banks, conducted upon strict business principles, and based upon ample wealth. The position justly acquired by these establishments is testified in the implicit trust which is reposed in them by the commercial and agricultural classes, and which is transmitted from father to son. In many parts the note of a country banker will be taken without question or examination where a Bank of England note is scrutinised with absolute suspicion. Country bankers who, by pursuing a legitimate course for years, have gained this enviable position and acquired a connection which, as long as they choose to cultivate it, will never abandon them, can well afford to give merely a passing notice to the failures that take place from time to time amongst others of their fraternity who, professing to be bankers, do not carry on a proper banking business. The warning inculcated does not apply to them, and can only be made to do so by a great stretch of prejudice. But the point to which we are desirous of calling attention is the great power for evil given by the present state of banking legislation to an ill-conducted country bank, which is empowered to issue its own notes without the Legislature having satisfied itself that those notes have a specie basis, and without the obligation being imposed upon the partners of showing periodically that they are qualified by the position of their estate to be intrusted with a privilege involving so much responsibility. With provincial joint-stock banks, authorised to issue notes, the case is not quite the same, because periodical balance-sheets must be issued to the shareholders; but in their instance it is equally an anomaly that the Legislature does not compel them to hold a certain proportion of specie, and to show that they hold it. Our objects in these remarks are of quite a conservative order. It is highly desirable that the weak points of the existing system, both as regards private and joint-stock banks should be exposed, and this because it is desirable, in the public interest, that every bank in the country should enjoy the greatest possible amount, both of strength and of credit, in order that it may minister in the highest possible degree to the development of all legitimate enterprise.

THE CHANNELS FOR THE INVESTMENT OF CAPITAL.

ONE of the most interesting problems presented in modern times has been the difficulty of finding permanent and valuable investments for realised capital. In old times when great works were few, and the savings of the year comparatively unimportant, expenditure naturally took the course of providing increased comforts for the people, by the establishment of factories, building of roads, extension of foreign commerce, etc., and these channels were amply sufficient to absorb the amount already accumulated. From the reign, however, of William III. the prosperity of this country has been augmenting at so rapid a rate that the disposal of the national savings becomes every year a matter of greater difficulty. In that king's time we find that the Government loans introduced by him were eagerly taken up by capitalists who did not know what to do with their money. Since then loans have been multiplied, and the National Debt now represents the greater part of the savings of the last century, and the years immediately preceding and following it. In those days foreign loans had little chance of succeeding in England, since the English Government were ever willing enough to take whatever the country had to spare. With rare exceptions capital was only got rid of by lending to the Government. The South Sea bubble and the joint-stock companies' mania in the time of Walpole sufficed, it is true, to swallow up some large sums, but nothing approaching to the amount taken in national loans. Modern experience contrasts strangely enough with those days.

The conclusion of the great French war and the forty years of peace following it have been eminently favourable to the production of capital, and hence we find that not very long after 1815 the public appeared naturally anxious for new investments. The Government being no longer borrowers, but rather bent upon decreasing the debt left the field open to other comers, and foreign investments began to receive a large share of attention. In some cases they proved disastrous enough, but all the money wasted in South American mines in 1825 was sufficient to counteract the effect of the wealth rapidly accumulated by modern industry. The necessity of discovering some new outlet for money lying idle soon obliterated all ideas of former hopes. A great impetus was thus given to the launching of foreign loans. From nearly every country in Europe, besides the American States, applications have been received, and in very few instances have they met with failure. Many of these ventures, it is needless to add, have turned out to the great disadvantage of the British creditor; but it is only within the last year or two that a strong disinclination has been shown towards any new foreign stocks. Generally speaking, however, the nation has been the gainer, and the annual tribute which we now levy from abroad must be equal to the revenue of a large and flourishing country.

Another class of investments also commenced to be offered, by which large sums of accumulated capital have been absorbed. The amount expended on railways in the United Kingdom alone exceeds three hundred millions, while the subscriptions of this country towards similar French, American, and other foreign enterprises, and more lately to East Indian lines, cannot be estimated at much less than a hundred millions. There has thus been laid out an amount of capital equal to half the National Debt. Even this sum, however, enormous as it is, does not entirely represent the outlay, since a good deal was wasted on the abortive schemes of 1845. But for the outlay afforded by the necessity of constructing our own railway system, as well as, in a considerable degree, that of our contemporaries, it is impossible to estimate how much of these four hundred millions might have gone in unproductive foreign loans, hazardous schemes, and general waste. It is true that railways have not, in the aggregate, yielded an adequate return, partly from the necessary inexperience as to their proper management, and partly to faults in their original construction; but however much individuals may feel the annoyance in some cases of receiving but a small dividend, the nation generally must benefit by the rapid extension of railways over the country. It is a source of congratulation that in this instance at least the wealth accumulated by British industry has been laid out in advancing social intercourse and civilisation, and not wasted in trumpety schemes got up for the benefit of speculators and charlatans.

But although the extension of the railway system, and the enormous sums which have gone for mines, steam companies, land improvements, &c., have taken the chief portion of our savings, the total has by no means been spent in that way. The desire to get good investments has consequently caused a regular profession to be established, that of promoters of public companies. These persons make it their business to form undertakings which, offering a reasonable chance of success, present more or less inducement to the public to embark their spare capital in them. In ordinary times this class of the community do much more good than harm, but it sometimes happens that the general abundance of money gives an unhealthy stimulus to their efforts, and the result is a speculative mania. The public are undoubtedly to blame in their occasionally wild encouragement of new schemes, and they ultimately prove the chief sufferers. It is sufficient, however, for our purpose, to show that in periods like these, an immense amount of accumulated capital is disposed of. It may be said that the money is not absolutely lost, since in most cases it is spent to the benefit of persons in England, as is notably shown in 1845. At that time engineers, solicitors, and others were the recipients of the sums wasted in projects afterwards abandoned. But the real fact is, that capital was not lost, since it was converted into income. It is precisely the same as if a man with an estate worth £30,000 chose to spend the whole at once, instead of living upon the interest. The end is one year of apparently great prosperity, followed by many others of poverty and inconvenience. The truth of this position is shown by the experience of 1846, and the succeeding years.

Conjectures as to the future are generally useless, since the course of events in modern times has up to this moment afforded new and increasing modes for the investment of capital. It must be added, however, that the accumulation of money seems in this country at least to be augmenting in a far greater ratio than the openings for its profitable use. It appears hardly within the bounds of probability that anything approaching in magnitude to the public works for railways can be developed in the time of the present generation. And yet at no time is the accumulation proceeding in a greater scale. The dislike to foreign adventures now so markedly shown, will only tend to increase the plethora. It is to be hoped that India will be the field for the investment of a large part of our future savings. Capital can be expended there on works that will bring such a remunerative return as cannot be hoped for in the best home or foreign investments. It will be necessary, however, for the Imperial Government to give its guarantee.

Let it not be said that the present period of dear money is an inopportune one for raising a discussion of this kind, for dear money is nearly always followed by cheap money, and that is the time which our most imprudent investments have hitherto been made.

THE DEBT OF INDIA.

THE liabilities of the Government of India being virtually those of the Government of Great Britain, by which the resources of India are administered, and her revenues disposed of, the question is often asked—What is really the amount of the liabilities of the Indian Government? How much does it owe directly, and how much is it responsible for? We are enabled to present our readers with a statement approximating to a balance-sheet of the Government of India.

The following is a correct return from official sources of all stocks, loans, debts, and liabilities chargeable on the East India revenues at home and abroad. It consists of:—

This is exclusive of the sum of £6,000,000 Capital Stock of the East India Company, which is subject to redemption by Parliament on payment to the Company of £200 sterling for every £100 stock. There are also contingent liabilities in respect to guaranteed Indian railways and other public companies.

We shall at an early opportunity offer some observations upon a feasible plan for the redemption of the public debt of India. The above shows the liabilities of the Government. Its assets are immense, and highly valuable.

THE BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

The Board of Trade Returns for the month of January were issued on Saturday last. We subjoin a statement of the total declared value of the exports of British and Irish produce and manufactures during the month of January in the last three years:—

1859 ...	£9,593,423
1861 ...	8,344,701

These returns show the effects of the state of the money market, and of the crisis in America, in restraining trade. The total exports for the month were only £8,344,701, being £1,021,796 less than in January, 1860, and £1,248,722 less than in January, 1859. The chief falling off is in the direction of America. The figures will be found in another column.

THERE was a marked increase of pauperism in England and Wales during the month of January last, as compared with the corresponding month in 1860. In the first week the increase in the number of paupers relieved was 34,373; in the second week, 77,556; in the third week, 118,382; in the fourth week, 115,376; in the fifth week, 87,637.

THE STATE OF TRADE.

(COMPILED FROM NUMEROUS LOCAL REPORTS.)

THE accounts from the manufacturing districts this week are, upon the whole, rather more favourable. Dullness prevails in many branches, but in several quarters there is some revival of demand, and a more cheerful impression appears to be arising with regard to the probable course of the spring trade.

The accounts from Manchester state that some very large offers have been made for cloths at very low prices, and in many cases this demand has been freely met by sellers. The sales altogether have been rather considerable, but business has now become quieter for everything except China goods, in which, however, there is no improvement in prices. There is a private telegram from Calcutta to the 10th of February, which says there was a little more business in the Bazaar, but prices were unchanged. Three failures are mentioned, one of a manufacturer at Burnley, one of a manufacturer at Stockport, and another of a manufacturer at Manchester; and, though the liabilities are not heavy, these have added to the depression existing in the market. In yarns there has been considerably more doing for all markets, arising from a belief that prices have seen the lowest. In some few instances a slight advance in prices has been obtained. The improvement is more particularly felt in yarns suited for India, China, and the Continent.

At Huddersfield there has been some little improvement in the market to-day, consequent upon the advance of the season.

From Bradford the report dated Thursday states that the yarn market is almost a blank. Very few yarns are producing, and, in consideration of the reduced rates for the raw material, rather lower prices have to be submitted to. For pieces the market has been very flat. Notwithstanding the curtailed production, stocks are now accumulating in some hands, and it will be difficult to maintain prices.

At Leeds the cloth-halls have been but thinly attended by buyers, and a small amount of business has been done. The cold and ungenial character of the weather has doubtless a depressing influence on trade, which continues also to suffer from the state of the money-market.

At Rochdale there continues to be a good deal of quietness in the flannel trade. Purchases are made in comparatively small parcels, and merchants seek to obtain their orders at lower terms; but the manufacturers in general decline to reduce prices.

At Leicester there is still no material change in the hosiery trade, and business in many branches remains quiet. The operatives are not fully employed, and in the country districts business is equally dull. The high rate of discount checks all speculation.

At Nottingham there has been a further improvement in the silk department in the lace trade this week. Fashions are tending more in favour of lace, and there is more doing at the warehouses, but by no means an average amount of business. The disturbed state of America operates against the demand for export, and many of the lace hands are still unemployed, manufacturers choosing rather to let their machinery stand than to produce on speculation. There is a fair business doing in the hosiery trade connected with the home demand, but in shipping orders the trade is dull.

At Birmingham the manufacturing trades of the district and the iron trade are in much the same state as they have been for the last month; in the former there are some indications of improvement.

The accounts from Wolverhampton state that the trade of that town and of the district generally has rallied, except the iron trade, in which no improvement whatever has taken place. With respect to the general branches of manufactures there is a moderate and steady, though by no means brisk, trade doing. Upon the whole trade is healthier; but the "scarcity of money" is everywhere complained of.

WHAT HAVE WE TO PAY FOR CORN?—With regard to the efflux of gold in payment for wheat, the circular of Messrs. Joseph Travers and Sons has the following:—"The wheat and flour imported in excess of the quantity in 1859 will be found, reckoning the difference in price, to represent an extra cost of probably not less than £12,000,000, a calculation which will harmonise with a statement made by Mr. Caird in the House of Commons on the 28th of February, to the effect, that estimating the falling-off in quality as well as quantity, the deficiency in the last harvest was equal to at least one-third of an average crop. The total production of the country in a fair season is supposed to be 20,000,000 quarters, and the loss, therefore, was 6,666,000 quarters, which supposing it all to be made up by extra foreign importations, would involve, at the prices current during the last six months, an expenditure of about £18,000,000. This may, perhaps, have been partially lessened by the economy consequent on high prices, and assuming that we have already paid £10,000,000 or £12,000,000, the further sum to be provided for the importations yet to be made before the maturity of the next crop may perhaps be taken at £5,000,000 or £6,000,000."

A call of £2. 8s. per share is announced upon the shares of the Riga and Dunaburg Railway Company.

THE BULLION BAROMETER FOR REGULATING THE RATE OF DISCOUNT.

[FROM A CORRESPONDENT.]

ACCORDING to a table carefully compiled by Mr. Mendel, of Manchester, it would appear that the average amount of bullion held by the Bank of England for the last eight years has been 14,220,983*l.*—that the largest sum held during that period was in January, 1853, when it amounted to 19,766,000*l.*, the rate of discount being 3 per cent., and the lowest in December, 1857, when it was reduced to 6,895,770*l.*, the rate of discount being 10 per cent.

The average rate of discount and amount of bullion for the last eight years has been as follows:—

	Bullion.	Rate of Discount.
1853	17,643,447	3½
1854	13,546,520	5½
1855	13,777,265	4½
1856	10,340,534	5½
1857	9,557,322	7
1858	16,814,657	3½
1859	17,332,909	3
1860	14,755,220	4½

Average for eight years 14,220,983*l.*; average rate of discount for the same period, 4*9*/<sub>16</sub>.

The result of experience tends to confirm the view that the proper amount of bullion which ought to be held by the Bank of England to ensure a steady rate of money at 4 per cent. is 15,000,000*l.*, and that if the Bank were to be guided by this barometer, and to raise the rate of discount ½ per cent. for every 500,000*l.* bullion they lost below that amount, and were never to lower the rate below 3 per cent., even if the bullion exceeded 16,000,000*l.*, we should never experience the fluctuations and uncertainty now witnessed in the money market.

Take for instance the past year (1860), and apply this rule.

On January the 19th the amount of bullion was 15,168,005*l.*, consequently the rate of discount ought to have been 4 per cent., whereas it was only 3. On the 31st January the bullion was 14,277,710*l.*, consequently the rate of discount ought to have been raised to 4½ the moment the bullion had fallen to 14,500,000*l.*, instead of that it was suffered to fall to 14,277,710*l.* The rate was then raised only to 4 per cent., and, as if in contradiction, it was actually raised to 4½ per cent., when the bullion had increased to 14,588,040*l.*, which, however, according to our barometer was the proper rate. In April the rate was raised to 5 per cent., which was quite right, the bullion only amounting to 13,914,360*l.*, and in May it was lowered to 4½ per cent., the bullion being above 14,500,000*l.*, and to 4 per cent., when it was above 15,000,000*l.*

Throughout June, July, August, September, and October, the bullion being above 15,000,000*l.*, the rate remained steady at 4 per cent., but the Bank suffered the amount to go down in November to 13,160,440*l.* before the minimum was raised to 4½, whereas it ought to have been raised to—

4½ per cent., when it fell below...	14,500,000
5 " " " " " " " " " " " "	14,000,000
5½ " " " " " " " " " " " "	13,500,000
6 " " " " " " " " " " " "	13,000,000

This would have given such a timely check to the export, that the bullion would never have fallen to 10,751,000*l.*, or the rate of discount risen to 8 per cent., although by the barometer we have propounded 8 per cent. is the proper rate of discount to charge when the bullion sinks below 11,000,000*l.* According to the last return published by the Bank, the bullion being above 12,000,000*l.*, the rate of discount ought not to be more than 7 per cent.

It is very singular, as if to prove the correctness of the barometer, we have pointed out that the average amount of bullion during eight years has been 14,220,983*l.*, and that the average rate of discount has been 4 9/<sub>16</sub>ths per cent. This as nearly as possible proves the correctness of the rule described.

But if anything were wanting to prove that the practice of the Bank of England is not regulated by any principle in fixing the rate of discount, so far as the amount of bullion held is concerned, it is the tables published by Mr. Mendel.

UNIVERSAL MARINE INSURANCE COMPANY.

The first ordinary general meeting of proprietors took place on the 7th March, at the London Tavern; Mr. HARVEY LEWIS in the chair.

The following report was presented and read by the SECRETARY (Mr. Alfred Tozer):—

"The directors have much pleasure in submitting to the shareholders the accounts of the company, showing the result of its operations from the commencement of business on the 23rd of January to the 31st of December, 1860. These accounts, which have been duly verified by the auditors nominated in the deed of settlement, show, that after payment of all adjusted losses, averages and returns, all current charges of management, and the whole of the preliminary expenses, there remained on the 31st December, 1860, a balance at the credit of the income account of £302,473. 15*s.* 10*d.*, constituting, together with the paid-up capital of £100,000, an available fund of £402,473. 15*s.* 10*d.* against the then outstanding liabilities of the company. The number of policies issued by the company to the 31st Dec., 1860, was 25,403. The total amount underwritten was £27,907,141, of which £18,513,935 had arrived, leaving outstanding on the 31st December, 1860, £9,393,206. The directors do not present any profit and loss account, as no reliable estimate can be arrived at for so short a period; there is, however, the sum of £5,736. 12*s.* 11*d.* actually received up to 31st Dec., 1860, for interest upon the company's investments, and the directors recommend to the shareholders that £5,000 from this fund, or 2*s.* per share, shall be distributed among the proprietors, by way of interest at 5 per cent. upon the paid-up capital of £100,000.

The CHAIRMAN.—As this was the first meeting of what he might fairly call this very great and important company, he thought a few general observations on the manner in which the directors had set about conducting its business, and the steps they had taken to bring it to the successful and prominent position it already occupied might not be out of place. When they first associated themselves together to launch the project, they did so in the full belief and persuasion that under proper and judicious management they would find in it a safe and profitable investment not only for their own money, but for the capital which the shareholders might be inclined to entrust to their management and care. And having first taken the utmost precaution to inquire into every point that could bear upon the interests of such a concern they determined, if they could meet with that which was a most essential element in the well-being of such a company, and without which it would have been impossible for them to succeed—viz., an underwriter of high character, great experience, and unquestioned ability; one who was in every way competent for the discharge of the important duties which would be necessarily confided to him, to embark their fortunes in the undertaking. Accordingly, after most careful and anxious inquiry, they found in Mr. Rutherford a gentleman whom they had reason to believe was in every respect suitable, and fully qualified to carry out the objects of the directors and advance the interests of the shareholders. Mr. Rutherford had had an experience extending over very nearly a quarter of a century in one of the largest, best conducted, and most successful companies in this great commercial city. Having, then, the opportunity of engaging his valuable services, they did not hesitate to do so, upon terms equally favourable to the company as to that gentleman. He was quite sure that under the terms of that arrangement the proprietors would join the directors in hoping that Mr. Rutherford's remuneration would be very largely increased, because the more he received the more would go into the pockets of the shareholders. (Hear, hear.) The arrangement made with their underwriter was so advantageous that he had no doubt of its receiving the approbation of the meeting, because there was not a single risk which Mr. Rutherford could enter into on their behalf in which he himself would not have a direct personal and pecuniary interest. (Hear, hear.) If the business of the company continued to be as prosperous as he fearlessly asserted it was at the present moment, then Mr. Rutherford would be most amply rewarded for his zeal, his ability, and his prudent care; while if, on the contrary, he made any serious mistake, then the shareholders would not be the only sufferers, but their underwriter would bear his just proportion of the consequences of his want of caution. (Hear, hear.) Having secured the services and hearty co-operation of Mr. Rutherford, the directors considered as to the best means of launching the company, so as to establish it on a firm footing of public confidence, and after consultation they determined that a subscribed capital of £70,000 would in the first instance be amply sufficient to meet every requirement. At that time they had not the slightest idea, nor did their most sanguine aspirations anticipate that they should meet at once with that unparalleled success which had attended their operations. (Hear, hear.) Believing that they would do a moderate business, they thought it right to make it as profitable as they could, and therefore that it would not be wise to burden themselves with more capital than was necessary to insure the fulfilment of their engagements with the public. Accordingly they issued 35,000 shares, which produced £70,000 of capital, and with that sum, on the 23rd January last year, they commenced operations. He should ill discharge his duty if he did not say, on the part of the directors, how deeply sensible they were of, and how grateful they were for the extreme kindness they received at the outset from the insuring public. From the very day they commenced business they were taken by the hand, and received with cordiality by them, and regarded evidently as the fulfilment of a want. The insuring public at once patronised the company, and had continued its patronage with still greater zeal and more warmth than at the beginning. (Hear, hear.) This confidence on the part of the public had enabled the directors to meet and overcome those numerous difficulties which were inseparable from the establishment of a new company of this nature, and in carrying on their business to consult alike the interests of their customers and the shareholders. How far they had succeeded in obtaining the confidence of insurers the figures in the report told, and he hoped they had been equally successful in securing the confidence and goodwill of the proprietors. (Cheers.) The rapidity with which the tide of business flowed in upon them compelled the directors to turn their attention to the necessity of increasing the capital, and after mature consideration they came to the conclusion that it would be advisable at once to issue the remaining 15,000 shares. There were persons at that time who said you will never place those shares, they will not be taken up, and if you attempt to issue them you will make a miserable failure, and injure the future prospects of the company. But in no way daunted by those gloomy prognostications, to which in truth the board paid but little heed, knowing, as they did, the body of shareholders they had to deal with, and the favourable opinion they had already gained with the public, they issued a circular informing the shareholders that the business had grown so rapidly that further capital was required in order to give stability to the company, and secure the continuance of public confidence, and offering them ratably to each existing shareholder at the rate of 40 per cent. on the shares he already held. The result was that the most sanguine anticipations of the directors were realised, and not a single share was left to be disposed of in the market. Every share offered to the proprietors was taken up, and when he added that in answer to their circular they found 50,000 shares applied for and paid upon, he might take credit for the board that they knew the proprietary body they represented far better than those gentlemen to whose doubts and gloomy forebodings he had adverted. Well, the shares were all taken up and paid upon, and he was happy to say that in their accounts there was no such item as "arrear due upon shares." (Hear, hear.) Since that time the business of the company had gone on increasing and prospering more and more. This was due largely to the aid and assistance the management had received from as able, as zealous, and as painstaking a staff of officials as any company in the world had ever possessed. (Hear, hear.) It was impossible for him to speak in terms too high of the exertions of those officials—individually and collectively. Influenced by prudential motives, the directors had commenced with a minimum staff, but that minimum staff worked up to the maximum of business. (Hear, hear.) It was not until that business became assured and steady that the board ventured to increase the number of their officers, and up to that time the staff—from the directors down to the youngest clerk—worked early and late—often very far not only into the night but into the advanced morning, in order to keep pace with the business which crowded in upon them, each one feeling as it were that the success of the company was the success of himself. To this circumstance might in some degree be attributed the unparalleled progress of the company. If they turned to the report they would find that the amount the company had underwritten to the 31st December was nearly £28,000,000—a most extraordinary amount considering the short time they had been established—(hear, hear)—and of that amount up to the same date eighteen millions and a-half had safely arrived. This of itself was the most satisfactory proof of the care and judgment displayed by their underwriter. But if they followed on the figures they would find that the total number of policies by which that large amount of risk was carried was no fewer than 25,400, giving an average of only about £1,000 for each policy. This was an important feature, for it showed the care taken to spread the business, and not—according to the vulgar but expressive saying—“put all their eggs into one basket.” Their policy was to do a general and wide-spread business—not confined to any particular class of vessels or goods, or to any particular sea, or to any particular clime—a business so broadly spread and at premiums so proportionate to the amount of risk that in the event of any casualty or mishap in any one particular branch, it would be amply compensated by the premiums arising from the other branches. (Hear, hear.) The rule laid down by the board was, that the underwriter should not, except under special circumstances, and then not without the sanction of the board, exceed a certain amount of risk upon any one bottom; consequently the shareholders might be assured that the management had not entered into this large extent of business without a full appreciation of, and ample provision for, the risks undertaken. They felt that they were a young company, and could not afford to incur risks which older and richer establishments might perhaps be justified in taking; therefore, whatever the temptation, they steadfastly refused to do anything that could by possibility endanger or compromise their success, their object being, not to do a brilliant business for a short time, but a safe and permanent business, such as would eventually place them on that pinnacle of prosperity to which he felt assured they were advancing. On the 31st December the risks outstanding were £9,393,206. That appeared a very large sum, and one upon which very great loss or very great profit might arise. But they would be perfectly satisfied and pleased when he told them that at the present date more than one-half of that risk had safely arrived, and so entered upon their books. (Cheers.) And if he took the moderate calculation of 5 per cent., which was lower than he had heard it stated, it would be found that three and a-half millions of last year's risks were still outstanding. These results confirmed the favourable opinion the board had originally entertained of their underwriter, Mr. Rutherford, to whose judgment and caution they were mainly due. (Hear, hear.) The same good fortune had attended the company in the selection of its auditors, Mr. Jay (of the firm of Quilter, Pall, Jay, and Co.) and Mr. Johnson. These gentlemen had paid every attention to the audit, gone through every account, checked every figure, and had expressed their satisfaction at their accuracy. The first item of income was £5,736. 12s. 11d. interest and dividends on investments; and when it was remembered that at the commencement the directors had not only to meet the preliminary expenses, but had to keep in hand, or at call, or at deposit with the bankers, the greater proportion of their funds, in order to meet any claims that might arise, the meeting would, he thought, admit that they had not allowed the grass to grow under their feet in making the best of the money entrusted to their hands. (Hear, hear.) This £5,736 was profit made from the investment of their funds, and it was from this source that the board proposed to pay the shareholders 5 per cent. on the capital paid up. But this amount was that which had been actually paid at the date to which the accounts were made up, not what had accrued, but what had not then been received. Had the accrued interest and dividends been added it would have increased the sum by about £2,790. They, however, thought the true principle was to include in the profits actually available the amount that had been received only, not what might have accrued but which would not be payable until the next quarter or half-year, and which would come into the next account. He might add with regard to the money invested, that whereas last year they commenced with a very small sum, this year they commenced with a very large one; and he hoped, therefore, that the next time they met, the figures entered to profit would be considerably increased. Without calculating the money at call and on deposit, which always bore interest—now he was sorry to say a large interest, for he believed it would be better for all parties if money were cheaper—(hear, hear)—the present investments of the company in Government stock and other securities produced about £9,500 a-year. They had £100,000 invested in Government securities, being the amount of the £2 a share paid on the 50,000 shares; their capital was intact, and all invested in Consols and New Three per Cents. (Hear, hear.) Preliminary expenses appeared, as a matter of course, a large item in these accounts; still, taking all things into account, he did not consider the amount immoderate, including as it did the necessary alterations to the premises in Cornhill, the cost of the deed, the expenses incurred by and paid to the promoters of the company, which comprised printing, stationery, clerks' salaries, and all charges up to the day when the shares were allotted. The next item was the remuneration to the directors; and this amount was the sum total which the board would at any time be entitled to receive. The law charges, £179, he thought no one could complain of, except the lawyers themselves—(a laugh)—and in future years he hoped this amount would be reduced. The bad debts were only £102, which included every debt that was in any way doubtful—(hear, hear)—the directors considering it better to write off at once any account upon which doubts existed. It would be seen that the balance, according to the balance-sheet, was £302,473. 15s. 10d. An item would be observed on the credit side which bore out what he had said of the prudence and caution of their underwriter—he alluded to £1,779 for re-insurances. When any of the company's connection desired to insure for more than they thought it right to risk, the practice was to take the insurance, but to re-insure a portion of the amount elsewhere, and the premiums paid for such re-insurances occasioned this entry. After stating the balance in hand and at the bankers', as shown by the accounts, and adding that for the amounts at deposit they took security in the shape of approved bills, he concluded by moving that the report be approved and adopted.

Mr. DE PASS, deputy chairman, seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

The CHAIRMAN then moved a resolution that interest at the rate of 2s. per share, or 5 per cent. per annum on the paid-up capital, be paid.

Mr. RICARDO (director) having seconded the motion,

Mr. BRONCHOFFT expressed himself dissatisfied with the proposal, and moved an amendment that the interest be at the rate of 7½ per cent., at which, he contended, the balance, as shown by the accounts, and the explanation of the chairman that no account was taken in the balance-sheet of the interest due up to the 31st December, but not then actually paid, warranted. He gave credit to the directors for their prudent and successful management.

The CHAIRMAN received with great respect the observations from a gentleman of such practical business knowledge as Mr. Bronchofft; but he feared the amendment was consequent upon his (the chairman) not having sufficiently explained himself. It was true that the interest which had accrued upon securities to the 31st Dec., but not actually paid at that date, was not included in the accounts; but if the directors had taken credit for that interest, they must, on the other hand, have made a valuation of the securities. They had, however, taken the securities at the cost price and which, although so moderate that in better times it would leave a large margin of profit, these investments would, if valued on the 31st December, when everything was so dull, probably have shown an apparent loss that would balance the interest referred to.

Mr. BRONCHOFFT was perfectly content with the explanation, and, reiterating his perfect confidence in the directors, withdrew his amendment.

The resolution was put and carried unanimously.

On the motion of Mr. USBORNE (director), seconded by Mr. JOHNSON (auditor), who gave credit to the board for the facilities they had afforded to the auditors, and for the admirable and correct manner in which the accounts were kept, the directors retiring by rotation were re-elected.

The CHAIRMAN moved and Mr. LUBBOCK (director) seconded the re-appointment of the auditors; Mr. Lubbock, in doing so, taking occasion to remark that this was the first marine insurance company that had ever informed its shareholders and the public of the amount underwritten, the amount ran off, and the amount remaining at the end of the year. (Hear, hear.)

The motion was carried.

A SHAREHOLDER inquired whether Mr. Rutherford held any other interest in the concern than his office of underwriter?

The CHAIRMAN was happy to say that when Mr. Rutherford joined them he threw his fortune as well as his services into the undertaking, by taking up 1,000 shares, which he still held. (Hear, hear.)

On the motion of the CHAIRMAN, seconded by Mr. G. F. YOUNG (director), thanks were voted to Mr. Rutherford, the underwriter, Mr. Tozer, the secretary, and the other officials of the company.

Thanks were also voted to the directors, and a similar compliment was accorded to the chairman individually, which concluded the proceedings.

STAR LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY.

The seventeenth annual meeting of this Society was held at the offices of the Company, 48, Moorgate-street, on Monday, the 4th inst.; Charles HARWOOD, Esq., the Chairman of the Society, presided.

Mr. JESSE HOBSON, the secretary, having read the notice convening the meeting, and the directors' report,

Mr. PARNELL, the senior auditor, read the auditors' statement, which was highly satisfactory.

The CHAIRMAN, in moving the adoption of the Directors' and Auditors' Reports, said he was very glad to see so respectable a meeting, although it was not so numerously attended as that of last year. There was no particular question to bring together a large meeting. The directors had only to present a very clear and simple report of what had been done, and to come before the Society for its approbation. The four gentlemen who retired would be proposed for re-election. The business which had been done during the year appeared not only satisfactory, but somewhat startling. Many in the room were probably better acquainted with insurance business than himself, and they would be able, by looking at the accounts, to say whether the progress of the Society would not bear a very favourable comparison with any other office of the same age in the City of London. Without intending to draw any invidious comparisons, he had compared their Society with five others, and the result of that comparison showed that the Star stood in a most excellent position with regard to the highly respectable offices he had named. To produce an increase of £11,312 in premiums the Society had issued 902 policies, which was a very important fact, showing that it stood high in the confidence of the public. With respect to losses, these stood at £2,000 less than last year, showing, with an increased income, that the business was in a most flourishing condition. The amount paid for claims during the year was £21,942. 16s. 1d., assured by sixty policies. He had to congratulate the Society on having been entirely free, during the year, from anything like litigation or dispute. The whole of the law expenses only amounted to about £42, or something like 16s. 6d. a week. (Hear, hear.) The best thing for all to ask was how this increase was to be accounted for, particularly as other offices had not increased in anything like the same ratio. In some measure it might be attributed to the increased activity of the officers of the establishment, both in London and in the country. The expenditure on account of travelling agents had not been large, and, therefore, the increase of business must be accounted for chiefly by the zeal of the officers engaged. He moved the adoption of the report and the Auditors' account. (Cheers.)

Mr. JENKIN JONES seconded the motion.

The motion was carried unanimously.

The Rev. CHARLES PREST moved a congratulatory vote of confidence in the directors, and a vote for their remuneration for the present year similar to that for the year preceding. (Cheers.)

The motion was carried.

The CHAIRMAN proposed a resolution of thanks to the Secretary and the Officers of the Society for the manner in which they had conducted the business during the year.

Mr. BALL seconded the motion, which was carried.

The Rev. Mr. ALSTON, in moving a vote of thanks to the Chairman, expressed a hope that at no distant period, a plan would be devised by which working men would be admitted to the benefit of insurance for small amounts.

Mr. BRENDON seconded the motion, which was carried by acclamation, and suitably acknowledged by the Chairman.

The meeting then separated.

RAILWAY PASSENGERS' ASSURANCE COMPANY.

On the 6th of March the shareholders in this undertaking held their 23rd half-yearly meeting at the offices in Cornhill; Mr. J. CLAY, M.P., in the chair.

The report, which was read by Mr. W. J. VIAN, the secretary, gave the following results:—“The amount of premiums received and due for the half-year ending 31st of December last is for railway accident assurance £2,693. 14s. 10d., and for general accident, £16,214. 10s. 8d.; together amounting to £18,908. 5s. 6d.; against £15,587. 17s. 1d. in the corresponding period of 1859. The total income for the year 1860 is £38,708. 10s. 7d., against £30,765. 14s. during the year 1859; showing an increase at the rate of 25 per cent. The cash received during the half-year was £17,284. 1s. 11d., which, added to the balance from last half-year and the interest on investments, forms the sum of £27,037. 3s. 1d. to the credit of revenue account. The commission and Government duty amounted to £2,713. 9s. 1d., and the working expenses to £4,170. 11s. 8d.; the amount paid for compensation being £9,971. 2s. After payment of the interest to proprietors, and the usual charge for liquidating the preliminary expenses, a balance invested and in hand is shown of £9,329. 7s. 1d., to which must be added £1,624. 3s. 7d., the difference between the cash received, and the actual income; making the total available balance £10,953. 10s. 8d. From this sum interest will be paid to the proprietors on the paid up capital at the rate of 4 per cent., and the remainder will be held as a fund to meet the risks upon the policies in force. The directors admit their disappointment, that notwithstanding the increased income during the past year, they do not feel themselves justified in paying to the shareholders more than the usual interest. They consider, however, that security, not only to the insurers, but to the proprietors, is a matter of such paramount importance, that with the daily expanding business of the company, prudence requires the retention of a sum in hand sufficient—according to the actuarial calculation—amply to cover all outstanding risks. By keeping a large reserve, the possibility of future calls is prevented, except for some totally unlooked-for catastrophe. And only second in importance to this object is the replacement of the capital that was sunk in the foundation of the company. The sum annually set aside for this purpose would be sufficient to pay a bonus of one shilling per share, or nearly 6 per cent. additional interest. But the value of the shares, and consequently the true interest of the holders, will be gradually improved by retaining these sums, until the whole of the capital called up has been repaid, and the proprietors possess a large and flourishing business free of cost. The compensation paid during the year 1860 has amounted to £21,055. 11s., or 54 per cent. of the premiums received. This sum has been paid for twelve fatal cases, and 1,187 cases of personal injury; and while the number of claims has naturally tended to swell the ranks of new insurers, it sufficiently explains the absence of a larger dividend. The number of casualties during the recent severe frost was quite unprecedented in the Company's experience. The company suffered more or less in most of the numerous railway accidents that occurred during this period, and no fewer than six claims for serious injuries arose from the accident at Wimbledon, in which the late lamented Dr. Baly lost his life. In a previous accident on the London and North Western Railway, a gentleman named Kelly was so fearfully crushed that death must have been instantaneous. He was, however, insured in this office, and by prudent forethought thus secured for his bereaved wife and large family the sum of £1,000, which they will have the consolation of soon receiving, and for which only sixpence had been paid. Facts like these must impress on all who hear them the importance of making a similar provision, either by insuring against railway accidents alone, or upon the more extended system of insurance against all accidents, which appears to be generally preferred."

The CHAIRMAN, in moving its adoption, said that it would have been more gratifying to the directors if they could have announced something more than a dividend at the rate of 4 per cent. upon the money paid up, and if they could have given to the shareholders something more substantial than those reiterations of prospective prosperity in which they had hitherto indulged, and in the belief of which they still participated with unabated confidence. No doubt, when they looked at the large amount of business done, and the small amount of net profits, the proprietors would consider that there must be some cause more or less within the control of the directors for the disproportion. Probably they might have been struck with the charges for working expenses, and compared them with the like charges in ordinary life offices. Such a comparison, however, would be exceedingly unfavourable to this company, and, at the same time, altogether illusory. As regarded these working expenses, the increased revenue of the company had reduced them from 49 to 35 per cent. upon the gross receipts. Of that 35 per cent. 15 per cent. was paid for commission to the agents and duty to the Government, which were charges always over which the directors had no control whatever. The balance remaining, which, properly speaking, were the working expenses and charges of management, he admitted was still large as compared with the usual description of life offices. But they must bear in mind the different nature of the business. 500 or 600 new policies in a year was an exceedingly handsome addition to the business of any life office, while this company had issued last year between 5,000 or 6,000 new policies, all requiring the same work on the part of the clerks in first calling them into existence, sending out notices, drawing up renewals, and so forth. So far as the office work was concerned and the work of the directors, it was ten to one greater in this than in offices of the ordinary kind. Consequently upon the large increase of business they had had to increase the staff of clerks, and add to the office charges considerably, but they had nevertheless been able to reduce the gross charge from 49 to 35 per cent. within the last four years. (Hear, hear.) There were many causes from which the interest of the company had suffered, one of which was to some extent unavoidable imposition to which they were liable on the part of some of the insurers. Every case of accident was investigated more carefully than formerly, and in future still greater care would be exercised, not that he meant to attribute any laxity of duty in examining the several claims that had heretofore arisen; but in the early part of the history of such a company, before its character was established and its principles known, it would clearly have been inexpedient to criticise too closely, or quarrel too frequently, or throw too many difficulties in the way of those who made claims upon them arising from accidents. Liberality, and something more than liberality, was always considered the best policy of insurance companies; and that rule applied more strongly during the infancy of those institutions than when they arrived at maturity. Now, however, the character of the company was established. It enjoyed the confidence of the public, and it being known that they were always inclined to act fairly and more than fairly—liberally—they were in a position to take more efficient steps for their own protection and the punishment of dishonesty than they had hitherto thought expedient. (Hear, hear.) The company supplied a great public want, the proof of which was to be found in the rapidly-increasing number of policies taken out, amounting to an average of 200 a week; and there could be very little doubt that ultimately those by whom the public requirement was fulfilled would be fairly remunerated. In conclusion, he pointed to the late accident on the South-Western, wherein the verdict of the jury exonerated the railway company from the charge of negligence, and consequently from liability to those who were injured, as showing the importance of a company which afforded facilities for insuring against railway as well as every other class of accident, and moved the adoption of the report.

Mr. HARRISON seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

The dividend, at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, payable on and after the 8th inst., was then announced.

Mr. FRITH, who expressed his great satisfaction at the address of the chairman, moved the re-election of the directors who went out by rotation, which having been carried, the auditors were re-elected, and a vote of thanks was accorded to the chairman and his colleagues in the direction, the acknowledgment of which by Mr. Clay concluded the proceedings.

COPIAPO EXTENSION RAILWAY COMPANY.

An adjourned meeting of shareholders was held on Friday, March 8, at the offices of the company, New Broad-street; Mr. J. LABOUCHERE occupied the chair.

The CHAIRMAN said he was exceedingly glad that his anticipations had been realised with regard to the arrival of their colleague, Mr. Wheelwright, who, he was glad to say, was present, and was fully prepared to give every information that was required, being acquainted with the whole of the working details of the company; and he had no doubt but that the information thus afforded would be considered very satisfactory.

Mr. W. WHEELWRIGHT then gave a lengthened detailed statement as to the position and prospects of the undertaking, during which he observed that he, in company with the engineer, by means of a common American engine of about twenty-two tons, traversed the line with twenty-five tons of cargo from Pabellon to the summit, a distance of about fifteen miles, in fifty-six minutes; and descended on the other side without experiencing the slightest difficulty. The conclusion they came to was that with a locomotive, properly constructed for the service, there would be no difficulty whatever that could not be easily surmounted, and that the line would have an increasingly good and remunerative traffic. His firm impression was that when the line was traversed by locomotives, they would have a good and paying property. Already there was traffic enough to support the line, but when it became efficiently completed it would be the means of developing the traffic already existing, inasmuch as the country abounded in silver and copper mines which must be developed, and the produce must be conveyed by their line. He believed Chanarcillo to be the richest silver district in the world, and that there were rich treasures yet to be discovered. With regard to the weight of the rails, it was the opinion of the engineers that for a slow mineral traffic the rails would answer the purpose. He then read letters from Mr. Taggart, the machinist of the Copiapo main line, and also from Mr. Evans, the chief engineer, confirming the opinion as to the strength of the rails, and Mr. E. Wood, the company's consulting engineer, and who was fully acquainted with all the peculiarities of the road, expressed the greatest confidence in the success of the locomotives which had been constructed under his direction.

The report and accounts (which were submitted at the previous meeting), were unanimously adopted.

It was then resolved to make arrangements for the payment of an amount not exceeding £9,000, for locomotive stock and plants to the debts incurred by the company. For such purposes the directors be authorised to issue bonds or acknowledgments of debts of the company, providing for payment at a future time, and for interest in the meantime, and that such bonds may be issued at such rate of interest not exceeding 7 per cent. per annum, and upon such terms and conditions and with such option of conversion into shares as the directors may from time to time think advisable.

It was also resolved that 190 shares (upon which the calls had not been paid) should be forfeited to the company.

Messrs. Dickson and Wheelwright having been appointed directors, a vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Wheelwright for the very satisfactory explanations and information which he had given to the meeting.

The usual courtesies to the chairman having been accorded, the proceedings closed.

BRITISH GUARANTEE ASSOCIATION.

The Fifteenth Annual General Meeting of the Shareholders of the British Guarantee Association, was held at the offices of the Association, No. 429, Strand, on Monday, the 25th February.

The chair having been taken by Mr. Alderman FINNIS, he called on the manager to read the advertisement convening the meeting. This having been done, the register of shareholders was laid on the table, and having been sealed with the common seal of the Association was duly authenticated by the signature of the chairman, in presence of the meeting, in terms of the Act of Parliament.

The Report by the Directors to the shareholders, also the relative Abstract of Accounts, and Auditors' Report on the Accounts having been previously circulated among the shareholders, were held by the meeting as read. The Report by the Directors, Auditors' Report, and the six relative Balance Sheets, certified by the manager and auditors, were laid on the table.

The CHAIRMAN then moved the approval and adoption by the meeting of the report and relative states of accounts; also that a dividend of six per cent., and a bonus at the rate of four per cent., free of Income-tax, for the year 1860, be paid to the shareholders at the bankers of the Association in London and Edinburgh, on Friday, the 8th March next. The motion was seconded by Major MACGREGOR, and carried unanimously.

On the motion of the CHAIRMAN, seconded by FREDERICK W. CALDWELL, Esq., Henry Charles Chilton, Esq., was re-elected a director of the Association.

On the motion of G. G. MACPHERSON, Esq., seconded by GEORGE HAY DONALDSON, Esq., Colonel Holland was elected a director of the Association.

On the motion of JOHN BRISCOE, Esq., seconded by J. HILL WILLIAMS, Esq., Captain Henry Blosse Lynch, Indian Navy, C.B., was elected a director of the Association.

On the motion of the CHAIRMAN, seconded by Sir ROBERT W. C. BROWNRIGG, Bart., Robert Mackay, Esq., and Charles Cowan, Esq., were re-elected directors of the Edinburgh Board.

On the motion of the CHAIRMAN, seconded by THOMAS KERR LYNCH, Esq., D. S. Peddu, Esq., C.A., of Edinburgh, and J. Hill Williams, Esq., Actuary, of London, were elected auditors of the Association; and it was resolved that their annual allowance should be 20 guineas each.

The unanimous thanks of the meeting were, on the motion of WALTER C. VENNING, Esq., seconded by THOMAS W. FARNELL, Esq., given to the directors in London and Edinburgh, for their services during the year 1860; and to the Chairman, on the motion of JAMES ADAM, Esq., for his conduct in the chair.

The unanimous thanks of the meeting were, on the motion of the CHAIRMAN, given to the manager, and to the manager for Scotland.

MR. COBDEN AND THE FRENCH TREATY.

The following brief letter from the pen of Mr. Cobden has been received by Mr. Cassell (of the firm of Cassell, Petter, and Galpin), in acknowledgment of a work just published by them, entitled, "The French Treaty and Tariff of 1860." Though but short, it is interesting; and the last paragraph is full of hope for commercial men:—

"MY DEAR MR. CASSELL,—I am much obliged to you for the copy of the volume on the French Treaty. The value of such a work depends entirely on its accuracy, and I am therefore glad that you have placed this beyond a doubt by securing the services, as editor, of the intelligent Secretary of the Commissioners, to whose conscientious exactness and diligence I can bear willing testimony.

"The Tables and other matter appended to the new French Tariff are to me of exceeding interest and value, as they afford a datum line for measuring the future growth of the commerce between the two countries.

"John Cassell, Esq.

"Believe me, yours truly,

"R. COBDEN."

The work to which this letter refers contains a complete Tariff in French and English, an interesting table of Articles not included in the Tariff, an Historical Sketch of the past Commercial Legislation of France, and other data referred to by Mr. Cobden, of the greatest value. Price, cloth boards, 5s.—(Advt.)

The drain of specie to America still has little effect upon the stock in the Bank, owing to the supply which is received from week to week from the Continent, Australia, Ireland, and the provinces. The amount of notes in the hands of the public is still decreasing. A slight addition has been made to the reserve.

THE MONEY MARKET.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 8.

In the discount market there has been throughout the week a good demand. This is very natural, considering the unusually small amount (£19,292,970) of the present note circulation of the Bank of England. The demand for money on the part of bankers is attested by the fact that  $7\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. has been paid by them in the Stock Exchange for loans on Government securities up to the 10th of April. During the last day or two, however, the recovery in the American Exchange having produced a more hopeful feeling, the supply of money on offer has been less scanty. The rates for the best short bills to-day were  $7\frac{1}{2}$  to 8 per cent. Six months' paper, with first class signatures, is taken in many quarters at 7 to  $7\frac{1}{2}$ .

At the Bank of England there has been a good but not pressing demand for money throughout the week.

The Bank of England notified yesterday that they are ready to commence the usual quarterly advances on approved bills, having not more than six months to run, and on Government Securities, of course at the rate of 8 per cent. The advances will extend up to the 10th of April.

In the Stock Exchange to-day there was a better supply of money at 5 to 6 per cent. on Government securities for short periods.

An instalment of 20 per cent. falls due on the Indian loan on Tuesday next.

The rates of discount current in the principal Continental cities are subjoined:—

Bank rate.	Open market.	Bank rate.	Open market.
Paris, 7 per cent. ...	5 per cent.	Frankfort, 8 per cent. ...	$1\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.
Vienna, 6 " ...	6 " "	Brussels, 4 " ...	$3\frac{1}{2}$ " "
Berlin, 4 " ...	$3\frac{1}{2}$ " "	Turin, 7 " ...	$6\frac{1}{2}$ " "
Amsterdam, 3 " ...	3 " "	Hamburg, no bank rate. ...	$2\frac{1}{2}$ " "

About £53,000 in gold, principally Continental, has been bought by the Bank since the date of the last return, inclusive of £46,000 to-day. On the other hand, 55,000 sovereigns were taken from the Bank to-day for transmission to the United States by the Canada, which will sail to-morrow. The shipments of specie to New York since our last issue have comprised £259,189 by the Arabia, £248,540 by the Vigo, £31,000 by the Teutonia, and £20,000 by the Arago, making in all £558,729. The total despatched since the 28th of November has now reached £4,214,500.

The latest quotation of exchange at New York is  $105\frac{3}{4}$  to 106. Various estimates are current respecting the amount of specie likely to be shipped to-morrow by the Canada, for Boston. Perhaps £200,000 may be nearest the truth.

It is remarked as a satisfactory indication that the rate for ordinary commercial bills on London at New York is now approximating more nearly to that for bankers' bills. This denotes that the supply of paper drawn against produce is being exhausted.

The remittances of specie for Bombay by the next packet are expected to be below £150,000.

Only £160,000 in gold is known to be now at sea from Melbourne, but the Australian telegram, which is daily expected, will announce the despatch of further remittances for this country.

THE BULLION MARKET.

The Mexican dollars by the last packet were sold to-day to be refined at 4s.  $11\frac{1}{4}$ d. per oz., showing a fall of  $\frac{3}{4}$ d. compared with the price obtained for the previous supply. The value of this coin is now regulated by that of bar silver.

With reference to the movements in bullion and in the Indian Government paper, Messrs. Pixley, Abell, and Langley, report as follows:—

GOLD.—The export to America has continued during the week on rather a large scale, the Palestine having taken £7,500 to New York, the Arabia £259,189, the Vigo £248,540, the Teutonia £31,000, and the Arago £20,000; and the steamer leaving Liverpool on Saturday will also take about £200,000. Several amounts of gold have, however, been sent into the bank, making in all about £150,000, and further arrivals from the Continent are expected.

SILVER.—The Seine has brought £288,000 in silver and dollars from the West Indies, and the bar silver has been sold at 61d. per ounce standard. The Tagus has brought £1,664 from the Peninsula. The Atrato has taken £1,000 to the West Indies, and the Ceylon £160,156 in silver and dollars to the East. We quote the price at 61d. per ounce standard, but there is not very much doing.

MEXICAN DOLLARS.—The dollars brought by the Seine have not yet been sold; the market is rather flat, and we quote the price as from 4s.  $11\frac{1}{4}$ d. to 4s.  $11\frac{1}{2}$ d. per ounce.

EXCHANGE ON INDIA for drafts by Banks at 60 days' sight remains about 2s. to 2s.  $0\frac{1}{4}$ d. for Bombay and Calcutta; and 1s.  $11\frac{3}{4}$ d. to 2s. for Madras.

INDIA GOVERNMENT LOAN NOTES are unchanged. There is very little doing, and it is difficult to operate either way at quotations, which we call 100 to 101 for Five-and-a-Half per Cents., and 94 to 95 for Five per Cents.

The report of Messrs. Haggard and Co., dated this day, observes:—

Since our last the principal feature of interest has again been the further shipments of gold to America. The amount of gold sold to the Bank of England is £56,000; but on the other hand there have been large withdrawals of sovereigns for shipment to New York. Small amounts of gold continue to be received daily from the Continent. Silver has been in moderate demand at 61d., at which price that by the Seine has been sold; but there is still a good supply in the market. Mexican dollars are exceedingly dull, and the late arrival will probably be sold at a further reduction.

THE EXCHANGES.

As might be expected from the much higher value of money in this market as compared with that current on the continent, the continental exchanges this week have remained extremely firm, with still an upward tendency.

EXCHEQUER BILLS.

Monday was the last day for sending in the March Exchequer Bills for renewal, and, notwithstanding the increase of the rate to 2d. per day, and the contemplated alteration for increasing the marketability of these securities, the Chancellor of the Exchequer stated in the House of Commons on Monday night that the amount sent in for payment instead of renewal is about 1,000,000*l*. It is presumed that the Chancellor intends to exercise, as soon as he gets it, the power which he is now seeking of re-issuing such amount of Exchequer Bills as may have been sent in for payment. He may re-issue the bills to the Bank, perhaps, as a temporary arrangement, or he may sell savings banks' stock, and give the bills to the savings banks.

THE NEW UNITED STATES LOAN.

The whole of the 8,000,000 dols. of the New Six per Cent. Federal Loan just offered by the Treasurer of the United States has been taken at New York at 90 per cent. and upwards, the average of the accepted tenders being about  $90\frac{1}{2}$ . The total amount applied for was 11,000,000 dollars. The result is considered very favourable by American houses here, as the confidence testified by the New York capitalists in the securities of the Federal Government indicates that a convulsion is not generally apprehended.

THE NEW PROHIBITORY AMERICAN TARIFF.

According to the original draught the new American Tariff Bill was to come into operation on the 1st of October, but it is believed to have been fixed by a subsequent amendment for the 1st of next month. The Bill having previously passed the House of Representatives, nothing but the sanction of Mr. Buchanan, the President, would be requisite after its approval by the Senate; and as this could not have been given later than the 4th inst., the probability seems to be (observes the Times) that the system may have already become law.

THE BANK OF ENGLAND.

A dividend court of the proprietors of the Bank of England is called for the 14th of March. On the 9th April another general court will be held to elect a governor and deputy-governor, and will be adjourned until the following day for the election of twenty-four directors for the ensuing year. The new governor will be Mr. Alfred Latham, now deputy-governor. The new deputy-governor will be Mr. Kirkman D. Hodgson. The term of office, both as regards the governor and deputy-governor, is always two years, and it is the rule for the occupant of the latter post to be translated to the former.

THE TURKISH LOAN OF 1858.

An improvement in Turkish Bonds has been occasioned by reports that arrangements will shortly be made for putting upon a better footing the payment of the Constantinople Customs duties, which are specially mortgaged to the bondholders. An address to the Turkish Ambassador is in course of signature in the Stock Exchange, begging him to use his influence with his Government with a view to the immediate adoption of a better system. The address lies at 20, Throgmorton-street (the office of Mr. H. J. Meadows), and ought to be signed by every bondholder. It is not a question of any immediate increase of distrust of the Government, the simple fact being that the bondholders, who have had a particular branch of revenue assigned to them, wish the money to flow through the hands of their own agents. No Government agency is needed at all.

THE SPANISH THREE PER CENTS.

The new coupon sheets are in process of delivery to the holders of the Spanish Exterior Three per Cent. Stock of 1841. The attention of the Committee of the Stock Exchange has been called to the fact of there being but 18 half-yearly coupons contained in them, instead of 40, in accordance with the tenor of the bonds; and also of the new coupon sheets containing a statement that, after the last of these coupons has been received in 1869, the original bonds are to be given up in exchange for new documents under the law for assimilating the whole debt of Spain voted in 1851. The committee consider this stimulation to be at variance with the original conditions of the stock, which clearly intended its identity to be preserved as long as it was outstanding, as well as the right of the holders to receive their dividends in London and Paris at a fixed exchange, at their option, as well as in Madrid. The Stock Exchange Committee, on Wednesday, confirmed some resolutions which were adopted on Monday with regard to the irregularity presented. The resolutions were carried by a deputation to the Spanish ambassador, yesterday. They are to the following effect:—

The intervention of the committee having been claimed in relation to the new sheets of dividend coupons now in course of issue by the Spanish Finance Commission, to accompany the Bonds of the Three per Cent. Exterior Debt of December, 1841, it was unanimously resolved:—

"That the document now in the course of delivery to the holders of the bonds of the Three per Cent. Spanish Exterior Debt, being provided with eighteen dividend coupons only, is at variance with the bond itself, by which the Spanish Government expressly engages to deliver forty new dividend coupons; and also with the purport of the advertisement of 1st day of February, issued by the Spanish Finance Commission, calling upon the bondholders to apply for the new dividend coupon sheets.

"That the clause in the said document requiring that when the eighteen dividend coupons shall have expired, 'the corresponding bond shall be presented, for the purpose of being exchanged for the new documents to bearer of the Three per Cent. Consolidated Rente, which the Spanish Government will then issue, to ensure the uniformity of the whole debt, as determined by the law of the 1st of August, 1851,' is a violation of the rights of the bondholders; inasmuch as such exchange of bonds will deprive them of the security afforded by the signature of the English agents, and of the power, stipulated in the bond, of receiving payment of the dividend, at a fixed exchange, in London and Paris, as well as at Madrid.

"That no alteration can legally be made by any Government in the conditions and arrangements contained in their original bonds, without the special sanction and assent of the holders of such bonds.

"That a copy of the above resolutions be forwarded to the Spanish Ambassador, and that he be respectfully requested to bring them under the consideration of his Government, with a view to the adoption of prompt measures for the protection of the undoubted rights of the bondholders."

THE NEW GRANADA DEBT.

The committee of Spanish American bondholders inform us that they have received from Senor Martin, the Minister for New Granada, a communication to the effect that the Government of that republic have ratified the agreement for the adjustment of the foreign debt.

THE DOUBLE INCOME-TAX.

A petition to Parliament against the imposition of the double tax on incomes and profits derived from India has been prepared by the committee, of which Mr. R. W. Crawford, M.P., is chairman, with the view of having the question brought before the House of Commons. The petition lies for signature at the Oriental Bank and the Agra Bank, as well as at Edinburgh and Brighton.

THE FRENCH RAILWAYS.

It is said that the railroad obligations to be issued during the whole of the present year by the Bank of France will be limited to £6,000,000.

THE RED SEA TELEGRAPH.

The committee on the Red Sea and India Telegraph Company's Bill sat again yesterday. Since their last meeting clauses had been prepared on behalf of the company, and submitted to the conveyancing counsel of the Treasury, which were approved by him. The committee have announced their intention to adopt the clauses. These are as follows:—

1. It is hereby declared that the guarantee contained in the said agreement was not intended to be, and is not, conditional on the line of telegraph of this company being in working order.

2. This Act, and the Red Sea and India Telegraph Act, 1859, shall be construed together as one Act.

This arrangement appears to be regarded with satisfaction by the parties concerned. Meanwhile, to the disgrace of the Government, the over-due interest, which is admitted on every hand to be the undoubted property of the shareholders, is wrongfully withheld from them.

MEXICAN BONDS.

We have received the following memorandum this (Friday) afternoon from the Committee of Mexican Bondholders:—

The Committee of Mexican Bondholders have received a letter from Mr. Whitehead, dated Mexico, the 4th of February. He had then as yet not been able to obtain an interview with the New Minister of Finance, but had an appointment for one on the following day, when he would be able to ascertain Mr. Prieto's instructions relative to the claims of the bondholders, and also urge on him the dispatch of a Conducta to Vera Cruz, respecting which he had likewise written to the papers. The mercantile houses were all very anxious for Government to order a Conducta. Mr. Mathew had written to the new Government from Jalapa on the necessity of arranging the outrage and robbery of 660,000 dols., and the new Minister of Foreign Affairs had replied on the 31st of January that the persons concerned had been sent before the tribunals, and their property would be sequestered. Two days afterwards, four members of the last Government were arrested. In Mexico the public take for granted that the British Government will demand the extradition of Miramon wherever he may be. Mejia, after defeating and capturing Col. Escovedo in Rio Verde, shot him and fourteen of his officers. Of the three candidates for the presidency, Senor Lerdo continued to have the best chance.

THE TRANSFER BOOKS.

The transfer books for the Reduced Three per Cents. and Annuities for 30 years (1885) were shut for the dividends yesterday, and those for Bank Stock and the New Three per Cents. this day (Friday).

THE WINE AND SPIRIT TRADE.

A meeting of merchants and others engaged in the wine and spirit trade was held at the London Tavern on Thursday, "for the purpose of considering the present mode of levying duty on wine according to alcoholic strength, and of adopting a memorial to the Government on the subject." The chairman (Mr. G. G. Sandeman) pointed out the injustice of the present system of levying the duty. It was mentioned that it was a very common thing for wines out of the same butt, the strength of which had been tested by this method, to be charged different rates of duty. The subjoined resolution was adopted:—"That the present mode of levying the duty on wine by alcoholic test has proved since its introduction most vexatious and troublesome to the trade, and in many instances unjust, unequal and inaccurate in its character." Another resolution, in favour of the presentation of a memorial to the Treasury, praying that a more uniform rate of duty may be adopted was also unanimously passed.

RAILWAY TRAFFIC.

The Brighton Railway traffic return shows this week an increase of £1,201; the South-Eastern, an increase of £680; the London and North-Western, an increase of £1,618; the Great Western, an increase of £1,449; the Great Northern, a decrease of £41; the London and South-Western, an increase of £1,057; the Eastern Counties, an increase of £601; the Midland, an increase of £1,556; the Lancashire and Yorkshire, an increase of £181; the Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, an increase of £688; and the North-Eastern, an increase of £1,697.

The traffic receipts of the Great Western Railway of Canada for the week ending February 15 were £8,471 sterling, being £1,878 more than in the corresponding week of last year.

RAILWAYS.

The forthcoming dividend on North British Railway stock was officially announced on Tuesday, at the rate of  $3\frac{1}{4}$  per cent. per annum, with a balance of about £1,000, against 3 per cent. per annum at the corresponding period of last year.

The proposed dividend on Scottish Central Railway stock is officially announced at the rate of  $5\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. per annum, being the same as at the corresponding period of last year.

The directors of the Midland Great Western Railway of Ireland have decided upon recommending to their proprietors at the forthcoming half-yearly meeting a dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, free of Income-tax, for the half-year ending December 31, 1860.

The annual meeting of the Scinde Railway Company is called for the 28th inst., when a resolution will be submitted "to authorise the directors to raise, under the sanction of the Secretary of State for India in Council, the sum of £83,000 on account of the Indus Steam Flotilla, by the issue of bonds or debentures, with the option to the holders of converting the same into Indus Steam Flotilla shares or stock.

An extraordinary meeting of the Calcutta and South-Eastern Railway Company is called for the 13th inst., when a resolution will be submitted "authorising the directors to borrow on debentures the sum of £50,000, at a rate of interest not exceeding 5 per cent. per annum, convertible into shares, at the option of the holders, within such period as the meeting shall determine."

The annual meeting of the Great Luxembourg Company is called for the 19th inst., in London, and the 25th at Brussels.

The half-yearly meeting of the Ceylon Railway Company is called for the 25th inst.

An extraordinary meeting of the Eastern Bengal Railway Company is called for the 21st inst., to sanction the borrowing of £400,000 under the Indian Government guarantee.

Subjoined is a statement (from Mr. Slaughter's Weekly List) of the railway calls falling due in the month of March. The total is very moderate :—

ASSURANCE COMPANIES.

At the annual meeting of the English and Scottish Law Life Assurance Association, held on the 27th Feb., Mr. Whitmore, Q.C., in the chair, the report stated that the new policies issued in 1860 had been 357, insuring £303,300, and yielding in premiums £9,463. The total premium income for the year was £71,100. A special meeting was afterwards held, when it was resolved to reduce the periods of division of profits from seven years to five, and to increase the share of profits to be given to the assured to nine-tenths of the whole.

THE NORTH BRITISH INSURANCE COMPANY.

The North British Insurance Company have just held their annual meeting. The directors' statement of the company's transactions for the year 1860 is very satisfactory, inasmuch as it reports an improvement in the company's business in all the different branches. The increase in the fire business is continuous from year to year, 1859 being in excess of 1858, and 1860 having excelled 1859. At the same time, the losses by fire have been less than in 1859. So far, therefore, as the fire business is concerned, the past year has been the most prosperous that the company has ever experienced. In the life department the new policies issued in the year, 741 in number, assure a sum of £475,649, and produce £14,070 yearly of new premiums. In this department also, the number of new policies is largely in advance of any previous year. It is pointed out as a favourable feature that the increase in the number of policies is considerably greater than the increase on the sums assured, thereby diminishing the average amount under each policy. The company's accumulative fund now amounts to £1,090,730; the annual revenue to £193,740, and the reserved fund at the credit of the shareholders, on account of undivided profits, to £75,046. Out of the latter sum the usual dividend of 3 per cent. on the paid-up capital was declared, free of Income-tax. These results were accepted as highly satisfactory.

OTHER PUBLIC COMPANIES.

At a meeting of Bernard's Patent Machine Boot and Shoe Company, on the 25th Feb., Sir R. W. Carden in the chair, the report, stating that no further payment had been made by the lessee, was carried unanimously, after much discussion and full explanation by the chairman, in the course of which he stated that nearly £25,000 had been expended by the lessee, the benefit of which accrued to the company.

The seventy-second half-yearly general meeting of the shareholders in the General Steam Navigation Company was held on the 26th Feb., at their offices, 71, Lombard-street; J. Wilkin, Esq., in the chair. The report of the directors and a statement of the accounts for the year ending 31st December last, were read to the meeting and unanimously adopted. The customary dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum and the usual bonus of 2s. 6d. per share were declared. The sum of £35,000 was carried to the reserve fund, and about £11,000 to the credit of the current half-year. The thanks of the proprietors were voted to the chairman and directors for their continued services in the management of the company's affairs.

THE STOCK AND SHARE MARKETS.

The English funds have been somewhat prejudiced by the tightness and high price of money. Bankers have kept up a constant supply of stock. At the settlement, the "continuation" on Consols to the April account has been as much as 9-16 to  $\frac{5}{8}$  per cent. Consols which closed on Friday last at  $91\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{5}{8}$  for money, closed to-day at the same quotation. For the New Account (April 10) the final quotation was 92 to  $\frac{5}{8}$ . After the regular hours this afternoon, however, there was an improvement of  $\frac{1}{8}$  per cent.

The scrip of the New Indian Loan was quoted to-day at  $100\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$  for the account; the Five per Cent. Rupee Paper, 94 to 95; the Five-and-a-Half per Cent., 100 to 101; and the Exchequer Bills, 6s. to 2s. dis.

In the Foreign Stock market there has been a decided improvement in Turkish. The rise amounts to 1 to  $1\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. Mexican Bonds, after declining, have rallied.

The market for British Railway Stocks has shown buoyancy. The absence of any material decline in the traffic encourages holders, and prevents them from selling. There have been this week some large purchases on provincial account to cover previous speculative sales. Midland and Lancashire and Yorkshire Stocks have been in especial request.

AMERICAN SECURITIES.

With reference to the market for American securities, Messrs. D. Bell, Son, and Co. report as follows:—

The actual transactions in American state securities during the past week have been few and unimportant. There are buyers waiting for bargains, but stocks are not pressed for sale.

The report of Mr. E. F. Satterthwaite, dated Wednesday evening, is annexed:—

The market for American Securities has been very steady during the past week, and prices have slightly advanced. At the close we note more inquiry for Illinois Central Shares and Bonds, owing to the favourable nature of the report.

With regard to the course of affairs in America, Mr. Satterthwaite observes:—

We have to note a further large increase of specie in the New York banks, a diminution of discounts, and an increase of deposits, all pointing to a reduction of mercantile engagements. We have no change to note in the political situation, and cannot expect any very definite action till after the 4th March. Railroad earnings continued to show very satisfactory results, and the bonds and shares of the various companies were held with greater firmness than State securities. The following is the return of the New York banks:—

The London agents of the Illinois Central Railway Company on Monday received the following report:—

Illinois Central Railroad Office, New York, Feb. 19.
Gentlemen,—The land sales of the week ending 15th inst. amount to 25,451 dols. 49c., being more than that of the whole month of February, 1859.

	Dols.	Cents.
The earnings of the road for the second week foot up ..	77,571	95
Last year same week was .. .. .	51,039	70

Increase .. .. . 26,532 25

We have advice of a very severe snow storm on the northerly part of the line, which may probably obstruct somewhat the quick working of the trains; but nevertheless we look for a first-rate month's business.

The inquiry as to land continues, and from the evidence we are daily receiving there is every probability that our calculation for extensive sales during the present year will be fully verified. Illinois offers inducements for settlements far superior to more distant districts of country. The State being intersected by railroads affords easy communication for travel and transport. The small farmer has a ready market for his surplus product, and the large one scope of land for any quantity of stock and cultivation; and all have a new country, at a low price, readily convertible into the equivalent of an old one; in other words, the second year he has his wheat field or his tame grass free from stumps and stones, the usual concomitants of a wooded country.

In a more remote district, where nature has not favoured a section with a navigable stream, or art has not constructed a railroad, the grain must be consumed at home, as it will not bring the cost of carriage, and instead of finding a sale for stock near at hand, it must be driven at a great loss of flesh and time to seek a distant market.

This difference of position must insure the speedy settlement of the company's lands, and give large earnings at an early period.

Under this view, and considering that the lands are nowhere excelled in productiveness combined with salubrity, and the liberal terms on which the company's lands are sold, there can be no mistake in predicting a much greater demand for actual settlement than has characterised even the hitherto rapid development of the State of Illinois.

(Signed) THOMAS E. WALKER,
Messrs. Robert Benson and Co., London. Chairman Ex. Committee.

RECIFE AND ST. FRANCISCO RAILWAY.—A special general meeting of shareholders was held on the 6th of March, at the London Tavern; Mr. Benson in the chair; for the purpose of confirming the following resolution, passed at the meeting of the company, held on the 30th of January last:—“That the directors should pay as heretofore to the shareholders (out of the capital or income of the company) interest upon the amount of calls paid during the construction of the line after the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, such interest to be calculated from the day of payment of the respective calls. The chairman, in moving the resolution, said that the object of it was well known to the shareholders, as a circular, with a report of the last meeting, had been sent to each one. It was only necessary for him, therefore, to move that it be confirmed. Major-General Tremehere seconded the motion, which passed unanimously.

Mines.

FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 8.

The market for British mining stocks this week has been, upon the whole, devoid of animation. In some instances prices are rather lower. East Caradon, Wheal Basset, East Carn Brea, New Treleigh Consols, Wheal Grenville, South Frances, and Carn Brea shares were chiefly inquired for.

The mining market to-day was quiet, and devoid of any feature of interest. The inquiries for East Basset shares were rather more numerous than of late. There was also a demand for North Treskerby, East Wheal Russell, East Carn Brea, and Fowey and Par United. The latter were 19s. to 21s. South Wheal Frances and Stray Park were flat.

The following prices are reported to us from the Stock Exchange this evening:—

Alfred Consols, 3 to  $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Copper Hill, 16 to 18; Devon Great Consols, 355 to 365; East Basset, 97 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 100; East Caradon, 15 $\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ ; East Carn Brea, 7 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; East Grenville, 13s. to 15s.; East Russell, 6 $\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ ; Herodsfoot, 35 to 36; Hingston Down, 1 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Marke Valley, 6 to  $\frac{1}{2}$ ; New Seton, 48 to 50; North Downs, 3 $\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ ; North Roskear, 21 to 23; North Treskerby, 30 to 31; Providence Mines, 38 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 39 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Rosewarne United, 20 to 25; South Caradon, 300 to 310; South Frances, 180 to 182 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Stray Park, 37 to 38; Wendron Consols, 20 to 22; West Caradon, 80 to 81; West Rose Down, 5 to 6; West Seton, 345 to 350; Wheal Basset, 107 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 110; Wheal Buller, 115 to 120; Wheal Ludcott, 3 $\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Wheal Margaret, 45 to 47 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Wheal Seton, 85 to 90; Wheal Trelawney, 13 to 14.

The shares of the Labuan Coal Company are quoted 2 $\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$  prem.; and those of the British Slate Company, par to  $\frac{1}{2}$  prem.

In Foreign mining shares there has been a decline in St. John del Rey, whilst United Mexican continue to meet with a good deal of attention. Colonial descriptions are very steady.

The St. John del Rey Mining Company have received advices from Morro Vello, to the following effect:—Produce for December, 40,202 oitavas; ditto, 18 days, Jan., 19,434 oitavas; cost for December, £9,063; profit for December, £6,093.

A limited number of shares in the South Darren Mine are offered for sale at a very moderate price. The mine is in the rich Cardiganshire district, and has already yielded a large quantity of high-priced lead ore. It is now being worked with spirit.

It is necessary to explain that the call of £11. 5s. per share just made upon the contributories of the Mexican and South American Company applies only to those who have not paid the call of like amount previously announced. We believe there is a possibility of a further demand of about 5s. per share being hereafter made upon the whole of the contributories. Many holders reside abroad, and whilst themselves escaping liability, render the pressure upon English holders the heavier.

The Bielefield, from Port Augusta (South Australia), has arrived in the London Docks, with 40 tons of copper ore, per account of the Great Northern Copper Mining Company.

The following mining dividends have been declared during the month of February:—

At a quarterly meeting of the Drakewalls Mining Company, held on Wednesday, the accounts showed a credit balance of £360.

At the annual meeting of the West Devon Consolidated Copper Mining Company, held on the 26th February, a statement of accounts was presented, and, together with the directors' report, was adopted. The latter document stated that operations at the mine are now in a state of progress. In explanation of the delay, it was mentioned that the directors have succeeded in getting the original purchase money of £15,000 in paid-up shares reduced to 4,500 paid-up shares, and that the plant upon the mine has been obtained at a reduction from 3,000 paid-up shares to £1,200 in money payments.

At Cardigan Consols annual general meeting, held on Monday, a full report was read from the agent, and from Captain Edward Davies, manager of the Rhoswydol Mine, both of whom stated that the lode improved as the workings were carried deeper, and that there is every prospect of it continuing to do so. In the past twelve months 93 $\frac{1}{2}$  tons of lead ore have been sold for £1,333. 18s. 3d., and 24 $\frac{1}{2}$  tons of copper ore for £321. 14s. 7d., making a total of £1,655. 12s. 10d. The accounts showed a balance of liabilities over assets (including the ore sold last month) of £165. 6s.

At Providence Mine meeting on the 28th ult., the accounts showed a credit balance of £1,478. 18s. 1d. A dividend of £1 per share (£1,120) was declared, leaving £358. 18s. 1d. to the next account.

The Tincroft Mining Company have declared a dividend of 5s. per share.

MERCANTILE EMBARRASMENTS.

The stoppage was announced on Tuesday of M. Javier de Bustamante, commission merchant, of London, but the extent of his liabilities and assets is not known. His operations were in connection with Spain, Vera Cruz, and Cuba, and the failure of houses at the latter place is understood to be the immediate cause of his difficulties.

Mr. Stephen Reggio, Levant merchant, has also suspended payment, with liabilities estimated at £40,000, and assets to nearly a like amount, mostly due from Constantinople and Smyrna.

Messrs. Pietroni and Draper, Mediterranean merchants, have stopped payment, but it is understood that their engagements are limited. This firm, then known as Draper, Pietroni, and Co., failed during the crisis of 1857, with liabilities estimated at £99,000, and assets at £53,000. Since that event their transactions are believed to have been circumscribed.

The bills have also been returned of Mr. James Crichton, merchant, of the Baltic Coffee-house and Dundee. His liabilities are computed at about £40,000 or £50,000, and his assets are expected to exceed that amount. Mr. Crichton's operations have been principally in flax, hemp, jute, and coir goods.

The failure of a Leeds flax-spinning firm is noticed as follows by the Manchester Examiner and Times:—

Messrs. Benyon and Co., Meadow-lane, Leeds, a very old flax-spinning concern, generally furnishing employment to about six hundred hands, and the principals in which have always occupied a very high social position in the town, have suspended payment. The liabilities do not appear to have been accurately ascertained, for they are variously estimated at from £50,000 to £60,000, and what the assets will realise is, of course, yet entirely a matter of speculation, as yarns are just now out of the market, the manufacturers wanting a considerable reduction in the price list, and the spinners being unwilling to concede any material fall in rates. It is probable that the estate will be wound up under the arrangement clauses, and that it will not go into the Bankruptcy Court at all. Of the liabilities, from £15,000 to £20,000 are owing to Riga flax merchants, and the remaining creditors are in Leeds and Ireland, one of our local merchants being a creditor to the estate for no less than £9,000. The bank (Messrs. Beckett's) are also creditors to the extent of £13,000, part of which is covered by securities. We understand that, although the assets are small, the family propose to raise a sum of £25,000, in order to guarantee the creditors a dividend of 10s. in the pound.

With regard to the incorrect report which we see has found its way to London, of the failure of Messrs. Bowen, Holmes, and Co., of New York, the United States Economist, of the 16th ult., contains the following:—"The reported failure of Messrs. Bowen, Holmes, and Co. is untrue, the firm having hitherto met its liabilities with perfect regularity. The eagerness with which this report has been seized and enlarged upon by certain daily journals is commented upon with just severity among the trade."

A New Orleans correspondent of the Boston Traveller says:—"Messrs. W. and D. Urquhart, wealthy Jews engaged in the commission business, failed a few days ago for 1,000,000 dols. During the crisis of 1857 their firm was considered the most solid in this part of the Union."

The advices received from Havana, via the United States, report the failure of several Spanish houses, but it is understood that they have no connections here, and that their liabilities fall chiefly upon the spot. The accounts altogether are very unfavourable, the great losses on sugar, the staple commodity of Cuba, having been severely felt.

From California there is news of three heavy failures at San Francisco—namely, Taaf, M'Cahill, and Co., for £260,000; S. H. Bohn and Co., for £240,000; and Thomas Brady, for £180,000. In the first two cases the assets are said to be bad; in the last a compromise was expected. Some of the losses it is alleged, will fall on Manchester and Bradford.

The judgment of Mr. Commissioner Holroyd in the case of Messrs. Laurence, Mortimore, and Schrader, the great leather factors, was delivered on Wednesday, and excited great interest in commercial and monied circles. The court was densely crowded. It will suffice to summarise here the sentence upon each of the bankrupts. Mr. Mortimore is treated comparatively lightly. His certificate (third-class) is suspended for twelve months from the 28th November last, but he obtains protection. Mr. Schrader's certificate (third-class) is suspended for two years from the 28th November, and he will be without protection for three months. The heaviest sentence falls, as was expected, upon Mr. Laurence, whose certificate is refused altogether. Protection is also withheld from him for six months. From this decision Mr. Laurence, it is understood, will appeal. The commissioner dwelt forcibly and at much length upon the pernicious influence which the system of accommodation bills has upon trade. His decision appears to have been generally received with satisfaction.

In the Court of Bankruptcy on Thursday an adjournment to the 2nd May was ordered in the case of Messrs. Smith and Sinclair, linen factors, of Pancras-lane, whose balance-sheet is a very bad one.—There were some long proceedings in the case of Messrs. Hooper and Parkinson, leather factors, of Seething-lane, the certificate meeting being ultimately further adjourned.

At the meeting yesterday (Friday) of the creditors of Messrs. Bello Brothers and Co., Levant merchants, who suspended payment on the 2nd ult., the liabilities were computed by Mr. W. Moates, the accountant, at £93,510, and the assets at £105,508, showing a surplus of £11,998. The liability on acceptances, included in the above total, is £73,726, and the good book debts form the principal assets. These amount to £73,127, and are principally claimable from the Constantinople house. The advices from the branch at Constantinople assert that the whole of the £73,127 will be realised. The position of the estate was dwelt upon with satisfaction, and several creditors bore strong testimony to the honourable character of Mr. Bello's dealings. The proposal of the firm to pay 20s. in the pound, by instalments of 5s. each, at 3, 9, 15, and 21 months, was unanimously agreed to.

At the meeting of the creditors of Mr. Marco Adutt, Austrian merchant, also held yesterday, the liabilities were stated by Mr. J. E. Coleman, the accountant, at £14,056, and the assets at £11,224. It was resolved to adjourn, pending the receipt of information from the Vienna firm, respecting what they will pay on the drafts accepted by Mr. M. Adutt for their account.

Mr. Commissioner Sanders, of the Birmingham Bankruptcy Court, has awarded a certificate of the second class to Messrs. G. H. and A. Hickman, ironmasters.

The Produce and other Markets.

COLONIAL PRODUCE.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 8.

There has not been any improvement in the Colonial Markets, which are still inactive, and quotations exhibit little change to notice during the week. At the commencement, low brown and middling refining Sugars sold with more spirit, occasionally realising 6d. per cwt. advance, but the demand for these has since subsided, and crystallised descriptions also were slightly easier to-day. Coffee is quiet, without alteration in prices. The Netherland Trading Company's Spring Sale, fixed for the 17th proximo, will contain 462,325 bags. Rice has been depressed. Nutmegs, Mace, and Pepper remain steady, but Cochín Ginger is unsaleable at previous rates. The few parcels of Saltpetre sold during the week have been at about 1s. per cwt. decline. At the Tea sales held on Tuesday and this day, the former valuations were obtained in most cases, a fair proportion of the supplies finding buyers. Cocoa is still heavy of sale. An increased amount of business has been done in West India kinds of Rum this week, but at prices rather in favour of the buyer. Of East India, only a small parcel has been reported sold. The demand for Cotton has improved since our last, and 3,100 bales have been taken off, prices, though irregular, being in some cases  $\frac{1}{4}$ d. per lb. higher.

THE TALLOW TRADE.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 8.

We have had another week of remarkable inaction in the Tallow market, the amount of business transacted has been very trifling. This applies especially to that portion connected with the Russian speculation. The slight improvement in prices which we noticed last week as having taken place in Y.C. Tallow for March delivery, and also for periods further on in the year, has been very temporarily maintained; indeed, any attempt to establish an advance on the present high quotations seems useless, there being a general impression (with many a conviction) that very few accounts for the month remain open. In the meantime, the wants of the trade are amply met by a supply of sorts, Odessa, North American, Continental Tallow, &c., much of it of excellent quality, and which is readily parted with at prices 1s. 6d. to 3s. 6d. below the rates current for first sort St. Petersburg Y.C. Tallow. To-day the quotations for the latter article are for ready delivery and for all the month, 60s.; April to June, 58s. 9d.; October to December, 55s. 9d. to 56s. per cwt.; but we hear of no business having been done worth recording.

The imports of Tallow of all kinds since the 1st inst. have been 2,214 casks, deliveries, 930 casks. This gives an increase on the stock of 1,284 casks. Stock this day, say 72,241 casks.

Town Tallow has continued in steady, but moderate demand during the week, the melters being in a position, however, we hear, to meet this demand without difficulty; and the "Letter" price of 60s. 3d., or 57s. 9d. per cwt. net, is unaltered.

A rather full supply of Tallow was offered to-day for public sale, with the following results:—

Y. C. Tallow.—(Unbracketed.) 100 casks offered, of middling quality, were all bought in, 56s. 6d. would have been accepted.

Odessa.—Of 260 casks brought forward, 105 casks sold. Sheep, fair to good quality, 56s. 6d. to 57s. 6d.; ox, 55s. 9d. to 56s. 6d. per cwt. for fair to fine quality.

South American has been in moderate request, but fine quality is rather scarce, the bulk of the stock (about 2,000 casks) being of mixed description, rather greasy. 56s. 6d. to 57s. 6d. were the prices paid to day at auction, and after the sale for 44 pipes of good quality, a portion rather bleached and not very firm. 96 pipes, greasy to middling, were nearly all withdrawn, 10 pipes only selling at 50s. per cwt.

Australian.—251 casks offered 53 casks sold. Fine ox at 56s. per cwt. The same for pale mixed melted. Lower qualities were neglected, and although very low rates would have been accepted there were no bidders.

North American.—66 casks were offered, and 52s. were accepted for 10 casks of very fair quality, rather tender, but of good colour; and the remainder, of good sound quality, rather dull colour, was bought in at 54s. 6d. to 55s. per cwt.

East India.—317 packages, of which about 100 casks of fine quality were sold at 56s. to 57s. Lower qualities found few offers, and 160 hhd's. of middling quality were all bought in, only 52s. per cwt. being bid for the best.

Italian.—A parcel of 14 barrels of middling quality sold at 54s. 3d. per cwt.

French.—Eleven casks advertised were withdrawn, as also were 10 casks Belgian Hambro.—Of 10 casks fine quality submitted, 6 casks were sold at 58s. per cwt.

Cocoa Nut Oil.—A very fair amount of business has again been transacted this week, and the market upon the whole has presented a steady aspect. There is a good demand for home use and for export, and, should no great fall take place in the Tallow Market, we may expect that prices of Cocoa Nut Oil will be at least maintained.

To-day the demand for public sale was rather limited, and of 483 Casks Cochín, and 300 Casks Ceylon offered, a moderate portion only was sold. Good to fine Cochín, 50s. to 51s.; fair to fine Ceylon, 49s. to 50s., and very fine quality, 50s. 3d. to 50s. 6d. per cwt. The prices were rather irregular, owing to a variety of prompts.]

A few parcels were sold later in the day, say about 100 tons, mostly Cochin, at 51s. per cwt.

Sydney.—There is very little offering, and former quotations are readily obtained, say 57s. 6d. to 59s. per cwt. for good to fine quality.

Palm Oil.—There were 422 casks offered to-day for public sale, and about 100 casks sold; good quality, 44s. 9d. to 45s.; fair seconds, ullages, 44s. to 44s. 6d. Fine quality, bought in at 46s. per cwt.

The demand is without animation, and sales to a very small extent have been effected, only by a concession on the part of holders, who lately have practically ignored the rather high quotation of 47s. for fine Lagos, still current in some quarters.

Palm Nut Oil.—There is none at present offering, 39s. to 39s. 3d. would be readily given for fine qualities. 39s. 3d. per cwt. was paid to-day at public sales for 1 cask fair quality.

South American Horse Grease is still in very limited demand. Of 360 cases, 44 casks, and 50 barrels offered, only 140 cases of good quality were sold at 36s. 6d.; the remainder being taken in at 39s. for good, and 36s. 6d. per cwt for fair quality. —Culverwell, Brooks & Co., Brokers.

LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET.

LIVERPOOL, FRIDAY MORNING, MARCH 8.

The market was active at the commencement of the week, and, with increased purchases, prices of most descriptions of American improved  $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per lb. During the last day or two, however, less activity has been observable, and, although sales to a fair extent have occurred, the above advance has been barely maintained. Of the supply disposed of yesterday, 7,290 bales were American, 100 Egyptian, 20 Pernambuco, 50 Bahia and Maceio, 40 Maranhão, and 500 bales Surat.

[BY ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH.]

LIVERPOOL, FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 8.

The market closes to-day without change. The sales have reached 8,000 bales, including 2,000 on speculation and for exportation, and the imports 8,542 bales. The quotations of fair are the same as last week. The sales of the week comprise 81,560 bales (against 63,890 bales last week), of which 16,030 were taken on speculation, and 19,260 for exportation. The imports have been 89,043 bales. The stock now amounts to 881,400 bales.

The Corn Trade.

GENERAL REMARKS.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 8.

The weather in the United Kingdom has been during the last eight days very stormy and wet, though mild in temperature, with sunshine at intervals. The predominating wind has blown from the South-west. A large volume of water has again been discharged over the country. Extensive tracts of land are inundated. Farming operations have been more or less interrupted in most parts of the country. In favoured situations some progress has been made with ploughing and wheat-sowing, and planting of beans, but agricultural prospects in the United Kingdom are at present in general far from encouraging.

The supply of wheat has differed but little in quantity this week, compared with the preceding week. The quality of the English crop continues of the same inferior quality as hitherto noticed.

The imports this week, in the aggregate, have been smaller than in the preceding eight days, but whilst the quantity of wheat appears larger, the returns of the quantity of barley and oats show again a reduction. The largest imports of wheat continue from the United States of America and the South-east of Europe, but from this time up to June the arrivals from these quarters may be expected to be reduced to a fraction of what they have been hitherto. As the Baltic is again open, shipments from that quarter will be resumed, though checked in importance by the dearth of money in England, and the present difficulty of negotiating English Bills of Exchange abroad. The current rates of interest at Hamburg being 3 per cent., and in Prussia, 4 per cent., may also operate as an inducement to retain the grain there, instead of shipping it to England. With regard to Odessa it is to be observed that, partly owing to low stocks of produce, to the interruption of navigation by frost, and, since then, to the prevailing want of confidence in commercial circles, very few shipments of grain have been made this year. The Danube and Azov having been stopped by ice during winter, no shipments whatever could be made thence. A telegram from Galatz, dated 4th of March, announces the re-opening of navigation in the Danube. Another source of supply—France—may now be said to be closed against England. Except at Marseilles and the South-east borders the export duty has reached prohibition point.

The British corn-trade has improved in tone this week, and also, to some extent in activity, notwithstanding the continuance of the high rate of interest. The falling off in the imports of grain, with the prospect of a further diminution up to June next—the recent advance in prices of grain in France, added to the fact that several cargoes of grain at ports-of-call have been ordered to the Continent—combine to create increased confidence in the future course of the trade. Wheat—superior sorts have been firmly maintained in price, and in some agricultural markets higher rates have been paid, but inferior parcels continue neglected. Flour—owing to large parcels of American pressing on sale, prices have ruled about the same as last week. Barley—superior grain is sought after, and supported in price, but grinding sorts, of which there is more offering than immediately wanted, rather lower prices have had to be taken. Oats—quiet in demand, and unaltered in price. Maize—more inquired after at fully last week's prices. Beans and peas in fair demand for consumption, at last week's prices.

IN MARK LANE TO-DAY the attendance of the trade was moderate; the tone quiet, but firm. Wheat, English, was neglected, at last Monday's prices. Foreign, maintained upon last Monday's currency. Flour, slow sale; American, unaltered at last Monday's rates—Norfolk, 38s. to 39s. per 280 lb. Barley, quiet, at about last Monday's quotations. Oats, unaltered, at last Monday's prices. Beans and peas unaltered in value.

THE LATEST NEW YORK COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCES state that the supply of money was increasing so fast, that lenders were willing to take at the rate of 5 per cent. For prime and short business paper there were buyers at 6 to 7 per cent., and at 1 or 2 per cent. more for paper at four to six months. The banks would soon hold the unprecedented amount of 40 millions in their vaults, with no outlets for it, except the occasional wants of the Federal Government. Foreign exchange was a fraction higher. Commercial signatures were quoted 104 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 105; and with bills of lading, 103 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 104 $\frac{1}{2}$ . Bankers' (sixty days), 106 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 106.

STATISTICAL SOCIETY—GOLD SUPPLIES AND FOREIGN EXCHANGES.

At a meeting of the Statistical Society, held on the 19th Feb., Charles Jellicoe, Esq., in the chair, the following paper was read:—

"The effect of the Gold Supplies on the Foreign Exchanges between the United Kingdom and Foreign Countries, and on the Price of Silver;" by Francis Jourdan, Esq.—The author commenced by explaining why the ordinary exchange quotations were inefficient as an accurate record of periodic fluctuations, until they had been subjected to a corrective process. The term "rate of exchange" expressed the amount of coin receivable in the money of one country against a fixed amount of coin in another, and when the currency in both countries was based upon gold, the quotation was an exact numerical expression of the rate of exchange; but when one country adopted silver and another gold as a legal tender, the recorded rate ceased to be the real rate, for as the price of silver advanced, the monies of those countries having a silver currency would become relatively more valuable than ours, and, as the rate of exchange expressed the quantity of that silver money exchangeable for one pound sterling, the rate would naturally decline, or in other words, the rate would fall inversely as silver rose: hence, in recording the fluctuations upon places having a silver currency, it was necessary to consider them as comprised of two parts, one incidental to any alteration in the relative values of gold and silver, the other expressing the real fluctuation in the rate of exchange; and to obtain a true rate, dependent on both metals, it was necessary when any variation in their relative value had taken place, to eliminate so much of the recorded rate as arose from that cause. Another source of error was variations in the rate of discount, which in the rates for bills at three months' date, caused apparent fluctuations when no real fluctuation had taken place. The necessity of attention to these points was illustrated by a reference to an elaborate return to Parliament by the Bank of England, recording the rates for bills on Amsterdam, Hamburg, and Paris for a series of years, in which there were instances of a considerable fall, apparently, when in reality, from a greater proportionate advance in the price of silver, the rate had virtually risen. The author explained the method adopted to get rid of this disturbing influence, which was, to alter the quoted rates of exchange in the same relative proportion as the fluctuation in the price of silver, thus obtaining a correct view of the real fluctuations that would have occurred during the same period had the price of silver remained constantly at a fixed price. He made this clear by the simple formula  $x = \frac{Ra}{S}$ , the symbol  $a$  representing the average price of silver for any given period,  $R$  the quoted rate of exchange during the same time, and  $S$  the fixed price of silver. Tables constructed thereon showed the average quoted rates, and the computed real rates for Amsterdam, Hamburg, and India, for a series of years. He next investigated the fluctuations in the European rates of exchange with reference to the estimated amount of bullion retained in Europe, for a series of years, from which it was apparent that some connection existed between the amount of bullion retained in Europe, and the rates of exchange. It was generally supposed that a diminution of our bullion reserve arose from an efflux to other countries, and that by raising the rate of discount, which always brought back bullion, this gold was recovered by an increase of exports; but the author contended that this opinion was to a great extent a fallacy, as would appear by the following reasons:—1. That a partial suspension of business invariably ensued when any stringent measures were adopted by the Bank of England. 2. That a comparison of the estimated amount of bullion retained in Europe, with the average amount in the bank, showed that those totals were independent of each other. And (3), That recent panics had indicated a simultaneous diminution in the reserves of bullion at all the great centres of commerce. From these cumulative facts it was clear that an adverse condition of bullion reserves during the years under review was traceable, not so much to the balance of trade being against any one country, as, to some universal cause acting simultaneously and sympathetically upon the principal trading communities. The author concluded his essay by some observations on the fluctuations in the price of silver, and exhibited tables showing that the annual average price had risen in the last ten years, from 4s. 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per oz. to 5s. 2d. per oz., and attributed the rise to a depreciation in the value of gold, and not to the increased demand for export to the east; for it appeared by a comparison of the prices year by year with the exports of silver, that there was no accord between them; in fact, the chief advance in the price of silver had taken place before it was exported in large quantities. The gold supplies from the producing countries in 1860 had been much less than for some years past; but, on the other hand, the continent appeared to have absorbed more bullion than usual. The average amount of bullion in the Bank of England in 1860 was 15 $\frac{1}{2}$  millions, and the average rate of discount 4 $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent., being in each case about the average of the preceding nine years, and it was shown that a remarkable sympathy existed between the annual average reserves of the banks of England and France; it was also shown that in the case of the Bank of England the rate of discount had been constantly maintained inversely as the stock of bullion. In the Bank of France the bullion reserve was on the 10th of January of this year 14 millions sterling, while the return for the Bank of England gave but little over 12 millions, thus indicating a greater pressure here than in France, as was further proved by the fact, that while the rate of discount at each bank stood at 7 per cent., the rate in the open market had been lower in Paris than in London. The comparatively favourable position of the Bank of France was, however, counteracted by the undue preponderance of silver in their reserve. The figures which the author had cited with regard to these two banks appeared to justify the following conclusions:—1. That the proper regulator of the rate of interest was the reserve of bullion; and, 2, that it was not expedient to retain both silver and gold as legal tenders, as in France; and he argued that if France were to adopt a gold standard, as we had done, and were to make silver a legal tender for small sums only, that currency would largely increase, and the gold thus replaced would naturally flow back to the bank, by which means all such unhealthy expedients as purchasing gold at a premium, or attempting to restrict the rate of discount might be safely and for ever discarded.

A discussion ensued, in which Mr. Jellicoe, Mr. Newmarch, Mr. Hodge, Mr. Langley, Mr. Symonds, and others took part.

GREAT CALAMITY AT GALATZ.—Intelligence has been received that a very sudden and shocking calamity has taken place at Galatz, through the overflow of the Danube and of Lake Bratsch. An immense quantity of grain has been destroyed, and the number of poor inhabitants who have been deprived of all that they possessed is computed at not less than 15,000. Five thousand of them are in so complete a state of destitution that it has become necessary to feed them by daily rations, which are distributed by a committee consisting of the English and French consuls and the principal merchants of the city. The local resources, however, are quite inadequate to the emergency. The Ottoman Bank, with praiseworthy promptitude, have accordingly stepped forward to procure subscriptions in London. A highly respectable committee has been constituted for the purpose.

GRAND RUSSIAN RAILROAD COMPANY.

The Directors of the Grand Russian Railroad Company have the honour to inform the Shareholders that, with a view of completing the network of 1,671 miles to be opened in the early part of the year 1862, as well as to increase the guarantees offered to the Bondholders, a final CALL of S.R. 62.50 has been made on the Shares of the Company, to be paid from the 5th to the 15th of April next.

From the 6th of April next the Shares not fully paid will not be quoted in the Official List.

The payment of S.R. 62.50 can be made at the Counting-house of Messrs. BARING BROTHERS and CO., 5, Bishopsgate-street Within, at an exchange which will be fixed every week, and which will secure to the Shareholders the benefit of the actual exchange of the day.

The provisional shares will be exchanged for definitive shares bearing interest from 1st (13th) January last; consequently, the Shareholders who, on 1st (13th) July next, will be entitled to claim interest from 1st (13th) January last on a fully paid-up share, will have to add to the payment of S.R. 62.50 interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum from 1st (13th) January until the day of payment.

Those Shareholders who pay this Call after the 15th April next will have to pay interest from the 6th of April, the day on which the payment ought to be made.

GRAND RUSSIAN RAILROAD COMPANY.

The Shareholders are informed that the Company have arranged with Messrs. BARING BROTHERS and CO. to ADVANCE to those Shareholders who may desire it ONE-HALF of the PAYMENT of S.R. 62.50 now called for on these Shares—that is, S.R. 31.25 per share—on the following conditions:—1st. Against deposit of the shares on which the advance is made; 2nd. Against payment of an interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, being the same rate as that paid on the shares. This advance can be made for a period of six months—say from 15th April to 15th October, 1861—and at the same exchange as that which may be fixed for the call on the shares; the shareholder to have the right to pay off the loan before the 15th October if desired.

MINES, RAILWAYS, BANK, STEAMSHIP, and INSURANCE SHARES BOUGHT, SOLD, or EXCHANGED.

Capitalists who seek safe and profitable investments, free from risk, should act only upon the soundest information; the market prices of the day are for the most part governed by the immediate supply and demand, together with the operations of speculators without reference to the bona fide merits of the property.

Mines afford a wider range for profit than any other public securities, and pay dividends bi-monthly, varying from 15 to 30 per cent. per annum. Instances frequently occur of young Mines rising in value 400 to 500 per cent. The undersigned devotes special attention to the above, and affords every information to capitalists, and effects purchases or sales upon the best possible terms.

THE PROBABILITY OF SOME REDUCTION IN THE RATE OF DISCOUNT.

THE monthly return of the Bank of France, published yesterday, and extending to the 14th inst., shows satisfactory changes. The principal, as reported by telegraph, are as follows:—

Coin and bullion	...	...	...	...	Increase	£520,000
Bills discounted	...	...	...	...	Decrease	1,080,000
Advances on public securities	...	...	...	...	Decrease	640,000
Notes in circulation	...	...	...	...	Decrease	520,000
Private deposits	...	...	...	...	Decrease	1,200,000
Treasury deposits	...	...	...	...	Increase	600,000

The increase in the bullion, combined with the decrease in the demand for discounts, and with the decrease in the Bank's liabilities on notes in circulation, shows that its general position is stronger. The reduction in the rate of discount by the French Bank from 7 to 6 per cent., which was announced on Thursday evening, is thus accounted for. This movement is the less surprising, because the Paris bankers are now discounting the best bills at 5 per cent., or 1 per cent. below the present rate of the Bank of France.

We infer from these circumstances that a reduction in the Bank of England rate of discount from 8 to 7 per cent. will speedily take place. It is probable that nothing but the receipt of further decidedly unfavourable intelligence from America will cause this step to be delayed beyond next Thursday. The improvement which continues to be shown in the Bank of England accounts (as referred to in another column) points in the same direction, and so does the course of the general discount market. Although at the present period of the quarter the commercial community are usually dependent in a large degree upon the Bank of England, the best bills could be discounted yesterday at 7 to 7½ per cent.

THE IMPROVED POSITION OF THE GREEK INTEREST.

It is our pleasing task to-day to congratulate the Greek interest, and the large body of traders who have business relations with them, upon the final and satisfactory conclusion of the negotiations which have been going on in Paris for some days past with a view to the settlement of the Constantinople transactions of M. Mirès. The negotiations have been of a very delicate and important character, inasmuch as it was a question whether the large mass of bills drawn from Constantinople on M. Mirès, on account of his Turkish Loan, would be met by him. In the contrary event, the effect upon the Greek interest might have been disastrous. We are enabled to state, however, that an important arrangement was concluded at Paris on Thursday. Amongst the parties to it were the Count de Germiny, Governor of the Bank of France, who is at present charged with the administration of M. Mirès' Railway Bank; M. Court, the Imperial Commissary; the Society of Commercial and Industrial Credit of Paris; and the Turkish Government. A fund has been raised amounting to 13,500,000fr., or £540,000 sterling, which will provide for the whole of the Turkish Loan bills on M. Mirès now outstanding. These bills mature on the 19th and 26th inst., and in the first week in April. We believe that it is ultimately intended to cover this fund by issuing the Turkish bonds of the new loan to such of M. Mirès' subscribers as, having as yet paid only two instalments, are desirous of paying in full, and obtaining possession of their bonds.

This result is highly favourable to the Greek interest, who are thus relieved from a degree of pressure which must have been very trying to them, and against which, probably, scarcely any body of traders in this country could have borne up with equal strength.

THE POSITION OF THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILWAY COMPANY.

At the present moment no foreign enterprise attracts so large a share of attention as the Illinois Central Railway, despite the gloom in which American affairs are enshrouded, and the prejudice which is thereby cast upon all American undertakings. Upon former occasions we have devoted a good deal of space to an explanation of the conditions, and to a review of the history of this very remarkable project.* The reports of the President and other chief officers of the Company for the year 1860 have recently been published, and confirm to the full the sanguine views respecting the future of the undertaking which force themselves upon every one who investigates the subject.

As we have before pointed out, the design upon which the Illinois Central Railway project was based was, that the entire cost of the line, which is 800 miles in length, should be paid out of the proceeds of the magnificent grant of 2,595,000 acres of land made absolutely to the Company, and that the shareholders should ultimately be put in possession of the railway gratis. Seeing that the railway has cost upwards of thirty millions of dollars (namely, between six and six and-a-half millions sterling), such an anticipation may sound very extravagant. For a time, indeed, those who had trusted in it were bitterly disappointed. Many things went wrong. Worst of all, there was a remarkable succession of deficient harvests for three years together. In a scantily populated territory, as Illinois then was, dependent almost exclusively upon agricultural produce, this combination of adverse circumstances was sufficient to embarrass the railway company most severely, in common with every class of the population. The company's finances had been badly administered. A floating debt—the old error of American railway companies—hung round its neck like a mill-stone, and contributed to plunge the entire enterprise into a depth of discredit quite unwarranted by its intrinsic merits. There was but one course open—that of retrieving its finances by calling upon the shareholders to pay up the balance remaining available on the capital stock. As many of them had not expected these sudden calls, and as others were absolutely unable to pay them, each “assessment” led to a number of forced sales which kept the price of the shares for a long period at a point of extreme depression. Yet this policy, though painful, as entailing heavy sacrifices, was the only sound one open. It is now bearing good fruit. The Illinois Central Railway now stands pre-eminent amongst American enterprises, from its entire freedom from floating debt. All its floating engagements have been liquidated, as well as the “Free Land” Bonds, which matured on the 1st of September last. To be precise, the amount of this debt now uncanceled is 8,000 dols., or £1,600. The remaining bond debt of the company is of a fixed character, does not arrive at maturity until many years hence, is being gradually reduced from year to year, and therefore presents no occasion whatever for anxiety.

As we shall prove to our readers, the original design of the founders of the Illinois Central Railway—that of ultimately obtaining the railway gratis, with even a bonus for the Company's enterprise—is once more becoming foreshadowed as clearly probable. First let us glance at the amount and component parts of the Company's capital. It consists of:—

1. Share Capital—viz., 99,521 scrip shares, with 80 dols. paid; and 79,933 shares of 100 dols. each, fully paid, making together of paid up capital	Dols.
2. Construction Bonds, due in 1875	15,954,980
3. Bonds due in 1865	15,253,500
4. Due at other periods	332,000
Total	86,740
	31,627,220

It will be remarked that, with the exception of the very unimportant sums numbered 3 and 4, the Company is perfectly free from any obligation as regards the principal of its bonds, until 1875—14 years hence. Immense progress may be achieved in America in less than 14 years.

Against the 31,627,220 dols. of share and bond capital above enumerated, the Company possesses, in addition to the railway upon which that sum has been expended, the following assets—namely, notes for land sold to the amount of 12,598,083 dols., and 1,334,727 acres of land. The original land grant, as before stated, comprised 2,595,000 acres, of which 1,260,273 have been sold, realising an average price of 12 dols. 67c. per acre, or in all, 15,995,380 dols. Of this sum, 4,195,398 dols., or upwards of twenty-five per cent., have been collected in cash, in spite of the depression that has long prevailed in Illinois. The outstanding balance of notes in the Company's possession for land already sold, amounting, as before mentioned, to 12,598,083 dols., is applicable, together with the proceeds of the 1,334,727 acres still unsold, to the redemption of the Construction Bonds, and to the other purposes of the undertaking.

All the testimony that offers combines to encourage a confident belief that the portion of the land unsold will realise a vastly larger amount than that which was disposed of in the earlier period of the Company's existence. The President declares that “every acre sold for settlement adds to the value of the remainder.” To show with what confidence the growth of population in this wonderfully endowed State may be counted upon, it will suffice to recall a prediction which was made in the year 1852 by Mr. Robert Rantoul, one of the Company's directors. At that period the population of Illinois was only 850,000 souls, and upwards of eleven millions of acres of land in the State were offered for sale by the Government at 1½ dols. per acre; yet Mr. Rantoul foretold that the census of 1860 would show a population of upwards of 1,700,000 souls in the State, and that land, in from twelve to fourteen years, would command 12 dols. per acre. His prediction, extravagant as it then seemed, has been strikingly verified. By the census of 1860 the population of Illinois is 1,729,000 persons, and the Company has succeeded from the commencement of its operations, in obtaining an average price of 12 dols. 67c. for the 1,260,273 acres of land which it has sold.

It is most reasonably contended that the ratio of progress will continue to be extraordinary, particularly under the stimulus of the bountiful harvest of the past year, and of the general prosperity which it has occasioned. The evidences of the agricultural progress of the country must be peculiarly gratifying to the shareholders, who may really be regarded as large landholders. It is considered certain that the annual outpouring of the Eastern States will settle upon the lands of Illinois and Iowa. Every season, farmers move down from Minnesota and Wisconsin, to the milder and more genial climate of Illinois. The company's land commissioner states that he is in the daily receipt of numerous letters of inquiry, both from the Northern and Southern States, and he looks for considerable accessions to the population during the year 1861 from both quarters. In the approaching spring “an emigration” is to start for the Company's lands from Norway and Sweden, and both Germany and England are expected to furnish their quota. A colony of Germans from the Western portion of the State of New York, numbering sixty families, have secured a considerable tract of the Company's land, and are about to move on to it. In another direction there is another colony of forty or fifty families of German descent. Germans make excellent colonists. The land commissioner says he has no reason to believe that a single purchase of land has been made latterly for speculative purposes. The Railway Company appears to benefit in the largest degree by the immigration; for, whilst the ratio of increase in the aggregate population of the State between 1850 and 1860 has been 102 per cent., the ratio in the counties traversed by the Illinois Central Railway has been nearly 150 per cent. The yield of the crops for the year 1860 has been very remarkable, and the details afford a significant idea of the immense resources of the State. The agricultural products of Illinois are at this time greater than those of any of the confederated States. The average yield of wheat per acre has been fully 25 bushels, and the aggregate probably 35,000,000 bushels. The average yield of Indian corn per acre has exceeded 50 bushels, and the aggregate yield is estimated to reach the enormous quantity of 140,000,000 bushels. It is believed that between one-third and one-half of the wheat crop is still in the State, whilst only about a tithe of the crop of Indian corn has yet been moved. This renders it certain that the railway will transact a very heavy business on the opening of the navigation. The magnificent crops have enabled the farmers to discharge much of their local “indebtedness,” and have left them in a condition to apply the proceeds of future crops to the payment of the notes which they have given to the Company for land.

Under these promising circumstances let us see what are the Company's prospects as regards the magnificent estate of 1,334,727 acres which it still holds in its possession. The President affirms that “the value of land will increase in direct ratio with the gain in population.”

* See MONEY MARKET REVIEW, vol. I., pages 199, 240, 402, 510, and 569.

"The value of land," he goes on to say, "has quadrupled in these ten years; the tide of emigration to Illinois is constant; and, with 50 per cent. more added to the population, it seems demonstrated that land will double in value." Hence he infers that the unsold half of the Company's lands will, during the next ten years, command nearly double the amount realised for the first half. He accordingly suggests the policy of gradually advancing the price, and he furnishes the following approximate estimate of what he considers will be the ultimate proceeds of the company's land sales, from the commencement of the undertaking:—

1,260,273 acres already sold at an average of $12.67	$15,995,380
Town lots ...	152,603
200,000 acres to be sold at $13	$2,600,000
200,000 " " 15	3,000,000

200,000 " " 18	3,600,000
200,000 " " 20	4,000,000
100,000 " " 25	2,500,000

	27,636,350
Total 2,595,000 acres, to realise in all	$43,784,333

Perhaps the estimate will become more intelligible if we throw it into the annexed form:—

LIABILITIES.
1. Total paid-up share capital of the Company	...	...	$15,954,980
2. Total existing bond capital	...	...	15,672,240
Aggregate capital	...	...	31,627,220
ASSETS.
1. Notes in hand for land sold	...	$12,598,083
2. Proceeds of future sales of the Company's land, according to Mr. Osborn's estimates	...	27,788,953
Making the aggregate yet to be received for land	...		40,387,036
Estimated balance remaining as a bonus for the shareholders after paying off the whole of the capital, both shares and bonds	...	...	8,759,816

Is not this the most extraordinary promise that was ever held out by any enterprise of the kind? The estimate of the future proceeds of the land is not our's, but the President's. We should be inclined to make a heavy allowance for the contingencies which always occur in great undertakings, such as a future increase in the capital expenditure on the railway, and the insolvency of some of the persons whose notes the Company holds (although the Company is protected in the latter event by the stipulation that non-payment causes the land to revert into its possession). But even then there is so wide a margin of probable profit that we can fully understand the sanguine expectations which some of our clearest-headed men of business have formed of the future of the property. Regarded calmly, it seems a most anomalous circumstance that the shares, with 80 dollars paid, stand at this moment at 26 dollars discount in the London market. We could really well imagine any one embarking largely in a speculation in Illinois Central Railway shares, and averring that it is no speculation at all, but a wonderfully brilliant investment, secured, as no other railway in the world is secured, upon that most imperishable of all bases—land—land situated, too, in one of the most rapidly improving regions of the earth. We believe that it is not good for Englishmen to embark too largely in the capital of any one American railway, from the temptation which such a course holds out to American directors: it is not judicious, in fact, for the management to be located in one country, and for the great bulk of the capital to be held in another. It would almost seem as if some restraining consideration of this kind were necessary to prevent Englishmen from putting—as the homely phrase runs—"too many eggs" in so tempting a basket. The present troubles in America likewise point to caution. That they will seriously arrest the progress of Illinois we do not believe; but, whilst we see no reason why we should refrain from recording our high opinion of the Illinois Central Railway as a permanent investment, we must beg any intending investors to weigh well, and form their own opinion upon, the probable duration and effect of the remarkable political convulsion now in progress. One thing, however, is certain: apart from this weighty consideration, there is nothing whatever to prevent these shares from coming into great favour, and from attaining a market value very different from that at which they now stand.

Our concluding remarks shall refer to the question of the results of the current working of the railway, and to the means of meeting the charges upon the Company for interest. Interest accrues, not only on the bond debt, but also at the moderate rate of 4 per cent. on the 79,933 shares which have been fully paid up. The offer of interest has been the inducement to the holders to pay them up. Upon all the points alluded to, the official details are of a very satisfactory character. The President declares that "it may safely be assumed that the income from the road will pay the expenses, State tax, and interest on the debt." He points out that in 1860 "850,630 dols. net was obtained beyond the State tax and expenses, and we have already gained (i.e. increased) 141,000 dols. in the first month's (January) traffic this year. Our net income should exceed 1,200,000 dols. this year, while the interest charge on our bonds cannot exceed 1,050,000 dols." He declares emphatically, as marking a great change in the Company's position, that "the road ceases to be a burthen upon the lands," meaning that the traffic will pay all expenses, as well as the interest on the debt, so that the proceeds of the land sales will be applicable to the extinction of the latter class of the Company's capital. The proceeds of a small portion of the lands, it may here be mentioned, are specially assigned to meet the 4 per cent. interest on the fully paid-up shares. Elsewhere, Mr. Osborne repeats the promise already held out, observing that: "This year the profit of working the road will probably exceed 4 per cent. on its cost; with two more good harvests, the road, with prudent management, will stand by the side of other railways, as a permanent dividend-paying property, without the aid of the lands." As other satisfactory features, we notice that the board intimate their intention of declining to mix themselves up with engagements with other companies, and that Mr. Arthur, the general superintendent, declares that "the track has been in better condition than at any time heretofore," and that "the roadway, structures, and machinery, have not been permitted to deteriorate, but in many particulars are improved." The best comment upon this is, that no fatal accident has occurred to a single passenger since the railway was first opened, seven years ago.

All the figures which we have quoted from the official reports relate to the position of the Company on the 31st December, 1860. Since that period the Company's affairs have progressed satisfactorily in every way, as we may take a future opportunity of showing.

THE FINANCES OF INDIA—HOW TO PAY OFF THE DEBT, AND PROVIDE CAPITAL ON THE SPOT.

FROM the conclusion of the peace in 1815 to 1860-61, there have been thirty-four years in which deficiencies have occurred in India against thirteen years of surplus, and the result of the balance sheet is a debt (of which we gave an accurate account in our last week's number), amounting to £106,965,237. Now, this chronic deficit is a thing not to be tolerated any longer. Both ends must be made to meet, or we shall have serious disorder in Indian finance. Even for the year 1860-61 there is an estimated deficit of £5,574,150. This deficit is, however, expected to be met from two sources—firstly, from £3,500,000, arising from the new Income and other taxes; and secondly, from a diminution of expenditure, as peremptory orders have gone out to effect considerable reductions in the military department. Consequently, by increased taxation on the one hand, and diminished expenditure on the other, an equilibrium between the expenditure and the income may be obtained sooner than is generally imagined. It must be borne in mind, on the favourable side, that this deficit includes—

- 1. £1,286,480 for interest on guaranteed railway capital, after deducting traffic receipts.
- 2. £500,000 additional charge by the rate of exchange on railway disbursements in India.
- 3. £3,887,236 for buildings, roads, and other public works.

This total of £5,673,716 represents investments for the good of the country. When the railways become self-supporting, and other public works reproductive, we may fully anticipate that the revenue of India will be in a great measure relieved from these charges, which of themselves would turn a deficit into a large surplus.

It seems a most astonishing fact, that whilst the total revenue of India is £37,762,660, the cost of its connection amounts to the enormous sum of £7,154,911. From this sum there may be deducted—

Cost of salt	...	...	...	£323,800
Cost of opium	...	...	...	1,230,000
				£1,553,800

Consequently, the cost of collecting £37,762,660 becomes really £5,601,111, or about 3s. in the pound; but in this cost of collection there seems to us a very considerable field for reduction.

Again: The military expenditure amounts to the huge sum of £15,276,320; but as the most peremptory orders have gone out to reduce this expenditure, we must be content to await the result hopefully.

Whilst these are the items in the Indian balance-sheet, wherein the chief amount of saving may be effected, there is an immense field open for increasing the revenue, if we could only persuade the "old Indian" mind not to adhere with so much tenacity to the recollections of the past.

In the first place, the revenue from land amounts to £18,502,400, and the cost of collection to £2,183,560. The allowances to district and village officers, whose occupation is in a great measure connected with the land, are upwards of £1,000,000. Now, it is fair to presume that, if any plan could be adopted to commute this land-tax at twenty-five years' purchase, the most important results to India would ensue. The Indian Government, as lords of the soil, possess land producing a revenue of £18,502,400, which, at twenty-five years' purchase, is worth £462,560,000—consequently, were little more than one-fifth of that land to be sold, the debt of India might be wholly redeemed. We believe this is the fulcrum which will lift Indian finance out of its difficulties, and be the means not only of paying off the Indian debt, but of providing the capital which India requires to be invested in its development if it is to become in reality the mine of wealth to us which it has been represented to be.

Every one acquainted with India declares that the amount of money hoarded by the natives is something enormous. It is evident that for some reason or other the natives have not had sufficient confidence in Government securities, for it is well known that the great mass of Indian securities are held by Europeans either in India or Europe. The same may be said of railways and works of irrigation. All accounts agree that the desire of the natives to hold land is a ruling passion. Why, then, should not the Government take advantage of this desire and turn it to good account? It would be very useful if we could have an estimate formed of the sum that could be laid out advantageously in India in railways, works of irrigation, and improvements in the navigation of the great rivers and the construction of good roads. We feel assured that the amount is not to be reckoned by millions, but by hundreds of millions. If this be so, from what source is this enormous capital to be supplied? If the capital required to make India productive can be readily derived through the Government selling a portion of the land, and that too without diminishing the revenue (for the interest saved on the amount of debt redeemed would compensate the loss of income on the land sold)—why should it not be done? No doubt the "old Indian" mind would start many objections, such as "the impolicy of alienating the land, the difficulty of settling the tenure where so many interests are mixed up," &c. But these difficulties are not insurmountable; they must be boldly looked in the face and overcome. The great end which we have in view is to make India ten times as productive as it is now. This can only be done by opening it up; to open it up requires capital; and that capital now lies buried and unproductive in the possession of the Natives, and can only be got at by selling their land. How puerile, then, is it to talk of difficulties, when so great an end as the full development of India is the object to be attained. As for colonising India, the idea is ridiculous. The buried capital of India, we repeat, ought to be made available for the development of India.

We throw out this idea for the consideration of those who have the welfare of India at heart. The subject will bear discussion; it is worthy alike of the attention of the Indian authorities and of the British Government. We wish the Indian officials in this country and in India would seriously turn their attention and their great talents to this subject. Times are changed; the palanquin is giving place to the locomotive—the dromedary to electric wires; and the worn-out machine of "Old Indian" finance, which never was worth much, must give place to some new one which will convert chronic deficits into large surpluses, common tracks into railways, unnavigable rivers into navigable ones, and periodical famine, produced by drought, into plenty, produced by works of irrigation.

INDIAN RAILWAYS—THEIR CAPITAL AND BALANCES.

In our last number we gave a correct statement, from official sources, of the Debt of India. We now give an exact statement relating to the Indian Railway Companies. It shows the amounts authorised to be raised by them in stock and debentures, and the amount withdrawn by them in India and England up to the latest dates. Our readers will find this an extremely suggestive table, as they will see at a glance every feature, so far as capital and expenditure are concerned up to the latest dates—say to the end of February:—

The Government of India propose to spend during the year 1860-61 no less a sum than £6,000,000 on railways; but it must be borne in mind that the supply of money must be kept up by the railway company. This, we trust, an easier money market will, ere long, allow them to do without any undue pressure. It is most natural that the surplus capital of England should find its way into these splendid undertakings in preference to any foreign investment. Should it be found, however, that the condition of the money market offers an insuperable bar to the raising of an adequate amount of capital by the companies themselves under the Government guarantee, the Government must unquestionably interpose its assistance in a still more effectual form, by raising the money itself and lending it to the companies. This is stated officially to have been the motive of the loan of £3,000,000 recently raised by the Indian Secretary in the English market. In any case, therefore, the interests of the existing shareholders in the Indian railways are properly protected, for, even in the most adverse contingency imaginable, these great works will be pushed to a completion. There can be no stopping half way, from lack of capital, as has occurred with various foreign railways. The proprietors now feel the force of the fact which we have repeatedly endeavoured to impress upon them, namely—that the Indian Government is completely identified with the railway system, and must cherish and promote it by every means in its power. To this end it must be, if necessary, not merely the guarantor, but a lender of money to the railways, and even become a shareholder in them. The existing proprietors must never forget that they have the whole strength of the Government of India at their back.

We cannot conclude without calling attention to the very satisfactory evidence of financial strength and credit which is afforded by the fact that the East Indian, Great Indian Peninsula, and Sincde Companies (which latter includes the Punjab and Indus Steam Flotilla capitals), despite all the difficulties of the time, and the vigour with which the works are being carried on, have at their credit a large balance in the hands of the Government. They have, in fact, hitherto been able to command the requisite supply of capital, without invoking any special aid from the Government.

THE DECLINE IN THE PRICES OF AMERICAN PRODUCE.

To whatever cause or combination of causes it may be attributed, the prices of a great number of American commodities appear to have steadily declined since 1857, the year of scarcity and revulsion. Taking first what are called the products of the soil, we have State flour at 6 dols. 25c. per barrel in 1857; 4 dols. 25c. in 1858; 4 dols. 30c. in 1859; 4 dols. 30c. in 1860; and 5 dols. 35c. in 1861. Wheat, of the red Western kind, we have at 1 dol. 58c. per bushel in 1857; 1 dol. 10c. in 1858; 1 dol. 20c. in 1859; 1 dol. 30c. in 1860; and 1 dol. 38c. in 1861. The higher prices ruling this year are, of course, owing to the deficient harvest in this country, but for which, it is generally believed that American cereals would have touched a lower point than they ever did before. Since 1857 American harvests have, upon the whole, been good, and one of the effects of the revulsion of that year was the driving of tens of thousands of people from the towns in which they were threatened with starvation to seek employment on the land. A large permanent increase to the agricultural population of the United States was then made. Favoured with good seasons and internal quiet, the labour of these recent settlers will increase in productiveness every year, and something like a permanently low range of prices for the great staff of life may be looked for. Upon the prairies of Illinois it has been stated on the best authority that the cost price of red wheat to the farmer is not more than 8s. a quarter, and if to that is added the liberal margin of 8s. freight to Liverpool, the cost price of Western wheat in this country is not more than 16s. a quarter. It is, therefore, not much wonder that since 1857 the tendency of the prices of American cereals has been strongly downwards.

Provisions might almost be included in the cereal category. When men devote themselves to American farming, particularly in the West, the breeding and fattening of cattle receives a large share of their attention, and they are not unmindful of cheese and butter. And it is surprising at what a low price all of these are produced. The feeding of American cattle absolutely costs the farmer nothing. He turns them out in herds upon the prairie, where they feed abundantly throughout the summer upon natural grass, from which hay is also made, and after harvest time they are turned into the Indian corn-stubble fields where they are fatted for the market. To make cheese and butter on such conditions, and to supply the market with fat cattle at a cheap rate, is therefore an easy matter, and the wonder almost is that the prices of provisions have not declined still further. In 1857 the price of New York city mess beef per barrel was 13 dols. 50c.; in 1859 and 1860 the price was 9 dols.; and in 1861 it is 6 dols. Chicago repacked beef, which in 1857 was 12 dols. 25c. per barrel, was 9 dols. 50c. in 1859 and 1860, and in 1861 it is 9 dols. Beef hams extra per barrel, which in 1857 were 19 dols. 50c., are now 14 dols. The best Ohio butter, which in 1857 was 21c. a pound, was 16c. in 1860, and is 14c. this year. State butter year by year has declined 6c. a pound, and Orange county butter 5c. a pound. Cheese, which was 10½c. in 1857, is at present 10c., but stood at 8c. in 1858. These are gratifying changes which increased production is steadily bringing about; and before many years they can scarcely fail to exercise a most beneficial influence upon commerce and upon the condition of the working population of the United Kingdom.

If good butter is to be had in New York at 7d. a pound, the high London prices are not likely to be long maintained.

In some of the important raw material of manufacture there is also a very marked decline. Rough American hemp, which, in 1857, was 208 dols. a ton, was 145 dols. in 1860, and is 152 dols. 50c. this year. This is entirely to be attributed to increased production, a great deal of attention having been given to the growth of hemp since the Russian War. St. Louis, on the Mississippi, is one of the great markets for this commodity, and there the range of prices has been much lower. American leather has fluctuated considerably, and prices are at present very low. In 1857, hemlock sole was 32c. a pound; this year it is only 19½c. Last year the price was 30c., and in 1859 24c. Common fleece wool, probably from the cessation of demand in the American manufacturing districts, is at present offered at an unusually low price, namely, 30c., against 40c. last year and 38c. in 1857. Ashes, both pot and pearl, have declined steadily since 1857, a circumstance in the main attributable to the extensive clearings in the Canadian forests. This year the price of pots and pearls is 5 dols. per 100 lbs., against 8 dols. for the former in 1857, and 7 dols. 75c. for the latter. Cotton, even, is lower in price this year than in 1857, although considerably higher than in 1858, 1859, and 1860. In 1857 the price of middling upland was 13¼c.; in 1858, 8½c.; in 1859, 12c.; in 1860, 11c.; and in 1861, 12¼c.

Naval stores have also receded—a circumstance which at least shows that no extraordinary demand has existed in the United States themselves for warlike purposes.

It is needless to proceed further with the enumeration. Commodities of all kinds have been steadily receding in value in the United States for several years past, and it is to be hoped that present difficulties will occasion no reactionary movement. This year the great bulk of the crops of the season are already in the ground, and will come to maturity even while difficulty prevails, and before even there can possibly be an appeal to arms the spring crops will also be peacefully committed to the ground. Let us hope that by harvest time the lowering storm will have blown over, and that the blessings of abundance will be still vouchsafed to the human family.

IS BANK STOCK A PROPER FUND FOR TRUSTEES TO INVEST IN?

GRAVE objections appear to be entertained by the legal profession to the recent order in Chancery which allows trustees to invest in Bank Stock. These objections we will briefly recount. In the first place, it is contended that Bank Stock is not secured by a Government guarantee any more than the stock of any other joint-stock bank; for, although the Government has borrowed the whole of the capital of the Bank, that capital is pledged for the payment of any issues which the Bank of England may have made over and above those represented by bullion.

Another objection raised by the legal mind (which, to those who know how the Bank is conducted, seems to be dependent upon an almost impossible contingency) is that, supposing that, from mismanagement, the Bank of England were to be involved in difficulties, a Government extent would have priority over the claims of other creditors to the full extent of the Government balances. This, however, is the less an objection for trustees to raise, because the Bank, being a corporate body, the shareholders, which is the light in which trustees would stand, are not liable for more than the stock they hold.

The chief objection that can be urged against Bank Stock as an investment for trustees is, in our opinion, its liability to very large fluctuations. We need only point out, that since the order in Chancery has been promulgated the price has fluctuated at least 14 per cent. Who can say to what extent these fluctuations may go, seeing that the future conditions of the Bank's existence, on which the value of its stock hinges, are entirely dependent on Parliament? Bank Stock, even in modern times, has been subjected to great fluctuations. In 1825 the price was as high as 299, and in 1840 as low as 156; even as late as 1847 it was only 180.

We have lately seen the Chancellor of the Exchequer lop off £50,000 per annum from the Banks' profits, and the resolutions which were unanimously agreed to in the House of Commons relative to Exchequer Bills may hereafter interfere with the profits of the Bank, by curtailing whenever the Bills are paid in for duties, the amount of Government deposits.

Then, again, there is a general growing feeling in favour of free trade in banking, as in everything else. This is decidedly against a prolonged continuance of the monopoly which the Bank now enjoys, of issuing notes for sixty miles round London.

Moreover, if free trade in banking were to be adopted, it is very possible that if so close a statesman as Mr. Gladstone were Chancellor of the Exchequer, he might say—"The other joint-stock banks in the metropolis allow interest on deposits. Now, as the Government deposits at the Bank of England average, say £7,000,000 sterling, if the Bank were only to allow 3 per cent. interest for them, a saving to the country would occur of upwards of £200,000 per annum; therefore, why should not the Government deposits be placed with those who will allow interest on them?" In the extreme case of any disaster happening to joint-stock banks in which Government balances might be deposited, those balances would be fully secured by means of an extent which would have priority over all other balances.

These embody some of the principal objections urged against the late order in Chancery. There is another, viz., the very limited nature of the market for Bank Stock. As there are not more than one or two dealers in it, no large operations either of buying or selling can take place without affecting the price. Lastly, calculations have been made as to what the price of Bank Stock would be if the Bank were to be wound up. It is not easy to calculate what the price of Bank Stock would be under such a contingency, which none other than a legal mind would imagine, but at present the price of £100 Bank Stock is 232. This price it bears, because it pays an average dividend of about 9 per cent. per annum; but assuming—for the sake of argument—the possibility of the privileges of the Bank being abolished, and of its being wound up, there would be the sum of £14,553,000—or £100 to be returned to each proprietor of £100 stock; and in addition to this there would be the reserve fund, or “rest,” of £3,000,000 to be divided amongst the proprietors, so that every holder of £100 stock would receive £120 from these sources, and whatever the goodwill of the business is worth.

Separating the reasonable portion of these objections from those which are extreme and visionary, we arrive at the conclusion that those trustees who object to Bank Stock being selected as an investment for trust funds, have some grounds for their view, inasmuch as Bank Stock is subject to all the vicissitudes of the shares of any other joint-stock company; and although it is our present hope that the Bank of England may continue to enjoy prosperity, still it may admit of doubt whether its stock is altogether suited for an investment for trustees, whose great care ought to be to keep the corpus of the capital entrusted to them intact.

THE STATE OF TRADE.

(COMPILED FROM NUMEROUS LOCAL REPORTS.)

WE notice but little improvement in the accounts received this week from the manufacturing districts. In a few quarters there is a slight revival, owing to the advance of the season, but business in most departments is restrained by the dearth of money and by the very unsettled condition of political and financial affairs in America. The iron interest is particularly depressed, in consequence partly of the very illiberal tariff which is about to come into force in the United States.

The accounts from Manchester describe the market for yarns as quiet, and spinners have taken rather lower prices than last week to secure sales. There are exceptional cases in which sellers report a fair business at last week's rates. The business includes sales for India, China, Germany, and some rather considerable sales for the Mediterranean. Some of the manufacturers of India cloths are also buyers of yarn, but at very low prices. For cloths there has been rather quieter market. There is some little business for India and China offering, but at prices too low to tempt sellers. The prices of all descriptions of goods are in favour of buyers. Long-cloths and T-cloths are in better demand than India goods, and some contracts have been made for future delivery extending over some months forward, but at low rates. Printing cloths are very flat, and printers are complaining of a very bad trade—worse than they ever knew it. The American trade, the Egyptian trade, and that with Turkey have all suffered severely, and the flatness of all combine to render the position and prospects of printers discouraging.

At Leeds the attendance in the cloth-halls has been rather meagre, and business transactions were limited almost to purchases of light fabrics, and generally in small parcels. As to prices and the general aspect of the woollen trade they are without change. All things considered, the woollen trade of the West Riding is in a sound condition.

At Rochdale there has been a small attendance of buyers in both the wool and flannel trades to-day, and comparatively little business has been done. Though the demand for flannel and other kindred goods is flat, manufacturers refuse to take orders to any extent at prices below last month's rates. Many of them are working to stock, which is not unusual at this period of the year.

At Huddersfield there has been a very indifferent market, and the prospect of amendment is still very obscure in all quarters. Very few buyers have been about, and their transactions have only been on a limited scale. Prices, under all the circumstances, are still well supported.

At Halifax the spinners are badly situated as regards orders, and some of the mills are running short time.

The report from Bradford, dated Thursday, states that the wool trade continues in a very unsatisfactory state. There may be a shade more demand, but buyers are difficult to meet with. The reduction from Christmas to the present time does not average more than 1½d. per lb. The business in worsted yarns is stagnant. There are buyers enough for the export trade, who are free with offers for qualities suitable to the Russian and German markets; but these are, for the most part, so extremely low that they cannot be at all entertained. No previous period has been so harassing to the spinners. For months past the price of yarns has been inadequate to the cost of production. The general dullness in the piece department has not at all abated. There has been rather more doing by our home-trade merchants in the warehouse during the past week, but the parcels sold are very small compared with what in better times is usual at this period of the year. Several continental orders have been given out. The accounts from France do not encourage the hope of a very speedy improvement; business is represented as exceedingly dull in Paris and the large cities. On the other hand, less anxiety exists amongst the foreign merchants about the prospects of their trade. It is expected that with an improvement in money matters a steady demand will set in from Germany, Russia, and Italy. The absence of the American merchants is beginning to be severely felt.

At Nottingham most branches of the lace trade are unprecedentedly quiet for the time of the year. Nothing is being made but what is really saleable, and by these means stocks are kept down. There is still much valuable machinery standing and many hands unemployed. In hosiery for the home market there is a fair amount of business doing, and business generally is becoming more healthy as respects the home demand.

At Wolverhampton complaints are becoming more general that business is quiet, and there is a complete absence of animation in any of those branches which are connected with the spring trade. The iron trade remains in the same languid state; from week to week the reports are unvaried. The future of the trade is just now attracting much attention, and no wonder, because if the Morrell Tariff Bill should become law, it is pretty certain that the export of iron to America will be stopped.

FREE TRADE IN BANKING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE “MONEY MARKET REVIEW.”

SIR,—There is a growing feeling against the monopoly of the Bank of England, and the only real obstacle to the abolition of that monopoly is the fact of the Government owing the Bank the sum of £11,015,100. Let but the Government free itself from this obligation, and we should soon have every bank in the kingdom placed on one and the same footing. And why should not this be the case? Why should not every bank be allowed to issue notes against their equivalent in bullion, provided they deemed it their interest to do so? It would not be their interest unless it was the interest also of the public. The days of monopoly are gone by; why should that of the Bank of England alone be maintained? It is evident that the present system works as badly for the commercial community as any that could by possibility be devised. Nothing now is certain but uncertainty. Nothing can illustrate this truth more forcibly than the variations in the rate of discount at the Bank of England, which have been fifteen in number in as many months.

Why should the Bank of England have such power that it arbitrarily fixes the rate of money? That it has that power, to a great extent, is certain, from the fact of the other banks being compelled to follow the rate fixed by it. The joint-stock banks and the discount houses have to a certain extent resisted the arbitrary rate fixed by the Bank by declining to raise the rate they allow for money at call higher than 5 per cent. The admirable manner in which the various banks manage their business proves that if they had the same privileges as the Bank of England the public would have much less fluctuation in the money market than now. This would be one of the main advantages that would flow from doing away with the monopoly of the Bank.

Why, then, should not the Government raise a loan for the amount of their indebtedness to the Bank, and for ever terminate a monopoly which acts so injuriously to the commercial interests?

Why should there not be free trade in gold as well as in silver, iron, copper, or any other metal?

Why should the Bank of England be compelled to buy all the gold that is offered to it at £3. 17s. 9d. per oz. standard, and sell it at £3. 17s. 10½d.?

The public erroneously mix up this question of buying and selling gold at these fixed prices with the standard of value; whereas they have no connection with each other. The sovereign is the standard of value, and must contain so many grains of gold of given fineness. This, of course, must be rigidly maintained; but it has nothing whatever to do with arbitrarily fixing the price of gold, and it has still less to do with altering the rate of discount.

The whole disorganisation which now frequently takes place in the money market with such injurious rapidity arises from the circumstance that whenever the gold is reduced below a given amount, the Bank of England are compelled to throw every impediment in the way of parties obtaining gold from them, by raising the rate of discount. And why? Because they have a large number of notes out unrepresented by gold.

This is the disturbing cause in our monetary system, and the sooner it is abolished the better it will be for the commercial community.

You will observe, sir, that in these remarks I carefully abstain from touching on the subject of currency. I am a stern advocate for the convertibility of the note on demand; but I wish to see a pernicious monopoly done away with, and free trade in banking, as in everything else, established.

M. MARSHALL, Chief Cashier.

The above return, compared with that for the previous week, shows the following changes:—

Circulation Issue .. .. .	£ 25,918,975	.. Increase	£292,220
Circulation Active.. .. .	19,035,330	.. Decrease	257,640

Total Reserve (Notes and Coin) in Banking Department .. .. .	7,768,812	.. Increase	526,999

Very satisfactory inferences are to be drawn from the large increase in the reserve, which is of almost equal amount with the decrease in the private securities. The coin and bullion have also increased upwards of a quarter of a million, in spite of the shipments of gold to America. It is evident that the Bank will not be justified in keeping their rate of discount at 8 per cent. for more than a week or so longer.

THE MONEY MARKET.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 15.

In the discount market this week there have been decided symptoms of an impending breaking down of the rates. This has been more especially observable yesterday and to-day. Considerable effect has been produced by the announcement of a fall in the rate of discount of the Bank of France. Although there was a good demand at the discount-office at the Bank of England to-day, the best bills were taken in many quarters at  $7\frac{1}{2}$  to  $7\frac{3}{4}$  per cent. There is a growing belief that, unless news of a very unfavourable character comes forward from America, the Bank of England rate will be lowered from 8 to 7 per cent. within a fortnight, and probably on next Thursday.

In the Stock Exchange the rate for loans on Government Securities yesterday morning was about 5 per cent., but some amounts having been withdrawn an active demand was subsequently occasioned, and as much as 7 per cent. was paid. To-day the supply was more liberal.

It was announced by telegraph on Thursday evening that the Bank of France have reduced their rate of discount from 7 per cent. (at which it was fixed on the 8th of January, the previous charge having been  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ) to 6. This announcement was received with great satisfaction.

Since the date of the Bank return, just published, £181,000 in gold has been taken to that establishment, inclusive of £45,000 to-day.

The Canada left Liverpool on Saturday last for the United States with £176,620 in specie, and the City of Baltimore on Wednesday with £81,829, making the total sent from this country since the end of November, £4,465,000. The Africa, which will leave to-morrow, is expected to take a further sum of about £150,000.

A good deal of the gold lately received from abroad has come from the Levant, and further amounts are expected from that quarter.

According to some expectations the next West India steamer is likely to bring a total of £500,000 in silver, in consequence of the arrival at Panama of Her Majesty's ship Pylades from the West Coast of Mexico.

The Melbourne advices report the departure for England of the following gold ships, viz.:—The Result, with 29,335 oz.; Alliance, with 31,513 oz.; Lightning, with 28,844 oz.; and the Southampton, with 21,544 oz. The Monarch, with 22,407 oz., reported by the previous mail, is also at sea, making the aggregate on the way hither 133,643 oz., worth £534,500.

The Delta took on the 12th inst. £134,540 in silver, and £25,500 gold for Bombay, making together £160,040.

An instalment of 20 per cent. fell due on Tuesday on the Indian Five per Cent. Loan of £3,000,000, but as about £900,000 of it had been paid up in full, the sum actually receivable on that day was reduced to about £420,000. The further payments in full effected on Tuesday amounted to only a trifling sum.

THE BULLION MARKET.

With reference to the movements in bullion and in the Indian Government paper, Messrs. Pixley, Abell, and Langley, report as follows:—

GOLD.—The movements in gold during the past week have been varied, and rather extensive. The imports have been—The Ocean Chief, from Melbourne, with £92,000; the Thames, from ditto, with £69,000; the Ydale, from ditto, with £23,000; the Magdalena, from Brazils, with £38,950; and the Cleopatra, from Africa, with £7,000. In addition to the above, several large sums have been daily received from the Continent; and, as there is but little demand for export, the Bank has, since our last circular (7th inst.), purchased nearly £500,000 of gold; and further amounts will be sent in. The exports have been—The Tagus, to Lisbon, with £20,000; the Delta, to Bombay, with £25,500; the Tyne, to Brazils, with £7,678; the Canada, to America, with £176,620; and the City of Baltimore, to America, with £81,829. Further amounts of gold are likely to be sent to New York by the steamer leaving on Saturday.

SILVER.—The price of silver which was mentioned in our last circular as 61d. per ounce standard, has experienced a further fall to 60 $\frac{3}{4}$ d., and we do not look for much recovery from this rate, as the demand is rather slack. The Delta took £134,540 to Bombay; the Tyne, £16,172 to the Brazils; and the Cleopatra has brought £3,867 from Africa.

MEXICAN DOLLARS. The dollars, ex Seine, have been sold at 4s. 11 $\frac{1}{4}$ d. per ounce, and we quote this as the present rate, with a rather quiet market.

EXCHANGE ON INDIA for Banks 60 days' sight drafts on Bombay and Calcutta is 1s. 11 $\frac{1}{4}$ d. to 2s.  $\frac{3}{4}$ d., and on Madras 1s. 11 $\frac{3}{4}$ d. to 2s.

INDIA GOVERNMENT LOAN NOTES are without change. We quote them 100 to 101 for Five-and-a-Half per Cents.; 94 to 95 for Five per Cents.

The report of Messrs. Haggard and Co., dated this day, observes:—

Since our last circular, our market has shown much more activity than for some time past; the imports, more especially, having been on an increased scale. The amount of gold sold to the Bank of England is £360,000, while the withdrawals have not nearly equalled this amount. Nearly the whole of the gold arriving from abroad is sent to the Bank. Considerable amounts arrive daily from the Continent. Silver has become exceedingly depressed, and has fallen to 60 $\frac{3}{4}$ d. with a very small demand for the steamer of the 20th to Calcutta, &c. Mexican dollars are without alteration.

THE EXCHANGES.

The Continental exchanges have remained very firm, with an upward tendency, until this afternoon, when, owing probably to the easier state of our money market, a partial relapse occurred.

THE RED SEA TELEGRAPH COMPANY.

Shareholders in the Red Sea Telegraph Company will be glad to learn that, the Bill having passed the third reading in the House of Commons last night, the warrants for the overdue interest were being prepared for the post this evening.

THE TURKISH LOAN OF 1858.

We have received the following communication, dated this evening:—

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "MONEY MARKET REVIEW."

SIR,—The memorial of holders of the Turkish Six per Cent. Stock of 1858 (a copy of which appeared in the Daily News of the 9th inst.), the object of which is to obtain the transmission to this country, month by month, of the proceeds of the Customs and other duties at Constantinople, specially pledged as guarantee for the payment of interest and sinking fund of the said loan, was presented this morning to the Turkish Ambassador, after having received the signatures of a large proportion of the stockholders. His Excellency received the deputation who presented it to him with the utmost cordiality, and stated he would forthwith transmit the memorial to his Government, and give his decided support to the views it represents, and that he would communicate the reply immediately he received it from Constantinople.

May I, therefore, request you to insert this in your City Article, so that those gentlemen whose signatures are attached may know the result?—I am, sir, your obedient servant,

H. J. MEADOWS.

20, Throgmorton-street, Friday Evening, March 15.

The following is the address referred to; every holder of the bonds will agree with it:—

To his Excellency Musurus Bey, Ambassador of the Sublime Porte in London, &c.

Your Excellency,—The undersigned holders of stock in the Imperial Turkish Six per Cent. Loan of 1858, negotiated by Messrs. Dent, Palmer, and Co., specially secured by the Customs duties and Government octroi levied at Constantinople, beg leave respectfully to submit to your Excellency, and to request you to convey to the Government of his Imperial Majesty the Sultan, the great advantage that would accrue to the credit of the Imperial Government if an arrangement were made to carry out the special guarantee on which the loan was raised in the only manner which can be satisfactory to the bondholders—viz., by authorising the commission which represents their interest to collect and remit the produce of such duties and octroi monthly to this country, on account of the accruing dividends and sinking fund, until in each six months enough was remitted to meet the next half-yearly payment about to fall due. We feel persuaded that punctual adherence to such an arrangement would inspire a degree of confidence in the credit of the Turkish Government commensurate with its high honour, and with the great resources of the country, and would thus be productive of the greatest advantage to all interests concerned. Requesting your Excellency to use your good offices in this matter, and to favour us with a reply, we have the honour to remain, &c.

London, March, 1861.

It is definitively announced that arrangements have been concluded at Paris whereby the whole of the large amount of outstanding Constantinople bills drawn on M. Mirès on account of the Turkish Loan will be provided for. This is very satisfactory intelligence.

The half-yearly dividend court of proprietors of the Bank of England was held on Thursday. It was announced that the net profits for the half-year were £3,728,710. A dividend of 5 per cent. for the half-year was declared. In answer to a remark by a proprietor, relative to the high rate of discount charged by the Bank, the Governor, Mr. Dobree, observed that "whenever an alteration in the rate of interest could be safely made it would be done." The more speedy publication of the Bank Returns was sensibly urged by another influential proprietor, Mr. Alderman Salomons, but elicited only a general profession on the part of the Governor of the desire of the directors to promote the public interests.

Arrangements have been made with Messrs. Baring Brothers to advance for a period of six months, to those shareholders who may desire it, one-half of the payment now called for, subject to 5 per cent. interest.

The Turkish Minister of Foreign Affairs has communicated through the ambassador in London to the directors of the Ottoman (Smyrna to Aidin) Railway the granting of a new concession, by which the company are empowered to issue £250,000 Six per Cent. Debentures for five years in lieu of that amount of capital in shares. An extension of three years is also authorised for completing the line to Aidin. The company, in fact, obtain all that they asked for. The Turkish Government deserves credit for the liberality which it has displayed in the matter, but which is really its best policy, if it wishes foreign capital to be embarked in public works.

The fears of the stockholders have been realised by the announcement just made, that the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada are not able to meet the interest due the 15th inst. on the stock of the Atlantic and St. Lawrence Company, which is leased by the Grand Trunk.

VICTORIA AND LEGAL AND COMMERCIAL LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY.

Yesterday (Thursday) was held the 22nd Annual Meeting of the Victoria and Legal and Commercial Life Assurance Company. A very favourable report was submitted by the directors. It shows a steadily increasing income, and a considerable surplus to be added to the general fund. We make the following extract from the report:—

Your directors have much pleasure in reporting that the business of the Company during the past year has been satisfactory in all respects.

235 new policies were issued, covering assurances to the extent of £134,320, and producing in new premiums £4,532 per annum. The claims by death have arisen from the falling in of 37 lives and 46 policies. The amount paid, including bonuses, was £21,113. The surplus of the year was £28,735, which increases the general fund to £340,194. The income was over £63,000 per annum, and the amount assured exceeds £1,500,000.

The income of the Company was thus produced:—

From premiums	..	..	..	..	..	£49,808
From interest	..	..	..	..	..	13,515
						£63,323

The expenditure, including claims by death, and bonuses, dividends to proprietors, policies purchased, and annuities paid, re-assurances and renewals, commission, and office charges, &c., was £34,588, leaving £28,735 as the surplus of the year.

The assets of the company, amounting to £340,194, continue to be invested in the best securities. They consist of mortgages on freehold estates, life insurances and reversions, Consols, East India Loan, Railway Debentures, and bonds with policies of assurance, &c.

THE LIVERPOOL AND LONDON FIRE AND LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY.

The report and other official details submitted at the recent meeting of this company show that the undertaking fully maintains its position. It stands in the first rank amongst fire offices. The amount of the annual fire premiums is now as much as £313,725. In 1853, only eight years ago, the amount was limited to £113,612. In the life department the reserve has been increased by the addition of upwards of £58,000 in the year 1860 alone. The annual premiums in this department amount to £131,721, and the accumulated reserve is £707,000. In the year 1853 the premium income from this source was but £53,228. We do not think any company could reasonably expect to make more satisfactory progress within an equal period. The company was established in the year 1836, and its success affords another proof of the growth of provident habits amongst the people of this country.

OTHER PUBLIC COMPANIES.

At the meeting on Thursday of the Van Diemen's Land Company, the directors' report, recommending a dividend of 5s. per share, free of Income-tax, was agreed to.

The Bill of the United Kingdom Electric Telegraph Company went before the committee of the House of Commons on Thursday. The committee decided that the preamble was not proved, on the ground that the company provisionally registered under an Act of Parliament of 1851 was not fully registered within the period prescribed by law. The merits of the Bill could not therefore be discussed. The chairman of the committee said, however, that the committee would have been very glad if they could have recommended the proceeding with the Bill. It is thence inferred that a favourable view would have been taken had this course been practicable. We are informed that the directors intend to ask for a suspension of the standing orders in their favour, in order that they may be enabled to introduce another Bill in the course of the present session.

The second annual meeting of the London General Omnibus Company (Limited) is convened for the 27th inst., at the London Tavern.

The annual meeting of the British American Land Company is called for the 27th inst.

In the Bankruptcy Court on Tuesday there was a sitting for the proof of debts against the Union Discount Company (Limited), whose liabilities are stated at £10,000. The sitting was adjourned to the 18th April.

The closing price to-day was  $92\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{3}{8}$ , being  $\frac{1}{4}$  per cent. higher than on last Friday. For money the final quotation was  $91\frac{7}{8}$  to 92.

The market for British Railway Stocks has exhibited a much more favourable appearance, owing to the improved prospects of the money market and to the unwillingness of holders to sell. The preparations on Tuesday for the settlement on Thursday indicated a decidedly diminished supply of several kinds of stock. The principal purchases have been on provincial account. Most of the leading stocks exhibit a decided advance.

The following shows the closing prices of the principal British Railway Stocks to-day, and the result of the week's variations. The share list in detail will be found in another column:—

AMERICAN SECURITIES.

The position of the markets for American securities is noticed as follows by Messrs. D. Bell, Son, and Co.:—

The market for American securities during the past week has shown a decided improvement. The actual transactions in State and City Stocks have been more numerous at generally improved prices. There has also been a considerable demand for the best description of Railroad Bonds, more particularly for those of the New York and Erie, and Michigan Central lines.

The report of Mr. E. F. Satterthwaite, dated Wednesday evening, is as follows:—

The market for American Securities in London has been steady, with a slight tendency to advance during the past week. Yesterday, Illinois and Erie shares closed firm on the advance reported from New York of the 28th ult., by the Jura, and the intelligence of the action of the Peace Conference. To-day, the market was very buoyant, Illinois Central touching 24 dis.; and Erie, 29; but on the arrival of the Kangaroo, with advices to the 2nd inst., a sharp decline occurred, and they close at  $26\frac{1}{4}$  to  $25\frac{3}{4}$ , and 28 to  $\frac{1}{2}$ , respectively.

The London agents of the Illinois Central Railway Company on Monday received the following report:—

Office of the Illinois Central Railroad Company,
New York, February 26, 1861.

Gentlemen,—The earnings of the road for the third week of the present month amount to 79,052 dols. 80c., and show again an increase over the corresponding week of last year of 23,045 dols. 83c. The cash receipts of the Land Department from the 1st to the 26th inst. are 43,000 dols., and the sales of lands for the same same period 100,173 dols. 22c., against 18,659 dols. 53c. last year. The traffic has continued to this time active. The telegraph reports one thousand bales of cotton and three hundred hhds. sugar lading at Cairo to-day for Chicago.

Mr. Osborn advises from Chicago:—"The machinery in better condition than he expected; that notwithstanding the Illinois River had been open for ten days, the business of the road kept up, and that the reason of the Southern demand for corn running so largely on Illinois was that Ohio cannot, and does not, furnish it as cheap." He further adds, "There is no longer any doubt of a large demand for lands."

It is wonderful that the business should have been so good in the face of the thaw, which has made the roads excessively bad, and has interfered much with the transport of produce to the depots. It is of vital importance to the company to get as much land under cultivation as possible to give a large local traffic; and it is believed that the universal adaptability of the lands along the line to cultivation, and consequently the large product from the lands tributary to the roads, when so improved, will ensure a certain satisfactory result under any state of crops ever likely to occur.

Yours respectfully,

THOMAS E. WALKER,

Chairman Ex. Committee.

Messrs. Robert Benson and Co., London.

Mines.

FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 15.

THE Mining Market this week, upon the whole, has been well supported, notwithstanding the check to speculation which is involved in the state of the money market. East Basset and North Basset shares, amongst others, have advanced. There has been considerable business in East Wheal Russell.

The Mining Market to-day was quiet but steady. The late rise in North Basset shares is supported. East Basset, Bryn Gwiog, Wheal Moyle, West Bryn Gwiog, and Tincroft, were inquired for. North Wheal Busy were in considerable demand, and closed at 6, "buyers."

In Foreign mining shares there is an advance in United Mexican and a decline in St. John del Rey. Colonial descriptions are very steady.

The annual meeting of shareholders in Alt-y-crib Mine, called for Monday, was adjourned, there not being a sufficient number of shareholders to form a quorum.

MERCANTILE EMBARRASMENTS.

According to statements from Dundee, the liabilities of Mr. James Crichton, flax merchant, of Dundee and London, whose suspension was announced last week, are chiefly to London houses, and are said to be upwards of £80,000, of which, however, a large portion is covered. His nominal assets are stated to be over that amount, and some persons entertain a hope that there will be no ultimate loss. Mr. Crichton was understood recently to be possessed of considerable capital, which he has lost partly by bad debts, and partly by speculations in jute and hemp, of which his stock almost entirely consists.

A meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Banyon and Co., flax spinners, of Leeds, was held on the 7th March. The liabilities reach £52,265, while the assets are estimated at £17,071. The relatives of the partners offered to give £10,000 to allow the payment of a dividend of 10s. in the pound, but the creditors were not disposed to accept less than £15,000. The meeting was consequently adjourned for a week for further consideration.

A preliminary meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Auld and Buchanan, calico printers, was held at Glasgow on the 8th inst. The liabilities amount to about £32,000, and the assets to nearly the same sum. It was resolved to assign the estate to a committee of creditors, with instructions to realise the assets as speedily as may be done with advantage.

On the 8th inst., a meeting was held of the creditors of Mr. G. V. Blunt, of Birmingham. The liabilities are a little more than £11,000, and the assets are estimated at £3,500. The creditors offered to take 3s. 4d. in the pound if security could be given for payment, for the ascertainment of which an adjournment took place for a few days.

In the Bankruptcy Court on Wednesday there was the first sitting in the case of Messrs. Nickoll and North, tallow-brokers.

In the Bankruptcy Court on Thursday there were some further proceedings in the case of Messrs. Davis and Troughton, bankers, of Shore-ditch, and of Messrs. Walker, straw hat manufacturers.

A meeting was held yesterday (Friday) of the creditors of Mr. H. Tolkein, pianoforte-maker, &c., who recently failed. Messrs. Cooper, Brothers and Co., the accountants, estimate the liabilities at £8,335, and the net assets at £4,089. It was resolved to accept a composition of 10s. in the pound, payable in twenty-two months.

Advices from Brussels mention the stoppage of M. Leon Gauchez, whose liabilities are said to amount to as much as £100,000.

A rather important failure is also rumoured in the metal trade at Moscow.

BANK OF ENGLAND.

The half-yearly general court of the proprietors of the Bank of England was held on Thursday, at noon, in the Bank parlour. Mr. BONAMY DOBREE, the Governor, presided.

The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed,

The CHAIRMAN said—I have to acquaint the proprietors that this is one of the half-yearly general courts appointed by the charter, and that it is also one of the half-yearly courts appointed by the 12th bye-law for making dividends. The net profits for the half-year ending on the 28th of February last were £720,215, making the amount of rest on that day £3,728,710, and after providing for a dividend of 5 per cent. the rest will be £3,001,060. The court of directors, therefore, propose that a half-year's dividend on interest and profits be made payable on the 6th of April without deduction on account of Income-tax. If no proprietor has anything to say I will put the question, that this court do order the dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. accordingly.

A PROPRIETOR asked what was the amount of bullion at the present time?

The CHAIRMAN said he had not the exact figures, but the amount was upwards of £12,000,000. The amount of reserved notes was over £7,000,000.

A PROPRIETOR, who addressed the court from the further end of the room, put a question to the chairman as to the amount of rebate.

The CHAIRMAN said the rest was affected in consequence of bringing back the rebate on bills which were not yet due. That could make no difference, however, as regarded the dividend, because that rebate was not money earned. The bills were not yet due; it was capital lent out, and till it was returned they could make no use of it. It was the system of the Bank to take off the rebate at the end of the financial year. Therefore, the proprietors had the benefit of the rebate of the last six months. The rebate would be the exact rate which the Bank received for discount. (Hear, hear.)

Alderman SALOMONS, alluding to the bullion and the rest, asked why an authorised communication as to the state of the Bank could not be made to the proprietors? At present the only information was obtained through the newspapers on Saturday.

The CHAIRMAN said there was every disposition on the part of the governors to give all information to the public which could be given with propriety. Whether, however, the alderman's wish could be complied with he (the chairman) was not at the moment prepared to answer.

A PROPRIETOR complained that, looking to the fact of the Bank having twelve millions in bullion and seven millions of reserved notes, the minimum rate of interest should be so high as 8 per cent.

The CHAIRMAN said that the matter was always engaging the attention of the court, and whenever an alteration in the rate of interest could be safely made it would be done.

The motion was then agreed to, and a cordial vote of thanks to the Chairman terminated the court.

METROPOLITAN CONSUMERS' COAL COMPANY (LIMITED).

An extraordinary general meeting of this company was held at the temporary offices, 13, Gresham-street, on Thursday last, at which GEORGE POTTS, Esq., M.P., the Chairman of Directors, presided.

The advertisement convening the meeting having been read, the CHAIRMAN said that its objects were to confirm a series of special resolutions which had been prepared in the place of Articles of Association for the government of the Company, and passed at the last general meeting.

The resolutions having been read by Mr. MONCKTON, the Company's Solicitor, their confirmation was unanimously carried, and a vote of thanks to the Chairman concluded the proceedings.

CUSTOMS ACTS DUTIES—TRUMPERY LEGISLATION.—A parliamentary return has been issued showing that the dues of 1d. on goods in packages or parcels; on goods in bulk, by weight, by measure, and by number; and on animals, from the date of coming into operation (May 16, 1860) to the 31st of December last, amounted in all to £82,868 3s. 1d. The due of 1s. 6d. on shipping bills and bills of lading produced in the same period £30, 54. 5s. The total amount of duty received for dock warrant stamps sold at 3d. each, from the 3rd of April to the 31st of December, was £8,595. 8s. 9d.

BOARD OF TRADE, WHITEHALL, MARCH 12.—The Right Honourable the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade have received from the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs a copy of a despatch from her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires and Consul General at Hamburg, enclosing a copy of a Hanoverian law, abolishing, from the 1st instant, the duties previously levied on goods in transit through the Hanoverian territories, and also the export duties charged in lieu of transit duties.—Gazette.

THE BLACKBURN WEAVERS.—Great uncertainty and much anxiety prevail in Blackburn and the district respecting the dispute between the weavers and their employers. In accordance with the resolution, to which about eighty firms appended their names on Thursday week, notices were given in the various mills which these firms represented, requiring their operatives in the weaving departments to cease work in fourteen days, and these notices expire on the 15th inst. The object of this resolution was to get all the operatives to resume work; and this object has been successful in Blackburn and the out districts, with the exception of Darwen, where work has been only partially resumed. The question then comes, must Blackburn and the other districts where work has been resumed be locked out, in order that those still out at Darwen may be compelled to go in? This must be, or the masters must depart from their bond, and support the Darwen masters, whose hands are out. But this they will not do, if Blackburn and the other districts which are out must support the Darwen operatives. The masters were to meet to consider the question. One thing is certain, that trade is not such as at present to induce masters to yield much.

The Produce and other Markets.

COLONIAL PRODUCE.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 15.

In the Colonial markets transactions continue limited, and prices for several kinds of produce have still a downward tendency. The Sugar sales during the week have passed off without spirit, at quotations occasionally 6d. per cwt. cheaper for the lower sorts, heavy supplies of Mauritius being brought forward. Native Ceylon Coffee has sold at 6d. to 1s. per cwt. decline, while other descriptions, although quiet, are unaltered in value. Some orders have been executed in soft grain Rice, at the late reduction. A floating cargo of Necrancia Arracan sold upon proportionate terms. The Spice market has presented little change. Common kinds of Black Pepper have sold upon barely former terms. Saltpetre is quiet, and 6d. to 1s. 6d. per cwt. cheaper. The Tea market continues devoid of animation, yet the small public sales held have not established any material change on previous rates. No improvement is observable in the demand for Cocoa. The market for West India Rum has again become inactive. East India meets some inquiry. Sago Flour has been only saleable at lower rates. Nitrate of Soda remains neglected. Since the early part of the week a much firmer tone has prevailed in the Cotton market, and rather stiffer prices have in most instances been realised.

THE TALLOW TRADE.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 15.

The general character of the Tallow Market since the 8th instant has exhibited little change from that which we then reported. Under existing conditions there is every prospect of the month's settlements being arranged without material fluctuation in prices; but it is often at the close of the month only that the actual relative positions of the speculators are ascertained. This uncertainty has at present some influence on quotations; and those who have sales to cover (bears), have recently shown a disposition to do this at current rates, and rather more firmness has in consequence been the result; but we see no reason to alter the opinion we have before expressed—that the settlements in question will be effected without agitation. The tone of speculative operations is no doubt moderated by the great readiness of holders of tallow in general to effect sales. This, in connection with the enormous quantity of the tallow subject to the monopoly, has acted as a most wholesome check upon a scheme which we cannot but think has been carried somewhat too far beyond the limits of legitimate commercial enterprise. We are convinced that the promoters of this monopoly never once contemplated the possibility of their present situation; and although we may be somewhat impressed by the boldness of their undertaking, we can hardly forbear expressing the wish (we may say the hope) that it may not prove sufficiently profitable to encourage its repetition.

To-day the speculative market has been firmer, and Y.C. is quoted 60s. for the month; 58s. 6d. April to June; 55s. 6d. per cwt. buyers, October to December; but there is very little doing.

The Imports for the week ending the 14th have been 187 casks, deliveries 624 casks, stock 71,804 casks, showing a decrease of 437 casks.

Town Tallow has not been pressed on the market since the 8th instant, but sales have been less easily effected than in the week previous. To-day the "Letter-price" has declined 1s. 6d., making the present quotation 58s. 9d., or say 56s. 3d. per cwt. net.

A full supply of goods was offered for public sale to-day. The following are the particulars.—

Odessa.—There were 470 casks brought forward, of which about 100 casks were sold. Fine sheep, at 57s.; very fair, at 56s. 6d.; good to fine ox, bought in at 55s. to 56s. 6d. per cwt.

South American.—51 pipes and 86 boxes were offered: 33 pipes, fine quality, sold—5 pipes at 56s. 6d., rather bleached, and 57s. 6d. for the remainder. No offer made for the boxes, a good dry pure tallow, worth about 55s. to 56s.; 52s. per cwt. was accepted later in the day for 7 pipes out of 11, rather greasy.

Australian.—Holders of this tallow have lately exhibited much anxiety to dispose of their goods, and met the trade to-day on very liberal terms, a parcel of fine ox being sold at 53s. to 53s. 6d.; dark mixed qualities especially were very cheap, 49s. 9d. to 51s. being accepted. A parcel very fine sheep brought 57s. to 57s. 3d. per cwt. 506 casks offered, 247 casks sold.

North American.—54s. 6d. to 55s. per cwt. was accepted for 32 casks of good pale quality. 14 casks dry brown was taken in; no offer made.

East India.—The market is nearly cleared of this article. 52 casks only were offered at auction to-day, middling quality; all sold at 51s. per cwt.

French, Belgian, &c.—77 casks French tallow were offered. 20 casks sold of fair quality (steam melted), 52s. 6d. to 53s. 3d. 12 casks Belgian, rather interior, bought in at 54s. 6d. 2 casks of Oporto, middling, sold at 53s. 9d.

Cocoa Nut Oil.—A very good business has again been done in this article during the past week, and prices for fine qualities have been maintained. Several large parcels of Cochin and Ceylon have been taken for home use, and for export. To-day, of 450 casks offered, about 70 casks were sold. Fine Cochin at 51s.; and good Ceylon at 49s. per cwt.

Sydney is scarce, prices unchanged, say 47s. to 49s. per cwt.

Palm Oil is slow of sale, and of about 500 casks offered, 70 casks good Lagos were sold at 45s. The finest oil being brought in at 46s. per cwt., which is not easily obtained. For 46 casks of inferior, there were no bidders.

Palm Nut Oil is still scarce, but arrivals are at hand. 40s. 3d. was obtained for a cask of good quality; 39s. 3d. per cwt. for 4 casks rather dark.

South American Horse Grease has not been in much request, and prices are yielding. 200 cases and 1 cask, the whole offered, were bought in to-day at 38s. per cwt.—Furnished by Messrs. Culverwell, Brooks & Co., Brokers.

LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET.

LIVERPOOL, FRIDAY MORNING, MARCH 15.

The market has been dull this week, with limited transactions; and prices, compared with those of last Friday, exhibit no change of importance. A reduction in the value of money, which is now looked upon as probable, would most likely increase business. The bulk of the supply disposed of during the week has consisted of American (the sales yesterday being altogether so), whilst other descriptions are neglected.

[BY ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH.]

LIVERPOOL, FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 15.

The market has been firmer to-day, and very full rates have been obtained. The sales have reached 20,000 bales, including 8,000 on speculation and for exportation, while the imports amount to 7,697 bales. The sales of the week comprise 58,130 bales, of which 9,570 were taken on speculation, and 11,090 for exportation, and the imports 78,198 bales. The stock continues to increase: the aggregate is now 907,000 bales.

THE CLOSING QUOTATIONS OF FRIDAY ARE GIVEN.

The Corn Trade.

GENERAL REMARKS.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 15.

The supply of home-grown grain this week has been in most markets smaller than in the preceding se'nnight, farmers being busy in the fields. Most samples were in somewhat improved condition, owing to the drying March winds. The latest official returns of grain sold in England and Wales during the last eight days report as follows—viz.: Wheat, 64,930 qrs. at 54s. 2d.; barley, 55,845 qrs. at 31s. 11d.; oats, 15,875 qrs. at 23s. 6d. per qr.

The imports this week have been to about the same extent as in the preceding se'nnight, wheat bearing still the largest proportion, chiefly from the United States of America and the south of Europe. The quantity of barley shows an increase upon previous weeks, made up by imports out of the last large fleet from the Danube and other south-eastern ports. Of oats the imports continue small, the prevailing south-easterly winds having kept out several shipments now on the way to the United Kingdom, from Denmark and other near Northern ports. The quantity of maize imported continues small.

The British Corn Trade has revived this week from the lethargy under which it has been labouring ever since the rise in discount rate to 8 per cent. A fair demand has been experienced for consumption, speculation being kept down by the stringency in the money market. Wheat—The supply of English being small and somewhat improved in condition, all the fine parcels offering were readily taken at an advance of 1s. to 2s. per quarter over last week's rates. Foreign sorts were also held for a similar advance. The great wants of the country, the falling off in the imports, with probably no important addition from abroad to present stocks up to next June the present precarious condition of the crops in the United Kingdom, and consequently the rather unfavourable prospects of the next harvest the continental demand for grain lately experienced, all these circumstances combined to increase the confidence of the trade in the future course of prices, and to tighten the hands of holders. Flour.—Owing to large parcels still pressing on the market for immediate sale, the improvement in this article has not been in the same proportion as that in wheat, but fully last week's rates have been readily paid, and, in some instances, exceeded. Barley.—Prices have been drooping, and grinding sorts are quoted 1s. per quarter cheaper. Oats.—Notwithstanding the continuance of light imports, no improvement can be reported the expectation of fresh imports shortly from the North of Europe has kept the demand in check. Maize has been more inquired after at full rates. Beans in increased demand, at last week's prices. Peas quiet; unaltered in value.

THE WEATHER IN THE UNITED KINGDOM.—The weather has been unsettled during the last eight days, with a great deal of rain, and but little sunshine. The wind blew from the south-west early this week, but during the last few days it veered round to the north, lowering the temperature to frost at night. In the North snow has fallen. Farmers have made some progress in working the land this week, but a great deal remains to be done yet. Generally, the ground is still too wet for ploughing and sowing. The high winds during the last four weeks have carried off a large portion of vapours, but this good service rendered to the land has been almost neutralised by the quantity of rain since deposited upon it. Some frosty weather would be useful in pulverising the heavy clay soils, but if the cold were to set in with too great rigour it would injure the growing crops, the appearance of which is not in general favourably reported of. The plants are said to be mostly weak, and in many fields patchy, owing to the inferiority of the seed, part of which could never germinate. The prospects of the next harvest in the United Kingdom offer but little improvement this week, and under the most favourable circumstances henceforward it is doubtful if an average yield can be obtained.

IN MARK LANE TO-DAY the attendance of the trade was small, but the tone firm. Wheat, English and Foreign, was held firmly at fully last Monday's advance. Flour, American, unaltered at last Monday's rates—Norfolk, 38s. to 39s. per 280lb. Barley continues depressed at last Monday's reduced rates. Oats quiet, unaltered, at last Monday's prices. Beans, unaltered in value. Peas, slow sale, unaltered.

The report of the directors of the Atlantic Telegraph Company, to be submitted at the meeting on Monday next, states that the cable recovered and brought home by Captain Kell presents not the slightest symptom of injury or decay. The directors consider that the failure of the cable must be attributed to the hasty manner in which it was manufactured, to the strain brought on it by machinery, and to the repeated coilings and uncoilings it has undergone, rather than to any defect arising naturally in the gutta percha. Considering the valuable character of the privileges obtained by the company, and the probability of substantial support from the English Government at no distant period, the directors recommend that the company be continued upon its present economical footing. The actual cost of conducting its business during the past year has been only £753. It is now necessary to create a fund of about £3,000, towards which the directors have contributed £900, and solicit the balance from the shareholders.

ANNUAL POOR-RATE RETURN.—OUR LOCAL TAXATION.—The poor-rate return for England and Wales for the year ending at Lady-day last has been laid before Parliament. It is the 53rd annual publication of the poor-rate returns. The total expenditure of the year amounted to £8,075,904, but of this sum upwards of £2,000,000 (considerably more than a fourth) were expended in payments in or towards county, or borough, or police-rate, and other purposes, such as Parliamentary and municipal registration, vaccination fees, and expenses under the Registration Act, and four-fifths of all this expenditure has no connection whatever with the relief of the poor. The cost of relief to the poor and its administration was £5,454,964, or 3s. 6d. per head on the estimated population a decrease of above £100,000 from the previous year. The decrease occurred chiefly in the manufacturing districts in the North, which have been so prosperous. Medical relief cost £236,339 in the year.

EXTRAORDINARY AMOUNT OF SHIPPING AT LIVERPOOL.—At the meeting of the Mersey Docks and Harbour Board on Thursday, Mr. Lockett, the chairman of the docks and quays committee, stated that there was an unusually large quantity of shipping at present in the docks and river. There were in the Liverpool docks 508,058 tons of shipping; in the Birkenhead docks 13,678 tons; and in the river, 64,669 tons; total, 586,405 tons. Mr. Rankin (chairman of the finance committee) said that while the figures of tonnage were large the revenue was also large, being 15 per cent. greater than it ever was before at the same period of the year.

THE POPULATION OF THE UNITED STATES AND THE RETROGRADE TARIFF.—The total population of the United States is now 31,600,000. Of this total, 19,200,000 are included in the Free States, and 7,300,000 in the Border States, making an aggregate of 26,500,000 that will come under the protective and prohibitory system, and leaving only 5,100,000 who will remain our customers under the comparatively moderate old duties. Out of this number of 5,100,000 in the seven States, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Texas, 2,400,000 are slaves, the remaining 1,600,000 of slaves being distributed through the Border States. Should the expectation that the Border States will remain with the North be disappointed, the total of our customers will then be raised to 12,400,000 (including 4,000,000 slaves), or about 40 per cent. of the entire present population of America.—Times.

We learn from a return to Parliament that the amount of duty received in the year ending 31st of December last for stamps on foreign bills of exchange, under the Act 17 and 18 Victoria, cap. 83, as extended by the 23rd Victoria, cap. 15, where above £4,000, was £245,601. 14s. 9d.

A TELEGRAM from Lisbon states that, owing to the bad prospect of the grain crops from excessive rain, the Ministry contemplate introducing a measure for the permanent admission of wheat at a fixed duty of 8s. Supposing the harvest this year to be disastrous, a free importation will probably be allowed for a limited period.

A BRANCH of the Wilts and Dorset Bank has been opened at Andover, in consequence of Mr. Heath having given up banking business in that town.

THE LIVERPOOL AND LONDON FIRE AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

ESTABLISHED 1836.

EMPOWERED BY SPECIAL ACTS OF PARLIAMENT.

This Company has attained a very high position amongst the Insurance Institutions of Great Britain. Its annual Revenue exceeds £500,000; its invested Funds amount to £1,260,000.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The Premiums exceed £310,000, and place it in the first-class of Fire Offices; its liberality and promptitude in settling claims have been established in the adjustment of enormous losses; and its influence in determining rates of Premium has uniformly been given to proposals for improving the character of risks that high Premiums may be unnecessary.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

The Reserve in this Department has been increased by the addition of upwards of £58,000 in the year 1860 alone. The system of Bonuses is simple, involving no possible liability of partnership; liberal, guaranteeing a more than average amount of benefit; satisfying, because known at the date of the Insurance, and therefore free from disappointment, uncertainty, and doubt. The arrangements in other respects are intended to render the Policies of THE LIVERPOOL AND LONDON perfect securities in the hands of third parties. The Annual Premiums exceed £130,000; the Accumulated Reserve is £707,000.

ANNUITIES.

The Payments by the Company exceed £19,000 per annum. Every facility is afforded to persons purchasing Annuities to enable their receipt at such times and places as may be convenient, and the terms and rates will be found satisfactory.

PROGRESS OF THE COMPANY.

The following TABLE exhibits the gradual growth, during Twenty-five years, and present position of the Company:—

Capital £25,000, in 25,000 Shares of £1 each; 10s. thereof to be paid on application for Shares, and 10s. on the issue of the Certificates of Shares.

The Directors have succeeded in making such alterations in the terms with the Vendors of the Mine, that a saving to the Company of £4,000 is now effected, and they have consequently determined not to issue more than 20,000 Shares, without the consent of the Shareholders specially summoned.

Pending the constitution of the Share List, the Directors, on their personal responsibility, have purchased the engine (72-inch cylinder) at the Wheel Messer Mine, which is admirably suited to the requirements of Respryn, and has been obtained on very advantageous terms.

The Superintendent states that as soon as the water is drawn to below the 10 fathom level he will make returns of Ore, and trippers have offered to take pitches as soon as they are enabled to work at that point.

Prospectuses and every information may be obtained on application at the Offices, or from the Brokers, Messrs. Webb and Creach, 8, Finch-lane, and Stock Exchange, London.

Capitalists should act only on sound advice and reliable information, which can be obtained of H.Y. GOULD SHARP, Share-dealer, 32, Poultry, London, E.C. N.B. The Capitalist's Guide and Share List gratis and post free.

BRITISH AND FOREIGN INVESTMENT.

MR. THOMAS SPARGO, of Nos. 224 and 225, GRESHAM HOUSE, OLD BROAD-STREET, LONDON, E.C., TRANSACTS every description of BUSINESS in the PURCHASE and SALE of SHARES in BANKS, CANALS, RAILWAYS, BRIDGES, INSURANCES, and all other BRITISH and FOREIGN STOCK.

MR. SPARGO has FOR SALE SHARES in ENGLISH MINES paying from 20 to 25 per cent. upon the present price in bi-monthly and quarterly Dividends, as also a number of Shares in good progressive Mines, some of which he specially recommends to the public as sound investments.

MR. SPARGO GIVES ADVICE and ACCURATE INFORMATION as to the position and prospects of all mining undertakings upon application, either personally or by letter, and has published the following, from which those unacquainted with mining can enlighten themselves thereon, viz.:—Statistics and Observations upon the Mines of Devon and Cornwall, for 1859, price 2s. 6d.; ditto for 1860, 2s. 6d.; Physical, Geological, and Parish Map of Cornwall, 10s. 6d.; Geological Maps of various Mining Districts of Cornwall, showing Boundary Lines of every Mine, with the Lodes, Cross-courses, and Elvans traversing each, 2s. 6d. each; and a Relief Model Map of Cornwall, price £5. 5s.

Dividends received, Calls paid, and all orders negotiated on a Commission of 2½ per cent.

MINES, RAILWAYS, BANK, STEAMSHIP, and INSURANCE SHARES BOUGHT, SOLD, or EXCHANGED.

Capitalists who seek safe and profitable investments, free from risk, should act only upon the soundest information; the market prices of the day are for the most part governed by the immediate supply and demand, together with the operations of speculators without reference to the bona fide merits of the property.

Mines afford a wider range for profit than any other public securities, and pay dividends bi-monthly, varying from 15 to 30 per cent. per annum. Instances frequently occur of young Mines rising in value 400 to 500 per cent. The undersigned devotes special attention to the above, and affords every information to capitalists, and effects purchases or sales upon the best possible terms.

THE ORIGINAL SCHEME.

CLASS A. of the LIFE ASSOCIATION OF SCOTLAND will be CLOSED on 5th APRIL NEXT, for the 22nd Annual Balance; and a special advantage will be secured by entrants before that date.

Under this scheme the Association has been eminently successful in reducing the expense of Life Assurance.

In consequence of allocation of profits the policyholders of the 1st series have for many years been required to pay only 12s. 6d. (instead of 20s.) per £1 of their premiums, that is, £6. 5s. instead of £10. 0s. 7s. 6d. instead of £15. &c.

Under the Half-Credit System also one-half of the first six years' premiums may be left unpaid as long as the policyholder pleases.

Farther, the policies will, in most cases, be relieved on application after five years, of all conditions as to residence, occupation, &c., &c.

A Medical Officer in attendance daily at 12.30 o'clock.

Applications should be lodged on or before 5th April.

2.—FOREIGN AND COLONIAL.

MARCH 18.—News from New York to March 4 brings President Lincoln's inaugural Message. The Tariff Bill was signed on the 2nd inst., and will come into operation on the 1st of April. Lord Lyons had notified to the Washington Government that the British Government will not recognise the blockade of the Southern ports, unless such blockade be complete and effectual. Advices from Mexico state that the confiscation of church property continued; thirteen nunneries were suppressed on the 13th of February. In the New York stock market unusual excitement prevailed. Stocks, which opened without change, finally tended upwards, owing to the President's Message. Exchange 106.

A despatch dated Constantinople, March 6, says:—"The Grand Vizier has tendered his resignation; the Sultan has refused to accept it. The project for consolidating the public debts has been renewed."

A despatch dated Naples, March 15, says:—"The Council of Lieutenancy have tendered their resignation, which, it is believed, has been accepted."

A despatch dated Turin, March 17, says:—"The Official Gazette assumed today the title of Official Gazette of the Kingdom of Italy. In this day's number is published the law by which Victor Emmanuel II. assumes for himself and successors the title of 'King of Italy.'"

A despatch dated St. Petersburg, March 19, says:—"A committee has been appointed for the uniform regulation of the affairs of the serfs; it will be presided over by the Grand Duke Constantine. The Imperial manifesto has produced a good impression at St. Petersburg and Moscow."

News from New York to March 9. General Beauregard had been despatched by the Southern Government to take the command of Charleston; he had arrived at his post, and had expressed his confidence that Fort Sumter would be reduced. The collection of the revenue, and the reinforcing of Fort Sumter, had not yet engaged the attention of the Cabinet.

The speech of M. Magne, Minister of Finance, in the Corps Legislatif, is published.

MARCH 21.—Further news from New York, dated March 9. The Arms Bill had passed the Southern Congress; fifty thousand men would soon be ready to take the field. In political and commercial circles at New Orleans the general opinion was that President Lincoln's inaugural speech meant war. It was reported from Washington that the reinforcement of Fort Sumter had been decided upon, General Scott having declared his opinion that reinforcements could be easily thrown in, and with little loss of life. All the United States ships now in the Pacific and Mediterranean had been ordered home to Northern ports. All the troops now in Mexico and Texas had also been recalled.

A despatch dated Vienna, Wednesday, says:—"The news from Bosnia is of an alarming character. The whole Herzegovina is in a state of revolution, being supported by the Montenegrins. The fighting has become general."

The Mexican Secretary of Foreign Affairs has issued a manifesto (published in this day's Daily News) containing the programme according to which the now established Liberal Government intend to administer the affairs of the country.

A despatch dated Bombay, Feb. 27, says:—"Sir William Denison arrived at Madras on the 18th February. The late Mr. Wilson's currency scheme has been abandoned by Mr. Laing as unsound and dangerous. A new scheme is to be introduced. The area of the famine is widening daily."

THE DOWNWARD TENDENCY OF THE RATES OF DISCOUNT.

ON Thursday the Bank of England and the Bank of France simultaneously lowered their rates of discount. The reduction in the former instance was from 8 to 7 per cent., and in the latter from 6 to 5.

We will not dwell here upon the action taken by the Bank of France, further than to observe that it marks in an unmistakeable manner the general tendency of the money market, whilst it also denotes that the improvement lately presented in the accounts of that establishment has continued to make progress up to the present time.

It is more interesting at the moment to note the decided improvement which has latterly occurred in the position of the Bank of England. Since the 14th February, when the rate was raised from 7 to 8 per cent., the weekly variations in the coin and bullion have been as follows:—

Feb. 20	..	Increase	..	..	..	£321,924
Feb. 27	..	Increase	..	..	..	315,465
March 6	..	Decrease	..	..	..	148,938
March 13	..	Increase	..	..	..	269,359
March 20	..	Increase	..	..	..	372,283

The total of coin and bullion, which on February 14th was £11,571,332, is now £12,701,425, showing a total increase of £1,130,093.

The movement in the Reserve (notes and coin), has been still more satisfactory. The weekly variations have been as follows:—

Feb. 20	..	Increase	..	..	..	£494,004
Feb. 27	..	Increase	..	..	..	315,435
March 6	..	Increase	..	..	..	76,202
March 13	..	Increase	..	..	..	526,999
March 20	..	Increase	..	..	..	556,418

The total Reserve, which, on February 14th was £6,356,172, is now £8,325,230, showing an increase of £1,969,058.

The alteration in the "Other" Securities is strongly indicative of the check which has been given to enterprise by the high charge at the Bank. The weekly variations are shown below:—

Feb. 20	..	Decrease	..	..	..	£270,119
Feb. 27	..	Increase	..	..	..	111,681
March 6	..	Decrease	..	..	..	31,959
March 13	..	Decrease	..	..	..	516,982
March 20	..	Decrease	..	..	..	313,718

The total of "Other" Securities, which on February 14th was £20,728,396, is now £19,707,299, showing a total decrease of £1,021,097.

The tendency of the Bank accounts points beyond question to a further reduction in the rate of discount. In many quarters it is believed that the minimum will be lowered to 6 per cent. within a fortnight. The shipments of specie to America are now too small to exercise any adverse effect; gold is flowing in from the Continent irrespective of the supplies coming due from Australia; mercantile engagements are being rigidly contracted under the pressure of the times; and the general discount market will be a good deal relieved by the release of the April dividends. A low rate of money is not to be looked for; but the present high rate—7 per cent.—is not likely to be maintained long.

THE NECESSITY OF AN EARLIER PUBLICATION OF THE BANK RETURNS.

THE Bank Returns are made up on the Wednesday of each week, and are placed before the Bank Court at its usual meeting on Thursday. By the favourable or unfavourable nature of those returns the directors are supposed to be guided in raising or lowering the rate of discount.

Now there can be no reason save that of custom, why a copy of these returns should not be posted up in the Bank Hall on Thursday, after the Court breaks up. The public ought not to be obliged to wait until Saturday morning before they can ascertain the motives of the Bank of England for making alterations in the value of money—a point which affects deeply the interests of every person engaged in trade. The London Gazette, it is true, is not published before Friday evening, but it would be ridiculous to suppose that the public are to be kept in darkness for that reason. It is, besides, most unfair that the Bank directors should exclusively possess this valuable information two clear days before the public.

Moreover, the public like to judge for themselves as to the nature of the Bank Returns, for it is possible that they might sometimes arrive at a different conclusion with respect to them from that adopted by the directors of the Bank of England. On the recent occasion, for instance, when the Bank raised the rate of discount to 8 per cent., the public were made very uneasy, and a great want of confidence was occasioned, but when the Bank Returns became known, every man asked his neighbour what there was in them to induce the Bank to raise the rate of interest?

Public opinion is becoming very strong against a continuation of the Bank's monopoly, and it will become stronger if the Bank withhold information of deep importance to the public any longer than is absolutely necessary.

THE NEW TURKISH TARIFF—SOME POINTS OF INTEREST TO MERCHANTS AND BONDHOLDERS.

HOWEVER complicated and embarrassed Turkish finance may be at the present moment, we have no hesitation in saying that the new fiscal regulations, which have assumed the form of a Commercial Treaty between the Western Powers on the one hand, and Turkey on the other, will not only be highly beneficial to Turkey in a financial point of view, but tend likewise to develop her internal resources.

The Treaty is to last for twenty-eight years. This is satisfactory, as marking the opinion of the Western Powers that Turkey will at least endure for that period; but there is a clause in the Treaty which states that it is to be revised at the expiration of ten years, as experience of its working may suggest.

An uniform duty of 8 per cent. ad valorem is to be levied on all imports and exports; that on exports is to be reduced 1 per cent. per annum until only 1 per cent. is chargeable, and this will remain in force during the continuance of the Treaty. There is, however, no provision made for any reduction of the 8 per cent. duty on imports.

Goods in transitu through the Ottoman Empire are to pay 2 per cent. in lieu of 3 for the first eight years, and 1 per cent. afterwards during the period the Treaty lasts.

Tobacco and salt are excluded from the operation of the Treaty. The import of these articles is prohibited, but they may be exported duty free. Munitions of war are also prohibited.

The Treaty came into operation on the 13th inst., and is to apply to all parts of the Turkish dominions, including Syria, Tunis, Tripoli, and Egypt.

We understand that great facilities are likely to be granted by Turkey for the acquirement of land, and that great efforts will be made to encourage the growth of cotton. For the cultivation of this important article Turkey has millions of acres particularly suitable, which by liberal grants could be turned to good and profitable account, both for the cultivators and the Government, and when it is considered how soon and how easily this field may be reached, we think the subject is worthy of the attention of the Manchester capitalists.

Altogether, it appears as if a brighter day were dawning on Turkey. We trust that the Government of that country will promptly accede to the petition of the British bondholders, so that the revenues which have been hypothecated to them from the Customs of Constantinople may be collected by the bondholders' own agents, and remitted to England as fast as they are collected. This arrangement would give a great impulse to the market value of the bonds of 1858. As regards the Turkish debt of 1854, for which the tribute due from Egypt is specially pledged, we understand that the Egyptian Government has entered into an arrangement with a London mercantile firm to remit the money necessary for the payment of the interest and sinking fund for the next two years.

All interested in Turkey are looking anxiously for the time when her necessities will induce her to enter into the reforms, and especially the retrenchments, by which alone her credit can be sustained. There has never been any fault to find with Turkey as regards her commercial policy, which has always been most liberal; and hitherto all her engagements to her foreign creditors have been faithfully maintained. As to the resources of the country, they are immense: all that is required is their development, and a better system of Government. We are perfectly convinced that the financial question is by far the most vital question now pending in Turkey. This is the point upon which the Western powers ought to concentrate their efforts. Let the Turkish treasury be fairly supplied, and a new vigour would be infused into every branch of the administration. This would tend powerfully to bind together under the Sultan's rule the various provinces of this now disjointed empire, and therefore to preserve its integrity. That integrity the Governments of England and France have repeatedly declared to be necessary to the balance of power and to the repose of Europe. If Turkey be suffered to fall to pieces, half-a-dozen great Powers may half strangle each other in the attempt to gather them up.

For these reasons, it is matter of congratulation for the bondholders that the Governments of England and France—who are really the Conservative Powers as regards Turkey—have had the good sense to bring a pressure to bear upon her in the sense of fiscal improvements. Should the advantage now gained be followed up, the new commercial Treaty may form the commencement of a new era in Turkey. Our trade with that country has already reached a degree of importance which entitles it to all the fostering care of Government.

THE LAW OF THE LIMITED AND UNLIMITED LIABILITY OF SHAREHOLDERS IN BANKS AND INSURANCE COMPANIES.

We have received from a correspondent the following letter:—

"SIR,—You will oblige a constant reader of your valuable paper by answering the questions below:—

"Can banks and insurance companies be limited? Are not shareholders liable beyond the amount of their shares?

"With regard to the newly-formed marine insurance companies, I have observed that on their prospectuses first coming out the word 'limited' was used. On their reports and brass plates it is omitted.—Yours truly,

"A SHAREHOLDER."

The question propounded in this letter is one of so much general importance, and deeply interests so large a class, that it may be useful to submit a brief abstract of the state of the law on the subject. In justice to the new marine insurance companies, however, we must premise that, to the best of our knowledge, they were not originated, as our correspondent affirms, as "limited" companies. Pending further legislation on the matter, they propose to obtain for their shareholders the advantage of limited liability by another mode, as is explained below.

Acts of Parliament are seldom familiar to any persons except those connected with the legal profession, and on that account it may be of service to refer to the relative positions of shareholders in limited and unlimited companies.

The law recognises banks with limited liability, when established in accordance with the 19 and 20 Vict., cap. 47, 20 and 21 Vic., cap. 49, and 21 and 22 Vic., cap. 91. By the last mentioned Act, banks are permitted to be established under limited liability, provided they strictly conform to the first mentioned Act, all the clauses of which are made applicable to banking companies. The Joint-Stock Bank Act of 1844 contained a clause making shareholders of banks liable for the debts of the bank for three years after they may have parted with their shares. This responsibility, of course, still applies to banks founded under that Act. This clause has not been inserted, however, in the new Acts; hence it follows that all shareholders in banks, whether limited or unlimited, which may hereafter be formed under the existing laws relating to banking, are exonerated from responsibility on parting with their shares; and when a bank is formed under 21 and 22 Vict., cap. 91, the liability of the shareholders is limited to the amount of their respective subscriptions. Consequently, in the event of the failure of the bank they would only be required to make good the unpaid portion of the shares subscribed for; and, should the whole amount of such subscription, be, in the first instance paid up, all further liability then ceases. But in order to enable existing banks to be so constituted, it is necessary, previous to obtaining a certificate of registration, with limited liability, that notice of the intention to do so be given to every person and firm having an account with the bank, as well as to every shareholder. In case such notice be not given, the certificate of registration will have no effect, as between the bank and the person to whom the notice ought to have been given; and in order that the public may be fully acquainted with the condition of the bank, enrolled under the Limited Liability Act, every such bank must affix in a conspicuous place in its public office, and in every branch office, a notice containing the following information—namely, the fact that the liability of the shareholders is limited; the amount of the bank's capital, the number and amount of the shares into which the capital is divided, the amount per share paid up, and a statement of the assets and liabilities of the bank, on the 1st of January or the 1st of July in each year. By these means it is assumed by our legislators that the shareholders as well as the customers of the bank must necessarily be kept acquainted periodically with the conditions of the bank's constitution, and with the position of its affairs, and that all prospect of complaint will be obviated.

Should these regulations not be strictly complied with, the bank would be incapable of suing either at law or equity; no dividend could be paid to the shareholders; and every director or manager of the Bank would incur a penalty of five pounds for each day during which default is made. Such penalty may be recovered by any person, whether shareholder or otherwise, and may be applied by him to his own use. It is further enacted, that should the directors of any such bank declare and pay any dividend, when the bank is known by them to be insolvent, they will be jointly and severally liable to an amount equal to the dividends so paid.

If there is any force in legal machinery, these regulations are surely quite a sufficient safeguard to the shareholders, depositors, and customers of a bank, against the possibility of loss, especially when accompanied by a good class of directors.

So much for banks formed under limited liability. The shareholders of all joint-stock banks constituted under the 7th Geo. IV., cap. 46, and the 7 and 8 Vic., cap. 113, are individually, as well as collectively, "liable for all the dealings, covenants, and undertakings of the bank." Although this may be considered as one of the greatest possible safeguards to depositors, experience has of late years proved that it not only enables the directors to continue the business of a bank long after it is hopelessly insolvent, but that on its failure great and serious delays and difficulties may be experienced by the depositors, entailing upon them, in many instances, utter ruin, inasmuch as they may be kept out of their money during the whole time while the bank is undergoing the tedious process of winding up. This is instanced in the case of the failure of the Western Bank of Scotland and the Northumberland and Durham District Bank. The official liquidators of the latter, in their recent report, after giving various particulars in relation to the amount collected by them since November, 1859, state that, "from the very great disappointment they have experienced in realising the assets, they feel they ought not to attempt any prediction of the period at which the remainder may be collected." Such delay and uncertainty could not, we imagine, occur in the case of a bank constituted under limited liability, more particularly as the necessity for fixing the amount of contributions from the shareholders would not exist, the amount already clearly defined.

The liability of the shareholders in insurance companies, both for life and marine risks, is clearly defined by the 7 & 8 Vic., cap. 110. This Act has been repealed as far as it relates to all joint-stock companies, excepting insurance companies. The latter continue to be constituted under this Act, which, at section 66 specially fixes the individual liability of each shareholder for the payment of all the debts of the company. Failing the recovery under any judgment, decree or order, from the existing shareholders, then "execution may issue against the person, property and effects of any former shareholder, until the expiration of three years after he may have ceased to have been a shareholder of the company." Many life assurance companies propose to limit the liability of their shareholders by treating every policy of assurance as a special contract, and by endorsing the policy with a condition to the effect that, when it becomes a claim, the assets of the company then existing shall alone be liable for its payment, and that no director or shareholder shall be considered in any way personally responsible for the same. Whether the endorsement on the policy really secures the shareholder from liability is, we believe, a moot point in law. The prospectuses of some of the recently formed marine insurance companies set forth that they would be incorporated under the Joint-Stock Companies Acts previously referred to, and be conducted on the principle of limited liability, but it was subsequently found that this could not be done in that form. They are therefore constituted in a similar manner to life assurance associations, and they have acted upon the practice, as likewise promised to the shareholders in the prospectus, of endorsing each policy issued with a stipulation that any claim which may arise shall be met out of the subscribed capital of the company—in other words, that the shareholder shall not be liable for more than the amount of his shares.

ANALYSIS OF THE ACCOUNTS OF THE GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY COMPANY.

Few railway shareholders understand the intricate mass of figures which are periodically laid before them, and it does not enter into the design of the compilers of railway balance-sheets to assist their comprehension. We think we shall render a useful service to a large interest if we endeavour occasionally to analyse the figures submitted by some of the principal companies. We will commence with the Great Western Railway, whose accounts and statistical abstracts are probably as hard to dissect as those of any undertaking in existence. Our readers will find this a very useful and by no means uninteresting study, for it bears upon the fate of nearly four hundred millions of capital invested in the railways of this country.

The following figures place in a very striking light the intimate relation between the increase in the capital of our railways and the decrease in their dividends. They embrace a complete period of ten years in the history of the Great Western Railway, namely, from 1845 to 1855:—

June 30, 1855 .. ..	21,967,124	647,767	89,698	2	0 0

Nothing but a glance at this table is required to understand why the dividend paid by that originally splendid property, the Great Western Railway, fell within ten years from 8 to 2 per cent. per annum. The capital was:—

In 1845 .. ..	£8,231,191
In 1855 .. ..	21,967,124

Increase in capital .. .. £13,735,933

The gross six months revenue was:—

At June 30, 1846 .. ..	£496,428
„ 1855 .. ..	647,767

Increase in half-yearly revenue .. .. £151,339

This shows that the increase in revenue, though considerable, was far outstripped by the increase in the capital claiming dividend. Moreover, the additions to the latter were in great part of a preferential character, over-riding the ordinary stock. The natural consequence was a progressive decline in the sum available for dividend on the latter. The amount left for the ordinary stockholders was:—

At June 30, 1846 .. ..	£189,956	Paying at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum.
„ 1855 .. ..	89,698	2 per cent. „

Decrease .. £100,258 .. „ „ 6 per cent. „

No more instructive instance can be afforded of the way in which the unguaranteed stock may be made to suffer in the face of a growing revenue. It needs no demonstration, either, that the same system might be persevered in, if unchecked by the shareholders, until there would be nothing whatever left for the holders of ordinary stock. The next stage in the downward path would be the discovery that there was not sufficient to meet the whole of the preferential and mortgage charges. In such case some portion of that class of securities must go to the wall. This is a contingency which has actually occurred with several of our great railway companies; and the fact that the Great Western was at one time obliged to suspend the dividend altogether on the ordinary stock, combined with the statistics which we have cited above, serves to show how dangerously narrow had become the "margin" of profit available for the protection of the heavy preferential debt of this Company. It was unquestionably in the great increase in the latter form of debt that the chief error consisted. Of the £21,967,124 which formed the total capital of the Company at the 30th June, 1855, the preferential debt amounted to no less than £13,743,510 (namely, "preference share capital," £3,796,342, and "mortgage debt," £9,947,168), whilst the ordinary share capital was but £8,236,276. The mortgage debt alone in 1855 exceeded the entire amount of the capital of the undertaking in 1845. The excessive weight of the preferential, and particularly of the debenture charges is best shown by a comparison of the position of the Great Western Company in 1855 as compared with the position of railways generally in the United Kingdom. The comparison stood thus:—

	Ordinary Capital, per cent.	Preference Capital, per cent.	Mortgage Debt, per cent.
All British railways .. ..	58.03	17.26	24.71
Great Western Railway .. ..	37.47	17.28	45.25

We see at a glance by this statement how heavily the additions to the debenture debt weighed upon the ordinary capital. The credit of the undertaking was at the same time declining, as was natural, the consequence being an increase almost every year in the charge for keeping the huge mortgage debt afloat. The whole undertaking was going downhill, and until a check was applied by the aroused vigilance of the shareholders, and by the consequent introduction of reform and economy, there was no prospect before this fine enterprise but that of bankruptcy. It was this prospect which drove the price of Great Western stock down to 49. At the same time, no shrewd judge of railway finance gave way to despair, for it is unquestionable that the undertaking possesses in an eminent degree the elements of vitality and promise. It was, therefore, merely a question of what degree of misfortune would the shareholders bear before they would rise in insurrection and enforce a change of system. Clearly enough, reform would not come spontaneously from the board-room: nothing short of strong pressure by the shareholders would accomplish what was required and give the enterprise "fair play." It was universally recognised that, as the trade of the country grew, the revenue of this as of all other railways would grow likewise: let the increase in the capital and in the expenses but be checked so far as to allow the ratio of increase in the revenue to outstrip them, and the whole concern must recover. This recovery once established, it was evident to every person of sagacity that, just as the ordinary stock had suffered the most from the pressure of the preferential charges, it would benefit the most from any improvement in the Company's credit. For example: whether the surplus divisible amongst the ordinary stockholders be £5,000 or £500,000, the "preference share capital" requires only its fixed sum. In like manner, if, as the credit of the Company rises, portions of the debenture debt can be floated at 4, or even  $4\frac{1}{2}$  per cent., in lieu of 5, the saving which is effected should go to benefit the ordinary stock exclusively. It is to these considerations that the recovery in the property is owing; and upon these the shareholders must continue to base their hopes of a more satisfactory future.

We will now call attention to the more recent statistics of the Company, which must naturally possess a superior degree of interest to the proprietors. The table already given brings the figures down from the year 1845 to 1855—a period of ten years. Let us now look at their progress during the six years which have since elapsed. The subjoined table is framed in the same form:—

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

Date.	Total capital.	Total Revenue for the half-year.	Amount for dividend on un-guaranteed capital.	Dividend per cent. per annum.
Dec. 31, 1854 ...	£20,940,625 ...	£648,661 ...	£129,132 ...	£2 0 0
Dec. 31, 1856 ...	23,019,062 ...	795,353 ...	140,822 ...	3 0 0
Dec. 31, 1860 ...	23,817,629 ...	918,886 ...	157,154 ...	3 10 0

There is evidence here of a steady, though not rapid recovery in the fortunes of the Company. During the last six years the increase in the capital has been comparatively moderate, whilst the increase in the gross revenue has been more rapid than ever, and has led to an increase in the rate of dividend on the ordinary stock. The increase in the capital was:—

In the 9 years ending Dec. 31, 1854 ...	£12,709,434
In the 6 years " " 1860 ...	2,877,004

The old system of lavish outlay, of constant extensions, and of ceaseless absorption of fresh undertakings, has been happily checked.

The increase in the half-yearly gross revenue has been:—

In the 9 years ending Dec. 31, 1854 ...	£150,558
In the 6 years " " 1860 ...	270,225

Whilst the increase in the amount of capital claiming interest or dividend has been relatively far less during the last six years than it was in the previous ten, the ratio of increase in the gross revenue during the last six years has far exceeded all previous experience. This arises from the marvellous growth of trade and of traffic. Railway property, as we have frequently pointed out, stands upon a rock, because the country can hardly prosper without it prospering also. The only fear is that shareholders may be deprived of due benefit through a sudden growth of the expenses. That the old leaven is still at work in the management of the Great Western Railway is proved by the fact that, whilst the increase in the capital during the last six years has been only moderate, and the increase in the gross revenue remarkably large, the addition to the amount disposable for dividend on the unguaranteed stock has been relatively far less. Witness the following figures:—

	Gross half-yearly Revenue.	Disposable balance for unguaranteed capital.
Dec. 31, 1854 ...	£648,661	£129,132
Dec. 31, 1860 ...	918,886	157,154
Increase in the 6 months of 1860	£270,225	£28,022

We find here that the increase of £270,225 in the half-year's gross revenue allows of an increase of only £28,022 in the dividend fund for the ordinary stock. How is this? Seeing that the growth of the capital is now comparatively slow, and that with the improvement in the Company's credit a saving of considerable amount can be effected from year to year in debenture charges, what is it that stands between the ordinary stockholder and his due? True, the half-yearly dividend has been raised during the six years from 2 per cent. per annum to  $3\frac{1}{2}$  (after being temporarily suspended altogether in the interval); but the rise might have been far greater had proper economy been observed. The knowledge that, owing to the small amount of the ordinary stock in relation to the aggregate capital of the railway, a comparatively small augmentation in the nett disposable balance suffices for a large addition to the rate of dividend, is calculated to stimulate the desire of the shareholders to investigate the manner of the disposal of the large sum of £270,225, which represents the increase in the gross revenue. Had the expenses and other charges been kept down, what a splendid dividend the ordinary stockholders might even now be enjoying!

Upon these grounds it becomes very interesting to look narrowly into the expenses, as well as into the interest charges. To compare the present period with six years ago would be, it may perhaps be objected, unfair, the scope of the Company's operations being now considerably enlarged. We have, therefore, instituted a comparison between the accounts for the six months ending December 31, 1860, and those of only four years ago, viz., for the six months ending December 31, 1856. The gross earnings for the two periods were:—

December 31, 1860 ...	918,886
Increase in 1860 ...	£123,533

The balance applicable to dividend on the unguaranteed stock was:—

December 31, 1856 ...	£140,822
December 31, 1860 ...	157,154
Increase in 1860 only ...	£16,332

The outlay for maintenance of way, working expenses of all kinds, rates and taxes, salaries, parliamentary and legal, and all other current expenses, was:—

December 31, 1856 ...	£309,350
December 31, 1860 ...	365,249
Increase in 1860 ...	£55,899

We find, therefore, that nearly one-half of the increase in gross earnings has been swallowed up by the increased expenses. This ought not to be. The pruning-knife is evidently needed.

Looking further we see that the "amount paid on all loans" was:—

December 31, 1856 ...	£214,509
December 31, 1860 ...	248,617
Increase in 1860 ...	£34,108

Here is another enormous slice cut away from the increased income, leaving scarcely any advantage to the holder of the unguaranteed stock.

The sum absorbed by the interest on Great Western Preference Stock has not increased much, the conditions of this debt being of a fixed character. The amount required for the half-year was:—

December 31, 1856 ...	£104,161
December 31, 1860 ...	109,416
Increase in 1860 ...	£5,255

But the effect of the Great Western Company's entanglements with other companies is seen in the increase in the amount of the half-year's "loss on the lease of the South Wales Railway." The figures are appended:—

December 31, 1856 ...	£3,336
December 31, 1860 ...	10,697
Increase in 1860 ...	£7,361

A recapitulation of these four items shows the following as the result of the comparison between the two periods, so far as we have yet carried it:—

DEC. 31, 1860, COMPARED WITH DEC. 31, 1856.
Increase in working and other expenses ...	£55,899
Increase in loan charges ...	34,108
Increase in interest-charge on Great Western Preference Stock ...	5,255
Increased loss on South Wales Railway lease ...	7,361
Total of these four items ...	£102,623

This is the explanation why, out of a total increase of income of £123,533, only £16,332 fell to the share of the ordinary stockholder. And let it be observed that what is true in this particular comparison is due in others. The main value of our figures consists in the evidence afforded of the manner in which, each half-year, the increased revenue is frittered away.

Such points are the more worthy of attention because all experience shows, that, once let the expenses of any department swell, and they can never be reduced again. Let an employer raise the salary of his servant or clerk and try if he can ever get it down again, should his business happen to fall off. Railway expenses, as a rule, are never reduced in amount, whereas it is by no means improbable that railway traffic may occasionally, for a time, decline. The more important is it, therefore, that the holders of the unguaranteed stock, who are chiefly interested, as being the claimants of the entire balance that remains after defraying working expenses and preferential charges, should exercise permanently the utmost watchfulness.

Considering the magnitude of the Great Western debenture debt, our readers will, we think, be glad to learn how it is composed, for a great saving may be got out of this department of the Company's finance, as its credit rises. Below we compare the position of the debenture debt on the 31st Dec., 1856, with its position on the 31st Dec. last:—

		DEBENTURE DEBT.
		Dec. 31, 1856.		Dec. 31, 1860.
At 5	per Cent ..	£3,960,292	.. ..	£2,586,836
At 4 $\frac{3}{4}$	" ..	1,088,635	.. ..	239,760
At 4 $\frac{1}{2}$	" ..	2,912,321	.. ..	2,911,035
At 4 $\frac{1}{4}$	" ..	90,500	.. ..	2,108,026
At 4	" ..	1,190,260	.. ..	2,215,991
At 3 $\frac{3}{4}$	" ..	73,200	.. ..	3,800
At 3 $\frac{1}{2}$	" ..	649,407	.. ..	215,107
Total ..		£9,963,615	.. ..	£10,280,556

This statement presents several satisfactory features. In the first place, the increase in the total of the mortgage debt, which is always the least manageable department of a railway company's finance, has been only £316,941 in four years. In the second place, the shareholders will observe with pleasure the great diminution which has occurred in the amount of loans raised at the high rates of 5 and  $4\frac{3}{4}$  per cent., and their renewal upon lower terms. This fact illustrates the manner in which the fund for dividend on the ordinary stock may yet be legitimately and considerably augmented.

The broad results of our inquiry may be summarised as follows:—

1. During the ten years first mentioned, when the increase in the Great Western Railway capital was very rapid, the dividend fell from 8 to 2 per cent. per annum.

2. During the subsequent six years, when the increase in the capital has been comparatively moderate, the dividend has recovered to  $3\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. per annum, although the increase in the expenses has been far too large.

3. Consequently, if the shareholders will only bestir themselves, and establish a stricter check upon the growth of the capital account, and also enforce greater economy in the working expenses, they will infallibly in a short time make the rate of dividend rise considerably. Moreover, as the net profits increase, and as the surplus remaining to the unguaranteed stock, after payment of preferences and debentures, becomes larger, those preferences and mortgages will assuredly become more valuable, and the average rate of interest on the debenture debt will experience a proportionate decline, thus tending still further to the advantage of the ordinary stockholder.

We ask railway proprietors—Are not results of this promising kind worth striving for? Nothing but proper vigilance is required to secure them. Just as the growth of the capital account has been restrained of late years, the growth of the working and other charges may be restrained. It has always been the misfortune of the Great Western Railway that it has been a kind of royal line, owned by a rich and indulgent proprietary. A poorer body of shareholders would have done battle for their rights long ago. We are suggesting no petty savings—no injudicious economy—such as would interfere with the proper working of the line, or with the amount of accommodation which the public will insist upon obtaining. It is a really judicious thrift that is wanted—a policy which shall lead to the development of the Company's existing territory, and to the avoidance of extensions. There is, however, one undertaking in the latter category which the Board show sound judgment in supporting, and that is the Metropolitan Railway, for every one admits that nothing has interfered so much with the development of the Great Western Company's traffic as the remoteness and inaccessibility of its London terminus. It will soon virtually have a terminus in the heart of the city.

THE RED SEA AND INDIA TELEGRAPH COMPANY.

The following circular was issued yesterday (Friday) afternoon by the Red Sea and India Telegraph Company, the Bill having now passed through both Houses of Parliament. The ill-used shareholders may console themselves for the inconvenience which they experience in having their dividends still withheld from them by the reflection that, whatever flaw legal eyes may have discovered in the contract, none exists now. The ordeal of Parliamentary discussion has been gone through, and the Company's stock is solemnly pronounced on all hands to be what the shareholders expressly understood it to be before they subscribed to it—namely, an undoubted Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Government Security for forty-eight years, resting upon precisely the same basis as Consols, even should the cable never speak again. It is a palpable anomaly that such a stock, with such a rate of interest, should stand at a discount in the market, but if the credit of the Government has been made too cheap, the Government lawyers have to be thanked for it:—

Red Sea and India Telegraph Company, 62, Moorgate-street, 22nd March, 1861.

SIR, — I am instructed to inform you that the Bill introduced by the Government to remove the impediment to the payment of the dividend on the shares of this Company, has been read a third time in the House of Lords, and only awaits the Royal assent.

The directors, therefore, hope in a few days to be in a position to issue the warrants for the overdue dividend, which will be addressed to the shareholders whose names were on the register on the 31st January last, the day on which the dividend fell due.

The Select Committee of the House of Commons have thought fit to confine the Bill to the simple object of declaring that the guarantee is not contingent on the line being in working order, and have not otherwise interfered with the contract.

The Board feel it right to add that they have throughout been advised that there was no doubt of the effect of the contract on this point, but it was obviously not the policy of the Company to interfere with a proceeding which the Government considered necessary to enable them to pay the dividend.

I have the honour, &c.,

(Signed)

C. L. PEEL, Secretary.

THE CASH BALANCES IN THE INDIAN TREASURIES.

The following notification has appeared in the Calcutta Government Gazette on the subject of the cash balances. It will be observed that the amount in hand on the 31st of December, 1860, was less by £2,200,000 than at the corresponding period of 1859. In the beginning of 1860 there were, besides, large receipts from the Five-and-a-Half per Cent. Loan, then open, and considerable remittances from England, which largely increased the available balance:—

Fort William, Feb. 7, 1861.

In continuation of Notification No. 3, dated the 4th ult, the following statement of cash balances, as reported up to this date, in the Government Treasuries in India, at the close of the month of December last, contrasted with that of the previous years, is published for general information:—

Memo.—Bullion remittances from London, and subscriptions to the Five-and-a-Half per Cent. Loan were received to a large amount in 1859-60. No remittances from London have been received in 1860-61. The Five-and-a-Half per Cent. Loan was closed on the 14th of February, 1860.

By order of the Hon. the President in Council.

THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILWAY.

With reference to the annual report lately issued by the directors of the Illinois Central Railway Company, which was commented upon at considerable length in the last number of the MONEY MARKET REVIEW, we find the following in a recent circular of Mr. Satterthwaite:—

Since the date of the last annual report, the affairs of this Company have assumed a totally different aspect. The cancellation of the Free Land Bonds has relieved the Company from a large annual charge for mortgage interest, and the land notes for free land sales, which were formerly applied to the cancellation of free land bonds are now available as they are paid, for dividend on the full paid stock. These amount to the sum of 2,521,000 dols., besides which there are 148,618 acres unsold, to apply to the same fund.

The increase of net revenue, owing to the large traffic developed since last harvest, has also contributed to place the Company in a different position, and the land sales are again assuming large proportions.

We may add that, we conceive the estimate of the value of the unsold lands given by the President in his report to be perfectly warranted, and that the most sanguine expectations of the promoters and friends of this enterprise are now in a fair way of being realised.

THE ATLANTIC AND GREAT WESTERN RAILROAD.

We find in Mr. Satterthwaite's circular the following very satisfactory particulars of the progress of the Atlantic and Great Western Railroad:—
"Mr. Kennard, engineer of the Atlantic and Great Western Railroad, is now upon the line, and the work is being pushed with vigour. The road is nearly graded to the State line, and will soon be in connection with the Sunbury and Erie. By July it will be extended to Warren, and thus open a new field of profit to the Erie road. As the company has its iron on hand, and money to pay all its bills promptly, by the autumn of 1861 the track will be in use far into Ohio, to the great advantage of New York and the West."

THE AMERICAN TARIFF.

On the 2nd inst. the new Tariff Bill, recently passed by the American Congress, received the signature of Mr. Buchanan, and it is now law. The new tariff goes into effect the first day of April next, but the last section of the Bill provides that "all goods, wares, and merchandise actually on shipboard and bound to the United States, within fifteen days after the passage of this Act, and all goods, wares, and merchandise in deposit in warehouse or public store on the first day of April, eighteen hundred and sixty-one, shall be subject to pay such duties as provided by law before and at the time of the passage of this Act; and all goods in warehouse at the time this Act takes effect, on which the duties are lessened by its provisions, may be withdrawn on payment of the duties herein provided.

OTTOMAN BANK.—The following is the report to be presented at the annual meeting of shareholders in the Ottoman Bank on the 27th inst.:—

The directors beg to submit to the shareholders the accounts of the bank for the half-year ending the 31st December, 1860, duly examined and certified to by the auditors. After making the necessary deductions for expenses of management, and provision for bad and doubtful debts, these accounts show a net profit for the half-year, of £21,842. 3s. 4d. The amount brought forward from the 30th June last is £10,154. 0s. 8d. From this has to be deducted a sum of £250 subsequently subscribed to the Syrian Relief Fund, leaving £9,904. 0s. 8d., which, added to the foregoing profit, makes a total of £31,746. 4s. disposable on the present occasion. The directors recommend that the usual dividend shall be paid at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum, free of Income-tax; and that an addition of £5,000 be made to the reserve fund (raising it to £68,196. 12s. 9d.), leaving £5,836. 2s. 3d. to be carried forward to the next account. In the conduct of the business at the various branches of the bank during the past half-year, the directors have especially enjoined their managers to restrict their operations to the utmost, and they are gratified to be enabled to state that the losses by the troubles in Syria have proved much less than they could have anticipated.

BANK-NOTES UNREPRESENTED BY GOLD.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "MONEY MARKET REVIEW."

SIR,—The letter of "Anti-Monopolist," in last Saturday's MONEY MARKET REVIEW, contains a great deal of good sense. The issue of bank-notes unrepresented by gold, to use your correspondent's phrase, is unbecoming this great nation, and discreditable to our great money institution. The Bank in this differs in nothing from any other great establishment which, having lent out all its capital on mortgage, goes on trading, and contrives, by hook and by crook, to maintain before the world the character of a money-commanding concern, whilst, in reality, it fears daily that it may come to a stand-still. That we should call a sham; and the Bank is, in this respect, nothing else.

It is clear that this fictitious currency must, in times of ease, unduly increase the quantity, and reduce the interest of money, and double the pressure of evil times, the Bank having then, instead of one, two grievances—the one the wants of its ordinary customers, the other the fear of having to redeem more notes than is convenient. Now, no banker should ever feel any alarm when called upon to pay what he has promised and engaged to pay.

Nevertheless there is, for want of a general understanding of such matters, little chance of an alteration of the existing system. Of this want of understanding your correspondent "Anti-Monopolist" himself furnishes in this very letter a singular instance.

He asks, why there should not be free trade in gold as well as in silver, iron, copper, or any other metal? Surely there is no law against trading in gold exactly as in all other substances, and people constantly do it. And when he asks why the Bank should be compelled to buy all gold that is offered at £3. 17s. 9d., and sell it at £3. 17s. 10½d., he merely asks why the Bank should be compelled to make a profit of £1,600 on every million of gold it may so buy; I think nobody can object to being compelled to make a profit. He is, however, so far mistaken in his facts, that the Bank only is compelled and always very willing to buy standard gold, but for all other gold and foreign coin it bargains like other bullion dealers. And when he says the Bank is compelled to sell, he is quite mistaken. The Bank is only liable to pay its notes; and what he with myself, in fact, complains of is, that it is often unwilling to pay, and could not be compelled to do so, the Government, in case of emergency, stepping in and protecting the Bank.

When people set up for reformers they ought to be well acquainted with what they want to reform; it is exactly this half knowledge which impedes progress.—I am, sir, yours,

MERCATOR.

THE INDIAN INCOME-TAX.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "MONEY MARKET REVIEW."

SIR,—The imposition of the Income-tax on the dividends on Consols was primâ facie a breach of faith with the public creditor, as being pro tanto a repudiation of the terms on which the loans were made; but, inasmuch as the vast majority of holders were British subjects, and represented in the House of Commons, it may be conceded that this measure, being enacted by Parliament, was with the consent of the fund-holders.

As there is no representative assembly in India, the same argument fails to justify the practical partial repudiation of the liabilities of the Government upon their own notes; and therefore the tax should not have extended to that class of property. If it were urged that all dividends payable out of the revenues of India should be liable to Indian Income-tax, we should have a consistent claim, whether just or unjust, legal or illegal; but it does appear most unfair that the holders of the Five per Cents, which are payable in England from Indian resources should pay 4 per cent. Income-tax, and that others holding like securities of the same Government payable at Calcutta should be mulcted to double the amount. The confidence of native investors cannot be strengthened by such a course; and the credit of a government is often as important as an army.—I am sir, your obedient servant,

LEX.

CEYLON RAILWAY.—The directors of the Ceylon Railway Company have issued the following report:—

In transmitting to the proprietors the accompanying notice, convening the usual half-yearly meeting for the 25th inst., the directors have only to report, that immediately after the extraordinary general meeting held on the 14th February, they communicated to the Secretary of State for the Colonies the resolution of the proprietors adopted at that meeting—"That the proposition of the colony be unconditionally accepted"—expressing, at the same time, their readiness to concert measures with the Government for carrying that resolution into effect. The necessary legal arrangements are in progress for dissolving the company's contract with the Ceylon Government. As soon as they are completed (and no time will be lost on the part of the directors), the shareholders will receive back their subscriptions in full, with interest at 6 per cent. per annum to the date of payment. Under the deed of settlement, it is indispensable that this meeting should be held, but the proceedings will be merely of a formal character.

A meeting of the Belgian Eastern Junction Railway Company is called for the 28th inst., in London.

THE STATE OF TRADE.

(COMPILED FROM NUMEROUS LOCAL REPORTS.)

THE accounts received this week from Manchester are rather more cheerful. The fall in the value of money will doubtless exercise a re-assuring influence. In many of the other great centres of industry, however, much dullness continues to prevail.

At Manchester the market exhibits a general and rather marked improvement. The chief activity is in yarns. Spinners are becoming more difficult to deal with, the quotations now demanded being fully ¼d., and in some cases ¾d., per pound above those of last week. Business is, no doubt, limited by the rise in prices asked, but it is found that there is a perceptible increase of demand. There is still a very fair inquiry on the part of continental houses, but the demand for nearly all markets has augmented. Shirtings for the East are also 1½d. to 3d. per piece dearer than a week ago. Cloths generally are hardening in price, and there is greater activity and confidence, though not apparently a large amount of actual business. The apparent termination of the Blackburn trade disputes helps to give a more cheerful feeling. The following is the weekly report of Messrs. Slagg and Co.:—"Owing to the advance in cotton and the somewhat easier condition of the money market, there has been more business done during the last few days, and generally at a slight decline. But the higher prices asked have seriously checked business, as it is only in a few instances and for small quantities that they can be realised."

At Leeds the markets in both cloth-halls have been quiet. A few parcels of summer goods changed hands, but there was scarcely any sale for ordinary broadcloths. The weather is somewhat ungenial, and the active consumption of spring goods is thereby checked, which is one reason why buyers keep out of the market until the present stocks are reduced. There is not much change in prices, but they are in favour of the buyer.

At Rochdale there is no material change to report in the wool or flannel trade. The market has been very quiet, few buyers being present, and operations being restricted to little more than immediate wants. Wools are a little easier to buy, and merchants are offering lower terms for flannels, but manufacturers in general decline to enter into contracts at less than last month's rates. The news from America has tended to depress trade, as it is deemed to be indicative of a civil war in the States.

The report from Bradford, dated Thursday, states that the reduction of the Bank rate of discount has tended to produce a better feeling in the wool market, and there is more disposition to do business. There is a shade more business doing in spool yarns, and the inquiries for export continue, though the prices offered are altogether unremunerative. Spinners are working short time, and some allow their machinery to remain idle rather than produce to stock. With the exception of a few small orders for export, the market for goods is exceedingly flat. Prices are about the same as for some weeks past.

At Huddersfield there is some little improvement in the market, but this is only what might have been expected from the advance of the season. Prices are rather easier, but still very well supported under all the circumstances.

At Leicester the hosiery trade is still quiet in most departments, and there has not been much business this week. In trade generally there is far short of an average business doing. At Loughborough and other hosiery districts there is no improvement to notice, and many of the town and country workpeople are unemployed. Yarns are dull and spinners are not fully engaged.

At Nottingham the lace trade is dull. Business generally is extremely quiet. In hosiery business is also quiet, with no immediate prospect of a revival. There are many hands totally unemployed.

At Wolverhampton trade continues in a languid condition. The factors report that the orders that they are receiving are, without exception, small. All classes are complaining that business is dull. In Wolverhampton the depression has not been so much felt as in other localities; but in all the neighbouring manufacturing towns we hear of the paucity of orders and of the straits to which manufacturers are reduced to avoid discharging their workpeople. At West Bromwich, Willenhall, and Walsall, the staple trades are all dull. At Dudley, and in the neighbourhood, the chainmakers have few orders.

The Midland iron trade continues very much depressed, and the stoppage of the demand for the United States, after so lengthened a period of slack trade, will, it is feared, lead to more serious consequences.

The manufacturing trades of Birmingham and throughout the district are for the most part suffering from an amount of depression which has not been equalled at this period for several years. At a number of manufactories the workpeople are not making more than four days in the week. The orders distributed have been even smaller than hitherto, and much uneasiness prevails as to the future, the home trade generally being in an unsatisfactory state. The bad harvest last year has placed many of the farmers under obligations to their bankers, who are unwilling to extend their accommodation with a season so cold, cheerless, and ungenial as to have already given rise to apprehensions that the winter season of last year may be repeated. The farmers have in consequence been so far this year bad customers to the country ironmongers.

Had the Bank rate been lowered this week from 7 to 6 per cent., instead of from 8 to 7, the figures above given would have been held to warrant the step. The increase in the bullion and reserve, and the decrease in the private securities all point to a lower rate of discount so soon as the Bank shall have lost that immediate command of the currency which they always possess at this period of the quarter. The Bank appears, from the increase in the Government securities, to have been making advances to the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

THE MONEY MARKET.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 22.

The anticipation expressed in our last number, of an immediate fall in the value of money, has been realised. The Bank of England accounts having greatly improved, the directors, at their weekly court yesterday, after a short deliberation, reduced their minimum rate of discount from 8 per cent. (at which it was fixed on the 14th Feb.) to 7. The measure had been fully anticipated, and therefore produced little effect in any quarter. The supply of money is not by any means large, owing to the advanced period of the financial quarter, but it is generally anticipated that the release of the April dividends will be followed by increased ease, in consequence of the reduction of mercantile engagements. It will probably not be long before the Bank rate is lowered to 6 per cent.

Many persons had deferred supplying their wants in the expectation of yesterday's movement. Yesterday and to-day there has, accordingly, been a brisker demand. The rate to-day for the best 60 day bills was  $6\frac{3}{4}$  to 7 per cent. Six months' paper, however, was taken in many quarters at  $6\frac{1}{2}$ .

Almost simultaneously with the reduction in the Bank of England charge came the announcement by telegraph from Paris yesterday that the Bank of France have lowered their rate from 6 per cent. (to which it was reduced from 7 on the 14th inst.) to 5. The news was received with satisfaction, as marking still more strongly the tendency of the money market.

In the Stock Exchange there was a considerable demand for money yesterday afternoon, in consequence of some large sales of Exchequer Bills. To-day some tightness was observable in that establishment, and the rate for loans on English Government securities was 6 to 7 per cent.

£20,000 in gold was sent into the Bank this day.

The shipments of specie from this country to the United States since last Friday comprise £83,845 by the Africa (on Saturday), £2,400 by the Kangaroo, and £10,000 by the Borushia, making £4,561,000 since the end of November.

The shipments of specie to the United States by the steamer of tomorrow will probably be very limited.

The Pera, announced yesterday from Alexandria, has brought £42,873, mostly Australian gold.

The amount of specie shipped by the Massilia, which sailed on Wednesday, was £124,189, of which £105,602 was silver and £18,587 gold. The amount for Ceylon is £2,000; Madras, £28,628; Calcutta, £790; Penang, £18,240; Singapore, £1,140; Hong Kong, £25,489; and for Shanghai, £47,902.

The joint-stock banks and discount establishments have made no change in the rates allowed for loans.

Subjoined is a list of the ships known to be on the way to this country, with a total of £574,000 in gold, viz.:—

Name.	Sailed.	Days at Sea.	Gold on board. Ounces.	Value.
Monarch ...	Dec. 18	94	22,407	£90,000
Kooria Moorina ...	Jan. 1	81	10,000	40,000
Result ...	Jan. 6	76	29,335	117,000
Calliance ...	Jan. 8	74	31,513	126,000
Lightning ...	Jan. 9	73	28,844	115,000
Southampton ...	Jan. 19	63	21,544	86,000
			143,643	£574,000

It is inferred from the diminished firmness of the exchanges that the receipts of gold from the Continent will slacken.

The subjoined shows the rates of discount current in the principal Continental cities, viz.:—

	Bank Rate.	Open Market.	Bank Rate.	Open Market.
Paris ..	5 per Ct.	4 $\frac{1}{2}$ per Ct.	Amsterdam ..	3 per Ct.
Vienna..	6	6	Turin ..	7
Berlin ..	4	3 $\frac{1}{2}$	Brussels ..	4
Frankfort ..	3	1 $\frac{1}{2}$	Hamburg ..	No bank rate

THE BULLION MARKET.

With reference to the movements in bullion and in the Indian Government paper, Messrs. Pixley, Abell, and Langley, report as follows:—

GOLD.—The imports of gold this week have not been very extensive, and with the exception of £18,000 by the La Plata from the West Indies, the amounts received have been remitted from the continent. About £142,000 has been sold to the Bank since our circular of 14th instant.

SILVER.—Our market continues depressed, the demands being limited; we quote the price for the Bombay steamer of 25th instant, 5s. 0 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per ounce standard, with a downward tendency. The La Plata, from the West Indies, has brought £237,000; this will not be deliverable before to-morrow or Saturday, and when on the market, prices in all probability will be lower.

MEXICAN DOLLARS.—There are but few transactions to report in Mexican dollars; the price remains as last quoted, viz., 4s. 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per ounce.

EXCHANGE ON INDIA for Bank's drafts on Bombay and Calcutta is 1s. 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. to 2s. 0 $\frac{1}{2}$ d., sixty days' sight Madras the same.

INDIA GOVERNMENT LOAN NOTES are unaltered, and the quotations nominal; Five-and-a-Half per Cents. are 100 to 101, and Five per Cents. 94 to 95.

The report of Messrs. Haggard and Co., dated this day, observes:—

Since the date of our last, few alterations have taken place in the Bullion Market, though the tendency is still towards flatness; and a further decline of  $\frac{1}{4}$ d. is expected in the Bar Silver brought by the La Plata. Gold still continues to be taken in considerable quantities to the Bank of England. The total purchased by that establishment during the past week amounts to £136,000, while none has been withdrawn for exportation. The Silver Market is extremely depressed, and there is little demand for the Bombay Mail of the 27th. There is no inquiry at all for Mexican Dollars, and the price remains nominally the same.

THE EXCHANGES.

The Continental exchanges this week have shown a tendency to an unfavourable reaction, in consequence, no doubt, of the reduction in the rate of interest here. Bills on most of the principal Continental cities are quoted rather lower.

THE GREEK INTEREST.

A large number of Greek bills fell due to-day (Friday). They were met with a degree of punctuality which accords well with the honourable attitude maintained by this body of traders during the whole of the recent extraordinarily trying period.

FAILURE IN THE STOCK EXCHANGE.

Some sensation was caused in the Stock Exchange to-day by the failure of a well-known member, who owes about £15,000, chiefly on his I.O.U. The circumstances of the affair have excited great animadversion.

THE EGYPTIAN TRIBUTE.

It is stated that the Egyptian Government have renewed for a term of two years their arrangement with the house of Messrs. Hakim, Brothers, and Co., of Alexandria and London, for the transmission to the Bank of England of the tribute assigned in guarantee of the Turkish Loan of 1854.

ENTERPRISE IN TURKEY.

A company has been proposed at Constantinople, under the name of the "Cotton Bank of Anatolia," for developing the cotton cultivation in Asia Minor. It is said to be supported by the leading merchants of Smyrna, and to have received the patronage of the British Ambassador, Sir H. L. Bulwer, and the co-operation of the Grand Vizier.

MARINE RISKS TO AND FROM AMERICA.

The news from America stating that the United States troops have been recalled from Mexico, and the national ships of war from the Mediterranean, has produced no appreciable effect at Lloyd's on premiums. The following clause is now introduced into policies by the companies and private underwriters:—"Warranted free from all loss, claim, or damage arising from seizure, detention, or any other hostile act of the Government or people of any revolting or seceding States of the Union generally known as the United States."

FRAUDS UPON UNDERWRITERS.

Many of the underwriters at Lloyd's having from time to time suffered considerable loss by fraudulent claims being made on them by means of false accounts and otherwise, have resolved to publish in future the names of parties so offending.

VICTORIA GOVERNMENT DEBENTURES.

No more Victoria Government Debentures arrived by the last mail, but a supply is expected by the one due next month. It is uncertain, however, at what period tenders will be invited for them.

FRENCH FINANCE.

The letters from Paris (says the Times) mention a report that the Government contemplate raising £12,000,000 in Five per Cent. Bonds, with five years to run. This is partly in consequence of inability to float the ordinary Bons de Trésor at their present rates.

MEXICAN BONDS.

It is understood that Sir Charles Wyke will leave for Mexico on the 1st prox. Increased hopes appear to be generally entertained that the bondholders will ultimately obtain compensation for the 660,000 dollars of which they have been robbed. It is believed that the committee intend to convene a general meeting of the bondholders at an early period. A great desire is expressed by many holders that this step should be adopted in order that they may consult with the committee on the course of action to be adopted with regard to the new Government in Mexico. The whole position of affairs being now altered, and the prospects of the bondholders being proportionately improved, it is urged that no step should be omitted likely to strengthen the hands of the committee. It is recognised with great satisfaction that the British Government are heartily disposed to forward the cause of the creditors to the utmost of their power.

The following memorandum, from the Committee of Mexican Bondholders, was published on Tuesday:—

The Committee of Mexican Bondholders have received advices from Mr. Whitehead, dated 17th ult. He had had two interviews with the Minister of Finance relative principally to the 660,000 dols. taken on the 17th of November last, but feared that he could not hold out hopes of their immediate restoration. It appears that Government, with every wish to do so, have it not in their power. The sale of the church property cannot be made immediately productive, as the two-fifths of the price payable for it in money will only be received in forty monthly instalments, of which, moreover, the States in which the property is located will be entitled to 20 per cent. Mr. Mathew had arrived at the city of Mexico, but had not recognised the new Government yet. Captain Aldham and two other officers of H.M.S. Valorous had also arrived there. As yet nothing was decided about a conducta to Vera Cruz.

NEW GRANADA BONDS.

At the meeting of holders of New Granada Bonds, held on Wednesday, the arrangement entered into with the Government of that State was ratified. A committee of bondholders was appointed to consider the best mode of dealing with the lands assigned by the Government.

EXCHEQUER BILLS.

Under the new arrangements proposed by the Chancellor of the Exchequer with regard to Exchequer-bills, the improvement will be effected of causing them to bear interest at so much per annum instead of per diem, by which they will be assimilated to all other forms of negotiable securities. Thus, instead of 2d. per day, which yields £3. 0s. 10d. per annum, or 1½d., which yields £2. 5s. 7½d., the rates adopted in future cases will be 2½ or 3 per cent., or any other even sum that may be found necessary.

RAILWAY TRAFFIC.

The Brighton Railway traffic return shows this week an increase of £1,721; the South-Eastern, an increase of £1,200; the London and North-Western, an increase of £2,292 (owing partly to the Liverpool Races); the Great Northern, an increase of £1,162; the Great Western, an increase of £1,312; the London and South-Western, an increase of £1,996; the Eastern Counties, an increase of £273; the Midland, an increase of £493; the Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, an increase of £449; the Lancashire and Yorkshire, an increase of £1,505; and the North-Eastern, an increase of £2,031.

Accounts from the provinces state that in many parts great exertions have been made to get off goods to America, in order that they may be entered before the new tariff comes into operation. For the time, this has had a favourable effect upon railway traffic.

The Great Northern Railway Company have notified that in future their traffic returns will be published a week earlier than heretofore. Their practice will thereby be assimilated to that of the other principal railway companies.

The traffic receipts of the Great Western Railway of Canada for the week ending March 1 were £9,056 sterling, being £829 more than in the corresponding week of last year.

RAILWAYS.

A special meeting of the South-Eastern Railway Company is called for the 4th of April, to sanction a proposed agreement with the Charing-cross Railway Company for the working of that line by the South-Eastern, and to consider two Bills now pending in Parliament. One of these is to enable the South-Eastern "to raise a further sum of money, and to increase their subscription to the Charing-cross Railway Company," whilst the second authorises the Charing-cross Company "to make a line of railway from their authorised line into the City of London, with an additional line in Southwark, and to raise further moneys," &c.

An extraordinary meeting of the Brighton Railway Company is called for the 8th of April, to determine upon the consolidation of the fully paid-up preferential 4½ per cent. shares, created in January last, into stock. The transfer of the Wimbledon and Croydon Railway to this company will also be submitted for sanction.

The Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company have issued their annual report for the year 1859-60 to the Secretary of State for India in Council. It furnishes a clear and elaborate statement of the progress and position of this important undertaking.

The scrip of the Oude Railway Company is called in for examination, preparatory to the return of 5s. per share, decided upon at the recent meeting.

The Algerian railways are now quoted in the Stock Exchange official list.

BANKS.

A special meeting of the Commercial Bank was held on Tuesday, Mr. Mark Hunter in the chair, to consider the late arrangement for the transfer of the business of the bank to the London and Westminster. It appeared by the report of Mr. Jay, of the firm of Quilter and Co., accountants, that the examination of the books has necessarily occupied a considerable time, the frauds having gone on for years, and false entries having been intermixed with true, which required to be separated. The main points established, however, were that the loss cannot exceed £66,992, and that no other irregularity of the slightest description has been found to exist. The balance-sheet up to last Saturday shows that the liabilities, which on the 15th of February last were £1,052,563, have been reduced to £472,682, of which £239,404 is due to customers, and £233,278 to the London and Westminster, against which there is cash in hand, securities, value of strong room, &c., to £780,690. The manager (Mr. Cutbill) also said that all the remaining liabilities will be cleared off in two months. In the course of a long discussion a general feeling was expressed that the action of the directors had saved the proprietors much loss, trouble, and anxiety, and that the transfer of the business to the London and Westminster was the best course that could be adopted. Durden possesses some property, but it is not of any very great value, being partly mortgaged, and may probably produce about £5,000. No consideration is stipulated for the transfer of the goodwill. A resolution was carried approving the provisional arrangement with the London and Westminster. Special votes of thanks were also adopted to the directors and manager.

At the annual meeting of the Commercial Bank of Liverpool on Saturday last, the profits for the year were stated at £44,020, out of which two half-yearly dividends of 4 per cent., and a bonus of 5s. on each £20 share, has been distributed, leaving £10,018 to be carried to the reserve fund, which will then amount to £135,018. This bank has now been for more than a year under limited liability.

The official liquidators of the Northumberland and Durham District Banking Company have issued another report. As regards the anticipated receipts, they "regret to say that they have been grievously disappointed, owing to various circumstances which they could not control," and which are alluded to. The general result of the proceedings in connection with the winding up is stated as under:—The liabilities, which were stated in Nov., 1859, at £974,437, have by the payments above stated, together with the transfer of sundry debtors, been reduced to £902,011; showing a decrease in the liability to the extent of £72,426. The amount of assets taken in Nov., 1859, was £1,110,597; the amount outstanding at this date is £1,088,515. The report concludes as follows:—

From the very great disappointment that the liquidators have experienced in realising the several assets, they feel that they ought not to venture to predict the periods at which the remaining assets may be collected; but taking into consideration that the following matters may be arranged, and the funds arising therefrom made available in the autumn of the year * * * there ought, by the time before-mentioned, to be a sum of £300,000 for a dividend upon £1,800,000, upon which last amount dividends have already been paid to the extent of 10s. in the pound.

The requisition to the directors of the Bank of Turkey to return the deposit money will lie for further signature at the office of Messrs. Eykyn, Brothers, 22, Change-alley, until the 25th inst.

ASSURANCE COMPANIES.

An adjourned general court of the London Assurance Corporation will be held on Tuesday next, to determine by ballot the proposal to declare a half-yearly dividend of 40s. per share.

An extraordinary meeting of the Kent Mutual Assurance Society is called for the 27th inst., to consider a recommendation of the directors for the dissolution of the society, in accordance with an agreement entered into with the Albert and Medical Life Assurance Company.

OTHER PUBLIC COMPANIES.

The directors of the Great Ship Company have determined upon despatching the Great Eastern to New York on the 1st of May next. She will be commanded on this occasion by Captain the Hon. S. T. Carnegie, R.N., one of the directors. The engagement with Captain Hall terminated with the last voyage of the great ship, and has not been renewed.

At the annual meeting on Thursday of the Canada Company the directors' report was agreed to. It stated that the transactions of the past year have been very satisfactory, and show an increase under every head. The receipts in cash amount to £85,243 currency, being £25,004 above those collected in 1859, while the quantity of land disposed of is larger by 7,742 acres. The chairman (Mr. C. Franks) mentioned that the company's land—120,000 acres—in the vicinity of Ottawa—the seat of government, will no doubt be much enhanced in value by the influx of capital and population. He also stated that the proprietors may anticipate a handsome dividend in July next.

A meeting of the Atlantic Telegraph Company was called for Monday afternoon, but an adjournment took place, a quorum not being present.

A general meeting of the Calcutta and Burmah Steam Navigation Company is to be held on the 26th inst.

An extraordinary general meeting of the London and Provincial Discount Company (Limited) is called for the 3rd April, to alter the articles of association.

The annual meeting of the London Printing and Publishing Company is called for the 30th instant, when a dividend is to be declared.

A general meeting of the shareholders in M. Lesseps' Suez Canal scheme is called for the 15th of May, at Paris.

The settlement took place to-day (Friday) in the shares of the United Kingdom Electric Telegraph Company (Limited), which are to be quoted in the official list.

THE PARIS BOURSE.

At Paris to-day the Three per Cent. Rentes opened at 68.22, and closed at 68.15, both for money and the account, being slightly lower than yesterday, and  $\frac{1}{8}$  per cent. lower than on last Friday.

THE STOCK AND SHARE MARKETS.

Notwithstanding the fall in the value of money, the English funds have been dull. There is an ample supply of stock, partly from banking sources, and partly resulting from exchanges into the Indian Five per Cent. Stock, which continues to compete with Consols in a marked degree. The variations in the funds have been few. The closing price to-day was  $92\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{1}{4}$  for the account (April 10), being the same as yesterday, and  $\frac{1}{8}$  per cent. lower than on last Friday. For money, the last price to-day was  $91\frac{1}{2}$  to 92.

The official list of to-day's actual business in the English Funds, Exchequer Bills, and Indian Government Securities, is annexed:—

Three per Cent. Consols, for money,  $91\frac{1}{2}$ , 92,  $91\frac{3}{4}$ , 92; ditto for account (April 10),  $92\frac{1}{4}$ ,  $\frac{1}{2}$ ; India Stock, 220; ditto Five per Cent. Stock, 100 $\frac{1}{2}$ , 100; ditto for account, 100 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; ditto Four per Cent. Debentures, 1859,  $95\frac{1}{2}$ ; ditto Bonds, 30s. dis.; Five-and-a-Half per Cent. "Enfaced" Rupee Paper, 100 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Exchequer Bills, March, 7s. dis.; ditto; June, 15s. dis.

In consequence of some large sales of Exchequer Bills the price of the March issue (bearing 2d. interest) has fallen to 7s. to 2s. dis., and that of the June (bearing 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. interest) to 15s. to 10s. dis.

The scrip of the New Indian Loan closed to-day at 100 $\frac{3}{4}$  to  $\frac{5}{8}$ ; the Five per Cent. rupee paper, at 93 $\frac{3}{4}$  to 94 $\frac{1}{4}$ ; the Five-and-a-Half per Cent., at 100 to 100 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; and India Bonds, at 30s. to 20s. dis.

British Railway stocks, though comparatively flat during the last two or three days, retain considerable steadiness, bona fide holders refraining from selling. The principal exception is in Midland stock, which has fallen 1 per cent. The circumstance of this company's traffic return showing this week a diminished ratio of increase has been seized upon by speculators as a pretext for pressing sales. The traffic generally keeps up remarkably well.

The following shows the closing prices of the principal British Railway Stocks to-day, and the result of the week's variations. The share list in detail will be found in another column:—

The Turkish Bonds of 1854 have been in active demand this week, and have risen  $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent., closing at 74 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 75. The improvement in the Loan of 1858 is only about  $\frac{3}{8}$ , the final quotation being 54 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 55, ex div. The latter stock was higher at one period of the week. Mexican Bonds, after being marked 24 $\frac{1}{2}$ , have relapsed to 24 $\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{8}$ . This stock seems likely to attract a great deal of speculative attention, and many persons anticipate a considerable rise in it this year.

Business in the Stock Exchange is almost unprecedentedly dull, considering the time of year. There is scarcely any speculation going forward.

AMERICAN SECURITIES.

The position of the markets for American securities is noticed as follows by Messrs. D. Bell, Son, and Co.:—

In the market for American securities there is no particular change to notice. Business during the week has not been active, and prices remain without alteration.

The report of Mr. E. F. Satterthwaite, dated Wednesday evening, is annexed:—

The market for American securities during the past week has been without violent fluctuations. The arrival of the President's address had been looked forward to as likely to cause a marked change in prices.

The only effect so far, has been to cause a slight decline, Illinois Central closing dull at 27 discount; and Erie shares at 27 per share. State and Railroad Bonds are more inquired for, and are not freely offered.

The directors of the New York Central Railway Company have declared a half-yearly dividend of 3 per cent.

The half-yearly dividend is advertised on Pennsylvania Central Railroad Bonds.

INTEREST AND DIVIDENDS.

Messrs. Baring Brothers and Co. have advertised the dividends on the Chilean loans, as well as the particulars of the application of the sinking fund.

Messrs. Rothschild announce the dividends on Danish Three per Cents. and Brazilian Five per Cents.; Messrs. Alexander, Fletcher, and Co., those on the Brazilian Five per Cent. Loan of 1824; and Messrs. Gibbs and Sons, those on Peruvian Three per Cents.

The Dutch Rhenish Railway Company announce the payment of the interest, due the 1st prox., on their loan of 4,800,000fl.

THE NEW ITEM OF AMERICAN COMMERCE.

We have received from America specimens of the oil from the recently discovered oil-springs on the line of the Atlantic and Great Western Railway. This remarkable natural oil is perfectly clear and colourless. It will probably be found applicable to a great variety of useful purposes.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The death is announced, at Naples, of Mr. F. de P. Falconnet, who has taken a prominent part in the management of the Ottoman Bank since its establishment, and of late was local director at Constantinople.

A petition to the Stock Exchange Committee is in course of signature amongst the members, requesting that the establishment may be closed on Easter Monday, the 1st of April, the day fixed for the great volunteer review.

Mines.

FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 22.

THE Mining Market this week has been rather dull. The inquiries have been only moderate, and the amount of business below the average. In some instances prices are rather lower, but, upon the whole, a good deal of steadiness prevails.

In the market to-day there was a little more business. East Basset, East Caradon, East Wheal Russell, Wheal Union, East Carn Brea, North Downs, North Treskerby, and Wheal Moyle shares were inquired for. Stray Park, West Wheal Seton, and South Wheal Frances were flat.

The following prices are reported to us from the Stock Exchange this evening:—

Alfred Consols, 3 to  $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Cargoll,  $16\frac{1}{2}$  to  $17\frac{1}{2}$ ; East Basset, 110 to  $112\frac{1}{2}$ ; East Caradon,  $15\frac{1}{2}$  to 16; East Carn Brea,  $7\frac{1}{2}$  to 8; East Russell,  $6\frac{1}{2}$  to 7; Great Wheal Fortune, 9 to 10; Herodsfoot, 35 to 36; Hingston Down,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ ; Marke Valley,  $6\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ ; North Downs,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$ ; North Treskerby,  $27\frac{1}{2}$  to  $28\frac{1}{2}$ ; Sortridge Consols, 11s. to 12s.; Stray Park, 34 to 35; Treloweth,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  to 4; Wendron Consols, 17 to 19; West Caradon, 76 to 78; West Frances, 13 to 15; West Rose Down, 6 to 7; Wheal Buller,  $122\frac{1}{2}$  to  $127\frac{1}{2}$ ; Wheal Clifford, 175 to 185; Wheal Edward,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ ; Wheal Ludcott, 3 to  $\frac{1}{4}$ ; Wheal Mary Ann, 16 to 17; Wheal Seton, 85 to 90.

There has been an active demand for, and even at times a little speculative excitement in, United Mexican mining shares, which have risen considerably. There is also an advance in St. John del Rey. Australian mining shares are steady.

The directors of the St. John del Rey Mining Company (Limited) have received, by telegram from Lisbon, the following report, dated Morro Velho, February, 1861:—Produce for January, 38,780 oitavas; cost for ditto, £8,774; profit for ditto, £5,861; produce, ten days of February, £11,106 oitavas.

The directors of the Nerbudda Coal and Iron Company, in their first report to the shareholders, describe the prompt steps which have been adopted for the development of the company's operations in India. Mr. Blackwell (late mineral viewer to the Bombay Government), the company's managing agent in India, states, as the result of his personal investigation, that his opinion of the quality and extent of the seam of coal is fully confirmed. At the directors' suggestion, the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company have had a survey made, with a view to construct a railway connecting the company's collieries with their main line. The coal has been tried on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, and found to answer every purpose. With a view of obviating any call during the present year, the directors ask authority to issue debentures to the extent of £20,000. They state, in conclusion, that they "have reason to be perfectly satisfied with the past operations and present prospects of the company, and they believe that very large returns will be the result of the investment of capital in the undertaking."

The directors of the Devonshire Great Consolidated Copper Mining Company to-day declared a dividend of £7,168, being £7 per share, arising from profits on sale of copper ores sampled in the months of November and December last. After payment of this there remains in hand a balance of £21,926. 18s. 1d. in cash, ore-bills not at maturity, and reserved fund.

At West Basset Mine meeting on Wednesday, the accounts showed a credit balance of £3,977. 19s. 8d. A dividend of 10s. per share was declared, leaving £977. 19s. 8d. to the next account.

At a quarterly meeting of the Hawkmoor Mining Company, held this day, the accounts to the end of January showed a balance to next account of £116. 18s. 11d. The estimated liabilities to the 19th of April next rendered a call of 1s. 6d. per share necessary, which was accordingly made.

The half-yearly meeting of the Linares Lead Mining Company is called for the 28th instant, and that of the Fortuna Mining Company for the same day.

At North Roskear Mine meeting on the 12th inst., the accounts showed a debit balance of £345. 3s. 6d.

A petition for the winding-up of the Riscoa Coal and Iron Company is to be heard before the Master of the Rolls on the 23rd inst.

At Buller and Basset Mine meeting on Wednesday the accounts showed a debit balance of £812. 17s. A call of 3s. per share was made.

The Wheal Edward accounts presented at the meeting on Wednesday showed a debit balance of £389. A call of 2s. 6d. per share was made. The report was considered satisfactory.

At Wheal Hope meeting a call of 2s. 6d. per share was made.

The South Carn Brea Mine accounts presented at the meeting on the 19th inst. showed a debit balance of £2,255.

At West Wheal Trevelyan meeting on the 19th inst. the accounts showed a debit balance of £350. A call of 5s. per share was made.

At the three-monthly general meeting of shareholders in Bedford United, held on Wednesday, the accounts showed a cash balance in favour of the mine of £1,622. 2s. 7d., and an estimated balance of receipts over payments before the next meeting in June of £1,807. 15s. 2d. A dividend of 4s. per share was declared.

At a meeting of the adventurers in the Wheal Uny Mine, held on Wednesday, the accounts showed a balance against the mine of £586. 15s. 7d. It was explained that at least one-half of this loss was owing to the fall in the price of tin since the last meeting.

At St. Day United Mines meeting, on Thursday, the accounts showed a debit balance of £653. 5s.

At Great Wheal Vor meeting, on Thursday, a dividend of 5s. per share was declared.

The South Condurow Mine accounts, presented at the meeting on Thursday, showed a debit balance of £163. A call of 2s. 6d. per share was made.

At North Dolcoath Mine meeting, on Thursday, the accounts showed a debit balance of £228. A call of 3s. per share was made.

At Rosewall Hill and Ransom United Mines meeting, on the 15th inst., the accounts showed a loss of £1,357. 16s. 9d. on the nine months' working, and a balance against the undertaking of £1,824. 7s. 11d. A call of 6s. per share was made.

The following reports are from Australian mining companies:—

PORT PHILLIP AND COLONIAL.—The directors have advices from their resident director, dated Melbourne, January 25th. The quantity of quartz crushed during December was 2,230 tons, yielding 2,247 oz. gold, being an average of 1 oz. 4 grains per ton. The receipts on Clunc's account were £3,857; and the expenditure, £1,545, showing a profit of £2,312. The expenditure includes £265, payment on account of winter stock of fire-wood. The machinery was all in good working order. A remittance of £1,500 has been received by this mail.

ENGLISH AND AUSTRALIAN COPPER.—The directors have received advices from their manager, dated Adelaide, January 26th. At the works there were nine furnaces in operation. The amount of coal at the works was 4,241 tons, and of wood 5,152 tons. The make of copper and ore shipments were proceeding satisfactorily, and the company's own teams were working well.

KAPUNDA.—The directors have advices to the 25th of January from their manager in Adelaide. The crushers reported in his former letter as having occurred at the mines had not extended; the retimbering of the two shafts that had been injured was nearly completed. Most of the levels were again in a state for the miners to get to their tribute work, and it was expected that the men would shortly be able to return to the bottom level, and open up the main lode at the 60 fathoms, where everything had remained in perfect order while the men had been engaged elsewhere. On weight and assay the November ores proved to be 258 tons 11 cwt. 3 qrs. of 19-375 per cent. average produce, equal to 50 tons 1 cwt. 1 qr., pure copper, and in consequence of the interruptions the yield for December was only about 250 tons, but of very good percentage. At the public settings on the 29th of December, 42 pitches were offered, and 39 were taken at prices varying from 4s. 3d. to 10s. in the pound. Since the date of the last advices the shipments of 62 tons of copper per Westbourne had been completed, and a parcel of 14 tons had been sent by steamer to Melbourne for transshipment to England. The smelting furnaces were in full work. The refinery was under repair, but would be at work in a week.

NORTH RHINE.—The advices from the local committee are dated Adelaide, January 26. They state:—"We have taken out two mineral claims, situate in the vicinity of the Wallaroo Mines, and in a line with some newly-discovered and promising lodes. The company have been put to no expense in this matter, with the exception of £5 for each claim, paid to the Government, on the taking out of the same." Captain Barker reports, under date of January 22: "We have cut through the large lode again, the north side of the cut being 3 feet 6 inches wide, and the south side 5 feet 6 inches, composed of mundic with gray and yellow ore. The eastern crosscut is now 26 fathoms 4 feet east of Cope's engine shaft; the ground, am happy to say, is beginning to show signs of approaching the lode, having passed two spar branches this week full of mundic and yellow ore. The south end is driven 40 fathoms south of Cope's."

GREAT NORTHERN.—The advices from the local committee are dated Adelaide, January 26. They state: "We have to advise the further shipment of 48 tons of copper ore on board the Maria Johanna, from Port Augusta, which you will declare on your open policy at £30 per ton. There is now at Port Augusta about 100 tons, which we shall ship to you as may be found most desirable, direct or via the other colonies. We particularly call your attention to Mr. Finke's report No. 27, in which you will find his views in detail as to the future operations at the mine, which, now that the mine is proved of a permanent character, appears the correct course to pursue." Mr. Finke reports as follows, under date January 17: "We can now with confidence state that the mine is established. We have cut below the water in the winze 20 feet below the adit level; here the ore is 3 feet wide, solid, similar to the samples we sent down. From present appearances we shall be able to raise 2,000 tons of ore this year, and it is quite likely double the quantity may be got; in fact, we may say no mine has opened better and has shown greater results in so short a time. We have our main shaft down 14 fathoms, and we shall prosecute this our most important work with all vigour in order to open as much ore ground as possible. We have loaded six drays to-day with ore; 60 tons more are ready dressed." Captain Pascoe reports as follows, under date of January 19: "We have raised up to this time 400 tons of ore, and have sent to the port about 270 tons; we have now 60 tons cleaned ready to send away, and have about 70 tons at the surface ready to dress up. I have great pleasure to say our prospects continue to improve as we go on. The ground explored, deducting the crosscut, shows a return of three tons per fathom; such results I have nowhere else seen, and this is taken from the north side only of the lode, while the south part is yet standing throughout the mine. It is impossible to say the quantity of ore we can raise this year, but I believe we shall raise at least 2,000 tons. I shall go and examine all the other mines belonging to the company, and set the best to work as soon as possible. I have opened up one good mine, and have several others to open up, and will do it, but I must have time."

WORTHING.—The letters from the acting manager are to January 25, advising regulus, shipped per Result, 42 tons, and by the Westburn 15 tons, draughts against which had been negotiated with the South Australian Banking Company for £2,200; cost sheet for the month, £1,039; and leaving ore on hand equal to 28½ tons of copper, besides 200 tons of ore not yet weighed, and about 800 tons of stuff reserved for the crusher and dresser. The dressing machinery is at work, and will be able to dress the ore as fast as the crusher, which is a very powerful one, can supply it. The smelting operations have been going on well, producing regulus of higher character, although only one furnace had been at work, owing to the harvest. The acting manager concludes his advices by saying, "We may now state with perfect confidence that so soon as the two furnaces are at work our returns will be considerably in excess of our expenditure."

BON ACCORD.—The directors have received communications from the committee of management at Adelaide, dated the 25th of January, with reports from the mine up to the 19th of that month. The water, which came in from the 30 cross-cut east, having been effectually dammed out from engine shaft, that shaft during the month had been sunk to the 40, and the men were immediately to commence to drive, so as to prove the ground at that depth. The ground in engine shaft is described by Captain Jeffery as "favourable for sinking, splendid-looking killas with spar, and a great deal of mundic and spots of ore." The chairman of the committee of management observes: "The engine-shaft is down to the 40, and preparations are making for driving. I have long desired to commence this work. Instructions have been sent to Captain Jeffery to report upon pitwork and other means at his disposal for continuing to sink to the 50 fathoms."

DUN MOUNTAIN.—The directors have the following intelligence from their committee, dated Nelson, New Zealand, January 7:—"We have taken the first steps towards the construction of the railway. The men are clearing away the bush for a width of 15 feet along Mr. Doyne's line, from the Wairoa Saddle to the mine, and Mr. Fitzgibbon is on the ground marking out the actual line to be constructed. The specifications will then be prepared by Messrs. Fitzgibbon and Hacket, and we shall invite tenders in short lengths from parties in Nelson. The portion of the line we are engaged upon will be 3½ miles in length. Fortunately, labour is abundant and good, and, owing to the unfortunate occurrences in the northern island of New Zealand, cheap; and we hope to announce next mail that the first sod has been turned, and that from henceforward the work will go on briskly to completion. At the mine we have prepared further 400 tons of chrome ore from the main reef, which seems as large as ever, and the quantity seems to increase as we go into the rocks. Although the quantity was estimated at 10,000 tons chrome ore in sight, your mining manager, Mr. Hacket, is now of opinion that there is so much of it that the property cannot be worked out in our time." To provide funds for the increased cost of constructing Mr. Doyne's line of railway, the shareholders in London have just taken up the remaining unissued shares, so that there are ample means now in hand for all the purposes of the company."

The following is from the United Mexican Mining Association:—

Extracts of despatch from the Commissioners, dated Guanajuato, Feb. 10, 1861, received via United States:—

MINE OF JESUS MARIA, Y JOSE.—All the works of San Pantalon in the mine of Jesus Maria maintain their excellence, and as they afford more numerous points for extraction as room has been obtained for opening out new works a larger amount of ore is produced, which has averaged on the last three weeks 2,000 cargoes per week, and the sales of Hacienda ore (that extracted by day miners, and consequently wholly on the mine account), are now upwards of 5,000 dollars per week, with the probability of increase, while Buscones' sales continue about the same as last reported. The present being a favourable time as regards means, some further works of exploration are being carried on, which, together with the larger extraction, of course leads to higher memorias (weekly outlay), but the profits are handsome and increasing, and at length a time of real prosperity seems to have dawned on the company's affairs. As yet no time is fixed for the departure of a conductor, but by the first opportunity I shall send money to England. Regarding the other mines there is nothing new.

The Central American Mining Company (Limited) have received letters, dated Alotepeque, Feb. 2:—

In San Pantaleon Mine the stoping ground above Dolores level is being considerably diminished in extent; but in the deep ground, now being opened by Cornubia shaft and the San Juan level east and west, the lode is generally productive, and most promising in appearance. From San Antonio (New) Mine 10 tons of ore were raised in the month, assaying 30 ounces of silver in the ton of undressed ore. The assay may be increased by dressing to 100 ounces, and the ground already laid open may be expected to yield a considerable quantity of such ore. In San José Mine a winze is being sunk on a lode producing 1 ton of good silver lead ore per fathom. This mine, as well as San Miguel, its neighbour, and Santa Rosalia, will now be vigorously worked, some English miners engaged by the company having arrived. 60 tons of silver ore were raised in January, averaging 106 ounces in the ton. At the Hacienda de San José the arrangements were considered so far complete as to place the establishment in working order, and in the following week the barrels were to be charged for the first time. The stock of ore at the works amounted to 810 tons. 149 bags of silver ore arrived at Southampton, per La Plata packet.

At a sale of copper ore, held at Redruth on the 14th instant, 2,975 tons were sold for £17,376. 2s. Average standard, £130. 8s.; average produce, 6½; average price per ton, £5. 17s.; quantity of fine copper, 196 tons; average standard last sale, £126. 9s. ## MERCANTILE EMBARRASMENTS.

At a meeting of the creditors of Messrs. S. M. Mavrogordato and Co., Greek merchants, held at Manchester, on Monday, a balance-sheet was presented showing liabilities to the amount of £35,797, and assets £105,797, irrespective of the private estates of the partners abroad. It was resolved to agree to the proposal of the partners to pay their debts with interest at 5 per cent. per annum, at dates proposed by themselves. Should they be in a position, however, to pay any instalment before the period fixed, they will do so.

The meeting of the creditors of Mr. G. P. Zolas took place at Manchester on Tuesday. The total liabilities are estimated at £32,078, and the assets at £58,001. Mr. Zolas's offer to pay 20s. in the pound, with interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, by four equal instalments, at 6, 9, 12, and 15 months, was unanimously agreed to. Mr. Zolas will anticipate these dates of payment if circumstances permit.

The suspension is announced of Mr. Joseph Bull, ironmaster, of Ravensdale Iron Works, Newcastle under-Lyne. The amount of the liabilities is not known.

The insolvency of Mr. William Whittaker, stuff merchant, of Bradford, was lately mentioned. His case has come before the Leeds District Bankruptcy Court, but, in consequence of no balance sheet having been filed, his last examination was adjourned to the 26th of next month. The bankrupt had been a partner in a large mercantile house (Messrs. Milligan, Forbes, and Co.), which was perfectly solvent, but in his own private affairs he was deficient something like £15,000, and nobody knew how the money had been expended or where it had gone to.

At the adjourned meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Benyon and Co., flax spinners, of Leeds, it was resolved to agree to the proposal of the family to give a sum of £10,000, which will increase the assets to £27,071, against £52,265 of liabilities, thereby allowing the payment of a dividend of 10s. in the pound. The estate is to be liquidated under inspection.

A meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Beesley and Farmer, of Smethwick, was held at Birmingham, on Tuesday. The "statement" showed liabilities to the amount of £20,600; assets estimated at £8,500. A composition of 6s. in the pound, to be paid by instalments, was offered, but not accepted. The creditors asked for 7s. 6d., and to be secured. An adjournment took place to give Messrs. Beesley and Co. time to consider this proposal.

In the Bankruptcy Court, on Wednesday, a second class certificate was awarded to Mr. Bryan, of the firm of Poole and Bryan, shoe manufacturers, of New Oxford-street and Northampton, whose partner (Poole) has been sentenced to penal servitude for fraud.

In the Bankruptcy Court on Thursday an adjournment for two months was ordered in the case of Messrs. Dodge and Giandonati, india-rubber manufacturers, of St. Paul's-churchyard, whose case presents some very unsatisfactory features.

The Paris letters mention the failure of several commission houses. The liabilities are supposed to be small.

The advices from Sydney report the failure of Mr. J. Williamson, ship chandler, and of Mr. W. Willson, grazier. The liabilities in the former case were £21,799, and the assets £21,540; and in the latter the liabilities were £15,168, while the assets reached as much as £34,986.

ECONOMIC LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY.

The thirty-eighth annual meeting of this society was held on Saturday afternoon, March 16, at the offices, Bridge-street, Blackfriars, to receive the report of the receipts and disbursements of the last year. The chair was taken by ROBERT BID-
DULPH, Esq.

The Secretary, Mr. MACDONALD, read the statement; from which it appeared that the gross amount of assurance premium received during the year was £189,366, and the gross proceeds of investments £74,630. The sum of £140,611 had been paid during the year for assurance and annuity claims, and £8,934 for the purchase of policies; and there remained, after payment of commission, medical fees, income-tax, and office expenses, a balance on account of investments of £96,081.

The assurance fund, on the 31st December, 1860, consisted of—Claims accrued were:—On 128 policies, assuring 105 lives in the sum of £134,900, including bonus.

Out of the 128 policies determined by death in 1860, 109, assuring £96,618, carried £24,953 bonus.

The CHAIRMAN said, in accordance with the wish expressed at the last annual meeting, the Board now presented in print, together with the other accounts, the statistical account for the past year, which was usually given from the chair. It would, perhaps, be recollected, that at the last annual meeting, in rendering an account of what had been done during 1859, he begged the members to bear in mind that that was the year after the declaration of a bonus, which was always more prosperous than the other years of the five—that it was, in fact, an exceptional year, and must be treated as such. Experience had proved that that view was correct, although the year 1860 was an unfavourable one for life assurance, owing to profits being small, the price of provisions high, and an increased Income-tax, all of which militated against life assurance, yet it would be found on investigating the accounts, that it had on the whole been a very successful year to that office. During the past year they had issued 501 policies, assuring the sum of £374,835; and the new premiums amounted to £13,036. These policies were made up as follows: ten, of £5,000; two, of £4,000, and under £5,000; ten, of £3,000, and under £4,000; thirty-two, of £2,000, and under £3,000; ninety-seven, of £1,000, and under £2,000; 132, of £500, and under £1,000; and, 218, all under £500. The greater portion of these policies had been effected on the participating principle, which, as the members had always been told from the chair, was the most profitable mode of assurance. Moreover, almost all of them had been effected at the head office, and not at the country offices. Some of the new societies offered enormous commissions to agents, and it was not to be expected that such persons would come there for 5 per cent. when they could get 10 per cent., and even more, elsewhere. The society could not afford to pay such high rates for agency. As they had no class interests, no proprietary, and stood upon their own intrinsic merits, it was very satisfactory, he thought, to know that during the past year they had issued no less than 501 policies. On the other hand, 128 policies had during the last year been determined by death, the amount assured by these policies being £96,618, carrying bonuses to the amount of £24,953. This was less than might have been expected; it was less than the amount in the preceding year, which was a very favourable circumstance, considering that all the lives were a year older. In addition to the 128 policies which had been determined by death, 62 had been purchased by the society, 85 had lapsed, and 11 that had been taken out for fixed periods had expired. Altogether 286 had gone off the books within the year. If that number were deducted from the 501 new policies, there remained, of course, an increase of 215. That was, in few words, the effect of the business of the last year. Before speaking of the present state of affairs, he would call attention to two items which were perhaps generally not sufficiently thought of. The accounts contained an item of £8,934. 11s. paid within the year for the purchase of policies. What an immense advantage it was to persons who did not wish, or were unable, to continue their policies, that they could at once find a good market for them at the office of the society. (Hear, hear.) In such cases policies were purchased on a certain scale, regulated by the age of the assured; and he repeated, that it was a great advantage to many persons that in the cases which he had mentioned the assured could obtain a good price for their policies. Another satisfactory item was that of loans advanced on the security of policies. The society had in that way lent the sum of £74,935. 10s. If persons who were assured wanted a loan for a short period, they could by means of their policy obtain one at a very trifling expense; while, on the other hand, it was an advantage to the office to have a safe and excellent investment for such a large amount of money. Since the 1st of January the society had lent more than £4,000 on policies. Now, as regarded the present position of that office, he would remark that on the 1st of January they had 8,471 policies, assuring the sum of £6,697,572, upon which there was a bonus of £609,568, making the total liabilities £7,307,140. To meet this they had an income arising from premiums of £199,445, and an assurance fund of £1,911,505, the latter having been increased within the year by the sum of £95,809. 7s. 10d. He thought he had now shown that the last year was not, on the whole, a bad one, although not quite so good as 1859, and he would conclude by moving the adoption of the report.

Mr. ROYTH (deputy chairman) seconded the motion, which was put and carried without any previous discussion.

It was resolved that the sum of £160 be awarded to the auditors for their services during the past year.

On the motion of the CHAIRMAN, seconded by Mr. RICHARDS, the auditors were re-elected.

Dr. ILIFF moved:—"That the best thanks of the members be given to the directors for their judicious management of the institution."

Mr. W. G. LEWIS seconded the motion.

A MEMBER expressed an opinion that sufficient means were not adopted to make the great advantages which that society offered generally known; otherwise, he said, there would be a much larger number of policies effected. Many persons who wished to assure were very much influenced in their selection of an office by solicitors and agents. (Hear, hear.) He believed that if the real merits of that office were known to the public at large the number of assured would soon be greatly increased.

The CHAIRMAN said, he thought it would be found on inquiry that very few, if any, of the other offices had issued more than 500 policies within the last year. As he had before intimated, the society had no class support, and had to rely entirely on its own merits, and he must say he thought they had no cause to complain of want of success. The fact that the policies were increasing at the rate of 500 a-year was in itself one of the best advertisements they could possibly have. (Hear, hear.)

The motion of thanks having been carried unanimously,

The CHAIRMAN, in acknowledging it on behalf of himself and his colleagues in the direction, said he hoped that at the next annual meeting it would be announced that the assurance fund amounted to more than £2,000,000.

Thanks were subsequently voted to the actuary, Mr. Downes; and the secretary, Mr. Macdonald; and with this acknowledgment the proceedings terminated.

BANK OF AUSTRALASIA.

The annual meeting of the Bank of Australasia was held on Monday, March 18; Mr. T. Wingate Henderson in the chair, when the report, announcing a dividend and bonus at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, was adopted after some discussion. It was stated that, with the exception of the diminution in the profits, there has been no adverse change in the position and business of the bank, which, on the whole, are considered highly satisfactory. The chief reason for the lower earnings was the system of allowing interest on current accounts and deposits, the total paid to customers in the year ending the 15th of October, 1860, having been as much as £63,000, or equal to a 7 per cent. dividend. The directors from the commencement had strenuously opposed the introduction of this practice, and after its adoption have done all in their power to obtain its discontinuance or modification. It is satisfactory that by joint agreement the Australian banks last autumn abolished the system, and the alteration has already had an advantageous effect. The directors have turned their attention to diminishing the expenditure, which had been greatly increased in consequence of the rise in prices caused by the gold discoveries, and have made arrangements for considerable present reductions, and also for a larger saving in future. During the late period of depression the bank have suffered only trifling losses, which have been amply provided for. With reference to the progress of Australian interests other than of the mercantile community, it was mentioned that the more recent colonies are making surprising progress, and especially Queensland. A letter was read by which it appears that many persons are seriously considering the question of growing cotton in that province by means of German and Coolie labour. In answer to an inquiry it was stated that the late agreement with reference to the discontinuance of interest on deposits has been up to this time kept by all the banks, but it is reported that the future action of one establishment is doubtful. Annexed is an abstract of the report:—

"The directors submit the following abstracts of the accounts of the Bank, showing the results of the transactions for the year ending the 15th of October, 1860:—Profit and Loss Account.—Balance at the credit of profit and loss account 10th October, 1859, as per last report, £115,043. 3s. 3d.; net profit in the year to 15th October, 1860, after deduction of interest on deposits, Income-tax, &c., provision having been made for bad and doubtful debts, £104,913. 11s. 3d. Dividend among the proprietors:—At April, 1860, a dividend at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, and a bonus at the rate of 9 per cent. per annum, making together 15 per cent. per annum, or £3 per share, £67,500. At October, 1860, a dividend and bonus, at the respective rates of 6 and 6½ per cent. per annum, together 12½ per cent. per annum, or £2. 10s. per share, £56,250; balance at the credit of profit and loss account, 15th of October, 1860, £96,206. 14s. 6d.

The Produce and other Markets.

COLONIAL PRODUCE.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 22.

Greater activity has prevailed in the Produce Markets, the reduction upon the Bank rate of interest yesterday having had the effect of increasing the demand for several articles. The diminished supplies of Sugar brought forward during the first three days of the week sold steadily at full rates. To-day, the large public sales of Mauritius went with spirit at former quotations to 6d. per cwt. rise for middling to good refining and fine crystallised kinds. The Netherland Trading Company's sale yesterday went off well—70,600 baskets, and 572 bags finding buyers, brown sorts at ½ to ¾ guineers under the valuations; white at ½ above. Coffee is firmer, partly attributable to the limited quantity offering. Many floating cargoes of soft grain Rice have sold at 6d. advance, at which there still appears a disposition to operate, and considerable transactions have occurred in parcels on the spot, holders being now indisposed to sell at present rates. At the Spice sales this week few changes occurred. Cinnamon sold at 1d. per lb. decline. Nutmegs were rather cheaper. Black Pepper sold at the previous value. Saltpetre has recovered from the late depression to the extent of 6d. to 1s. per cwt. for the better sorts of Bengal. In the Tea market a firmer tone is apparent at the close. Cocoa is still without demand. In Rum a fair amount of business has been done in West-India descriptions, and prices have been more steadily maintained, while Mauritius has sold rather dearer. The large and medium qualities of Sago are still heavy of sale. Sago Flour sells very slowly at the recent decline. Tapioca is rather cheaper. A brisk demand has prevailed for Cotton during the week, and prices have improved ¼d. to ½d. per lb.

THE TALLOW TRADE.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 22.

The operations in the Tallow Market during the past week have again been limited almost entirely to the very moderate purchases made by consumers, and the supply of "sorts" is still more than adequate to these demands; and as the holders of these "sorts" continue to meet buyers on very liberal terms, 1st sort St. Petersburg Y. C. Tallow, so long regarded as the leading article in the market, is now very quietly ignored by persons having real business to transact, and its chief influence at present is limited to the natural apprehension of the result of a division in the councils of the monopolists, an event scarcely to be regarded as a very remote contingency; but one, we venture to assert, which the trade in general, and all who desire the re-establishment of a legitimate business, would hail with more satisfaction than mistrust, as seeing therein the prospect of an important branch of industry being restored to a healthy condition.

To-day the speculative business has been restricted to very small operations, and the prices quoted for 1st Y. C. are rather in favour of the buyer, viz.:—59s. ready delivery and for the month, 58s. April to June, and 55s. 6d. per cwt. October to December. There is evidently more disposition on the part of holders to sell, but the difficulty is to find buyers, in the very peculiar condition of the market.

The imports for the week ending the 21st inst., were 914 casks; deliveries 1,055 casks. Stock 71,663 casks, being a decrease of 141 casks.

Town Tallow has been in moderate request, and since our last the melters have been rather anxious to dispose of any accumulations. To-day the "Letter-price" is 58s. or 55s. 6d. per cwt. nett cash. The country melt is also improving in quantity.

There was again a rather full supply of goods for public sale to-day, prices, &c. were as follows:—

Odessa.—460 casks offered; 112 casks sold. Fine sheep, 56s. 6d. to 57s. per cwt., and good to fine mixed 55s. to 56s.; good ox, 54s. 3d. to 55s. per cwt. The moderate price of this tallow has been of great advantage to consumers, and has materially checked the demand for Y. C.

South American.—110 casks and 400 boxes were offered. The quality was chiefly firm, dry, pure tallow, but it was all withdrawn, there being scarcely a bidder. We think that about 56s. to 58s. would have been accepted, according to quality. Ordinary fine in pipes is worth about 57s. to 57s. 6d. per cwt. There is not much offering at present, but arrivals are not distant. Low qualities would be difficult of sale, at the usual relative prices.

Australian.—286 casks offered, of which 233 casks were sold. Fine ox, at 53s. to 53s. 6d. per cwt.; 24 casks rather tender at 52s. 6d.; and mixed qualities from 48s. to 49s. 3d. rather dark, to 50s. 6d. to 51s. 6d. per cwt. for fair greenish description. The remainder was sold later in the day.

There is no sheep tallow offering.

East India.—170 packages were offered; 60 hhd. of middling quality sold at 49s. 9d. per cwt. The remainder was nearly all bought in, good sound tallow at 56s. per cwt.; dark at 50s.

North American.—There were 24 casks offered, 3 casks of fair sound quality, good colour, sold at 54s. per cwt., and 15 casks rather tender, but good colour, at 53s. per cwt. 6 casks middling quality were bought in at 54s. per cwt. Fine descriptions are quoted 55s. 6d. to 56s. 6d.

French, &c.—10 casks offered, middling to fair quality: sold at 54s. to 55s. 6d. per cwt. 26 casks Belgian all bought in, fine quality at 57s. 6d. to 58s.; inferior at 54s.

Cocoa Nut Oil has been rather quiet during the week, and prices for middling qualities have shown some slight depression; but for fine descriptions (being scarce) current rates have been generally maintained. To-day 486 casks were offered at public sale, but a very few lots only found buyers. Fine Ceylon 51s.; good Ceylon 49s. per cwt. A few parcels were disposed of later in the day at these prices, and the article has a steady appearance. Eight casks of Sydney Oil, of medium quality were taken at 47s. 3d. per cwt.

Palm Oil.—500 casks were offered, but the demand continues dull, and, even with a disposition on the part of holders to accept lower rates, a very moderate portion only found buyers. Fine Lagos, 44s. 9d.; good, 43s. 6d. to 44s.; fine Whydah, 44s. 3d. per cwt. For inferior qualities there was no demand. About 130 casks were sold in all.

Palm Nut Oil.—142 casks were offered and found buyers to-day at 38s. 6d. to 38s. 9d. for good quality, and at 35s. 3d. to 36s. per cwt. for darker descriptions.

South American Horse Grease.—192 cases and 50 casks were offered; 15 pipes were sold at 38s. per cwt., the quality being good. The demand continues very languid.—Furnished by Messrs. Culverwell, Brooks & Co., Brokers.

LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET.

LIVERPOOL, FRIDAY MORNING, MARCH 22.

The intelligence received from America on Monday, combined with accounts of a large falling off in receipts and with reduced estimates, caused a very active demand for cotton here, and, with purchases to the extent of 20,000 bales, prices enhanced ¼d. to ½d. per lb. The improved position of the Manchester market has also a good effect. The market has since been very firm, with continued large purchases, and prices of American show an improvement of ¼d. to ½d. per lb., and those of Surat ¼d. to ½d., compared with the rates current on Friday last. Other descriptions present no variation of importance. Saturday, the 30th inst., will be observed as a closed holiday in this market.

[BY ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH.]

LIVERPOOL, FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 22.

The market has been very firm to-day; the sales amount to 10,000 bales, including 2,000 on speculation and for exportation, and the imports to 8,477. The sales of the week comprise 132,920 bales (against 58,130 last week), of which 26,210 bales were taken on speculation, and 26,280 for exportation; the imports are 77,266 bales. The present stock is 895,000 bales, showing a reduction of 12,000 bales from that on the 15th inst.

The Corn Trade.

GENERAL REMARKS.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 22.

The weather in the United Kingdom has been extremely changeable during the last eight days, exhibiting features characteristic of every season in the year, frost and snow being followed by heavy rainfalls, brightened up at short intervals by warm sunshine. The drying winds have contributed to liberate the ground from a large portion of moisture, and to facilitate to some extent the progress of agricultural field-work, which is this year more than ordinarily late. The time for wheat sowing has nearly passed by, and farmers are turning their attention more to barley and oats—of which a great deal more than on an average will probably be sown this year. A good crop of spring corn may, therefore, be expected, but a small one of wheat, even under the most favourable circumstances. The appearance of the autumn-sown wheat plants is far from promising. The slugs are said to have been very busy in attacking the blades. Last night there was a black frost, which will do some service in clearing the field from these unwelcome intruders.

The supply of home-grown grain shows this week a further falling off in most markets of the United Kingdom, farmers having their attention fully engaged with spring sowing. The condition of the corn appeared generally improved by the drying March winds. The latest official returns of the quantity of grain sold in England and Wales report as follows—60,411 qrs. of wheat, at 53s. 8d.—47,870 qrs. of barley, at 39s. 7d.—14,470 qrs. of oats, at 23s. 9d. per qr.

The imports of foreign grain have considerably fallen off this week, compared with preceding returns. Wheat continues at the head of the list of imports, being more than one-half of all kinds of grain imported. The quantity of barley, oats, and maize appears only moderate.

The British Corn-trade assumed early this week a firmer tone, giving evidence of an improved feeling for all fine parcels of wheat, with an advance of 1s. to 2s. per qr. over last week's rates; secondary sorts, however, continued neglected. English wheat has somewhat improved in condition, in consequence of the drying winds prevalent during the last fortnight. Flour has been in active demand for consumption, at 6d. per barrel, and 1s. per 280 lb. over last week's rates. Flour made of purely English wheat, of last year's crop, is generally so inferior that it will not keep a week without getting musty, and bakers cannot make a good loaf without a large admixture of foreign. Barley—There has been very little demand for this article, and to force sales lower prices would have had to be taken. Oats.—With a quiet trade, the tendency of prices was downwards. Maize.—Firm in price, but without much activity. Beans.—Held firmly, at last week's rates. Peas.—Quiet.

In Mark lane to-day the attendance of the trade was small, but the tone very firm. Wheat, English, was held at fully last Monday's prices. Foreign was firm, at last Monday's advances. Flour—American quiet, at last Monday's rates; Norfolk, 39s. per 280 lb. Barley—dull of sale, at last Monday's rates. Oats, quiet—barely at last Monday's prices, rather cheaper. Beans—firm in value. Peas—slow sale, but unaltered in price.

Imports of foreign grain and flour into London since Monday last:—6,150 qrs. wheat; 1,670 barley; 7,290 oats; 6,900 brls. flour; 300 sacks flour.

[BY ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH.]

LIVERPOOL, FRIDAY EVENING.

With a large attendance of country millers at this day's market, there was a good consumptive demand for wheat, at last Tuesday's extreme quotations. Flour was in fair request, at full prices. Oats—more inquiry, and held for an advance. Maize—in fair demand, and firm in price.

THE VICTORIA GOLD PRODUCTION IN 1860.—The gold produced during the year 1860 is 2,011,951 oz., against 2,205,194 last year, the difference being 193,243 oz. The persons engaged in mining are, however, fewer in number, and all other branches of industry have increased. The shipments of gold in 1859 were 2,269,049 oz.; last year they were only 2,071,826 oz.—Times' Melbourne letter.

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION, 1862.—LONDON, March 2.—We hereby certify that the aggregate of the sums, expressing the limits of the liability of the persons who have executed the deed of guarantee, for enabling the commissioners for the exhibition of 1862 to obtain advances from the Bank of England, amounts to the sum of £250,000. Granville, Chandos, Thomas Baring, C. Wentworth Dilke, Thomas Fairbairn.—Gazette.

PAPER DUTIES.—A return, issued to an order of the House of Lords, states that the number of pounds weight of paper manufactured in 1858 was 192,847,828; in 1859, 217,827,197; in 1860, 223,575,285. The gross produce in 1858 was £1,234,614, and the net receipt £1,103,754. In 1859 the gross produce was £1,414,595, and the net receipt £1,258,464. Last year the gross produce amounted to £1,482,804; and the net receipt to £1,320,105.

progressive Mines, some of which he specially recommends to the public as sound investments.

MR. SPARGO GIVES ADVICE and ACCURATE INFORMATION as to the position and prospects of all mining undertakings upon application, either personally or by letter, and has published the following, from which those unacquainted with mining can enlighten themselves thereon, viz.—Statistics and Observations upon the Mines of Devon and Cornwall, for 1859, price 2s. 6d.;

MINES, RAILWAYS, BANK, STEAM-

SHIP, and INSURANCE SHARES BOUGHT, SOLD, or

Capitalists who seek safe and profitable investments, free from risk, should act only upon the soundest information; the market prices of the day are for the most part governed by the immediate supply and demand, together with the operations of speculators without reference to the bona fide merits of the property.

Mines afford a wider range for profit than any other public securities, and pay dividends bi-monthly, varying from 15 to 30 per cent. per annum. Instances frequently occur of young Mines rising in value 400 to 500 per cent. The undersigned devotes special attention to the above, and affords every information to capitalists, and effects purchases or sales upon the best possible terms.

A despatch, dated Berne, March 28, says:—"It is stated here that the officers formerly belonging to Garibaldi's general staff, have received orders to proceed to Brescia, to take part in a conference to be held at that place on the 6th of April."

WHY GOLD HAS GONE TO NEW YORK.

FROM the official New York Custom House Returns it appears that the imports, exclusive of bullion, were, for the first eight months of the present fiscal year, 146,009,000 dols., against 160,577,118 dols. for the corresponding period of the previous year; showing a decrease of 14,568,118 dols., whilst the exports had increased 30,613,628 dols. during the same time. A comparison of the two years shows, therefore, the following results, in English money:—

Increase in Exports in 1860 over 1859	... ..	£6,120,000
Decrease in Imports	" " "	2,913,000

Total difference in favour of New York ... £9,033,000

The bulk of this difference has, no doubt, been claimable from England, but not the whole of it; and as we have already sent four millions and three quarters sterling in specie to America in four months, there is reason to hope that we are drawing near the end of the drain. The improvement in the New York Exchange, which has now advanced to 106½ to ½, corroborates this view. We confess, however, that the enactment of the New Tariff in the largest portion of the United States territory is calculated to discourage the hope of an early reflux of gold to any large amount from that country. There was an increasing prospect of a movement in this direction, but the whole tendency of the recent American legislation is to give their English trade as one-sided a character as possible.

THE ACCOUNTS OF PUBLIC COMPANIES.

No. II.

THE LONDON AND NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY COMPANY.

IN our last impression we gave, at considerable length, an analysis of the accounts of the Great Western Railway Company for a period of sixteen years. We will now endeavour to dissect, in a similar manner, the accounts of the greatest railway company in the kingdom—the London and North-Western. The inquiry will bring out a number of points of great interest, not only to the holders of the thirty-six millions of this Company's capital, but to railway proprietors generally.

The London and North-Western Railway Company, like the Great Western, has suffered greatly from the constant extension of the scope of the undertaking, and from the consequent enormous enlargement of the capital account. The following table is compiled upon a plan similar to that adopted in the case of the Great Western Company. It embraces a complete period of ten years, extending from the year 1845 to 1855:—

LONDON AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

Date.	Total Capital.	Total Revenue for the ½-year.	Amount for Dividend on Unguaranteed Capital.	Dividend per Cent. per Annum.

Dec. 31, 1851..	29,505,767	1,479,404	772,992	6 0 0
June 30, 1852..	30,148,915	1,196,071	615,206	5 10 0
Dec. 31, 1852..	30,774,299	1,366,903	625,942	5 0 0
June 30, 1853..	31,156,193	1,298,854	562,468	5 0 0
Dec. 31, 1853..	31,463,059	1,468,304	623,035	5 0 0
June 30, 1854..	32,143,878	1,409,128	593,659	5 0 0
Dec. 31, 1854..	32,774,552	1,523,945	628,802	5 0 0
June 30, 1855..	33,066,800	1,396,283	542,815	4 15 0

This table explains completely why the London and North-Western dividend fell in ten years from 10 per cent. per annum to rather less than half that amount. The sole cause was the extension of the concern and the increase in its capital. The capital was:—

In 1845	... ..	£14,122,050
In 1855	... ..	33,066,800

Increase in Capital ... .. £18,944,750

The gross six months' revenue was:—

At June 30, 1846	... ..	£1,002,270
" 30, 1855	... ..	1,396,283

Increase in half-yearly revenue ... .. £394,013

Now, it stands to reason that, when the increase in the amount of capital claiming dividend outstrips so rapidly the increase in the revenue, from which alone that dividend can be provided, the rate of distribution on the ordinary stock must decline heavily. The increase in the capital in the ten years was no less than 134 per cent., whilst the increase in the gross revenue was only 37 per cent. Moreover, a large portion of the new capital possessed a preferential claim to dividend over the unguaranteed stock. As an inevitable consequence the whole of the addition to the revenue was swept off by the holders of new preferential capital, who, furthermore, trenched to some extent upon the fund originally available for the ordinary stockholders. The latter have consequently had the mortification of finding that, whilst they have admitted fresh partners to such an extent, that there is an increase of 134 per cent. in the total capital, they (i.e., the holders of the ordinary stock), instead of deriving advantage from their spirit of enterprise, have suffered heavily, the sum divisible among them having fallen off largely. Let the figures speak for themselves. The amount left for the ordinary stockholders was:—

At June 30, 1846 ...	£710,034 ...	Paying at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum.
" 30, 1855 ...	542,815 ...	" " 4½ " "
Decrease ...	167,219	Decrease ... 5½

Railway shareholders will find it to their interest to study statistics of this kind. It was always declared that traffic would grow; and traffic did grow, as we see; but the ratio of its increase was only 37 per cent. in ten years, whereas the increase in the capital was vastly larger. All investigation shows that the growth of traffic will count for little unless a stricter supervision is exercised over the increase in the capital and current expenses. We have here a full explanation of the apparent anomaly of increasing railway revenue, and decreasing railway dividends. The business flourishes; the returns augment; and yet the original proprietors have to complain of a constant falling off in their profits. It is their own fault, for they would not be content with the splendid enterprise which they originally constructed; they must needs, under injudicious guidance, extend it ambitiously in every possible direction, and, with this object, admit fresh partners every year, possessing the right of appropriating the first fruits of the entire undertaking. It is a system which has conduced to make our railways both too costly, and each Company individually too extensive. There has been a welding of a vast number of auxiliary lines into one huge undertaking, too large for any board to manage economically. The great trunk companies have even occasionally competed insanely against each other for the possession of subsidiary lines. The whole system is, in fact, one of loss to the guarantors, though doubtless profitable to the guaranteed. Let it only be persevered in for a given number of years, and it is a matter of arithmetical certainty that, notwithstanding the satisfactory progress of traffic, nothing whatever would be left for the holders of the unguaranteed stock.

Before we go into the more recent statistics of the London and North-Western Railway Company, we will contrast the results of the ten years comparison above given with that presented by a similar comparison of the Great Western accounts.* The inquiry goes to show that the error of the two companies was the same in kind but different in degree. The Great Western was more ambitious of extension than the London and North Western, and increased its capital faster, the result being that its dividend fell faster. That this should be so is a mere matter of arithmetic. For the ten years the capital accounts of the two companies stood as follows:—

	Capital, Dec. 31, 1845.	Capital, June 30, 1855.	Increase.	Increase per cent.
Great Western ..	£8,231,191 ..	£21,967,124 ..	£13,735,933 ..	166
London & N. Westn.	14,120,250 ..	33,066,800 ..	18,944,750 ..	134

The ratio of increase in the capital, it will be seen, was much larger in the case of the Great Western, being 166 per cent., against 134 per cent. in the London and North-Western. The former possessing at the same time less financial strength than the latter, owing chiefly to the difficulty attending the management of its relatively much larger mortgage debt, the fund for dividend on Great Western ordinary stock was trenched upon even more severely than that applicable to London and North-Western ordinary stock. Hence it happened, that whilst the dividend on London and North-Western fell, between June 30, 1846, and June 30, 1855, from 10 to 4½ per cent. per annum, that on Great Western fell from 8 to 2 per cent. per annum, and was subsequently, for a time, suspended altogether. This occurred although the gross revenue of the Great Western increased within the period named almost as largely as that of the London and North-Western. It may be interesting to contrast the two companies' statistics in this point also:—

	Half-yearly Revenue, June 30, 1846.	Half-yearly Revenue, June 30, 1855.	Increase.	Increase per cent.
Great Western ..	£496,428 ..	£647,767 ..	£151,339 ..	30
London & N. Western	1,002,270 ..	1,396,233 ..	£394,013 ..	37

* See MONEY MARKET REVIEW of March 23.

The ratio of increase in the traffic is sufficiently similar to prove, when considered in conjunction with the similarity of the effect on the dividends, that the error was common to both companies, but that the Great Western speeded the faster towards the rock on which the dividend was shipwrecked.

Pursuing the plan adopted in analysing the Great Western accounts, we will now examine the more recent statistics of the London and North-Western Company. The figures already given extend from 1845 to 1855: those relating to the six years which have since elapsed are as under:—

LONDON AND NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY.
Date.	Total capital.	Total Revenue for the half-year.	Amount for dividend on unguaranteed capital.	Dividend per cent. per annum.
Dec. 31, 1854 ..	£32,774,552	£1,523,945	£628,802	5
Dec. 31, 1856 ..	33,617,534	1,740,745	687,606	5½
Dec. 31, 1860 ..	36,408,434	2,312,210	691,505	5½

This is a very striking statement. We see that the ratio of increase in the capital has become much more moderate since the shareholders have commenced practically to testify their dissatisfaction with the old system. The increase in the capital was:—

In the 9 years ending Dec. 31, 1854 ..	£18,944,750, or 154 per cent.
" 6 " " " 31, 1860 ..	3,633,882, or 11 "

The most remarkable movement, however, has been in the revenue. The increase has been all that the most sanguine shareholder could have looked for. It has been:—

In the 9 years ending Dec. 31, 1854 ..	£394,013, or 37 per cent.
" 6 " " " 31, 1860 ..	788,265, or 51 "

So enormous an addition to the revenue is almost incredible. But herein is the ground of the bitterest complaint of the ordinary stockholders. No matter how rapidly the Company's income rises, they get no benefit. Although, as already shown, the increase in the capital in the six years was limited to 11 per cent., whilst the increase in the revenue rose to no less than 51 per cent., the amount disposable for dividend on the unguaranteed stock was scarcely increased at all. We will throw the figures into juxtaposition for the sake of contrast:—

	Gross half-yearly Revenue.	Disposable balance for unguaranteed Capital.
Dec. 31, 1854 ..	£1,523,945	£628,802
" 31, 1860 ..	2,312,210	691,505
Increase in 1860 ..	£788,265	£62,703

The ordinary stockholders have scarcely participated at all in the increase of revenue. Hence it occurs that with an increase in the half-yearly revenue of £788,265, the dividend, which in 1854 was at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, has been for the last six months only 5½ per cent. per annum. When the stockholders consider what an immense effect would have been produced upon the dividend had only a fair portion of the increased profits fallen to their share, they may well be dissatisfied, and determine to probe the existing system to the very core, in order to apply a remedy. The grand question is—How does the increased revenue go? What swallows it up so that it does not reach the hands of the holders of the unguaranteed stock? These are questions which we propose to investigate in another article by analysing the outlay on revenue account for the last four years.

Before quitting the subject for the present, however, we will pursue the contrast which we have drawn between the accounts of the Great Western and London and North-Western Companies, by placing in juxtaposition the respective increase in the half-year's revenue of the two undertakings for the last six years:—

	Half-yearly Revenue, Dec. 31, 1854.	Half-yearly Revenue, Dec. 31, 1860.	Increase.	Increase per cent.
London & N. Western	1,523,945 ..	2,312,210 ..	788,265 ..	51

The ratio of increase in the London and North-Western revenue has outstripped that in the Great Western revenue, yet, whilst the Great Western dividend has risen in the six years from 2 to 3½ per cent. per annum, the London and North-Western has risen only from 5 to 5½ per cent. per annum. This comparison will serve to stimulate the desire of the shareholders for a rigid inquiry into the latter company's outlay on revenue account.

THE CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER AND THE BANK OF ENGLAND.

MR. GLADSTONE takes great delight in small savings and penny accumulations. Whether he is penny wise and pound foolish remains to be seen; but that he is looking about seeking what he may devour in the shape of small savings is evidenced by his cutting down the Bank of England some £50,000 per annum for paying the public their dividends and superintending the transfer of stock. Certainly £50,000 a-year only makes about ⅔ per cent. difference in the dividend to the proprietors of the Bank of England Stock, and as they are now receiving dividends at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, the public are not likely to compassionate them much upon the new arrangement by which they are to be allowed in future only £300 per annum for each million of the capital of the National Debt up to six hundred millions, and £150 per annum for each million of capital in excess of that sum. But Mr. Gladstone has also deprived the proprietors and their heirs, executors, and administrators for evermore of £4,000 per annum which they had received in the shape of an annuity since the days of William and Mary, and also of £1,579. 8s. 4d. for the management of a portion of the stock purchased of the South Sea Company, which they have enjoyed since the seventh year of the reign of his Most Gracious Majesty King George the First. Really we should have thought that the antiquity of the claim gave the Bank a kind of vested interest in its continuance. We marvel whom the Chancellor of the Exchequer will fall foul of next.

Seriously, however, Mr. Gladstone deserves the thanks of the public for curtailing the time during which the Bank's transfer books are closed to the public from six weeks to one month, prior to the payment of the dividend; and also for providing that the holders of stock shall receive the dividend accrued on it if they sell it within fifteen days prior to the payment of the dividend. These are certainly changes for the better, and will be received with satisfaction by the public, the more especially as the same regulations extend to India Stocks, the dividends on which are now payable at the Bank of England.

We only wish that whilst Mr. Gladstone was in a reforming mood he had insisted on the Bank Returns, which are made up on Wednesday, being posted on Thursday in the Bank Hall after the usual meeting of the directors on that day. This, however, is a reform which we trust will yet be initiated by the Bank itself. If the only objection is that the Gazette does not come out until Friday night—and we really cannot see any other objection—the commercial public will readily subscribe the cost of a "supplement" in order that they may obtain this very needful information before it is two days old.

THE NEW INDIAN CURRENCY BILL.

SINCE the arrival of Mr. Laing in India considerable modifications have been made in the project of a new currency for that country, suggested by the late Mr. Wilson. The leading features of Mr. Wilson's plan were the division of India into circles, and through the agency of an independent body of Commissioners there were to be issued within those circles a paper circulation of notes varying from 10s. to £100, based on a reserve, partly of specie, and partly of securities in a proportion which might fluctuate from time to time. It was, however, in no case to fall below that of one-third of specie to two-thirds of securities. When this measure was promulgated in England it did not meet with general approbation. The principle of issuing notes ad libitum against a fluctuating reserve of securities was condemned, and, in our opinion, very properly, as inapplicable to a country like India, which is peculiarly liable to the influence of panics. A currency based on so large a proportion of securities would probably have entailed on the Government of India the greatest inconvenience, for it is pretty certain that whenever a panic occurred these notes would be presented for payment at the precise time when the securities on which they were based were most unsaleable.

The Government of India have, therefore, acted prudently in condemning Mr. Wilson's project. The one proposed to be substituted for it is framed on the following basis, viz.:—The issue of notes against securities is to be limited to four millions sterling: beyond that sum the issues are to be based solely on coin and bullion. All notes so issued are to be a legal tender. Our readers are aware that silver is the currency of India, and the legal tender there. An attempt, however, is to be made to introduce a gold currency, to the extent of one-fourth of such part of the circulation of India as is represented by actual coin or bullion: the rate of gold as against silver is to be fixed by the Government from time to time, and not altered without six months' notice. As regards the motive which has induced the introduction of this double currency, it is explained, that if a certain fixed minimum value be thus given to gold, and it can be freely taken at the Government treasuries at this rate, the superior convenience of gold, and its adaptation to native wants, may give it a higher value; and thus in course of time an auxiliary gold currency may be introduced. It is further very candidly stated that should these expectations not be realised, this portion of the plan "will simply fall to the ground."

The notes that are to be circulated are not to be under 20 rupees, or £2, whereas the late Mr. Wilson proposed to issue them for as low a sum as 5 rupees, or 10s. The reason assigned for not issuing notes of a lower value than £2 is that, should gold come into general circulation, the use of small notes would be, in a great measure, superseded by a medium which, from its intrinsic value and power of uniform circulation, must be admitted to possess advantages over any form of small note currency. If, however, the price of gold is to be altered from time to time by the Government, notes might be preferred.

It is not so clearly stated by what means this new currency is to be put into circulation, but we presume it is by means of the existing Banks of Bengal, Madras, and Bombay, which are already authorised to issue notes to the amount of five millions sterling, with a reserve of one-fourth of their total liabilities in specie. The Committee who drew up the Report say they have thought it right "that the mercantile community should have an assurance that the present amount of authorised issue should not be curtailed, as might practically be the case if a lower limit than four millions were adopted." Consequently, we assume that the present issues of the Banks will be withdrawn, and they will issue in lieu the four millions of Government notes. This measure is intended as a kind of imitation of the Bank Charter Act of 1844. It does for gold in India what the Act of 1844 does for silver in England, viz.—it allows a power of issuing up to one-fourth part of that portion of the circulation which is represented by actual silver coin or bullion as against gold coin or bullion. It also allows a fixed paper issue for India of four millions, unrepresented by bullion, whereas the Bank of England is allowed to issue £14,000,000 unrepresented by bullion, although payable in gold on demand.

We cannot say that we agree with our contemporary the Times, in its high-flown declaration, that the Bank Charter Act of 1844 "is a solid step onward in the progress of the human race," because, unfortunately, or, as some will have it, fortunately, whenever the restrictive clauses of that Act have to be put in full operation it has to be suspended. When we are about to establish a currency for India, why should we not make it as sound as possible? The Times admits that if for every note issued by the Government there were laid by in bullion an amount equal to the value of the note, a perfect currency would be attained. Why, then, should we not have a perfect currency in India if we cannot have it in England? What we object to most in the present proposal is, that it is neither one thing nor another: it will not please the bullionists—nor the advocates of a paper currency—nor the sticklers for a single standard—nor those who advocate unlimited issues on bona fide securities. It will leave the question of a perfect currency as unsettled as ever, for the whole scheme is of a composite character. However, as no perfect system of currency is at present in existence, we must console ourselves with the reflection that if the present measure does no good it can do but little harm. Mr. Wilson's plan for issuing notes against one-third in bullion was very unsafe for a country like India, where the entire population may at any time be driven by a false alarm to seek to change their notes for gold. The present scheme is much safer, because the maximum of notes to be issued unrepresented by gold is limited to four millions. The Times chuckles at the idea of the Government being able to borrow four millions of money in this form, without paying interest for it. We confess we do not like disguised loans. When a Government borrows, let it do so as openly as possible. Neither can we admit that the saving of the interest upon four millions of money ought to be allowed to have any weight in considering the important question of the establishment of a sound currency for our vast Eastern empire.

HOW IS CAPITAL TO BE PROVIDED FOR THE DEVELOPMENT OF INDIA?

IN our impression of the 16th inst. attention was drawn to a proposal for raising from an hitherto unaccustomed source the capital required for Indian railways and works of irrigation—a form of enterprise which is admitted on every side to be indispensable to the development of India. The proposal is, that the Government of India should sell the land of which it stands possessed, or commute the land-tax, taking in payment either cash, Indian Government securities, or the shares and debentures of the railways which it has guaranteed.

It is most desirable that the Indian Council should, without delay, consider the practicability of this proposal, for it is one that does and will find favour with many. People can at least understand it. It seems so reasonable a plan on which to base the redemption of the Indian Debt and the development of Indian resources that some very good reason must be given why it cannot be carried into operation. India requires development. Railways and works of irrigation cannot possibly be dispensed with. Cotton must be properly and extensively cultivated, and speedy means must be provided to bring it to the nearest port for shipment, whether by railways or by water transit. But how are these works to be constructed? It is evident that for the present the British public hold as much of Indian Railway Stock, Government Stock and Debentures as is convenient. When we consider that they hold, in addition to Government Stock and Debentures, Railway Stock and Debentures to the extent of £39,716,300, on which (as shown in our impression of the 16th inst.), they have actually paid £33,799,055, we are inclined to think that for some time at least they will not be able to increase their stake in Indian railways to the extent and with the promptitude that India requires. This being the case, from what source is the capital required for the completion of the present lines, and for the construction of new ones, to be derived?

We confess we see but one really available source, and that is that the Indian Government should, whenever an eligible opportunity offers, sell a portion of the land which now produces a revenue of £18,502,400 per annum. India, then, and not England, would produce the capital required for her development. The question is—Can it be done? We see no difficulty if the Government enters warmly into the proposal. We see every difficulty if it does not. Let the question then be taken up in a candid spirit by the Indian Council. There are men sitting around that Board, who, from their experience and talents, are at once able to deal authoritatively with the question. A Commission should, we think, in the first place be formed in India, to report on the plan, and on the best means of carrying into operation the commutation of land. It should also be required to devise the most simple, inexpensive, and expeditious mode of selling the land, of giving a title, and of generally facilitating the transfer of land. Assuming that the plan could be carried into operation, we need not dwell upon the effect which it would have on Indian credit, or on the impetus which it would give to the investment of capital in Indian Stock and Railway Securities. It is the more important that the plan should be considered without delay, because there is a possibility of Indian railway works being slackened for want of funds; and it is difficult to imagine that any greater misfortune could befall India than this. With regard to this part of the subject we may refer to the Table published on the 16th inst., relating to Indian railways. By that account there was an aggregate sum of £1,498,152 standing to their credit, from which was to be deducted £322,248 on account of advances made by the Government to some of the companies. This account was made up to the end of February; but since that time we understand that the amount standing to the credit of the various companies has diminished, partly by the expenditure of some lines, and partly by advances to others, by no less a sum than £500,000, so that the companies have now little more than half a million at their credit in the hands of the Government. Those who know how rapidly capital is absorbed in the construction of railways will not be surprised at this rapid diminution. If it goes on at this rate, in a couple of months the whole of the balances standing at the credit of the railway companies will have been absorbed. It is true that by making calls a sum of £3,170,875 can yet be drawn from the shareholders, but this is only half-a-year's expenditure. The companies have also power to raise about £3,000,000 more by means of Five per Cent. Debentures bearing the Indian Government guarantee—and assuming that an easier money market will allow these debentures to be issued, which is not by any means certain—still the sum altogether is not more than sufficient for one year's expenditure. And then it is certain that the Indian railway system will not be by any means completed for this sum. The expenditure will go on yet for many years, and ought to do so, for there cannot possibly be a more reproductive investment. We have already got to the point at which the Government guarantee on the railway capital no longer suffices to draw in money with the requisite degree of rapidity, and at which, therefore, the Government itself has been obliged to raise a direct loan, by way of supplement to the payments from the railway companies. Upon every ground, then, what a relief would the proposal we are discussing give to all parties if it could be put in operation.

It is universally believed that the hoarded wealth of India is something enormous, but, for some reason or other, it remains hoarded. Probably nothing will bring it forth but selling the natives' land. If so, what folly it is not to do so. The revenue derived from land goes now to pay the interest of the debt of India and of the railway capital guaranteed. What difference could it make to the Government if it sold the land and extinguished the debt to which the revenue derived from the land is now applied? The capital represented by the land amounts, at twenty-five years' purchase, to the enormous sum of £462,000,000, whereas the aggregate of the Indian debt and railways together does not amount to more than £143,000,000. It is fair to presume that, if sufficient land were sold to pay off this debt, and for the promotion of works of reproduction the land that would be left would be so improved by railways and works of irrigation that it would be worth as much as the whole now is. The whole trade of India would at the same time be vastly extended, and would bear a much larger amount of taxation. We are aware of the immense plunge which is involved in the proposal compared with the time when no European was allowed even to reside in India without a license, and when the holding land at all in India was entirely an optional matter with the Government. But times are changed. The East India Company has transferred all its rights and privileges to the Imperial Government, and, consequently, although India has to meet her own expenditure, still the Imperial Government practically holds the fee-simple of the land. We put it to the Imperial Government whether it would not be more judicious to sell the land it holds than to have to guarantee any loans that may be required for India, in the event of the Indian Government not being able to raise the sums needed for the completion of public works on moderate terms? Moreover, it may be questioned whether it would be prudent to transfer so much of the capital of England to India when we may require that capital at home.

There is one more consideration. Supposing, for the sake of argument, that a native outbreak in India were to result in throwing off our sway, of what use would the land then be to us? But had it been sold, and the debt redeemed, Indian capital derived from the sale of land would have been applied to the redemption of Indian debt and Indian railways; and although we might be deprived of dominion we should not be deprived of dominion and capital both.

The subject, no doubt, is surrounded with difficulties, but it is the express function of the Government to overcome difficulties, and if bad laws and customs exist to supersede them by good ones. We cannot admit as a reason against the plan the objection, that if the land of India were sold to rich natives, they would oppress the ryots. If so, let a law be passed for the protection of the latter. But can the condition of the ryots be much more pitiable than it is now? These ryots, or cultivators of the land, are in many parts so poor that they are obliged to borrow money wherewith to buy their seed at a high interest by giving a species of mortgage over the ensuing crop. Their only object is to get subsistence—to be able to exist in the same obscurity as their forefathers. If they succeed in this they are satisfied. The extent of land occupied by each ryot in Bengal is commonly about six acres, and rarely amounts to twenty-four. It is obvious that the withdrawal of half the produce raised on such patches (which goes to the Government) can leave their occupiers nothing more than a hard subsistence for their families. Indeed, it is stated on high authority that the condition of ryots subject to this tax is generally inferior to that of the hired labourer, who receives two annas, or 3d., a day for wages. There really and truly would be nothing to lament in the break-up of such a system as this, which, as McCulloch observes, "has, from its oppressiveness, more than anything else, prevented our ascendancy in India."

THE EXCHEQUER BILLS BILL.

THE Exchequer Bills at present in circulation are payable in March and June,—that is to say, the principal and interest fall due and are payable in those months, and persons neglecting to renew them are paid off. By the new Bill it is provided that if payment of such principal moneys shall not be so claimed, then the Exchequer Bills not so paid off shall continue to have legal currency for the next twelve months; and so on, from year to year, until such principal moneys shall be claimed by and paid to such holders; but such holders can only claim to be paid off at the time the Bills fall due, except they are paid in for Customs, Excise, or any revenue, supply, aid, or tax whatsoever, during the last six months they have to run. That is to say, the Bills that fall due in March, say the 15th, will be receivable for duties from the 15th September, and those due on the 15th June will be receivable from the 15th December. Consequently, the whole of the Bills would be receivable for duties after the 15th December.

Now we have pointed out on a former occasion that it would be much better if these Bills, instead of being payable in June and October, were divided into four equal portions, and made to fall due in March, June, September, and December, or any periods more convenient, so that the Government may not be subjected to the contingency of a large mass being paid in for duties between the 15th December and the 15th March, as they will be when the new law, as it now stands, comes into operation. This inconvenience ought to be obviated. It is a risk that neither the Bank of England nor the Government ought to be subjected to, and Government will do well not to neglect making the alteration while there is yet time. Supposing, for instance, that the proposed law were in force now, when Exchequer Bills are at a considerable discount, and when it would be very inconvenient both for the Government and the Bank of England, to receive Exchequer Bills in lieu of gold and bank notes for taxes: would it be prudent, we ask, to have an outstanding liability of £13,230,000 staring them in the face? It is all very well to say that this is looking at a case so extreme that it would never happen; but it might happen, to the extent of two or three millions,—and it certainly would happen to whatever extent the public who had to pay taxes could buy Exchequer Bills at any discount. Were the total issue of Exchequer Bills divided into four equal parts, so as to let every fourth part fall due every three months, the difficulty would be, to a great extent, obviated.

There is one portion of the new Bill which we think ought to be made a little clearer, or it may lead to inconvenience. By this Act the Bills are receivable for all taxes during the last six months of their currency, "provided always that all such Exchequer Bills as shall be tendered in payment of duties by virtue of this Act shall be transmitted by the receiver thereof to the Comptroller-General of her Majesty's Exchequer for examination, and no such Exchequer Bills shall be finally accepted in payment of such duties until they shall have been so examined and verified by the said Comptroller-General."

Now this plan of sending the Exchequer Bills to be examined by the Comptroller-General would be attended with very great inconvenience, because it is impossible to say, unless it were defined in the Act, how long he might keep them. It would be a great convenience to the public if they could be taken to the Bank of England and its branches and examined and verified like bank notes, instead of being sent up to the Comptroller-General's office. We assume that it will not be pretended that this functionary has the exclusive gift of knowing a genuine Exchequer Bill from a spurious one (supposing that such exist). The task of examination might safely be entrusted to the well-tried officers of the Bank of England.

MESSRS. ROEBUCK AND LEVER.—On Friday last Messrs. Roebuck and Lever's contract with the Austrian Government was signed by the Minister of Finances. The guarantee is £35,000—that is, 7 per cent. in silver on £500,000. The guarantee must, however, be sanctioned by the Reichsrath. The boats are to run once a week between Southampton and Trieste, and vice versa.—Times' Vienna Letter.

BANK NOTES UNREPRESENTED BY GOLD.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "MONEY MARKET REVIEW."

SIR,—Does your correspondent "Mercator" mean to say that the compulsory issue of bank notes for standard gold at the rate of £3. 17s. 9d. per ounce is free trade in gold, any more than it would be free trade in sugar if a law were passed to compel every grocer to buy it at 6d. a pound and sell it at 6½d., regardless of the laws of supply and demand? But what should we say of a law which compelled the grocer to sell 28,000,000 lbs. of sugar at 6½d. per pound, when his stock only amounted to 14,000,000 lbs. The effect of allowing the Bank to issue £14,000,000 of notes unrepresented by gold is, in times of pressure, precisely similar. "Mercator" agrees with me "that by the Bank issuing notes unrepresented by gold, this fictitious currency must, in times of ease, unduly increase the quantity and reduce the interest of money, and double the pressure of evil times, from the Bank's fear of having to redeem more notes than are represented by gold."

This system of making money more abundant when there is already a plethora, and more scarce when a scarcity exists, is the cause of all our manias and panics; and I believe, if the notes of the Bank of England corresponded precisely with the bullion it held, we should not be subjected either to so many manias, so many panics, or so many variations in the rate of discount. But I object on principle to any monopoly, and especially to that enjoyed, to the great detriment of the public, by the Bank of England. Let every bank in the kingdom have the privilege of issuing notes to the extent of the gold they possess, and then, and not till then, shall we have a sound currency.

Your correspondent "Mercator" and myself disagree so little that I would willingly waive the strong opinion I have—that the compulsory issue of notes against gold at £3. 17s. 9d. per ounce is not free trade in gold—if he will assist, through your valuable journal, in doing away with the pernicious monopoly of the Bank of England, by helping to place every bank in the kingdom in regard to issues on precisely one and the same footing, the basis being that a pound in paper should de facto represent a pound in gold.

PROFIT AND DISCOUNT TABLES: ADAPTED FOR THE ASSISTANCE OF TRADERS IN THEIR PURCHASES, SALES, AND TAKING STOCK.

By Charles Ody Rooks. London, William Tegg. 1861.

To the man of business, whose time is said to be capital, any assistance which enables him to perform a portion of his work in the shortest possible space of time must be considered valuable. The work before us shows, in a tabular form, the prices at which articles must be sold to obtain a profit, at a certain percentage on their invoiced cost, and also the net cost of articles, when discounts are allowed, on the invoiced prices. The calculations are on prices from one penny to one hundred pounds, with all the intermediate fractional figures, and at rates ranging from 2½ to 75 per cent. Each rate is given in a separate page, and the arrangement is such that at a moment's glance the information desired can be obtained, for the rates are marked in alternate red and black ink, in marginal figures, after the manner of an indexed ledger. To those whose experience is limited in calculations of profit and loss, these tables will afford every assistance, and to those who make their own calculations they offer a ready and reliable test to check their accuracy without loss of time in experimental proofs. The tables are adapted to every class of the commercial community, and for portability, accuracy, simplicity of arrangement, and cheapness, will be found very serviceable.

BUSINESS LIFE; OR, THE EXPERIENCE OF A LONDON TRADESMAN.

Houlston and Wright, Paternoster-row.

The author of this publication gives the result of his own experience as a trader, and points out the numerous causes of the failure of tradesmen, and the mode and manner of avoiding them. He lays down certain rules or principles of action, and shows how their adoption or rejection has operated in his own case. He at the same time furnishes information to those young tradesmen who know not where to apply for advice under certain circumstances. No attempt at style of composition has been made; but the thoughts of the writer have evidently been strung together as they occurred. He has divided his subject into many sections, and dwells particularly and at some length on the decision of character which is essential to a man of business. The interest attached to this portion of the work is considerable.

This little book may be advantageously studied by men of business; for it contains much valuable and excellent advice.

AN ESSAY ON LIFE ASSURANCE: Being a Popular Exposition of the Subject. By H. W. Porter, B.A. Messrs. C. and E. Layton, Fleet-street.

The object of the writer of this excellent little essay is to popularise the science of life assurance. Most of the works on the subject, particularly those of Morgan and Milne, are ill adapted for the instruction of those unacquainted with the mode of calculating mathematical problems. What was required was an essay adapted to unscientific minds; for it is only by promulgating, in a familiar form, a knowledge of the true principles on which life assurance depends that we can hope to lead the public to judge for themselves, and to stimulate habits of providence. This object has been completely attained by this little publication, which comprises seasonable advice to all, especially to those who have not hitherto given the subject any consideration. One of the merits of his essay is that the writer, although connected with a life office, has carefully abstained from advocating the claims of any particular class of companies, indeed, from even mentioning the name of any one office. This work will prove of great use to the agents of life offices generally, for it furnishes them with abundant matter, and simply yet forcibly testifies to the benefits of life assurance.

THE MERCHANT'S BANE; OR, THE ANTAGONISM BETWEEN THE GOLD-LAW AND THE BANK OF ENGLAND. Edingham Wilson, Royal Exchange.

THIS is one of the numerous pamphlets which are written with a view to enlighten the public on the difficult subject of our Money-laws. The "merchant's bane" is said by the author to be the pernicious influence of the Bank monopoly and the present Gold-law. In developing his views he propounds two questions—first, "Why is the power of fixing the price of money placed in the hands of the Bank corporation?" and, secondly, "Why is the price of gold fixed by Act of Parliament?" To answer these questions would lead us into a long essay on the general principles of the currency question. The author, however, answers them in a somewhat different manner to any of the currency essayists who have preceded him. He proposes (what is perfectly sound) that the Government should repay the Bank the £14,000,000 due to that corporation. He further proposes that from henceforth two descriptions of notes should be issued—the one series to be based on Government security, not convertible into gold; and the other on a gold or metallic basis, representing ounces of gold, and not pounds sterling. How these two descriptions of notes could be made to circulate with equal freedom is not stated. This brochure possesses one prominent merit, and that is its brevity, the whole argument being condensed into fifteen pages. It deserves perusal, and has attracted not a little attention in financial circles.

THE STATE OF TRADE.

(COMPILED FROM NUMEROUS LOCAL REPORTS.)

THE accounts from the manufacturing districts this week continue to indicate depression. The check to trade operates only gradually, but it is perfectly evident that in many branches of business there is a contraction of engagements from week to week. The causes are three-fold: 1. the high value of money; 2. the unfavourable character of the agricultural reports; and, 3, the confusion in America.

The accounts from Manchester report that the market is quieter than last week in all departments. The advance in cotton at Liverpool still obliges producers to raise their quotations, and purchasers of yarn are not disposed to do business on the terms proposed to them, except to complete pressing orders. The few sales effected are at an advance of ¼d., and in some cases ¾d., on the prices of last week. The extensive turn-out of weavers in the neighbourhood of Ashton and Glossop is said already to have involved the stoppage of no less than 50,000 looms; but this appears to have no effect on the cloth market. The market for all goods suitable to the East is quieter, and prices are either unaltered, or, if anything, a shade lower than at the end of last week. There is a moderate inquiry for some kinds of cloth at the full prices of last week; but as these can no longer be accepted by sellers, the transactions are very few and small. The turn-out of weavers and the prospect of its extension is rather welcomed by manufacturers of cloth as a source of relief in many cases, seeing the difficulty of effecting sales at present.

The accounts from Manchester, dated yesterday, observe that business has become very much more restricted during the last day or two, but there is no marked giving way on the part either of spinners or manufacturers, and quotations are for the most part unaltered. The quieter state of the Liverpool cotton-market is one cause of stagnation. The market is at the same time affected by failures (see "Mercantile Embarrassments.")

At Leeds there has been about the usual attendance in the cloth-halls. Neither the weather, the rumours about the forthcoming Budget, nor the news from America is of a very cheering character. Hence quietness continues to prevail in the woollen trade. There is no alteration in prices either of goods or wool.

At Rochdale there has been a little better feeling in the wool and flannel markets than last week. In flannels, Saxories, and Yorkshire goods little more was done, but the demand was still of a quiet character, caution in giving and taking orders, as well as in effecting sales, being a decided feature of the market.

The accounts from Bradford, dated Thursday, report a fair demand in noils and shorts, at prices which have been current for a month past. Owing to the vast extent of idle machinery, the quantity making is exceedingly small. There is no improvement in the worsted yarn trade. The export houses are buyers where prices are sufficiently low, but there is no regular business doing. There is a better feeling in the piece market, and where manufacturers are willing to make a concession a little was doing. There is, however, a feeling that the worst is past. The demand for goods, both for export and home consumption, is still incommensurate with the production. As long as the American houses are out of the market, much machinery will have to remain standing.

At Leicester the hosiery trade is dull in most branches; very little business continues to be done at the warehouses, and stocks are being kept down as much as possible. At Loughborough and Hinckley there is no beneficial change in the hosiery trade; many hands are only partially employed. Yarns are not in request, and spinners are not working full time.

At Nottingham the lace trade remains in the same dull state as for some time past, and the prospects of a beneficial change as far as regards the cotton branch are by no means cheering. In hosiery there is no favourable change to notice. Business in most departments remains extremely flat, and many framework knitters are out of work.

The manufacturing trades of Wolverhampton and of the district remain in much the same state as for a month past. There is a languid tone everywhere, and the prospects of a revival, even of the home trade, are seemingly distant. The reduction of the rate of discount to 7 per cent. will give more ease to the trading interest; but it will be insufficient to stimulate the retail business of the country, which is suffering from various causes not likely at present to be removed. The foreign orders do not make up for the slackness in the home trade.

At Birmingham trade is almost unprecedentedly dull; in every branch manufacturers are complaining; in neither the home nor the foreign trade is there the slightest animation.

The preliminary meeting of the ironmasters of the Birmingham district was held in that town on Thursday afternoon. After a brief discussion it was resolved to adhere to the old scale of prices for all descriptions of manufactured iron. The representatives of most of the leading firms in the district were present, and it was generally admitted that the trade was extremely dull.

MERCANTILE EMBARRASMENTS.

Messrs. J. G. Behrends and Co., East India merchants, of St. Mary-axe, stopped payment on Saturday last, with liabilities to the amount of £40,000, about half of which is secured. The senior partner, Mr. J. G. Behrends, was struck with paralysis in December last, and his absence from business is stated to be the sole cause of the difficulties of the firm, but the probable result of the liquidation is not yet known. The circular issued is subjoined:—

Gentlemen,—Messrs. J. G. Behrends and Co. having consulted us on the state of their affairs, we find that the affliction to which Mr. J. G. Behrends was subjected in the month of December last (and from which he has only partially recovered) has necessitated his almost entire absence from business, and in consequence thereof it is imperative to suspend for a while the payment of the liabilities of the firm. The accounts are now in course of investigation by Messrs. Quilter, Ball, Jay, and Co., of Moorgate-street, and a meeting of the creditors will be convened at the earliest possible opportunity, in order to submit to the creditors a statement of the affairs of the firm, of which meeting you will in due course be apprised.—We are, &c.

(Signed) HUGHES, KEARSEY, MASTERMAN, & HUGHES.

17, Bucklersbury, E. C., March 23.

The suspension was announced on Wednesday of Mr. P. Abraham, West India merchant, of New London-street, who is unable to meet the unusually heavy drafts of his principal correspondent in Jamaica. The liabilities are estimated at about £100,000, but they will be covered to the extent of £30,000 or £40,000 by special remittances. As regards the residue of the liabilities, about £60,000, the liquidation is expected to be very favourable. The books have been placed in the hands of Messrs. Quilter and Co.

Messrs. Cuppa, Brothers, and Co., Greek merchants, have suspended payment, with liabilities to the amount of about £75,000, while their assets are understood to show a surplus. About half their commitments are on bills from Constantinople, which are expected to be met by the drawers.

The market letters from Manchester mention the failure of Messrs. Dalton, Brothers, calico printers, with liabilities to the amount of about £85,000.

At Manchester two more suspensions were announced on Thursday afternoon, one being that of Mr. Leopold Samson, buying agent, with liabilities reported at £25,000 to £30,000; and the other of Mr. S. J. Halle, merchant, whose liabilities are said to be £15,000 to £20,000.

At an adjourned meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Thwaites, Westall, and Co., in the cotton trade, held at Manchester on Monday, the liabilities, together with those of Messrs. W. B. Westall and Co., were stated at £66,516, and the assets at £25,495. It appears, however, that the private estates of the partners will be ample to pay all the creditors 20s. in the pound, with interest. Two gentlemen were appointed trustees, to wind up the estate.

In the Bankruptcy Court on Monday there were some proceedings in the case of Messrs. Syers, Walker, and Co., merchants, who failed in 1856. A further dividend of about 6d. in the pound is about to be declared.

In the Bankruptcy Court on Tuesday the Commissioner granted an extension of the protection to Mr. Laurence (of the firm of Streatfeild and Co.), until the appeal is heard.

In the Bankruptcy Court on Thursday, Mr. Johnson, of the firm of Johnson and Gilman, shoe manufacturers, passed his examination.

Accounts from Havana to the 9th inst., received via New York, report great stringency in the money market. Messrs. Arrigunaga, Pedrosa, and Co., a Spanish firm, had stopped payment, with, it was thought, liabilities to the extent of £100,000 or £120,000, of which little is due to England. It is supposed that the chief losses will fall upon Spain.

LONDON, CHATHAM, AND DOVER RAILWAY.—On Wednesday morning, the building materials having been disposed of by auction, a number of workmen were employed in the demolition of the extensive range of warehouses and offices at Saint Anne's Wharf, Earl-street, Blackfriars, for the extension of the works of the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway. A temporary obstruction has arisen to the progress of the works of this line at the Dover Terminus, the inhabitants of the houses in Limekiln-street and Stroud-street having just made an application to the Court of Chancery for the appointment of an arbitrator, as they object to the erection of a bridge calculated to be injurious to their property; a proceeding which must necessarily delay the operations of the contractors.

EARLY DIFFICULTIES OF THE BANK OF ENGLAND.—On the 6th of May, 1695, an advertisement was published in the London Gazette, "That the directors of the Bank will lend money at 4 per cent. on plate, lead, tin, copper, steel, and iron." A new coinage was in progress, the old being so bad, that many shillings only contained three pence in silver; other coins were diminished in weight by clipping. The directors had received the deteriorated money as of full value, and when notes were to issue in exchange they had not enough specie to meet their engagements. They were forced to meet the difficulty by paying cash instalments of 10 per cent. fortnightly. Bank-notes were sold at 20 per cent. discount, though at the same time guineas brought a premium of 50 per cent. Out of these embarrassments the Government of William III., grateful for the aid given them by the Bank, helped the directors, and public faith was restored, by a part of the subscriptions being accepted in tallies and orders, while bank-notes were received at their full value. The charter was enlarged until 1710, and to forge the company's securities was made a capital felony. In spite of all these perils, Bank stock, though given to proprietors for tallies at 50 per cent., rose in value to 112 per cent. In 1707, the probability of an invasion by the Pretender occasioned great alarm, and sank the prices of Stocks 14 or 15 per cent. Great efforts, however, were made by the Queen and her ministers to assist the corporation, and many public-spirited individuals pressed to the Bank and deposited their money. A private person, whose whole fortune was £500, carried it to the directors, which being reported to Anne, she sent him a present of £100, and an obligation on the Treasury to repay the whole sum. The nation took heart, and the credit of the establishment was preserved.—City Press.

Owing to the demand for money, which is usual at this period of the quarter, the balances of bankers and others ("other" deposits) have been drawn down to the extent of £347,324, whilst the applications to the Bank for discounts and advances have led to an addition of £260,229 to the "other" securities. The result is a decline of £403,849 in the reserve of notes and coin; but the total of this item still stands at the satisfactory sum of nearly eight millions. The coin and bullion continue to increase, the effect of the shipments of specie to America being more than counterbalanced by the influx from other quarters.

THE MONEY MARKET.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 29.

As usual at the turn of the quarter, the discount market this week has been rather stringent. There has, however, been no pressure, and the demand at the Bank of England has been decidedly below the average of the season. It is thence inferred that the release of the April dividends will be followed by a decided increase in the amount of unemployed money. Yesterday the best bills were taken at  $6\frac{3}{4}$  to 7 per cent. The demand at the Bank was only moderate, notwithstanding the intervention of a holiday (Good Friday.)

In the Stock Exchange  $6\frac{1}{2}$  to 7 per cent. was paid yesterday for loans on Consols, and there was a brisk demand.

The dividends will be payable to the public at the Bank of England on Tuesday, the 9th of April. There is an impression that on Thursday the 4th, or Thursday the 11th, the Bank rate of discount will be lowered to 6 per cent.

The reduction in the value of money has not yet stimulated the demand for silver for the East. On the contrary, the market is flatter.

The Pera, which left on Wednesday, took £182,240 in silver and £15,000 in gold for Bombay, besides £500 in gold for Alexandria, making in all £127,740.

The steamer America sailed on Saturday last for the United States with £86,700 in specie, and the Edinburgh on Wednesday with £102,030. The remittances by the packet of to-morrow will probably be checked by the improvement in the American exchange.

About £24,000 in gold was taken to the Bank on Thursday.

A large amount of gold, computed at about £90,000, has arrived at Marseilles this week from Constantinople for account of Greek houses in France and England.

A further large amount of gold is immediately expected in this country from the Levant.

THE BULLION MARKET.

With reference to the movements in bullion and in the Indian Government paper, Messrs. Pixley, Abell, and Langley, report as follows:—

GOLD.—The shipments of gold to America have been resumed this week on a rather larger scale, the America having taken £86,700, and the Edinburgh £102,030; the Pera has also taken £15,000 to Bombay; we have had, however, large arrivals from the Continent, and these are likely to continue. About £160,000 has been sent into the Bank during the past few days, and further amounts are likely to follow, the Pera having brought about £43,000 from Australia, and other arrivals from Melbourne are now daily looked for.

SILVER.—The silver ex La Plata has been sold at 60 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per ounce standard, and the Pera took about £182,240 to Bombay. The market is quiet at present, and we do not expect any large amount will go by the next mail to India and China of the 4th April.

MEXICAN DOLLARS.—The dollars ex La Plata have been fixed at 59 $\frac{1}{2}$ d., and the market is rather quiet.

INDIA GOVERNMENT LOAN NOTES are weaker, with the same slack demand; we quote Five per Cents. 93 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 94 $\frac{1}{2}$ , and Five-and-a-Half per Cents. 99 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 100 $\frac{1}{2}$ .

EXCHANGE on India at sixty days' sight for Bank's drafts, Bombay and Calcutta, is 1s. 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. to 2s. 0 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. Madras, 1s. 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. to 2s. Bills with documents, 1s. 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. to 1s. 11 $\frac{3}{4}$ d.

A portion of the Mexican dollars by the steamer La Plata were sold on Thursday at 4s. 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per ounce, showing no change.

THE EXCHANGES.

To-day being Good Friday, the business in foreign exchanges was transacted yesterday. The rates were generally steady, at last week's quotations. Subjoined is our list:—

THE NEW YORK MONEY MARKET.

The latest advices from New York report the exchange better, at 106 $\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$ , and "firm." The rate of discount had fallen to 5 to 6 per cent. for the best bills.

THE PERUVIAN DEBT.

The Peruvian agents have published the numbers of the Anglo-Peruvian Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Bonds, which have been cancelled under the half-year's redemption fund. The sum applicable was, in all, £133,135, and the amount of stock cancelled was £138,600.

GEELONG AND MELBOURNE RAILWAY DEBENTURES.

The committee of the Six Associated Australian Banks have given notice that they have received instructions from the Government of Victoria to pay the debentures of the Geelong and Melbourne Railway Company, redeemable on the 5th of April and 1st of May next respectively, together with the interest coupons due on those dates.

THE RED SEA TELEGRAPH COMPANY.

The warrants for the overdue guaranteed interest on the Red Sea Telegraph Company's shares were at last received by the proprietors on Tuesday. It is, so far as we know (observes the Daily News) the first instance on record of the engagements of the British Government not being met on the appointed day.

THE GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY OF CANADA.

The following is a copy of a telegram received yesterday from the Quebec correspondent of the Canadian News, dated Quebec, March 16 :—"The Governor-General's speech, delivered this day, makes no mention of the affairs of the Grand Trunk Railway."

ENTERPRISE IN PORTUGAL.

The mail from Lisbon states that the Government concession for hydraulic slips on the south bank of the Tagus has received the sanction of the Cortes.

THE FAMINE IN INDIA.

Many persons, looking at the extent and probable duration of the famine in North-Western India, consider (observes the Times), that all individual efforts must fall far short of the necessities of the case, and that an Indian Loan of half-a-million sterling should immediately be raised for the purpose.

RAILWAY TRAFFIC.

The Brighton Railway traffic return shows this week an increase of £2,005; the South-Eastern, an increase of £663; the Great Western, an increase of £2,326; the Great Northern, an increase of £672; the London and South-Western, an increase of £2,411; the Eastern Counties, an increase of £638; the Midland, a decrease of £29; the Lancashire and Yorkshire, an increase of £1,118; the London and North-Western, an increase of £1,380; the Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, an increase of £695; and the North-Eastern, an increase of £1,123.

The traffic receipts of the Great Western Railway of Canada for the week ending March 8 were £9,410 sterling, being £677 more than in the corresponding week of last year.

The traffic receipts of the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada for the week ending March 2 were £13,008 sterling, being £1,407 more than in the corresponding week of last year.

RAILWAYS.

An extraordinary meeting of the Great Northern Railway Company is called for the 9th of April, to approve several Bills now pending in Parliament for metropolitan railway improvements. One of these Bills authorises the extension of the Metropolitan Railway from Smithfield to Finsbury-circus, and another, the construction of a railway from Edgware through Finchley and Highgate, to join the Great Northern Railway.

A general meeting of the Bahia and San Francisco Railway Company is called for the 18th of April, and will be made special, pursuant to a somewhat extraordinary requisition which has been sent in to the directors, requiring them "to take steps for the immediate exercise of the borrowing powers, until they are exhausted, before any further call is made, which powers amount to six hundred thousand pounds; and also for the immediate return to the proprietors, with interest, of the call that was payable on the 6th day of February, 1861."

The London and North-Western Railway Company invite tenders for the erection of a new passenger station at Stafford.

The interest coupons of the Sittingbourne and Sheerness Railway Company due on Monday were dishonoured, the answer at the bankers' being "No orders to pay."

BANKS.

The half-yearly meeting of the shareholders in the Ottoman Bank took place on Wednesday. The directors' report, already published, recommending a dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum, free of Income-tax, was agreed to.

From Glasgow we learn that a gentleman, on the part of the directors of the Western Bank, has offered £200,000 for a settlement of all the actions at law now in dependence. The liquidators, who had named this sum, recommend it to the acceptance of the shareholders, with whom it now lies whether the litigation shall be brought to a close or not.

ASSURANCE COMPANIES.

At the meeting on Tuesday of the London Assurance Corporation, a dividend of 40s. per share, free of Income-tax, was declared.

The directors of the United Kingdom Provident Institution have issued a circular descriptive of the progress of the establishment, and particularly relating to "the superiority of the lives of total abstainers from distilled and fermented liquors over those of the general public." The division of profits about to be made will give a reversionary bonus in the Temperance Section ranging from 35 to 86 per cent., or an average of 60½ per cent., and in the General Section from 24 to 59 per cent., or an average of 41½ per cent.

Mr. R. P. Harding has been appointed by the Court of Chancery official manager of the British Exchequer Life Assurance Company.

The Master of the Rolls proposes, on the 16th of April, to make a call of 10s. per share on the contributories of the Deposit and General Life Assurance Company.

THE ASPHALTUM COMPANY.

The second ordinary meeting of the Asphaltum Company (Limited) was held on Tuesday, Mr. William B. Ford in the chair. The report was unanimously adopted, a dividend was declared upon the four months' working at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, and £247. 5s. 8d. was carried over to the credit of profit and loss account for the ensuing year.

OTHER PUBLIC COMPANIES.

The adjourned meeting of the Atlantic Royal Mail Steam Company (Galway line) took place on Wednesday, Mr. W. Malcolmson presiding, when the report was carried unanimously. It appears that the new and highly respectable board, elected last September, have anxiously considered the financial position and prospects of the company, and the best means of carrying out the Irish Transatlantic service. The loss of the Connaught caused the mail contract to be suspended until the 26th inst., and the damage sustained by the Hibernia during the late gales has led to a further delay to the 9th of April. The Columbia is now fitting for sea, and the Anglia will be delivered in a few weeks. Some modification of the original contract has taken place, the principal feature being that the company are to deliver mails at Newfoundland each voyage. An improvement of the harbour accommodation at Galway has been urged upon the Harbour Commissioners. Resolutions were passed authorising the issue of £600,000 in 7 per cent. preference shares, of which a very large proportion have already been arranged to be placed.

At the second annual meeting of the London General Omnibus Company (Limited), held on Wednesday, the directors' report was adopted, an amendment for the appointment of a committee to investigate the books and accounts being lost. It was agreed that, "in addition to the annual general meeting of shareholders appointed to be held in the month of March in every year, an extraordinary meeting shall also be held in the month of September in every year; and that a report and statement of accounts, made up to the 30th June preceding, shall be submitted to the shareholders thereat."

At the annual meeting of the British-American Land Company, held on Wednesday, the directors' report, which was adopted, stated that the operations of the past year had been satisfactory, and expressed their belief that the tide is turned in the company's affairs. The directors point to the fact that double the quantity of unimproved land, as compared with the year 1859, has been disposed of at fair prices, and to good settlers. The increased remittances from Canada since the 31st of December, when the accounts were made up, have enabled the company to pay off £2,000 of the debt then due to the bankers.

At the half-yearly meeting on Wednesday of the British Gaslight Company, a dividend of 14s. per share and a bonus of 4s. were declared.

The directors of Price's Patent Candle Company presented their fourteenth report at the annual meeting, held on Thursday last, the 28th inst. It appears to be of a favourable character. The net profit in hand is £33,959. The directors propose out of this profit to declare a dividend at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum on the preference shares, and at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, clear of Income-tax, or 10s. per share on the ordinary shares. A dividend at these rates will amount to £19,621. 9s. 11d., leaving in hand the large undivided balance of £14,338. 0s. 9d.

The annual meeting of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company is called for the 24th of April.

The half-yearly meeting of the Surrey Consumers' Gas Company is called for the 11th of April, when the committee will report the result of their consultations with the directors respecting the position of the company.

Messrs. Dent, Palmer, and Co., announce the dividend due April 10 on the Turkish Six per Cent. Loan of 1854.

THE STOCK AND SHARE MARKETS.

The stagnation in the stock markets is more complete than ever. Scarcely any business is going forward. The uncertainties in connection with the coming Budget, and a belief that the financial position of Government is not good, have a prejudicial influence.

The English funds this week have shown a drooping tendency. The value of money is still high, causing sales of stock by bankers and others; whilst inventors continue to look for a larger return for their money than that offered by the English Three per Cents. Consols, which closed on last Friday at  $92\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{1}{4}$  for the 10th of April, have gradually receded, and left off yesterday at  $91\frac{3}{4}$  to  $\frac{7}{8}$ . The fall is, therefore,  $\frac{3}{8}$  per cent., notwithstanding the belief that money will soon become cheaper. For money, the last price was  $91\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ .

To-day, being Good Friday, the Stock Exchange was, of course, closed.

Exchequer Bills have been much offered, and have fallen to 15s. to 10s. dis.

The Five per Cent. Rupee Paper is quoted  $93\frac{1}{2}$  to 94; the Five-and-a-Half per Cent.,  $99\frac{1}{2}$  to 100, and the scrip of the new Indian Loan,  $100\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ . India Bonds are heavy at 30s. to 20s. dis.

The official list of yesterday's actual business in the English Funds, Exchequer Bills, and Indian Government Securities, is annexed:—

Three per Cent. Consols, for money,  $91\frac{1}{4}$ ,  $\frac{5}{8}$ ,  $\frac{1}{2}$ ; ditto for account (April 10),  $91\frac{3}{4}$ ,  $\frac{3}{4}$ ; India Stock, 220; ditto Five per Cent. Stock, 100,  $99\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $100\frac{1}{2}$ ; ditto Four per Cent. Debentures, 1858,  $95\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Five per Cent. "Enfaced" Rupee Paper,  $93\frac{1}{2}$ ; ditto Five-and-a-Half per Cent.,  $99\frac{1}{2}$ , 100; and Exchequer Bills, 13s. to 15s. dis.

In the market for British railway stocks the principal business has consisted of the arrangement of the "account," which was completed on Thursday. During the last two days the tendency of prices has been downwards. Midland stock has suffered especially, owing to the decline in this week's traffic. The settlement showed only a very moderate supply of railway stock. The rates of "continuation" were consequently light. Great Western and North British stocks were scarce and wanted. Lancashire and Yorkshire was likewise scantily supplied. A small "backwardation" was in some instances paid both on this stock and Great Western at one period. The public continue to make investments to a moderate extent, notwithstanding the apprehensions expressed in many quarters of a decrease in the traffic. The London market is still for the most part ruled by speculators in the provinces. The progress of the settlement on Wednesday, however, showed an increased supply of Midland stock, and the continuation rose to  $\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{5}{8}$  per cent. On the other hand, London and North-Western proved scarce, and a small "backwardation" was paid for the loan of it.

The following shows the closing prices of the principal British Railway Stocks on Thursday, and the result of the week's variations. The share list in detail will be found in another column:—

THE PARIS BOURSE.

At Paris this day (Friday) the Three per Cent. Rentes closed rather firmer at 67.75 for money and 67.80 for the account, being a trifle better than yesterday, and  $\frac{3}{4}$  per cent. lower than on last Friday.

AMERICAN SECURITIES.

The report of Mr. E. F. Satterthwaite, dated Wednesday evening, is annexed:—

We have had a steady market in London during the past week for American securities, particularly for the most current railroad bonds and shares, the prices of which have, for some weeks past, ruled so much below New York quotations, that purchases made here leave a good profit; thus, the market has been cleared of the stock offering for transmission to America. Illinois shares close firm at  $26\frac{1}{2}$  to 26 discount; and Erie shares at  $27\frac{1}{2}$  to 28. The supply of both descriptions at present settlement being much smaller than of late.

The London agents of the Illinois Central Railway Company on Monday evening received the following report from New York:—

Illinois Central Railroad Company, President's Office,
Chicago, March 8.

My dear Sir,—The simultaneous opening of the Illinois and Mississippi rivers a fortnight since gave rise to large shipments of grain to New Orleans, and a decline in that market, which has temporarily checked our southern business. We hear by telegraph of an advance in corn, and look for a renewal of business next week. Although the price of grain in the interior is very low, there cannot be a large business until towards the opening of navigation. There are nearly 4,000,000 bushels of grain stored in Chicago; the warehouses are all full, and more grain cannot be brought in until the loading of vessels relieves the elevators. The railways entering in Chicago show a small traffic; that by our line shows an increase of 20 to 30 per cent., which is through our southern outlet.

The land commissioner has many letters promising money as soon as the wheat and corn can be sold. The collections are 18,000 dols., and the sales 37,633 dols. 20c. this first week. The class of purchasers differs materially from that of 1856; it is now the cautious, good buying of practical farmers, chiefly lots of 40 acres, not averaging over 1,000 dols. to each purchaser. The same number of contracts issued last month would have given an aggregate of treble the amount of sales in 1856. In all cases buyers are advised to take small parcels; thus, although the sales since January 1 are only 338,782 dols. 61c., the land actually sold will be cultivated, and add largely to the value of the adjoining lands.

Illinois possesses to-day every condition in favour of immigration that she had for ten years past. That which passed her borders to Kansas and Nebraska will do so no longer, since the famine in Kansas is known to arise from physical causes liable to frequent recurrence. Our lands are still cheap—much cheaper than the lands in this and Indiana. It is now ascertained that Ohio is losing population in the rural districts. The gain between 1850 and 1860 in that State is less than the natural increase of population, only 20 98-100 per cent. Indiana gained 36 67-100, while Illinois gained 101 10-100 per cent. There is scarcely a reasonable doubt but that Illinois will lead Ohio the next census, and stand the third in rank. The same ratio of increase as the two States have had the last ten years will give Ohio in 1870, 2,855,5914; Illinois in 1870, 3,442,305.

The exodus from Ohio is stimulated by high taxation, and also from the absorbing of the best lands by the wealthy farmers. On the Scioto and Miami bottoms the lands are worth from 75 dols. to 150 dols. per acre. In 1830 there were nine-teen States of greater population than Illinois; now she is the fourth, and promises largely to be the third at an early day. When this occurs it seems inevitable that the value of lands will bear a distinct relation to the number of people.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) W. H. OSBORNE, President.

Mines.

FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 29.

THE market for British Mining Stocks this week has been languid, except as regards East Caradon shares, in which some excitement has prevailed, leading to the important rise of about £3. 10s. per share. East Carn Brea have also advanced. East Basset are flatter.

In the mining market yesterday there was a fresh rise of fully £1 in East Caradon shares. Shares in Marke Valley, West Sharp Tor, and Whical Ludcott were likewise inquired for. Yesterday being settling day, business was checked. Transactions are reported to us between the following prices:—

Alfred Consols, 2½ to 3; East Caradon, 19 to 20; East Wheal Grenville, 22s. 6d. to 27s. 6d.; East Wheal Russell, 6½ to 7; Great Retallack, 27s. 6d. to 30s.; Kelly Bray, 22s. 6d. to 25s.; North Downs, 4 to 4½; Providence, 38 to 39; St. Ives Consols, 34 to 36; Trecrom, 3½ to 4; West Caradon, 74 to 76 ex div.; West Damsel, 52½ to 55; West Wheal Seton, 34s to 35s; Wheal Basset, 106 to 108½; Wheal Ludcott, 3½ to 3¾; Wheal Margaret, 44 to 47; Wheal Trelawney, 11 to 11½; Wheal Unity Consols, 9s. to 10s.

To-day being Good Friday, there was no market.

United Mexican, Great Northern Copper (South Australia), and General (Nova Scotia) mining shares have been inquired for. In the first-mentioned some excitement has been observable, and the price has risen 10s. St. John del Rey shares are flatter.

The price of copper was on Tuesday reduced ½d. per lb., or £1. 10s. per ton. Present quotations are reported as follows: manufactured, 11d. per lb.; tough cake and tile, £98 per ton; best selected, £101 per ton; yellow metal, 9¾d. per lb.

A meeting of the Linares Lead Mining Company took place yesterday, when the report stated that the profits were £7,889, out of which a dividend has already been declared of 6s. 8d. per share. The diminution in the returns arises from the low price of lead. The mine was stated to be in a satisfactory condition.

At a meeting of the Fortuna Mining Company yesterday, it was announced that the operations of the first six months of the year resulted in a loss of £1,338, while in the second period there had been a gain of £1,586, leaving a net profit in 1860 of £248. The mine is considered to be steadily improving.

At a meeting of adventurers in Catharine and Jane Consols on the 20th inst., it was resolved to sell the lease and machinery by public auction, in consequence of a shareholder relinquishing 1,345 shares, and there being no hope of testing the value of the property without an outlay of £2,000. The liquidation and paying off of liabilities will be proceeded with immediately.

OTTOMAN (SMYRNA TO AIDIN) RAILWAY COMPANY.

The half-yearly meeting of this company was held on Thursday, March 28, at the London Tavern; Sir MACDONALD STEPHENSON, the chairman, presided.

Mr. J. S. COOKE, the secretary, read the notice convening the meeting. The report, which has already been circulated, was taken as read.

The CHAIRMAN, in moving the adoption of the report, said the tide had turned; twenty-seven miles of their railway had been completed, opened, and were at work. A flow had succeeded to the continuous ebb which had been so long running. It was no longer all money going out, and, though the receipts were small, they were increasing weekly, and already more than sufficient to cover the working expenses, and this with a very limited rolling stock and before the traffic season had commenced. Advantage had been derived from the portion of the line opened in carrying on the remaining works, and a further opening of the line was promised within a few months to a point at which the entire Aidin traffic would be intercepted. The recommendation of the engineers and the decision of the Board to carry the line by the Ephesus Pass would save much time in completing it, and while providing accommodation for a greater extent of country would not in any way increase the original cost of the railway. The addition to the Board of Mr. A. Devaux and Mr. M. E. Rodocanachi, who had kindly consented to act provisionally until his formal election could be made, would increase public confidence and impart strength to the directors. The value and importance of the additions which had been made upon the present as well as on a former occasion, when Mr. Fleming and Mr. Dent joined the Board, would be rightly estimated, and appreciated both in this country and abroad. The Turkish Government had conceded the request made by the Board for leave to issue £250,000 of debentures at 6 per cent., in lieu of so many shares, and for a further extension of three years to complete the works, a period deemed ample and sufficient by the engineers. The favourable reply of the Government had been conveyed through his Excellency the Ambassador, who had taken occasion to accompany the communication with the gratifying and friendly assurances of the continued confidence of the Imperial Porte. The replacement of the company upon the Stock-Exchange might be shortly expected, the company being in a position to comply with the regulations of the Committee, who had expressed their readiness and desire to give the subject their full and attentive consideration. The appointment of a committee at Smyrna, consisting of some of the leading merchants, had been attended with great benefit, and the exertions of the committee, together with those of Mr. Hanson, Mr. Fergusson, Mr. Hyde Clarke, Mr. Whitthall, and others who had well supported the Board and the contractor in their united endeavours to promote the success of the enterprise, deserved especial reference and notice. The Board had paid a just tribute to the steady and cordial support of the Turkish Government upon all occasions, and acknowledged their aid and assistance in surmounting the many difficulties which had been encountered. Since the directors' report was printed letters have been received from Mr. Fergus son and Mr. Hyde Clarke. Mr. Fergusson stated in his letter that he was sanguine as the season advanced that a great increase would take place in the traffic, and when they had better accommodation and facilities he was confident the sources of traffic would be beyond the anticipation of the promoters of the line. He was making every effort to secure the traffic of the interior. Numerous propositions had been made to him since the opening of the line by persons most anxious to undertake the conveyance of the traffic to Trianda. Mr. Hyde Clarke stated in his letter that the position of the company was materially improved, because the Government had abandoned the arbitrary rights to confiscation conferred on it by the original concession, and the debentures were placed on a better footing. That was one of the many proofs of the sincere desire of the Government to promote the undertaking, for, as the ministers said, if debentures were to be issued, they must be made a good security, and that debentures and confiscation could not work together. Throughout those negotiations the value of the undertaking had never been in question, and the ministers would allow no discussion on that head, for they knew that it was the most productive undertaking in the country, and on that ground their anxiety to have it completed was very great. The Grand Vizier said that, were their financial situation otherwise than it was, such was their conviction, the Government would itself find funds for the works. He (the Chairman) thought he might venture to congratulate the shareholders upon the progressive advancement of the undertaking in all those respects which most immediately affected and interested them. The impulse already given, by the portion of line opened to the cultivation of the surrounding country indicated what might be expected as the works were extended. Already a cotton association of Anatolia was in course of formation among the leading men, and produce of all descriptions were understood to be on the increase since a prospect had appeared of the means of its transport being accessible. On the whole, he had not the least apprehension as to the early and signal success of the Smyrna and Aidin Railway, and had great pleasure in proposing the adoption of the report.

Mr. A. DEVAUX seconded the motion, and stated that when he was asked to join the Board he said he would examine their books and judge for himself. He had done so, and he could assure the meeting that full justice had been done to the shareholders. The directors had gone through great difficulties with the undertaking, and he believed the company would be in a very flourishing condition before the end of many months, and he therefore was happy in joining the direction.

Mr. HARTRIDGE thought the report should have been much more explicit. He had every confidence in the Board, and he believed the difficulty in respect of placing the company on the Stock-Exchange list had arisen from the small number of shares held by the public, being, he believed, something like 20,000 shares out of 60,000 shares. They had better complete the portion of the line they had in hand, and not proceed further until they could raise the remainder of the capital. The cost of the line would be about £15,000 per mile, which, he thought, was too much for such a line. If they forfeited the shares upon which the calls were in arrear, and then appealed to the public something might be done towards raising the remainder of the capital.

The CHAIRMAN explained that by the deviation the length of the line would be increased from 73 to 80 miles, the extra length being unattended with any additional expense, besides which, the estimate, which would not be exceeded, included warehouses, jetties, and other extraneous works. Every particular in reference to the accounts, the plans and estimates, and all other matters connected with the undertaking, was open to the shareholders at the office of the company. It was a great object with the directors to finish the present section as soon as possible; as soon as that was open the guarantee upon the whole amount of capital paid up came into operation. The Turkish Government were also anxious that the whole line should be completed at the earliest possible moment, and for that purpose were disposed to afford every facility in their power; but, as they were now only dealing with the first section the directors did not think it necessary in their report to go into the details of the other two sections. The number of shares taken up by the public here and in Turkey was 25,000, in addition to which the contractors took 26,000, leaving only between 8,000 and 9,000 at present unappropriated; and the moment the first section of the line was finished, there was no doubt these would be taken up in Turkey, if not in this country. With regard to the repayment of the debentures, that would be in the ordinary course. The railway would be completed long before they would fall due, and then, if necessary, there would be no difficulty in renewing them. The Turkish Government was in the meanwhile desirous of giving every security to the debentures, and with that view had abandoned the original statute of confiscation.

Mr. CRAMPTON, the contractor, said that he had visited Smyrna in December last, and found that various reports had been circulated there reflecting on the undertaking. Two public meetings were held for the purpose of giving those who were opposed to the undertaking an opportunity of stating their objections, but no one came forward to complain. No Government could have acted in a more straightforward manner than the Turkish Government had acted towards them, and their kind feeling towards the undertaking was well known.

Mr. G. SMITH (one of the auditors) felt it due to the Board to bear testimony to the correctness of the accounts. He had never known a company in which the accounts were better kept, or where greater facilities were afforded by the directors for the fullest and most complete examination. He doubted the policy of applying to the Stock-Exchange at the present moment, because in the existing state of depression in which all such property was, he doubted whether full justice would be done to the real position of the company by the public.

After some further observations, the proceedings terminated with a vote of thanks to the Chairman and directors.

CAPE TOWN RAILWAY AND DOCK COMPANY.

The half-yearly meeting of this company was held on Wednesday, March 27, at the London Tavern; Mr. H. WATSON in the chair.

The report was taken as read.

The CHAIRMAN, in moving the adoption of the report, congratulated the shareholders and directors upon the large attendance of proprietors on that occasion. It showed that they felt a due regard for their vested interests, and that they were prepared to extend their confidence to the directors and to give them their support. As recommended at the last meeting, the statement of accounts had been modified. The works were now progressing satisfactorily, and with greater expedition than formerly.

Mr. L. BROWNE, the managing director, seconded the motion for the adoption of the report. He entered into several details with a view to explain the matters referred to in the report. The extension of the line into the centre of Cape Town had been sanctioned by the Government, which would add about two miles of double line to the length of their railway. A temporary station was to be erected at Cape Town, at the suggestion of Sir G. Grey. The iron and zinc work had been executed since the order was given in November last, and the materials for the station had been shipped, so that there was nothing to prevent the completion of the station at Cape Town by June next. The Government had agreed to extend the guarantee of 6 per cent. on an additional sum of £20,000 for the cost of the proposed extension and station, provided the contractor was not bound to execute it under his contract. The authorised capital was £500,000, and, if it should be found necessary to exceed that amount, the sanction of the local Legislature would be required to extend the guarantee to the additional capital. The directors would never ask the proprietors to raise capital beyond the amount authorised without a similar guarantee on the new capital. Stationmasters had been selected from the Great Northern Railway and sent out two months ago. Before the end of 1860 the iron rails for 34 miles of line had been sent out, and 38 miles of sleepers. Since then 11 miles of rails had been shipped and 18 miles of sleepers. There were 10 miles of rails ready to ship, and they had only 10 miles more of rails and about 4 miles of sleepers to ship. They would have no delay in respect of the permanent way materials, and so soon as the earthworks were ready the line could be laid down. They had 6,400 shares in the company, which were paid up in full, and £47,000 had been paid in advance of calls since the last meeting in September. The works were in a forward state between Cape Town and Stellenbosch, and a few miles of line had already been laid. Since the supplemental contract had been signed the works had been carried on in a more satisfactory manner, the payments to the contractor now averaged between £8,000 and £9,000 per month, whereas formerly they did not exceed £3,000 or £4,000 per month.

Mr. J. BARRY, who had resided 43 years in the colony, said the prejudice against the railway had been very strong, but he thought, when it was opened for traffic and its great advantages became known, that a great change would take place, and they would be then anxious to extend railway communication into the interior of the country. The Government was most anxious to extend those works and to give the enterprise all the assistance they could. He also spoke most strongly of the zeal and ability of Mr. Brounger, the resident engineer in the colony, to whom they were greatly indebted for the excellent manner in which the line was being made.

After a short discussion on items of account, the report was adopted, and Mr. Alderman Dakin was elected an auditor.

CHARTERED BANK OF INDIA, CHINA, AND AUSTRALIA.

The seventh ordinary general meeting of the shareholders was held at noon on Thursday, March 28, at the London Tavern; Mr. MITCHELL, M.P., in the chair.

The report, which was read by the secretary, was as follows:—

“The directors have now to present to the shareholders a report on the operations of the bank during the past year, which they trust will prove satisfactory. The result exhibited by the general balance-sheet submitted is a net profit, for the year ending 31st December last, of £45,552. 4s. 3d., and a balance now disposable of £27,502. 17s. 11d. The directors, at the meeting in September last, expressed their opinion of the propriety of increasing the reserve fund, even at the expense of the dividend, in the early stages of the bank's existence. On the present occasion, therefore, they recommend an addition of £5,000 to the reserve fund (which will then stand at £10,000), and a dividend for the past half-year, at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, free of Income tax—making with the distribution of the previous half-year, a dividend at the rate of 6½ per cent. for the whole year—and leaving £1,632. 8s. 5d. of undivided profits to be carried to new account. It has not yet appeared to the directors advisable to increase the number of their branches abroad; they will be quite prepared, however, when the proper time arrives to extend the business of the bank in this manner. The charter confers the privilege of issuing bank notes in the Queen's colonies in the East, but not in the territories formerly under the government of the East India Company. The directors, however, consider it very desirable that the bank should possess this privilege at Singapore, and they propose accordingly to apply for it to the Lords Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury. In terms of the deed of settlement, two extraordinary general meetings must sanction this application. The same sanction is also required for postponement of the ordinary annual meetings from March to April in each year; a measure which the increase of the bank's operations abroad now renders necessary, in order to ensure the due receipt and examination in London, of the accounts from all the agencies, to the previous 31st of December. It is proposed, therefore, that, after the transaction of the general business, the present ordinary meeting shall be constituted an extraordinary one, for the consideration of those two special objects. The directors who now retire are Mr. William Nicol, M.P., Mr. John Gladstone, and Mr. William Macnaughtan; and only one of them being immediately re-eligible, Mr. Macnaughtan offers himself to the choice of the shareholders. Mr. Wm. Schaw Lindsay, M.P., whose term of office expired last year, is again a candidate for the direction. The auditors, Mr. Alderman Dakin and Mr. Jonathan Thorp, now complete their term of office, and offer themselves for re-election for the ensuing year.”

The CHAIRMAN, in moving the adoption of the report, said the directors were quite satisfied that the balance-sheet presented to the shareholders represented the actual state of affairs. In September last they recommended the declaration of an ad interim dividend of seven per cent., in the hope that it would afterwards be maintained. They could not, however, for the present half-year recommend a higher rate of dividend than six per cent., consistently with their wish to increase the reserve fund, as they now proposed to do, raising it to £10,000. India and England had changed places as to the ordinary value of money during the past half-year, until quite recently—the rate having been unusually low in India, while unusually high at home. Another hindrance was felt to arise from the state of war in China. The directors thought they would not do their duty if they did not recommend that an addition of £5,000 should be made to the reserve fund. That the business of the bank was gradually improving was evident from the following figures. In 1859 the amount of profit earned was £37,311. 7s. 5d.; last year it was £45,552. 4s. 3d., being an increase in the year 1860 over 1859 of about £8,300. In 1859 the average dividend was 6 per cent., in 1860 it was 6½ per cent. There was every reason to anticipate that during the ensuing year the prosperity of the bank would progressively increase. Its credit was now fairly established throughout the East; and he saw no reason whatever, therefore, why they should not gradually approximate to the larger dividends which older banks were enabled to declare. The position of the bank at home was also very satisfactory. Evidence of this was afforded by the fact that, whereas in the year 1859 the number of home shareholders was 287, in the last year it increased to 346, and of the class of permanent investors.

Mr. W. NICOL, M.P., seconded the motion, which, after a short discussion, was put and carried unanimously.

Mr. Macnaughtan was re-elected a director; and Mr. W. S. Lindsay, M.P., was added to the direction.

The meeting having been made Extraordinary, a resolution was passed authorising the board to apply to the Treasury for a supplementary charter which will enable the bank to issue notes at Singapore. Another resolution was adopted to the effect that the annual meeting shall in future be held in April instead of March in each year.

The usual vote of thanks was accorded to the chairman and the other directors,

INSTITUTE OF ACTUARIES.

At the fifth ordinary meeting, held on Monday last, William Newmarch, Esq., was unanimously elected a Fellow of the society.

Mr. W. H. PORTER read a letter from Mr. Benjamin Gompertz, expressing his satisfaction at the way in which his writings have been received, and commented on, at the Institute, and presenting copies of the paper which he had recently addressed to the International Congress, and Mr. Porter was requested to convey to Mr. Gompertz the thanks of the meeting for his valuable contribution.

Mr. SPRAGUE, M. A., then introduced the subject of the "Graduation of Series Denoting the Expectation of life at Successive Ages." After remarking that in the process of graduating a table of mortality, an alteration was made, not only in the series of quantities immediately operated upon, but corresponding changes were produced in all the other functions or series of quantities expressing the facts embodied in the table. He drew attention to the diagrams prepared in illustration of his remarks, and pointed out that the fluctuations expressing the numbers out of which one will die in the course of a year, at various ages, (called by some writers the specific intensity) forms when represented in the usual manner by a curve, a very delicate and convenient test of the effect of graduation upon a table of mortality. In particular it represents in a very conspicuous manner the degree of discontinuity introduced in the graduated tables, at the points of junction of the different series employed at different parts of the table, and examples were given from the writings of several gentlemen of high scientific attainments showing the anomalous results following from an oversight of these considerations. Mr. Sprague then stated and explained a number of curious relations between the function described above and the expectation of life, illustrating them by means of De Moivre's well known hypothesis that out of 86 persons born one dies every year till all are dead. One of these properties may be stated as follows:—If the expectation of life throughout any period diminishes by constant first differences, then the number out of which one will die in a year also diminishes through the same interval by constant first differences; but the converse is not necessarily true. Mr. Sprague concluded by a suggestion, that it might be found an improvement upon the methods hitherto in use, to graduate the expectation of life by finite differences, taking as fixed points of departure, values derived directly from the observations, without any adjustment. Having thus got a table of expectations of life which may be made to conform to any required degree of accuracy to the facts deduced from observation, and at the same time to possess any required degree of regularity, the other functions in use, such as the chances of living and dying in a year are to be deduced by the usual formulæ, and will necessarily partake of the regularity and conformity to observation imparted to the expectations.

The Produce and other Markets.

COLONIAL PRODUCE.

LONDON, THURSDAY EVENING, MARCH 28.

The Colonial Markets have been steady at the improvement noticed last week, and in several instances prices show some further advance, with diminished supplies offering. Sugar has met an active demand, and generally at 6d. to 1s. advance, the grocers and refiners making considerable purchases. The small quantity of Coffee brought forward realised extreme rates, and the market continues very steady. A few parcels of Plantation Coffee in second hands have sold at enhanced quotations. Rice has found buyers to a moderate extent at the rates paid last week. Saltpetre remains firm, and there are not many parcels offering. No material change has occurred in Spice. At the Tea sales held yesterday and to day, the better sorts of Assam sold on former terms, common grades being 2d. per lb. lower. Molasses have been but little inquired for. There is still no demand for Cocoa. Rum has been quieter this week, and only small sales have been effected. Few inquiries are made for Nitrate of Soda. The Cotton market remains very firm, and business has been done at extreme rates to ½d. per lb. advanced,

THE TALLOW TRADE.

LONDON, THURSDAY EVENING, MARCH 28.

The actual business in the Tallow Market during the week has again been limited almost entirely to the transactions for consumption, which, owing to the prevailing impression with the trade, that lower prices are imminent, have been remarkably small and carefully restricted to present requirements. The speculative market has also, since our last report, exhibited more sympathy than hitherto with this impression; and although the slight but sufficiently marked tendency to lower quotations is attributed by some interested parties to certain fluctuations merely incidental to the question of "options," we are inclined to believe that the monopolists are really beginning to feel the danger of their position; and we consider the present depression as by far the most genuine feature that their undertaking has for some time exhibited. Apart from any disturbance of our Continental relations, we look in vain for any influence sufficiently strong to enable them for any length of time to maintain the attitude they have assumed.

To-day the business done in connection with the monopoly has been limited to settlements of some of the month's contracts, and the result appears to have tended to further depression in prices. We believe the following would be accepted for 1st Y. C. ready delivery and for the month 58s. 6d., April to June, 57s.:—October to December 55s. per cwt.

The arrivals for the last five days have been 1,121 casks, deliveries 622 casks. The stock is 72,162 casks; showing an increase of 499 casks.

Town Tallow.—Of this there has been a fair supply, and melters have been rather liberal in the discount allowed. The letter price this evening is 56s. 6d., or say 54s. per cwt. nett.

Country Melted Tallow has been rather plentiful, and a great deal has lately been offered in the London market at from 54s. to 54s. 6d. per cwt. nett, free delivered. Casks gratis.

The usual public sales have this week been suspended. We give the following as a summary of prices, &c., of the articles specified.

Odessa has been in moderate demand, taking the place of Y. C., 56s. to 57s. being paid for mixed to fine Sheep, and 54s. 6d. to 55s. per cwt. for good to fine Ox.

South American.—Next to nothing done since our last, 56s. 6d. to 57s. are the highest quotations for fine in pipes. A little second quality has been sold at about 55s. per cwt.

Australian.—There is now very little offering. Fine Ox, say 53s. 6d. to 54s. per cwt. No Sheep of fine quality in the market, 56s. per cwt. was yesterday obtained for a small quantity off colour. The market has been cleared of inferior sorts.

East India.—We hear of no business worth reporting. Prices would be as last quoted.

North American continues at our last quotations; but of this article also there is very little in the market. Caution must be used in buying this tallow as some of it, of very good appearance, has been tampered with, leaving it deficient in body.

Continental.—Several parcels have been disposed of since the 22nd inst. French takes the lead in quality, and 55s. to 57s. per cwt. have been obtained for good to fine descriptions.

Cocoa Nut Oil.—Rather less business has been done than in the previous week; but prices have, all things considered, shown more steadiness than might have been expected. Cochin still brings 51s. for fine, and 50s. 6d. for good quality. Ceylon 48s. 6d. to 49s. per cwt. In Sydney oil there is nothing doing, for want of supplies.

Palm Oil—has barely maintained its position of last week. Not more than 44s. 6d. per cwt. can under ordinary conditions be obtained for fine Lagos; and low qualities are very difficult of sale.

Palm Nut Oil—maintains its price, the market is again bare of stock.

South American Horse Grease.—We hear of very small transactions only, at 37s. 6d. to 38s. per cwt.—Furnished by Messrs. Culverwell, Brooks, & Co.

LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET.

LIVERPOOL, THURSDAY MORNING, MARCH 28.

The market opened firm on Monday; the sales reached 25,000 bales, and prices, compared with those of last Friday, showed an improvement of ½d. to ¾d. per lb. During the last two or three days, however, the market has exhibited less firmness, with diminished transactions, and present quotations are a shade lower than those current on Monday, but in some instances above the rates of Friday.

LIVERPOOL, THURSDAY EVENING, MARCH 28.

No change has occurred in the market to-day; the sales amount to 8,000 bales, including 2,000 on speculation and for exportation, and the imports to 15,636 bales. The sales since last Friday comprise 68,870 bales, of which 12,620 were taken on speculation, and 18,130 for exportation, and the imports 71,182 bales. The stock now stands at 920,200 bales.

The Corn Trade.

GENERAL REMARKS.

LONDON, THURSDAY EVENING, MARCH 28.

The weather in the United Kingdom has continued changeable since last Friday. Heavy clouds have filled the atmosphere, allowing only at short intervals the sun's rays to pierce through the dense mass of vapours, and this is one of the causes of the comparatively low temperature. There has been less rain this week than in the preceding week, still the ground is saturated with moisture, and the air full of dampness. The wind-current has been principally from the South-west, turning Eastward. Agricultural operations have been pushed forward this week very actively. Farmers are doing their utmost to regain the time that has been lost by the unfavourable state of the weather since the beginning of February. Wheat-sowing may be considered nearly at an end—crops of spring wheat being too precarious to be extensively tried upon. A large surface of land is yet to be sown, and most of it will probably be used for growing barley and oats, for which there is still time to sow up to the end of next month (April), though the sooner and better. The appearance of the growing grain-crops continue a subject of complaint. Generally, the plants are growing thin, with numerous barren patches between, which will have to be re-sown. Vegetation is, in general, very backward this season. Potatoe planting is now going on, but what fate awaits this year's crop with so great an excess of moisture, time will show.

SUPPLY.—Compared with preceding weeks a further diminution in the delivery of home-grown corn has taken place in most markets of the United Kingdom during the last eight days, farmers being very busy with out-door work. The latest official returns of the quantity of grain sold in England and Wales, report as follows:—Wheat, 65,778 qrs., at 54s.; barley, 42,308 qrs., at 38s. 6d.; oats, 13,986 qrs., at 23s. 10d. per qr.

IMPORTS.—The imports of foreign grain have slightly increased during the last week, upon the preceding week, but are still below the quantity reported a fortnight since. Wheat continues returned in by far the largest proportion of any kind of grain, principally from America, the South of Europe, and a portion from the Baltic. The prevalence of westerly and southerly winds, during the last fortnight, has kept out larger arrivals from the North of Europe. The imports of barley, oats, and maize are comparatively small.

The British Corn Trade has improved this week in tone and activity for all sorts of fine wheat, at an advance of 1s. to 2s. per qr. upon last week's rates. Secondary sorts however continued neglected, there being a large quantity of home-grown, which is quite unfit for bread making. Flour.—The continuance of large imports of American has prevented prices participating in the improvement which has taken place in the price of wheat. The reduction of the discount rate from 8 to 7 per cent. has somewhat relaxed in financial quarters the rigour which for so long a time straitened the trade. The falling off in foreign grain imports, and the unfavourable prospects of the harvest in the United Kingdom are circumstances which have also contributed to increase the firmness of holders, and to impart to the course of prices, especially of wheat, an upward tendency. Barley.—The sale has been dull at last week's prices. Oats, with a quiet demand, are unaltered at last week's quotations. Maize is more inquired after, at firm prices. Beans—firm. Peas—quiet.

THE STATISTICS OF AMERICAN TRADE.—The returns of the trade of the port of New York for the month of February show the total importation of foreign goods to have been £2,813,000, against £3,833,000 in the corresponding month of last year. The deliveries from warehouse, however, had been £3,220,000, so that stocks were diminishing. The imports of foreign goods during the first eight months of the fiscal year, viz., July to February inclusive, had been £29,200,000, against £31,000,000 in the same eight months of the preceding year; while the importation of foreign specie was £3,540,000, against £420,000.

PROGRESS IN RUSSIA.—The Emperor of Russia, in an autograph letter to the Grand-Duke Constantine, in which he thanks him for the zeal he has displayed in furthering the emancipation of the serfs, at the same time announces his intention of forming a special committee for establishing the organisation of the whole rural class of the empire after its emancipation on a general and uniform basis. The Grand-Duke Constantine is appointed president of this committee.

BOARD OF TRADE, WHITEHALL, MARCH 26.—The Right Hon. the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade have received from the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs a copy of a despatch from her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires and Consul-General at Hamburg, enclosing a copy of a decree passed by the Senate of Bremen, abolishing from the 1st inst. the duties levied until that date upon goods in transit through the territory of Bremen, as also the export duties charged in lieu thereof.

LONDON GENERAL OMNIBUS COMPANY (Limited).

At the SECOND ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING of the Shareholders, held at the London Tavern, B. shopsgate-street, on WEDNESDAY, 27th inst.,

F. J. LAW, Esq., in the chair,
It was moved and seconded—
1. That the report and statement of accounts for the year 1860, now submitted, copies of which have been sent to the registered address of every shareholder of the Company, he received and adopted.

Whereupon Mr. PREL moved; and Mr. SNOW seconded:—
That this meeting be adjourned to 31st of May.

That a committee of 25 or more members be appointed to investigate thoroughly the books and accounts of the Company, and that they have the assistance of an experienced accountant.

That the Directors afford them every facility for so doing.
That the Committee recommend proper persons to fill the office of directors now vacant, and further report fully to a general meeting to be hereafter called.

That the cost of such investigation be paid out of the funds of the Company.

The amendment having been put, was lost; the original motion was then put and carried by a large majority.

Mr. BENOIT, Mr. WESTMACOTT, and Mr. LAURAT, rose and stated that they had been entrusted by a large number of French shareholders with their proxies to move that a sum of £15,625, 17s. 11d. should be reserved out of the balance of the profit and loss account of 1859, and left to the credit of that account, to be divided at some future time among the shareholders, in case the accounts may admit of it.

It was decided by the legal advisers of the Company that the motion could not be put to the Meeting, as the Report had been received and adopted; but on the appeal of the Chairman to the Meeting, leave was given to the Board to deal with the question as they thought expedient, it being admitted that the wishes of the French shareholders were fully entitled to consideration.

2. That, in addition to the annual general meeting of shareholders appointed to be held in the month of March in every year, an extraordinary meeting shall also be held in the month of September in every year; and that a report and statement of accounts, made up to the 30th June preceding, shall be submitted to the shareholders thereat.—Carried unanimously.

3. That William Sheldon, Esq., of Peterborough Villas, Fulham, be re-elected a Director of the Company.—Carried unanimously.

4. That Anthony Nicholas Arnani, Esq., of Adelaide-road, Haversham-hill, and Guildhall-chambers, be re-elected a Director of the Company.—Carried unanimously.

5. That Mr. Frederick Toché, of Rue Taitbout, Paris, be re-elected a Director of the Company.—Carried unanimously.

6. That Henry Benjamin Killick Kent, Esq., of Gloster-road, South Kensington; and Richard Sedgwick, Esq., of Maryland Point, Stratford, be re-elected Auditors of the Company for the current year.—Carried unanimously.

7. It was moved by Mr. BENOIT, and seconded by Mr. LAURAT, and carried:—

That Mr. Laurat be elected a Director of the Company, to represent the interests of the French shareholders.

F. J. LAW, Chairman.
A. G. CHURCH, Secretary.

The Chairman having left his seat,
It was moved by Mr. SNOW, and seconded by Mr. PHILLIPS, and carried unanimously:

That the thanks of the meeting be given to the Chairman for his able and impartial conduct in the chair this day.

A. G. CHURCH, Secretary.

Capitalists who seek safe and profitable investments, free from risk, should act only upon the soundest information; the market prices of the day are for the most part governed by the immediate supply and demand, together with the operations of speculators without reference to the bona fide merits of the property.

Mines afford a wider range for profit than any other public securities, and pay dividends bi-monthly, varying from 15 to 30 per cent. per annum. Instances frequently occur of young Mines rising in value 400 to 500 per cent. The undersigned devotes special attention to the above, and affords every information to capitalists, and effects purchases or sales upon the best possible terms.

THE FALL IN THE VALUE OF MONEY.

WE have to congratulate the trade of the country upon the reduction in the Bank of England rate of discount from 7 to 6 per cent.—an alteration which was made on Thursday, the 4th instant. The Bank return (published in another column) is of a less favourable character than had been generally anticipated, the Reserve having diminished £270,221, whilst, of the £434,000 in newly-imported gold which was purchased by the Bank during the week embraced in this account, only £144,674 has remained in that establishment. The bulk of the balance has, doubtless, been absorbed in the Government disbursements usual at this period. Nevertheless, the amount of specie and bullion in the Bank is now raised to £13,000,130, so that the rate of discount obviously could no longer be kept at 7 per cent.

We have little doubt that the value of money will fall further, and that a reduction in the Bank rate to 5 per cent. is merely a question of a few weeks. The grounds upon which we base this belief may be briefly summarised as follows:—1. The rise in the New York exchange to 107½ puts a stop to the flow of gold to America. 2. The Continental Exchanges are at a fairly satisfactory level. 3. The demand for silver for the East exhibits, as yet, little or no revival. 4. A general contraction of trade is in progress, as evidenced by the decrease of no less than 21 per cent. in the exports for the month of February, and in the gloomy accounts from the manufacturing districts. 5. Although the April dividends are not yet paid, the rate of discount for the best bills in Lombard-street is fully ¼ per cent. below the Bank minimum. 6. The general market is indebted to the Bank for advances to a less extent than is usual at this period, and will have, consequently, to repay proportionately less to that establishment when the dividend money is released.

THE REVENUE—THE ALARMING SCALE OF THE PUBLIC EXPENDITURE.

THE revenue of a country is hardly any criterion of its financial position unless at the same time we know its expenditure. A country may be very rich with a revenue of £50,000,000 if it expends but £45,000,000, and very poor with a revenue of £70,000,000 if its outgoings amount to £75,000,000. It matters, therefore, but little to the public what the revenue is until we have the estimates of expenditure for the coming year. One thing, however, the present revenue returns unmistakeably show us, viz., that we must look for the means of placing the finances of the country in a sound position not to an increasing revenue, but to a reduced expenditure. The year's accounts, ending the 31st of March, show the following results:—

	Increase.	Decrease.
Customs ... ..	...	£1,155,125
Excise ... ..	...	926,000
Stamps ... ..	£304,814
Taxes ... ..	...	105,000
Property-tax ... ..	1,327,710
Post Office ... ..	90,000
Crown Lands ... ..	6,089
Miscellaneous ... ..	...	348,483

Consequently, there is a net decrease in the year of £805,995. The revenue for the year ending 31st of March, 1860, amounted to £71,089,669, and that for the year ending the 31st of March, 1861—one of the most trying years this country has ever experienced—has amounted to £70,283,674. The deficiency is only a fraction more than 1 per cent. Now, there is nothing whatever alarming in this—quite the reverse; but what alarms us, is the fact that we are spending much more than £70,000,000 a-year; and that we are entering on a new financial year, wherein, from the depressed state of trade, the high rate of money, the diminution of employment in the manufacturing districts, and the high price of food, a falling off in the Excise, Stamps, and Customs, is almost certain to be experienced. It must be remembered that all these circumstances point to a diminution of consumption and of revenue.

What makes this reflection the more serious is, that our expenditure is upwards of £70,000,000 in a time of peace—when every nation in the world is expressing goodwill towards us, and courting our alliance. We see in this enormous, and in great part unproductive, expenditure, a stoppage to public works and to private enterprise—the fostering of a military instead of a commercial spirit. We know the end of these things, and, therefore, while there is yet time we warn the public to re-echo the cry which was raised recently by Mr. Caird in the House of Commons—namely, that the present period of dear food, unpromising crops, diminishing employment, and declining trade, is no time for an excessive scale of public expenditure. The nation cannot bear it. In time of peace it looks naturally for relief from excessive burthens, whereas it is practically made to carry war imposts through whole years of peace. Such a policy cannot fail to cripple the progress of the country, and to impair the springs of that elasticity of revenue which has hitherto enabled it to rise superior to every burthen cast upon it. The strain must not be kept up for ever; the bow must not always be kept bent.

FRIVOLOUS, VEXATIOUS AND UNPRODUCTIVE TAXATION.

It is greatly to be desired, though scarcely, perhaps, to be hoped, that the forthcoming Budget, even if it be barren of any other fruit, will at least relieve the commercial world from one of those petty inflictions which annoy them much, whilst producing little in the shape of receipts to the Exchequer. We refer to the paltry taxes on bills of lading and dock warrants, and the other small exactions which Mr. Gladstone delights in.

Mr. Gladstone's scheme of repealing indirect taxation to the amount of £2,300,000, and simplifying our tariff by levying duties on merely a few articles of great consumption, whilst admitting all the rest duty free, was unquestionably a bold and comprehensive measure which the commercial world duly appreciated. But to inflict such a drawback as a penny tax on goods, packages, and parcels, on goods in bulk, by weight, by measure, and by number, and on all animals imported, which altogether has only produced £82,868. 3s. 1d., from the middle of May to the end of December, is a piece of legislation we cannot understand. There never was a Chancellor of the Exchequer who was capable at once of such great and such small things.

We are glad to observe that the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce have sent in a memorial for the repeal of these frivolous and vexatious imposts. The present is the moment when this memorial ought to be supported by every Chamber of Commerce in the kingdom, and by the mercantile community generally. As, in a financial point of view, the produce of these taxes is utterly insignificant, there might then be a good prospect either of their abandonment by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, or of their obliteration from the statute-book by the House of Commons.

THE ACCOUNTS OF PUBLIC COMPANIES.

No. III.

THE LONDON AND NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY COMPANY (continued).

In our last impression, reviewing the statistics of the London and North-Western Railway Company, for the ten years from 1845 to 1855, we traced the growth of the capital of the Company from a total of £14,122,050 to £33,066,800, the growth of the half-yearly revenue from £1,002,270 to £1,396,283, and the simultaneous fall in the dividend on the unguaranteed stock from 10 to 4½ per cent. per annum. Taking next the period of six years, from December 31, 1854, to December 31, 1860, we showed that, whilst the total capital has increased from £32,774,552 to £36,408,434, and the total half-yearly revenue from £1,523,945 to £2,312,210, the balance disposable for dividend on the unguaranteed stock has risen only from £628,802 to £691,505, and the rate of dividend on that stock has, consequently, remained almost without recovery, being 5½ per cent. per annum at December 31, 1860, against 5 per cent. per annum at December 31, 1854. Starting from these premises, we have set ourselves the task of endeavouring to answer the question—one of deep importance to the holders of unguaranteed railway stocks—how happens it that, whilst the revenue increases so rapidly, the ordinary stock gets no benefit? The answer is to be found in an investigation of the Company's expenditure on revenue account. We see how rapid is the increase in the gross revenue—let us try to ascertain what has become of it. The plan which we propose to pursue is the same as that adopted in investigating the Great Western Company's accounts; that is to say, we will compare the present expenditure with that which prevailed not six but four years ago. The examination will afford, not indeed a satisfactory, but a perfectly intelligible answer.

For the half-year ending the 31st December, 1856, and for the half-year ending the 31st December last, the Company's figures stand as follows:—

LONDON AND NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY.

Date.	Total capital.	Total Revenue for the half-year.	Amount for dividend on unguaranteed capital.	Dividend per cent. per annum.
Dec. 31, 1856	£33,617,534	£1,740,745	£687,606	5½
Dec. 31, 1860	36,408,434	2,312,210	691,505	5½

The question is—How did it occur that, with an increase of £571,465 in the half-yearly revenue, the dividend fund for the unguaranteed stock remained almost stationary in amount, and the rate of dividend actually declined ¼ per cent.? What became of the large sum of £571,465 representing the mere increase in the gross earnings?

We will look first into what are termed the working charges. A large increase in these is natural, for an increased traffic cannot be carried without a proportionate increase of cost. But the increase in the expenses appears to have been unduly large. The principal items of "working expenses" stand as follows for the two periods:—

	Dec. 31, 1856.	Dec. 31, 1860.	Increase.
Maintenance of way, stations, &c. ...	£68,750	£123,827	£55,077
Locomotive power ...	214,130	320,142	106,012
Coaching expenses ...	79,975	111,576	31,601
Repairs and renewal of coaches, horse-boxes, and trucks (after deducting amounts paid to or received from other companies) ...	27,243	32,604	5,361
Police expenses (wages) ...	26,945	31,626	4,681
Merchandise traffic expenses ...	117,202	158,920	41,718
Repairs and renewal of waggons (net—after deducting sums paid to or received from other companies) ...	34,306	45,006	10,700
Compensation for accidents and losses ...	11,272	17,814	6,542
General charges ...	29,013	39,909	10,896
Law expenses ...	4,074	4,360	286
Steam-boat expenses (Chester & Holyhead) ...	...	14,161	14,161
Total of the above ...	£612,910	£899,945	£287,035

The above are the principal items of "working expenses." The grand total of "working expenses" of all kinds was £907,297 at Dec. 31, 1860, against £615,668 at Dec. 31, 1856, showing an increase of £291,629. Consequently we see that of the £571,465 of increased revenue, £291,629 or equal to 51 per cent., has gone in the cost of earning it. This leaves £279,836, representing the increase in the net profits.

The next considerable items of half-yearly expenditure are £33,470 of parish rates and taxes and their attendant expenses, against £32,005 at Dec. 31, 1856, and £33,543 of Government duty on passenger traffic, against £28,573 at Dec. 31, 1856. The total of expenses as yet enumerated is thus raised to £974,310, against £676,247 at Dec. 31, 1856. The surplus of net increased profits is thereby reduced from £279,836 to £273,401, on a comparison of the two periods; but the latter is still a considerable sum, and the ordinary stockholder's property would at this moment have been worth half as much again in the market had the increase been preserved for division amongst them.

But we now come to a disastrous record—a record which the shareholder cannot study without chagrin, for it tells of past extravagance, and it shows how the profits of this immense undertaking have been diluted by its injudicious extension in a great variety of directions, and by the fatal policy of subsidies and guarantees. Witness the following figures:—

	Half-year ending Dec. 31, 1856.	Dec. 31, 1860.
Interest on loans and debenture stock ...	£232,071	£234,714
Expenses connected with Parliamentary and legal proceedings ...	15,000	20,000
Preston and Wyre Railway deficiency ...	4,019	—
Buckinghamshire Railway guaranteed rent ...	18,299	24,900
Cannock Mineral Railway do. do. ...	—	2,750
North Union Railway do. do. ...	24,635	24,447
Chester and Holyhead Railway (guaranteed dividend on preference shares, and interest on loans) ...	—	54,546
Lancaster and Carlisle Railway (dividend and interest) ...	—	120,664
Kendal and Windermere Railway do. do. ...	—	4,170
Shropshire Union Railway estimated deficiency ...	16,471	23,381
Manchester, Buxton, and Matlock Railway deficiency ...	574	795
Deficiency on Leascs of Leeds and Liverpool and Rochdale Canals ...	979	1,088
Estimated dividend payable to holders of Stour Valley Railway ...	10,354	13,307
Warrington and Stockport Railway, dividend and interest ...	—	5,564
Warrington and Garston rent ...	—	5,000
Stockport, Disley, and Whaley Bridge, moiety of traffic ...	—	3,844
Depreciation and insurance of Chester and Holyhead steamboats ...	—	6,750
Haydon-square Depot, interest, &c. ...	1,982	2,104
Accident account, special ...	—	17,285
Replacement of viaducts (balance) ...	—	1,613
Renewal of road ...	56,667	83,333
Total of the above ...	£381,051	£650,255

The total of the items comprised in the above table is £650,255 at December 31, 1860, against £381,051 at December 31, 1856, showing an increase of £269,204. Now, this sum is within £4,197 of the excess of net income (£273,401) which we have brought forward from the comparisons already instituted. We have, therefore, answered the question propounded at the outset, and have shown how the increase of £571,465 in the gross earnings has been disposed of. The figures may be worked out as follows:—

Gross income, Dec. 31, 1856 ...	£1,740,745
Deduct expenses and charges of all kinds ...	1,067,215

Leaves for the unguaranteed stock ...	673,530
---------------------------------------	---------

Gross income, Dec. 31, 1860 ...	£2,312,210
Deduct expenses and charges of all kinds ...	1,633,514

Leaves for the unguaranteed stock ...	678,696
---------------------------------------	---------

And the manner in which the increase in the expenses has arisen may be recapitulated as under:—

Increase in working expenses ...	£287,035
Increase in parish rates and passenger duty ...	6,435
Increase in interest charges, and charges on leases of, and arrangements with, other lines ...	227,339
Increase in cost of renewal of road ...	26,666

It will be noticed that the total above given corresponds very nearly with the amount of the total gross increase of revenue, which was £571,465.

We do not know where railway shareholders can look for clearer testimony as to the inevitable effect produced by the policy of railway extensions, subsidies, and guarantees. Of course a considerable portion of the remarkable increase in the gross revenue of the London and North-Western Railway Company is due to the merging into that undertaking of many subsidiary lines, but what the holders of the £25,035,976 of ordinary consolidated stock have a right to complain of, is, that they get no benefit in the shape of increased income from the progress of trade and of traffic. Working expenses or other charges eat up everything. If this is to be the permanent and barren result of the ceaseless additions to the general scope of the undertaking, it requires no demonstration that the policy is a false one. We are convinced that under other circumstances, under a less ambitious policy, the dividend would rise. It is solely to the disappointment which is felt by the proprietary and the public at the absence of progressive improvement in the dividend that the depreciation at which London and North-Western stock now stands in the market is ascribable. We make no charges against the highly respectable body of gentlemen who devote their attention with a more than ordinary degree of earnestness to the management of the affairs of this colossal undertaking, but we do say—and we are sure the proprietors generally will agree with us—that inasmuch as the present magnitude of the concern is one main reason why a sufficiently strict control cannot be kept over the expenses, a stand ought to be made at once and for ever against the system of extension. Unless this be done we confess we cannot assign to London and North-Western Railway stock the position which, from its intrinsic merits, it ought to hold amongst our home railway investments. Let it be remembered that of late the progress of traffic has been steadily upwards. As the dividend has, nevertheless, remained stationary, it is not a pleasant prospect for the shareholders to look forward to a check to traffic, arising from the increasing dulness of trade, and from a deficient harvest. All railway experience shows that when a decline occurs in railway receipts, there is no proportionate decline in railway expenses.

STATISTICS OF THE TRADE AND FINANCE OF 1860.

WE would direct the attention of our readers to some valuable statistics on the trade and finance of the past year (given at page 276), with which we have been obligingly favoured by Mr. W. F. Spackman, Junior, whose reputation for compilations of this kind is well established. These tables are well deserving of study, for they afford materials for many instructive comparisons, as we will take the present opportunity of showing.

In the first place, it is instructive to notice how important an effect the loss or gain of two or three millions of gold has upon the money market. Mr. Spackman's tables show that a variation of only £3,279,690 in the amount of bullion in the issue department (by which the issue of notes is governed), was sufficient to carry the Bank rate of discount up from  $2\frac{1}{2}$  to 6 per cent. The comparison stands thus:—

Jan. 4.	Nov. 21.
Bullion in Issue } £15,815,685—£12,535,995 ... being a decrease of £3,279,690.
Department }
Rate of Discount ... $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent ... 6 per cent. ... being a rise of $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.

The fluctuations in the Bank's reserve were from £8,465,590 on the 4th of January, to £6,338,385 on the 14th of November—a difference of only £2,127,205. It follows, therefore, that those persons who watch the movements in bullion as a sure guide to the movements in the value of money, are quite right. Considering the magnitude of our capital, it seems absurd that a variation to so small an extent in our stock of bullion should produce so immense an effect, but the fact is not to be disputed.

Glancing at the figures relating to the imports and exports of specie and bullion, it will be seen that the excess of exports over imports for the year was only £2,488,310, so that, of the (say) three millions of gold which was lost by the Bank of England during the year (from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31) about half a million appears not to have gone abroad, but to have been absorbed in the internal circulation. This makes the effect produced upon the rate of discount by the working of the Act of 1844 seem all the more disproportionate. It would appear that there can be little real confidence or safety under a system which, whilst binding up the Bank of England, as regards buying and selling gold, permits, nay enacts, the anomaly of an issue of £14,000,000 of notes unrepresented by gold yet payable in gold. The Bank of France has no such machinery, yet affords more accommodation to trade than the Bank of England does, whilst maintaining the convertibility of the note—the grand aim of all currency legislation. Were the Bank of France quite free from Government control, as it ought to be, so that political considerations should not in any way interpose amongst those of a purely financial order, there is no doubt that the superiority of its system would be still more strikingly demonstrated. To illustrate the working of the two systems, let us suppose a “run” for gold upon either establishment. The Bank of France would raise its rate of discount, and if the pressure were very severe, would, as a temporary resource, buy gold in the requisite quantities in every neighbouring market. Any loss that might attend these purchases would be merely momentary and trivial, compared with the advantage sought for—namely, the maintenance of specie payments. By making a moderate rise in its rate of discount, and by keeping a tight rein upon its note issues, it would soon succeed in stemming the tide, and by perfectly legitimate means. Rightly managed, the position of the Bank of France, as regards its power to redeem its note circulation on demand ought to be impregnable. It is only where, under the pressure of the Government, or under bad management, an excessive issue of notes is made, or where (as was seen recently) the strange error is committed of accumulating the reserve of specie in a metal which is practically unavailable, that there can be ground for anxiety in this respect. And surely it would be very easy for the legislature of France to lay down a few rules which, without the cramping machinery erected in England, would completely obviate dangers of the kind alluded to.

On the other hand, in the event of the Bank of England being subjected to a “run,” or other pressure, the directors have virtually but one resource—that of raising the rate of discount by successive steps, until, by creating a tremendous degree of stringency, under the pressure of which the trade of the country withers, they force a favourable turn in the foreign exchanges, check all out-goings, and attract foreign capital. It is a cruel process, one that is watched with grim satisfaction by capitalists of the Jones-Lloyd school, and with equal apprehension by the mercantile classes. France accomplishes the same aims without setting up an “automaton” like Sir Robert Peel's to paralyse her trade. If the Bank of England be pressed upon for gold the directors cannot, as a means of temporary relief, send out and buy it as the Bank of France can. They are bound by law to give a fixed price for standard gold; and, as the gold goes, a proportionate amount of the currency is extinguished. The directors of the Bank of England can, of course, only act in accordance with the law, for they are really bound hand and foot. They work the machine as long as they can. The faster gold goes out, and the faster the amount of currency in existence is reduced, the more do the commercial public press for it, in times of alarm, until the reserve in the Bank perhaps falls to a strikingly low point. Then, as the public are aware that the law says, “The two or three millions of notes now held in the ‘reserve’ by the Bank of England are the entire amount that shall be created until more gold comes in,” they become alarmed and hasten to draw it out of the Bank. The result is, that the whole of the principle contended for at the cost of so much disturbance is abandoned, for the violation of the law is necessarily sanctioned by the Executive, its constituted guardians. This accomplished, the panic surely abates. The whole of such disturbance arises because we persist in forcing the Bank to issue £14,000,000 of notes represented by nothing, and to sell gold to all comers at a fixed price, at the same time that we prevent it from paying more than a fixed price for gold. A more cumbrous system, and one more full of anomalies, was, probably, never invented. That the Bank Act was not once more abrogated in 1860 is, in our opinion, chiefly owing to the fact, that the influences in operation, though of an adverse character, were not sufficiently disturbing to produce alarm. But to say that the public have any abiding faith in the integrity of the Act of 1844 would be false. Every year our present currency legislation meets with sharper criticism, and this not from charlatans or theorists, but from earnest, experienced, and thoughtful men of business, who have the best opportunities of practically testing its mode of action.

The tables to which we refer have also the merit of showing at a glance from what quarter we were pressed upon for gold in the past year. Comparing 1860 with 1859, we see that we received £1,907,997 less of Australian gold, £4,880,399 less of specie from the United States, £3,263,202 less from France, and £4,621,647 less from all other countries, whilst we sent £1,712,878 more of specie to the United States. The result was a net loss of specie and bullion to the extent of £2,488,310 (as before stated), notwithstanding the heavy and important decrease of £7,190,409 in the shipments of specie and bullion to India and China.

THE PERMANENT PREJUDICE INFLICTED ON THE FUNDS BY THE COMPETITION OF NEW SECURITIES.

WE have frequently called attention to the change which is taking place in the course of investments. The indications of this change are becoming more numerous and more decided than ever. The effect may be seen in the existing large supply of Government Three per Cent. Stock in the Stock Exchange. Owing to this feature, combined with the realisations by the Bank of England and by Government, the rate for loans in the Stock Exchange has been maintained for a long time past at a point which is regarded as remarkable even by the oldest members. Another indication is the severe depreciation of Exchequer Bills and India Bonds—securities which have nearly always commanded a premium, but which are now at a serious discount. The fact is, Government Three per Cent. Securities no longer command the notice of investors to the extent usual in former times. People must obtain a good deal more than 3 per cent. per annum for their money, in these days of high cost of living and heavy taxation. Government Three per Cent. Stock is, accordingly, out of fashion, and is freely supplied by holders, who embark in securities yielding a higher rate of interest. The process of transfer is promoted by the simultaneous creation of new and safe securities, offering the higher rate which investors desire. Indian Government Stocks have been freely created of late years, and have been absorbed to a vast extent. Last of all, a new Indian Five per Cent. Stock has been formed, secured upon the revenues of our Indian Empire, which are administered directly by the British Crown. This stock is transferable at the Bank of England with as much facility and as cheaply as Consols. The dividends on it are also payable at the Bank of England. The object of its creators seems to have been, in fact, to give it the prestige of a British Government security, in so far as this can be accomplished without actually and formally impressing the Imperial guarantee. A form of security more acceptable to investors could scarcely be devised. As is perfectly natural, therefore, this new Indian Five per Cent. Stock has competed powerfully with Consols. Why should investors content themselves with  $3\frac{1}{4}$  per cent. per annum from the English Exchequer, when they can obtain a clear 5 per cent. from the Anglo-Indian Exchequer, which is administered by the same authority?

It may, perhaps, be objected that the present low prices of English Government securities are accounted for by the high value of money. We will, therefore, avail ourselves of Mr. Spackman's tables (given in another column) in corroboration of our view. We thence derive the striking fact that the average price of Consols for the whole year 1860 was only 93 $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent., although the average rate of discount was but moderate—namely,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. What is equally worthy of notice is, that in January, 1860, when the Bank rate of discount was only  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent.—a point to which it is not likely to fall again speedily—the price of Consols was not higher than 95 $\frac{3}{4}$ . This brief review is sufficient to show that, even under the most favourable circumstances, the funds are not likely ever again to attain the high range of prices witnessed ten years ago. The competition with them is too great. On the contrary, the probability is that, as new and eligible securities, particularly those which are based upon the now improving revenues of India, come forward, the English Funds will range permanently at a lower level than we have been used to. A fall in the value of money would probably have a stimulating effect for a time, but the general tendency of the prices of the funds in relation to the prices of other securities is evidently as we have described it.

THE STATE OF TRADE.

(COMPILED FROM NUMEROUS LOCAL REPORTS.)

TRADE in the manufacturing districts presents, as yet, little or no sign of revival. The reduction in the Bank rate of discount has been received with great satisfaction, and will doubtless have a good effect upon business, but the tendency in most departments is still towards a contraction of mercantile engagements.

The accounts from Manchester describe the market as generally inactive and depressed. In goods there is a decided increase of dullness, and though there is no material change in quotations, a gloomy feeling pervades the market, and the tendency of prices is downward. The business done has been very trifling in amount. Printing-cloth is still neglected. Shirtings and goods suitable for the East are especially depressed. The great stoppage of looms through the "turn-outs" has had no effect on the cloth-market. The inquiry for yarns is very spiritless, and most kinds are a shade lower in value. Generally speaking, no business can be done in yarns without a slight concession in price, and the transactions are very inconsiderable. The market in all departments is affected by the unfavourable weather and the clouded aspect of political affairs on the continent.

At Leeds the cloth-halls have been very poorly attended. The business done was to a very small extent. There is no change in the quiet aspect of the trade. Both wools and cloths maintain late prices.

At Rochdale there were not many purchases of flannel made. The manufacturers refuse to make any concession from late quotations, and merchants are cautious in both their purchases and their orders. Yorkshire goods are in somewhat improved demand. There is a little better feeling in the flannel trade as a whole, and anticipations of some improvement are expressed.

The report from Bradford, dated Thursday, states that worsted yarns are dull. Prices continue firm. The export houses withhold orders pending the news from Leipsic. The home trade in pieces is affected prejudicially by the unfavourable weather. It is also influenced by the turnout of the Bolton spinners. Nevertheless, the improved tone noticed last week is still perceptible. The American merchants are literally doing nothing.

At Leicester very little business has been transacted this week, partly owing to the Easter holidays; indeed, the hosiery trade has not been known to be so dull for the time of the year for several seasons past. In the adjacent framework-knitting districts business is also very flat, and many of the operatives continue unemployed.

At Nottingham the Easter holidays have interfered with business in the lace trade this week, and very little has been done at the warehouses. Much machinery is still standing. In the hosiery trade there is no favourable change noticeable; manufacturers are keeping down stocks. Many of the lace and hosiery hands are out of employment.

At Huddersfield the market is still very quiet. Some few buyers have been about, but their transactions are continued on a very limited scale for the season.

The manufacturing trades at Wolverhampton and Birmingham are very much depressed; there are very few branches in which orders are not smaller than they have been for many years at this part of the season. In neither the home nor foreign trade does there appear to be the slightest prospect of any return of animation at present.

The annual meeting of the Company of Copper Miners in England was held on Wednesday. The accounts show that in the year ending the 26th of January, 1861, there has been a loss of £1,490. At present the works are fully employed, but only at a trifling profit. No dividends were proposed on either the ordinary or preference capital.

The half-yearly meeting of the Sambre and Meuse Railway Company is called for the 17th of April, in London, and that of the West Flanders Railway Company for the 19th of April, also in London.

THE COFFEE AND CHICORY DUTIES AND THE BUDGET.—Among the reports which are current as to the fiscal changes contemplated by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who has announced the Budget for the 15th of April, the re-adjustment of the coffee and chicory duties is one of the most prominent. It is tolerably well known that the public income of the year will not realise Mr. Gladstone's expectations twelve months ago, and the certainty that the equalisation of the duties on coffee and chicory would result in an increase of revenue from those articles is not unlikely, on that account, to influence the Chancellor's arrangements. A letter in the Times' City Article, of Saturday, thus speaks of this probable alteration:—"As to the change in the duty upon chicory, it is thought that in justice to the public it should be equalised with that on coffee. The charge now upon chicory is only 16 per ton, while that upon coffee is £28. But the retail price of each is, as a rule, the same. The consumption of chicory is now very large. As yet the accounts for the past year are not published, but for the year 1859 the total quantity of chicory imported was 13,345 tons, while that of coffee entered for home use did not exceed 15,398 tons. An equal duty of 2d. per lb. would, therefore, not only be fair to all, but would give an increased revenue." This statement of a writer practically acquainted with the subject fully confirms what has been advanced in this journal with reference to the equalisation of the duties, and may be expected to have its due weight with the Chancellor of the Exchequer.—Liverpool Albion.

THE PERNAMBUCO RAILWAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "MONEY MARKET REVIEW."

SIR,—You have referred to the position of the Brazilian railways in several articles, showing the interest you feel in those undertakings; and, as the next meeting of the Pernambuco Company is to be held on the 8th inst., it occurs to me to suggest to the shareholders to consider whether a sale of the line to the Brazilian Government might be effected on terms advantageous to the Company. It is clear that the Brazilians are now more disposed to raise funds by loan, and make the lines as public works of the empire, than to guarantee interest on shares; and under Section 59 of the Company's Deed of Settlement there is power to sell the line. It appears to me that, if the Brazilians would give Imperial Five per Cent. Bonds at par, with the interest payable in London, and an annual sinking fund of 2 per cent., for the paid-up capital of the Company, it would be a good arrangement for the shareholders; and, having regard to the recent offers of conversion, it seems not improbable that such a sale might be effected. As no loan would be contracted, other Brazilian bonds would sustain little, if any, depreciation, and the sinking fund would tend to maintain the price of the new bonds. Moreover, the whole transaction would be, in a great degree, analogous to the loan of £400,000 already made by the Government to the Company.

It is strange that the first company formed to extend the benefit of railroads to Brazil should be treated with less consideration than the others, unless the Imperial Government can show some clear and sufficient grounds for the course they have adopted, after making due allowance for the casualties which the Company could neither foresee nor prevent.—I am, sir, your obedient servant,

LEX.

[We question both the feasibility and the desirability of the suggestion conveyed in this letter, but our correspondent is fairly entitled to have his say.]

BANK NOTES UNREPRESENTED BY GOLD.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MONEY MARKET REVIEW."

SIR,—Your correspondent, "Anti-Monopolist," by trying to draw a parallel between the Bank of England's dealings in standard gold, and every grocer being forced to buy and sell sugar at fixed prices, confirms what I complained of, which was, that reformers, for want of understanding what they are so zealous about, thwart reform. Since nobody is obliged to sell his gold to the Bank, there is perfect freedom in gold as regards sellers and buyers of that commodity. As regards the obligation of the Bank to take in all standard gold offered at £3. 17s. 9d. per ounce, the reason is that Government has delegated to that corporation the office of providing the country with an ample supply of coinage. The Mint returns the actual weight in sovereigns for all standard gold brought there, free of all expense, but requires about ten days for turning it into coin. If private persons send gold to the Mint, they lose ten days' time and interest, and the Bank on taking in standard gold retains ten days' interest, which constitutes the difference between the Bank and the Mint price, as a compensation for this useful service, for which else some other public office would have to be kept open, no doubt at a much greater cost, by Government.

That a reformer of the Bank should not have been fully aware of the origin and nature of this arrangement is somewhat puzzling, though I have known of some antediluvian philosophers mystified about it. To join a mind, constituted as is that of your correspondent, for purposes of Bank reform, would hardly suit me, nor would I join any one, since the Bank reform must, and will no doubt, originate within the Bank parlour. By ceasing to deal with the great bill-brokers, the Bank has proclaimed that it can err and can rectify errors.

The time may be close at hand when stern necessity will dispel delusions, and the desire to substitute realities for shadows will induce a disposition to part with the Government debt, and to make a fair interest out of the proceeds rather than out of fictitious paper. The Government just now pays too little interest for that debt, and probably will do so for years to come, because new channels for employment of money on a large trade have raised, and may continue to keep up its general value. That the Bank should be allowed to compensate itself for its bad bargain by excuses, which are no better than false pretences—as another bad crop would be sure to demonstrate—is neither wise, just, nor honest. The Bank ought to be above all chances, as well as above all manœuvres. To allow all Banks to issue paper—whatever the security may be—those who recollect the failure of upwards of two hundred country bankers in one year, may well hesitate to admit as a remedy for the evils complained of.—I am, &c.,

MERCATOR.

[We will not be held responsible for all the views which our respected correspondent expresses in this very suggestive letter.]

THE NERBUDDA COAL AND IRON COMPANY (LIMITED).

SIR,—In your impression of Saturday last, under the Miscellaneous Quotations, you have the following:—"Nerbudda Coal and Iron, Limited: Do. 8 per Cent.

Pref., issued at 1 dis." As this Company have never issued any Preference Shares I am at a loss to understand to what it refers, and I will feel obliged by your inserting this in your next impression.—I am, sir, your obedient servant,

HENRY HAYMEN, Chairman.

9, Broad-street Buildings, London, April 1, 1861.

[We have to apologise for a printer's error. The quotation complained of should have been given as referring to the Netherlands Land Company.]

MERCANTILE EMBARRASSMENTS.

The stoppage was announced yesterday of Messrs. C. A. and T. Ferguson, mast, oar, and block makers, of Poplar, with liabilities to the amount of £35,000 or £40,000. Payment in full is spoken of; failing this, the liquidation, it is anticipated, will be very favourable. The stoppage is understood to have been occasioned by the difficulties of two or three large shipbuilders, announced some time ago.

The failure has been announced of Messrs. Black and Guild, of New York, with liabilities for about £50,000, the chief portion of which will fall in Ireland and the north of England. They have an agency at Dundee.

The suspension was announced on Monday of Mr. B. de Cuadra, largely engaged in the Spanish trade. The house was formerly Cuadra and Romero; and, as it has long enjoyed a respectable standing, the liabilities are thought likely to prove rather large. One cause of the difficulty is supposed to consist in losses by the recent failures in Havannah.

At a meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Dalton Brothers, calico printers, of Manchester, on the 28th March, a statement was presented showing liabilities to the amount of £105,000. A composition of 5s. in the pound was offered, without any guarantee. A resolution was adopted appointing a committee of investigation.

A meeting of the creditors of Mr. Joseph Bull, ironmaster, of Ravensdale Iron Works, Newcastle-under-Lyne, was held at Manchester on Monday. The liabilities reach £47,277, while the net assets are not more than £11,923. It was resolved to appoint a committee of investigation, and if their report does not promise a more favourable liquidation than that indicated by the accounts, the estate is likely to be wound up in the Bankruptcy Court.

Another meeting of Messrs. Beasley and Farmer's creditors was held last Monday, at Birmingham. It was announced that the firm is not in a position to find security for the 7s. 6d. in the pound asked by the creditors; in these circumstances a committee was appointed who are to decide as to the desirability of accepting an assignment, or what other course may be advisable, and to call another meeting.

In the Bankruptcy Court, on Thursday, a second-class certificate was awarded to Mr. Joseph Hooper, leather factor, of Bermondsey, to be given at the end of one year from the date of the bankruptcy, with protection in the meanwhile. The youth of the bankrupt was assigned by the Commissioner as his principal motive in giving this lenient judgment.

FOREIGN LOANS AND GUARANTEES.—Some annual returns of a not very agreeable character have been presented to Parliament. For the Russian-Dutch Loan our yearly payment, which is very slowly diminishing as we gradually reduce the principal, amounted in 1860 to £80,761. For the Greek Loan also we had to pay £47,518, raising the sum due to us for payments made under the guarantee given by this country to £804,440. It is twelve years since Greece remitted to this country any sum whatever in repayment of these advances. On the other hand, we had the satisfaction of receiving £80,000 from Sardinia, which regularly remits the stipulated sum in reduction of the £2,000,000 loan of 1855-56.

Mines.

FRIDAY EVENING, APRIL 5.

In the Mining Market this week attention has been principally directed to East Caradon shares, which have been in extraordinary demand. The price, after reaching 19½ to 20, fell to 17¾ to 18, but has since risen again. The market generally has been dull and inactive, notwithstanding the favourable movement of the money market.

A moderate amount of business was done to-day in the mining market. The chief inquiries were for East Caradon shares, which have again advanced. In other respects the market was rather dull.

The following prices are reported to us from the Stock Exchange this evening:—

Alfred Consols, 2½ to 3; Cargoll, 16½ to 17½; East Basset, 100 to 105; East Caradon, 19 to 19½; East Carn Brea, 8½ to 9; East Grenville, 27s. to 29s.; East Russell, 6½ to 7½; Herodsfoot, 36 to 37; Hingston Down, 2½ to 3; Marke Valley, 6½ to 7½; New Seton, 46 to 48; North Downs, 4 to 4½; North Treskerby, 35 to 36; Providence Mines, 37½ to 38½; South Frances, 140 to 150; Silver Vein, 2½ to 3; Stray Park, 35 to 36; Tamar Consols, 2 to 2½; Tincroft, 5½ to 6; Treloweth, 3½ to 4; Wendron Consols, 16 to 18; West Caradon, 74 to 76; Wheal Clifford, 180 to 190; Wheal Kitty, Lelant, 10 to 12; Wheal Ludcott, 3½ to 4; Wheal Margaret, 45 to 47; Wheal Unity, 7s. 6d. to 10s.

The demand for United Mexican Mining shares has continued brisk, and the price rose to 6 to 6½. There was then a relapse, but the price advanced again to-day to 5¾ to 6½, the closing quotation. There have also been inquiries for General Mining (Nova Scotia), and Nerbudda Coal and Iron. The latter have improved, being marked 4½. Australian mining shares are steady.

The Central American Mining Company have received a letter from their superintendent, dated Alotepeque, Feb. 21, stating that the amalgamation barrels had been set to work on Feb. 8, on which day a charge of 5 tons of ore was reduced with satisfactory results, the amalgam produced weighing 241 lbs. avoirdupois, but that, owing to some necessary repairs to the fine crushing mill, no other charge had been made until the 21st, when the work was to be resumed. The mines had not varied much in appearance. San Pantaleon was not yielding so largely of rich ore, but continued productive in the deepest level; and the mines of San Antonio, San Jose, and Santa Rosalia were all opening out ore ground.

The commissioner of the United Mexican Mining Association, in his letters received on Monday, states that he proposes sending by the first conducta 30,000 dols. or more, being enough to pay the arrears of interest and 25 per cent. of the capital of the debt. The aspect of the mine is described as very favourable, especially as regards San Maria. The following is an extract of the despatches:—

Mine of Jesus Maria y José: I have little to state since my despatch of the 10th instant as regards the works in this mine. The fluctuations have been slight; merely that the frente of La Trinidad may be considered not quite so good, whilst that in the crosscut of La Providencia is still better than before. The level of San Andres (considerably above the works of San Pantaleon, and to which it is hoped the body of good ore will extend) is going on actively in favourable vein stuff. The level of San Rafael, at about an equal distance below, is also being driven forward as a work of exploration. The profit made on the month of January was 8,797 dols; but, as the value of a considerable portion of the ore extracted has not yet been realised, the profit will be about double that sum. In the last four weeks the sales of Hacienda ore (that extracted by day miners) have produced 23,834 dols., the whole to the credit of the mine; and the Buscones sales have given 9,007 dols.—half on the mine account. These latter sales, it will be observed, are falling off, and it may probably be well to discontinue them as soon as we can further augment the Hacienda sales. The extraction by day miners has been 8,044 cargas in the four weeks, of which 3,131 cargas have been received at the Haciendas for reduction, and 2,700 cargas sold. We are now taking the raspera for gold at Dolores, and, no doubt, it will prove the most valuable yet produced. It is understood that a conducta will be despatched from hence early in April when I shall remit to England about 30,000 dols.—it may be more. La Trinidad: Two frentes in the direction of Jesus Maria are being driven, but little ore has as yet been found.

The Mariquita Mining Company received the subjoined advices on Monday:—

Santa Ana Mines: October, November, and December, 1860. Cost, 31,584 dols.; returns, 29,032 dols.—December 7. In the 100 fathom sink some stones have been met with, containing above an inch solid thickness of grey and red silver, indicative of good lode in the 110 fathom when driven a short distance further north.—Jan. 9, 1861. The new shaft now communicates with the 90 fathom level, and they are now sinking below it. The ventilation of the mine is hereby much improved. The shaft is cut down full size, and secured to the depth of 41 fathoms below the adit. The skip roads are now being fixed in it.—Jan. 14. Santa Ana is a rich and valuable property.—Marmato Mines: November and December, 1860. Cost, 15,885 dols.; returns, 16,213 dols.—Purima Mines: November and December, 1860: Cost, 1,510 dols.; returns, 1,775 dols.

The Nerbudda Coal and Iron Company have received the following intelligence from their agent in India:—"At No. 1 level I am in very good coal, of which I am raising about a ton daily, and pushing on the level at the rate of about two yards weekly. The pit is also going on slowly, and as soon as I receive the tools, &c., now due, I shall be in a position to propose a contract for coal to the railway company."

We notice that the concessions of the silver and lead mines of the Chalanches Mining Company are advertised to be sold by auction on the 1st of June.

A petition for the winding-up of the St. John's United Copper and Lead Mining Company of Newfoundland is to be heard in the Court of Bankruptcy on the 11th of April.

Brookward Mine, on the 26th March, made a call of 5s. per share.

At North Minera Mine meeting, on the 28th March, the accounts showed a balance of assets over liabilities of £4,411. It was resolved to divide the sett.

At South Caradon Mine meeting, on the 26th March, the accounts showed a credit balance of £5,043. 3s. 3d. The profit on the two months' working was £2,657. 3s. 3d. A dividend, with bonus, of £2,560 (£5 per share) was declared; leaving £2,483. 3s. 3d. to the next account.

At West Great Work Mine meeting, on the 27th March, a call of 1s. 6d. per share was made.

Craddock Moor Mine, on the 1st inst., declared a dividend of 4s. per share.

At Wheal Kitty (Uny Lelant) meeting the accounts showed a credit balance of £14. 8s. 11d.

About £400 worth of copper ore is expected to be sampled at the end of the present month at Yarnar Mine.

At Collacombe Mine meeting on Thursday the accounts showed a debit balance of £964. A call of 10s. per share was made.

Wheal Basset on Tuesday declared a dividend of £2 per share.

At Camborne Vein Mine meeting the accounts showed a debit balance of £1,941. 11s. 3d. A call of 10s. per share was made.

The North Grambler Mine accounts, presented at the meeting of shareholders, showed a credit balance of £793. 4s. 7d. A dividend of 10s. per share was declared.

The increase in the coin and bullion would have been much larger were it not for the Government quarterly payments, which always carry coin into the provinces. From the same cause, the reserve has been trenced upon to the extent of £270,221. With thirteen millions of bullion, however, the Bank could not keep their rate of discount at 7 per cent.

THE MONEY MARKET.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, APRIL 5.

As anticipated in our last impression, the Directors of the Bank of England, at their weekly court on Thursday morning, after a very short deliberation, reduced the minimum rate of discount from 7 per cent. (to which it was lowered, from 8, on the 21st March), to 6. This step had come to be generally regarded as highly probable, although the demand for money has been characterised by the degree of activity which is naturally looked for at this period of the quarter. There has, however, been no tightness; the applications at the Discount-office at the Bank have been upon a moderate scale, and the terms in the open market have continued to range somewhat below the Bank minimum. In Lombard-street to-day the best bills were taken at  $5\frac{3}{4}$  per cent. A further reduction in the Bank rate is generally looked for within two or three weeks.

The Bank of England have issued the usual notice that they will pay the dividends on Tuesday next, the 9th inst.

The representatives of the joint-stock banks met this day (Friday) at the London and Westminster Bank, and decided to reduce the allowance for deposits from 5 to  $4\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. The London and Westminster Bank allows only  $3\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. for sums below £500. The Lombard-street discount houses and the National Discount Company have intimated that their terms will henceforth be  $4\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. for money "at call," and 5 "at notice," being in each instance a reduction of  $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. from the rates previously current.

An aggregate of £615,000 in gold, principally Australian, has been sent into the Bank since our last report. The amount on Saturday was £100,000; on Monday, £40,000; on Tuesday, £140,000; on Wednesday, £130,000; on Thursday, £75,000; and to-day, £130,000. The remittances of specie to New York are now very limited; the amount by the Persia on Saturday was only £50,917, and by the Glasgow on Wednesday, £17,600.

The rise in the New York exchange to  $107\frac{1}{2}$  (at which rate the latest despatches report it "firm") will virtually put a stop to remittances of specie to that quarter.

The £130,000 in gold by the Tasmanian will probably be sent into the Bank after being refined.

Only three Australian gold ships are known to be now at sea, viz. :—The Kooria Moorina (out 94 days), with £40,000; the Calliance (87 days), with £126,000; and the Southampton (76 days), with £86,000.

The Ceylon took on Thursday only £91,616, of which £14,449 was gold, and the rest silver. The amount for Calcutta was £31,245; Madras, £7,204; Ceylon, £3,000; Shanghai, £21,292; Foo-choo-foo, £13,294; Hong Kong, £12,781; and for Singapore, £2,800.

THE BULLION MARKET.

With reference to the movements in bullion and in the Indian Government paper, Messrs. Pixley, Abell, and Langley, report as follows :—

GOLD.—The following vessels have arrived with gold since our last circular of 28th March, viz. :—The Result, with £117,000, from Melbourne; the Lightning, with £115,000, from Melbourne; the Monarch, with £90,000, from Melbourne; the Tasmanian, with £130,000, from West Indies; and the Oneida, with £24,626, from Brazils. As there is but little demand for export, a great proportion of the above has been sent into the Bank, that establishment having purchased £383,000, and the remainder will doubtless follow.

SILVER.—The last price was 5s. 0 $\frac{3}{4}$ d. per oz. standard; but we consider the market firm, and quote the price as from 5s. 0 $\frac{3}{4}$ d. to 5s. 0 $\frac{3}{4}$ d. per oz. standard.

MEXICAN DOLLARS.—The dollars ex Tasmanian have been sold at 59 $\frac{1}{4}$ d. per oz., and we quote that price as rather firm.

EXCHANGE for Bank's drafts on India 60 days' sight, Bombay and Calcutta, continues 1s. 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. to 2s. 0 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.; Madras, 1s. 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. to 2s. Bills with documents, 1s. 11d. to 1s. 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.

INDIA GOVERNMENT LOAN NOTES are the same as last week, viz., 99 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 100 $\frac{1}{2}$  for Five-and-a-Half per Cents., and 93 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 94 $\frac{1}{2}$  for Five per Cents., with a very dull market.

The report of Messrs. Haggard and Co., dated this day, observes :—

Since the date of our last circular, our market has shown rather increased activity, both in gold and silver, and prices have undergone some slight alterations. Gold still continues to arrive from the Continent, but a diminution may be expected. All gold arriving is sold to the Bank of England: the total received by that establishment is £485,000. Silver is in good demand, at a slightly increased price. We now quote bars 60 $\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ . Mexican dollars are also in better demand, at the last price, viz., 59 $\frac{1}{4}$ d.

The bar silver by the Mexican steamer was sold to-day (Friday) at 5s. 0 $\frac{3}{4}$ d., being  $\frac{1}{4}$ d. above the price obtained for the previous supply, more firmness having been shown during the last day or two. The increased demand, however, is not caused by any revival of inquiry for the East, but by an exceptional operation. Nevertheless, with the decline in the value of money, additional purchases on Eastern account are looked for.

THE EXCHANGES.

Owing to the fall in the value of money the tendency of the Continental Exchanges this week has been less favourable. This afternoon a drooping tendency was observable. The general level of the exchanges, however, is satisfactory.

THE BANK OF FRANCE.

Some of the Paris letters express an expectation of a further early reduction in the rate of discount of the Bank of France. The present rate is 5 per cent.

AFFAIRS AT NEW YORK.

The private commercial advices from America are marked by a decidedly more cheerful tone. The prospect of civil war is evidently considered to be much fainter. The recovery in the exchange to  $107\frac{1}{2}$  is the more worthy of remark because it has been occasioned principally by purchases of bills by the importing interest, and not by any sudden arrivals of English gold in New York.

ANOTHER UNITED STATES LOAN.

The Secretary of the Treasury has just advertised at New York for an additional loan of eight millions, an amount which he thinks will be sufficient to carry the Government through to the end of the current fiscal year.

THE GOVERNMENT AND THE BANK.

It appears from the revenue returns, published on Monday morning, that the Government have sold £1,000,000 Exchequer Bills to the Bank to meet the principal part of the demand occasioned by £1,100,000 of the March descriptions having just been sent in for repayment. It would also seem that of the £2,000,000 which the Chancellor of the Exchequer was empowered to raise by Exchequer Bonds the Bank have taken £594,000, so that reckoning the £1,000,000 taken some months back by the savings banks, only £406,000 remains to be put out. The £200,000 raised in annuities on account of fortifications is believed to have been furnished by the savings banks.

BANKING AT THE CAPE.

With reference to the success of banking at Natal, the Cape and Natal News has the following, which is full of encouragement for the shareholders in the London and South African Bank:—

The success of banking operations in the colony may be tested by the fact that the Natal Bank, established about five years ago, has just declared its dividend for the past half-year of  $7\frac{1}{2}$  per cent., equal to 15 per cent. per annum, besides a bonus of 10 per cent. to its shareholders for the half-year, making 35 per cent. per annum. The Agricultural and Commercial Bank, established last year, exhibits a profit of 12 per cent., and has paid its shareholders 8 per cent. upon the capital invested.

THE LONDON AND EASTERN BANK.

In the list of "insolvent petitioners" in the Gazette of the 22nd of March, appears the name of J. E. Stephens, described as a "doctor of medicine," but better known as manager of the defunct London and Eastern Banking Corporation. The case comes on in the court on the 8th instant.

MEXICAN BONDS.

The following satisfactory memorandum from the Committee of Mexican Bondholders was published on Monday. It mentions that a conducta is at last coming down to the coast, with a large amount of silver:—

The Committee of Mexican Bondholders have received a letter from Mr. Whitehead, dated the 28th February. Mr. Mathew having come to an arrangement with the Constitutional Government about the repayment of the 400,000 dols. taken from the conducta, seized by Degollado, had recognised that Government on the 26th February. About the repayment of the 660,000 dols., forcibly taken from the bondholders, though protected by the seal of the British Legation, discussions were still going on; in the meanwhile the Minister of Finance had, in reply to an application to Mr. Whitehead, on the 21st February, informed him that the General Treasury would send the strictest orders to the collectors of all the maritime custom-houses scrupulously to comply with the provisions of the decree of the 23rd January, 1857. A conducta had at length been announced to leave for Vera Cruz on the 10th March; it will bring the money saved from the robbery in the capital, which, therefore, may be expected here by the end of April. The agents in Vera Cruz had on the 2nd March had no receipts from the custom-house there yet. A second victory over Vicurio in the south, and over other insurgents near Puebla. Zuloaga was with the former. Diaz had arrived in Mexico to stand his trial.

RAILWAY TRAFFIC.

The traffic returns now in course of publication are swelled by the Good Friday pleasure traffic. Good Friday last year fell on the 6th of April.

The Brighton Railway traffic return shows this week an increase of £6,796; the South-Eastern, an increase of £4,006; the London and North-Western, an increase of £671; the Great Western, an increase of £3,533; the Great Northern, an increase of £850; the London and South-Western, an increase of £3,650; the Eastern Counties, an increase of £2,527; the Midland, an increase of £133; the Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, an increase of £1,351; the Lancashire and Yorkshire, an increase of £3,175; and the North-Eastern, an increase of £2,019.

The traffic receipts of the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada for the week ending March 9 were £14,224 sterling, being £1,036 more than in the corresponding week of last year.

The traffic receipts of the Great Western Railway of Canada for the week ending March 15 were £10,363 sterling, being £1,130 more than in the corresponding week of last year.

RAILWAYS.

The directors of the Great Western Railway Company of Canada on Thursday issued their half-yearly report, which is to be submitted at the meeting on the 11th inst. As already announced, a dividend at the rate of 3 per cent. per annum is recommended by the directors. It is pointed out that the last half-year's working, irrespective of the surplus brought forward, has yielded £2,193 more than the amount required to pay the dividend now recommended. Whilst the traffic has increased £45,321, the extra expenses have amounted only to £5,235. Amongst other points, it is believed that a considerable accession of traffic may arise from the recent discoveries of earth oil. The directors conclude by repeating the recommendation which they made eighteen months ago, viz., that the shareholders appoint two of their number to act as auditors.

The president and directors of the Great Western Railway of Canada have issued a "Reply" to the report of the Committee of Investigation. It includes a letter wherein Mr. George Wythes, the contractor, defends Mr. Laing. The directors concur strongly in the view that Mr. Laing is exculpated.

The directors of the Pernambuco Railway Company have issued their report to the coming meeting. It gives the particulars of a rather serious difficulty which has arisen between the company and the Brazilian Government. The Government have not only refused to pay the last call of £2 on the shares which have been transferred to them, but have put forward a statement that the call advertised by the company is not legal. The directors have taken prompt steps to obviate the ill-effects which this notification is calculated to produce upon the credit of the company in Brazil. They have since had a satisfactory interview with the Brazilian minister in London. Meanwhile, arrangements have been made with the contractors for a discontinuance of the works beyond a certain point.

An application for the re-admission of the shares of the Ottoman (Smyrna to Aidin) Railway Company into the official list will be considered by the Committee of the Stock Exchange on Tuesday next.

The general meeting of the Lombardo-Venetian and South Austrian Railway Company is fixed for the 30th inst., at Vienna. A call of £2 is to be paid by the 1st of May. The second coupon of the year 1860, representing the balance of the dividend of that year, which will be declared by the general meeting of the 30th inst., will be deducted on account of this payment.

A general meeting of shareholders in the Antwerp and Rotterdam Railway Company is called for the 10th inst. in London, and for the 18th at Brussels.

A special general meeting of the Charing-cross Railway Company is called for the 10th of April, to approve the Bill now before Parliament, which authorises the company to make a railway from their line into the City of London, with an additional line in Southwark, and to raise additional capital.

A call of £2 is to be paid by the 29th inst., on the shares in the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company, on which £8 has already been paid.

Vice-Chancellor Stuart proposes on the 8th of April to make a call of £40 per share on the contributories of the Hereford and Merthyr Tydvil Junction Railway Company.

ASSURANCE COMPANIES.

At the annual general meeting of proprietors of the Reliance and East of England Life Office, held on the 26th March, the directors reported the continued prosperity of the society. The total receipts in the past year were £34,469. After providing for all claims, expenses, &c., a sum of £14,801 has been added to the accumulated funds. The recent valuations of the actuary show that there is a sum of £19,091 as the surplus since the last distribution.

The usual half-yearly dividend of 8s. 6d. per share is announced on the shares in the Alliance Life and Fire Office.

An official manager of the British Provident Life and Fire Assurance Society is to be appointed by Vice-Chancellor Kindersley on the 10th of April.

THE ALBERT, MEDICAL, AND FAMILY ENDOWMENT LIFE OFFICE.

It is announced that the Albert and Medical Life Office has been amalgamated with the Family Endowment Life Assurance Company. The title of the amalgamated undertaking will be "The Albert, Medical, and Family Endowment Life Assurance Company." The important dimensions of this undertaking may be gathered from the following summary of a few of its principal figures:—The accumulated assets exceed £650,000; the subscribed capital is £500,000, and the paid-up capital £145,000; the annual income from life premiums exceeds £250,000, and the policy claims and bonuses paid to claimants amount to about £1,000,000.

THE MEDITERRANEAN EXTENSION TELEGRAPH.

Messages are now sent from Malta to London with great regularity. The transmission of one despatch a day or two ago occupied only 1 hour and 46 minutes.

INTEREST AND DIVIDENDS.

The arrangements are notified in connection with the payment of the half-yearly guaranteed interest on Cape Town Railway shares.

THE PARIS BOURSE.

At Paris to-day (Friday) the Three per Cent. Rentes opened at 67.65, and closed firm at 67.75, both for money and the account, being  $\frac{1}{8}$  per cent. higher than yesterday, and exactly the same as on last Friday.

THE STOCK AND SHARE MARKETS.

The English Funds were heavy during the early part of the week owing to a variety of vague rumours respecting the course of affairs on the Continent, to the flatness of the Paris and Vienna stock markets, and to uncertainty with regard to the coming Budget, combined with the unfavourable weather. Consols, however, after falling on Wednesday to  $91\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$  for the 10th instant, recovered yesterday, upon the fall in the Bank rate, to  $91\frac{3}{4}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ , and closed to-day at  $91\frac{5}{8}$  to  $\frac{7}{8}$ . For money the last price to-day was likewise  $91\frac{5}{8}$  to  $\frac{7}{8}$ .

Owing partly to the fall in the rate of discount, Exchequer Bills recovered to the extent of 7s., closing at 7s. to 3s.

The Five per Cent. Rupee Paper was quoted to-day  $93\frac{1}{2}$  to 94; the Five-and-a-Half per Cent.,  $99\frac{3}{4}$  to 100, and the scrip of the new Indian Loan,  $100\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ ;  $100\frac{1}{2}$  being firmer. India Bonds remain dull.

The official list of to-day's actual business in the English Funds and Indian Government Securities, is annexed:—

Three per Cent. Consols, for money,  $91\frac{5}{8}$ ,  $\frac{3}{4}$ ,  $\frac{7}{8}$ ; ditto for account (April 10),  $91\frac{3}{4}$ ,  $\frac{3}{4}$ ; India Stock, 222; ditto Five per Cent. Stock, 100,  $\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{3}{4}$ , 100; ditto

Four per Cent. Debentures, 1859, 95 $\frac{3}{4}$ ; Five per Cent. "Enfaced" Rupee Paper, 94, 93 $\frac{3}{4}$ ; ditto Five-and-a-Half per Cent., 100; and Exchequer Bills, 4s., 6s., 8s. dis.

For the 9th of May the last price of Consols to-day was 92 to  $\frac{1}{2}$ , the "continuation" being  $\frac{1}{4}$  to 5-16 per cent.

The foreign stock market has been rather heavy, owing to the uncertain position of politics on the Continent. Turkish Bonds have showed chief sensitiveness, and closed to-day at a decline of  $\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. Mexican Bonds continue to meet with attention, and are firm.

The nominal closing quotations of some of the principal Foreign Stocks this afternoon are given below:—Buenos Ayres Six per Cents., 87 to 89, being firm; ditto Deferred, 27 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 28 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Mexican, 24 $\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Turkish Six per Cents., 1854, 73 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 74; ditto, 1858, 53 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 54.

The sales recorded in the Foreign Stock Market to-day were as follows:—

Brazilian Four-and-a-Half per Cents., 1860, 85 $\frac{3}{4}$ ,  $\frac{3}{4}$ , 86 $\frac{1}{4}$ ; Buenos Ayres Deferred, 28 $\frac{1}{4}$ ; Dutch Two-and-a-Half per Cents., 63 $\frac{1}{4}$  (exchange, 12d.); ditto Four per Cent. Certificates, 98 $\frac{3}{4}$ , ex div.; Mexican Three per Cents., 24 $\frac{1}{4}$ ,  $\frac{1}{4}$ ; Portuguese Three per Cents., 1853, 46; ditto small, 47, 46 $\frac{1}{4}$ ; Russian Four-and-a-Half per Cents., 91 $\frac{1}{2}$ , 91; ditto Four-and-a-Half per Cents., 1860, 90 $\frac{3}{4}$ ; Sardinian Five per Cents., 82 $\frac{1}{4}$ ; Spanish Three per Cents., 49 $\frac{1}{4}$ ; ditto for account (April 15), 48 $\frac{3}{4}$ ; ditto New Deferred Three per Cents., for account, 41 $\frac{1}{4}$ ; ditto Passive, 16 $\frac{3}{4}$ , 17; the Committee's Certificates, 5 $\frac{3}{4}$ ,  $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Turkish Six per Cents., 1854, 73 $\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{3}{4}$ ; ditto Six per Cents., 1858, for account, 53 $\frac{3}{4}$ ; ditto Guaranteed Four per Cents., 99 $\frac{1}{4}$ .

The market for British Railway Stocks was decidedly depressed during all the earlier part of the week, Midland and Lancashire, and Yorkshire stocks suffered especially, it being generally apprehended that traffic will fall off now that trade is becoming dull. A decided impulse was given, however, by the action at the Bank which led to numerous purchases to cover previous speculative sales. The market to-day exhibited considerable steadiness. The closing prices were generally below those of last week.

The following shows the closing prices of the principal British Railway Stocks this day, and the result of the week's variations. The share list in detail will be found in another column:—

AMERICAN SECURITIES.

The report of Mr. E. F. Satterthwaite, dated yesterday, is annexed:—

We have to report a firm market in London for American securities. The Federal Five per Cent. 1874 Bonds have brought as high as 83. Illinois Bonds and Erie Third Mortgage Bonds are readily saleable at an advance of 1 to 2 per cent. on last week's quotations. Illinois shares have been inactive, from 27 to 26 $\frac{1}{2}$  discount, but close firm at 26 $\frac{1}{2}$  discount buyers.

Some considerable sales of Erie shares have been made on the rumour that they and the unsecured Bonds (or rather, now we should call them Preference Shares) would be assessed. This, though not officially announced, is very likely to be the case; but, if made for the purpose of meeting expenses of re-organisation and overdue Fourth and Fifth Mortgage Coupons, will be a very desirable proceeding. It should be borne in mind that, if made, it will be more in the character of a loan than anything else, as it is provided in the deed of trust that, such assessment shall be repaid before any dividend is paid, either to the preference or ordinary shareholder.

The London agents of the Illinois Central Railway Company received yesterday the following report:—

Office of the Illinois Central Railroad Company,
New York, March 19, 1861.

Gentlemen,—The traffic return the second week is more favourable than we anticipated, being 61,099.40 dols., which is a gain of 5,891.72 dols. over same week of 1860. The two warehouses at the company's Chicago depot are filled with 1,500,000 bushels of grain. The superintendent is endeavouring to induce the loading of vessels in advance of the opening of navigation by the Lake, thereby increasing the capacity of storage room.

The number of actual purchasers and the letters inquiring about our lands are increasing daily. The cash collected to 15th was 33,320 dols., against 40,701 dols. for the whole of same month last year. We are now shipping flour and oats from Northern Illinois to New Orleans, and as soon as the navigation opens on the Lakes we must have large quantities of wheat and corn by that route.

Our Construction Bonds reached par yesterday.—Yours respectfully,

(Signed)

THOMAS E. WALKER,

Messrs. Robert Benson and Co., London.

Chairman Ex. Committee.

BIRKENHEAD STREET RAILWAY.—It was announced on Tuesday, at the meeting of the Birkenhead commissioners, that the street railway established by Mr. Train was working very well, but that some slight improvements were required as to sidings, &c., and alterations in a few of the streets, in order to make it more completely adapted to the wants of the place.

SHIPS' MANIFESTS AND THE BRAZILIAN CUSTOMS REGULATIONS.—The Liverpool Chamber of Commerce, at their last meeting, agreed to the recommendation of a special committee to solicit the aid of the Government in obtaining a modification of the regulations as to the manifests of ships sailing from England to the Brazil.

NERBUDDA COAL AND IRON COMPANY.

On Thursday the first ordinary general meeting of the shareholders of this Company was held at the offices of the Company, No. 9, Broad-street-buildings.

H. HAYMEN, Esq., the Chairman of the Company, presided.

Mr. HEATH (the secretary) read the notice convening the meeting, and the following report of the Board of Directors:—

"The directors have the pleasure of submitting to their fellow shareholders the accounts of the company made up to the 28th February in England, and 31st December, 1860, in India; these accounts, they trust, will be satisfactory.

"The directors have to announce to the shareholders that, in accordance with clause No. 65 of the Articles, they have elected the following gentlemen as directors, viz., Sampson Lloyd Foster, Esq., Henry Haymen, Esq., and Captain John Heaslop, R.N.; they have also elected William F. Foster, Esq., to the vacancy caused by the resignation of John H. Blackwell, Esq., thus making the number of the directors seven, which they consider quite sufficient for the management of the company.

"The requisite tools, &c., were shipped to India, per the John Temperley, on the 24th of October last, and the engines, per the Cherokee, on the 28th of January.

"The directors have been so fortunate as to induce Mr. Blackwell to proceed to India, to undertake the management of the company's collieries; the terms upon which his services have been secured will be laid before the shareholders for their approval.

"Mr. Blackwell has already arrived at the collieries, and has forwarded home a sample of the coal: he also states, under date January 20th, that he was driving a level on the ten foot seam of coal, of which the quality appears very good, and that he was able to trace the outcrop of the coal a good deal further than when he was last there; his opinion of its quality and extent was fully confirmed.

"The services of Messrs. Harrison and Harden, as miners' and mining engineers have been secured on satisfactory terms; Mr. Harrison left by the John Temperley, and Mr. Harden by the Cherokee.

"The directors placed themselves in communication with the Board of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, with the object of inducing that company to construct a line of railway to connect the company's collieries with their main line; they have much pleasure in being able to inform their shareholders that the Great Indian Peninsula Company immediately sent out instructions with the view of ascertaining the best means of connecting the company's collieries with their line, and Mr. Blackwell, in his letter of the 20th January, previously referred to, informed the directors that Mr. Preston, the engineer, appointed by the railway, had completed the survey and reported as follows:—

"It is a straight line eleven miles long, and almost a dead level, no ground could be more favourable for the construction of a line.

"The coal has been tried on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, and found to answer every purpose; the proprietors must bear in mind that this was only surface coal, and consequently not of so good a quality as may be expected at a greater depth. Mr. Blackwell further states that he has 100 men at work at about 2 $\frac{1}{2}$  per day, and that he hopes shortly to be in a position to contract for a supply of coals with the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company.

"It having been intimated to the directors that greater confidence would be evinced, if the qualification for a seat at the Board were increased, they have resolved on recommending the proprietors to double the present qualification; and with a view of obviating any call during the present year, should more funds be required, special resolutions will be submitted to the meeting, authorising the directors to issue debentures to the extent of £20,000, and increasing the capital to such extent as may be necessary for the conversion of said debentures.

"Annexed are reports from John Fowler, Esq., the company's consulting engineer, and from Messrs. Alison and Waddell, the official auditors.

"Messrs. Alison and Waddell, the official auditors to the company, retire, but are eligible for re-election.

"In conclusion, the directors have reason to be perfectly satisfied with the past operations and present prospects of the company, and they believe that very large returns will be the result of the investment of capital in the undertaking."

The CHAIRMAN said he would detain the meeting but a few minutes in his observations with regard to the past operations of the company, or in stating what they, as directors, believed were its future prospects. That undertaking commenced its operations about ten months since, for they, of course, were not in a position to carry out any arrangements until the whole of the capital had been subscribed. During that period the Board had succeeded in inducing Mr. John Howard Blackwell to accept the appointment of agent to the company in India; he knew that he was speaking the feelings of his co-directors as well as his own when he stated they believed that in engaging Mr. Blackwell they had secured the services of a very intelligent, a very active, and a very honest agent, and one perfectly au fait at his business—the Board felt that in that particular they had been more than ordinarily fortunate in their selection. Mr. Blackwell left for the company's works in November last, and arrived there on January 13; and the tools and engines had been shipped, and there was no doubt that a large portion had arrived in India, for although the company had not received any information of that fact, yet the first portion were due at Calcutta at the date of their last advices, and the remaining portion would arrive a very short time afterwards. The services of two gentlemen as mining engineers had been secured, in the selection of whom the Board considered they had been also very fortunate. The report of the directors had informed the shareholders that the Board had put themselves in communication with the Directors of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, in order to induce that Company to construct a branch line to connect the collieries of the Nerbudda Company with the Great Indian Peninsula main line. It would be seen from the report there was no engineering difficulty in the way, and from what he had ascertained he thought there was reason to believe that the necessary materials would soon be dispatched to construct that branch. As the report of M. Fowler would speak for itself, he need not refer to the character of the stores, machinery, and plant, which had been sent out to India. With regard to the issue of debentures, upon which he would have occasion to speak presently, shareholders would understand that, although the Board were asking for the necessary power to issue debentures it did not follow that that power would be used—in fact, the Board could not use that power until the sanction of a second meeting had been obtained. The sole object of the Board was to look a little a-head, and avail themselves of the most economical mode in which the company could be worked. By raising money upon debentures—supposing it were ever wanted, which he very much doubted—a large outlay would be saved in raising fresh capital, and at the same time all the original shareholders would ultimately get a very much larger dividend than 5 per cent., and the shareholders would, to a certain extent, be free from any liability for calls. Another question was, the allowing shareholders to pay up in anticipation of calls. Of all modern guaranteed companies, perhaps the most successful was the Madras Irrigation Company, and one of the greatest reasons of that great success was, that a very large number of the shareholders were allowed to pay up their calls in anticipation. It was true they had a guarantee from the Indian Government, and consequently any amount paid was no loss to the shareholders; in their (the Nerbudda) company, it would be slightly different, for they would have to pay 5 per cent., and that was one great reason why they asked for power to issue debentures, although they did not mean to issue them for some considerable time, if, indeed, they were issued at all. Suppose a number of the shareholders were to pay up their calls in full, complicated accounts would be the necessary result, and, therefore, the Board thought it better to keep all the shares as they at present stood, and if further money were required that it should be raised by debentures—the whole of which, he had not the slightest doubt, would be taken up without any delay. With regard to the prospects of the company, he would, before he concluded his remarks, just observe that some of the coal had been tried, both by the Government and by the railway, and it must be satisfactory to the shareholders to know that it had been much approved of; the coal, it was to be remembered, was at present taken from the mere surface, and, therefore, it was not fair to suppose that even anything like an average quality had yet been produced, but, notwithstanding, what had been tried had proved highly satisfactory. He had no reason to doubt that the company was progressing in every respect most satisfactorily, and he hoped that when he next had the pleasure of meeting the shareholders he would be in possession of something more than promises to submit to them. Having stated that he would be glad to answer any question, or afford any information which shareholders might desire, he concluded by moving the adoption of the report and accounts.

Mr. S. LLOYD FOSTER had much pleasure in seconding the resolution. The remarks of the Chairman rendered it unnecessary for him to say much. But having been for many years connected with mining, he could bear testimony to the satisfactory progress which their undertaking had made in the short time during which operations had been prosecuted. He knew of a colliery in England where operations had been commenced three months before theirs, and at the present time it was not in near so satisfactory a position. He considered the prospects of the company were most encouraging, and he did not believe any body of shareholders could possess a property which held out such great prospect of success; having that opinion, although he at present held a certain number of shares he fully intended to hold more. He had much pleasure in seconding the adoption of the report and accounts.

The resolution, being put, was carried unanimously.

The CHAIRMAN said the next resolution was that which had reference to Mr. Blackwell. That gentleman had been engaged upon very satisfactory terms. His salary was not large; in fact, looking at the risk of living in such a peculiar climate, he (the Chairman) considered Mr. Blackwell's salary was small, and his future remuneration was dependent entirely upon the success of the company. He had given up Government employment, and had entered the company's service upon almost the same terms as he received from the Government. But the agreement between Mr. Blackwell and the company would be better understood if Mr. Dollman, the solicitor, would explain it.

Mr. DOLLMAN then explained that Mr. Blackwell is to receive a salary of £1,300 per annum, in addition to which he is to receive a commission of 4 per cent. upon the nett annual profits.

A resolution was then unanimously passed, approving of the contract entered into with Mr. Blackwell, and authorising the directors to carry that deed into effect.

The CHAIRMAN said the next question was with regard to the qualification of directors. They proposed to increase that qualification to 100 shares, and proposed a resolution to that effect, and also a resolution to alter the Articles of Association so far as might be necessary to carry the foregoing resolution into effect, which, being duly seconded, were put and carried unanimously.

The CHAIRMAN said he was now prepared to answer any question upon the subject of the debentures, and in order to elicit discussion he would propose that the directors should be authorised to issue debentures for any sum not exceeding £20,000, in sums of not less than £50, payable at the expiration of five years, and bearing interest at not exceeding 5 per cent. per annum, and such debentures to be convertible into the ordinary shares of the company of the nominal value of £20 each.

Mr. S. J. WILDE seconded the resolution. He advocated the plan proposed, because he considered by its adoption shareholders would have all the advantages of paying their calls in anticipation without any of the disadvantages.

Mr. MARTINEAU could not understand the policy of sparing those shareholders who found it inconvenient to pay the calls.

The CHAIRMAN explained that it was a great benefit to the shareholders.

The resolution was put and carried.

A resolution was then passed empowering the directors to create fresh capital to provide for the conversion of the debentures.

It was agreed that the company should subscribe 20 guineas to the Indian Famine Fund, the Chairman stating that the directors intended increasing that amount by their own private subscriptions, and that they would be happy to receive any amount from the shareholders.

A unanimous vote of thanks to the chairman and directors was then passed, which brought the proceedings to a close.

SCINDE AND PUNJAUB RAILWAYS, AND INDUS STEAM FLOTILLA COMPANY.

The combined meeting of the proprietors of these undertakings was held at Gresham-house, on the 28th March; Mr. W. P. ANDREW in the chair.

The CHAIRMAN said, before he alluded more particularly to the several undertakings in which they were interested, he might state generally that on no previous occasion on which he had had the pleasure of meeting the proprietors, had he more satisfaction in presenting a report to them than on the present occasion. In the former reports they were always obliged to deal more in promises than in performances. They always hoped to be able to state that they had made great progress and were approaching completion; but on the present occasion he had the gratification of stating that one of the principal portions of their undertaking was, whilst he was now addressing them, in all probability, open and in operation. The Governor of Bombay, the Commander-in-Chief, and the principal persons in the presidency were to be present at the ceremony of the opening, and he trusted that the inauguration had taken place to the satisfaction of those eminent personages, and in a manner creditable to the company. He need not say to those present, most of whom were familiar with the great results to be expected from this railway as himself, that the expectations of Upper India were greatly founded upon the completion of this work. In itself, if it did nothing else than relieve the commerce of Central Asia from the great impediment which hitherto existed—viz., the dangerous navigation of the Delta, a very great thing would be accomplished. There was a question regarding the transhipment, on which he was examined before the committee of the House of Commons, which he would advert to here as being closely allied to another question. The commerce now carried on on the Indus has to be transhipped from the small up-country boats to those which were able to encounter the sea passage, so that this railway would not only do away with nearly 200 miles of extra distance, but would entirely relieve the inland trade from the perils of the sea, and also from the dangers incident to the Delta navigation. He considered that very shortly railway enterprise in India must take a very superior position to what it had hitherto occupied. If they looked not only to the progress they were making in getting over the grand impediment to the traffic of the Indus—if they looked at the other side of India they saw the East Indian had accomplished the same thing for the Ganges, inasmuch as they had brought Calcutta into communication at Rajmahal with the Ganges, relieving the commerce of the country from the dangers and delays of the navigation of that river. The Great Indian Peninsula would accomplish in the course of next year the achievement of the greatest engineering work in the world, the ascent of the Ghauts by a railway. When they had done that, there would be three great companies with lines that would have an enormous traffic. As yet the railways in India had been mere fragments; and although they had yielded a larger return than the average of English railways, still they could have no calculations on the probable results until they had an end as well as a beginning to the lines. The attention of the merchants and manufacturers of this country, had been, as they were aware, very much directed to India as a source of supply of various fibres for the textile manufacturers of this country. When they considered that the annual value of the textile manufactures of this country was £150,000,000, and that the undertakings in which they were interested were capable of supplying nearly the whole of these materials, it was a consideration not only of great interest to all who were interested in Indian railways, but to themselves in an especial manner. Kurrachee exported large quantities of wool, silk, flax, and hemp; and during the month of February last the first shipment of cotton from that port left for Liverpool, and advices had been received that other vessels were to follow. He regarded this as a most important feature, inasmuch as there was a great noise made in certain quarters as to the probability of Scinde ever becoming a cotton-exporting country. The opinion of Sir Bartle Frere, who had been a good friend to this undertaking from its commencement, had always been that Scinde would not only export wool, silk, indigo, and other products, but would be able before long to export that greatest of all our staples—cotton. It was also to be remarked that the cotton was of excellent quality and remarkably clean, which was quite a new feature in Indian cotton, which was generally very dirty. He considered these undertakings—particularly the Scinde—had progressed not only in importance, but were likely to become more necessary than ever to our manufactures at home. The commerce of India he had so frequently enlarged upon, and had given the statistics over and over again, both in his addresses and in a published form, that he would not say more on the present occasion than that the same progress continued, and that their officers on the spot looked forward to the railway being highly remunerative; in fact, a large amount of commerce was already awaiting them. He might state, as he saw many new proprietors present, that the Scinde was 114 miles, including branches, and it would cost about £10,000 per mile; that it had more stations, wharves, and other supplemental works than any other railway in India, or probably anywhere else. The masonry was of the very best description, and from the vicinity of the rivers stone of the most durable character was obtained, which was capable of being dressed in a most beautiful manner. From the same source the material for metalling the line was obtained, and the ballast was represented to be of so excellent a nature that the line could be kept up at a very moderate charge. The cost of the line being £10,000 per mile, the additional sum they had subscribed would be expended upon those extra works, such as the steam ferry bridges, wharves, piers, and other matters which were not brought into the original estimates. The chief engineer had stated that the cost of all these, including railway rolling stock and all the necessities for working the line would be £1,400,000. They had in hand quite sufficient, they estimated, to complete and work the line without coming upon the proprietors for assistance of any description; but he did not think they had quite enough to finish the stations and several works that might be required afterwards: and therefore he looked forward to calling upon them at some future time for such moderate sum as would enable them to finish the stations and other works subsidiary to the line. The military authorities had already applied to them for extra stations for soldiers, and extra accommodation for the troops. The masonry works throughout the line were of an extensive character, and were constructed for a double line, so that they looked forward at no very distant period to have the whole line throughout a double line, as he believed a single line would not be found adequate to meet the traffic. Great interest was attached in the country to the steam ferry-bridge, which was similar to what they saw at Southampton and Portsmouth—a large structure for ferrying over carriages, carts, and horses, at a moderate rate of charge; and he considered it would be a great accommodation to the country, inasmuch as the Indus, though it was of no great width there, was frequently very dangerous, and a good many lives were annually lost, as also a considerable number of native boats. This would now be the means by which persons would cross from the old capital of Hyderabad in their progress to Kurrachee. If they looked forward to the Scinde having in itself all the elements of great commercial prosperity, when they looked at it in conjunction with the other branches of the undertaking, the Flotilla and the Punjaub, its importance was incalculably enhanced. He would now, as the report dealt so circumstantially with the various progress of the works and the prospects of the Scinde, make a few observations upon the second branch of their undertaking, the Indus Steam Flotilla. He might state that the model steamer which was tried in this country with great success, now achieved nearly the same speed in the Indus as she had done upon her trials in the Thames. It was considered to be the best steam-vessel afloat in the waters either of the Indus or the Ganges. The circumstance of her being able to tow the ferry from Kurrachee to Kotree, beating the best Government boat in speed, was a great proof of her strength and other good qualities; so that although the vessel did not come quite up to what was expected, he considered they had fair grounds to be satisfied. The other boats supplied by Messrs. Richardson and Co. were considered superior to the Stanley, inasmuch as they had the advantage of experimenting with the Stanley in the Thames, and there were several matters in which it was considered that improvements might be introduced in the future boats—for instance, the machinery had been lightened, the bows strengthened, and the paddlewheels considerably enlarged. The passenger accommodation and arrangements of the Stanley had been spoken of in the highest terms. Of the other passenger-boats, two of them would very soon be upon the berth. With regard to the proposition of which notice had been given, to raise additional capital for the purpose of the Indus Steam Flotilla, they would remember that many gentlemen had expressed the opinion that £250,000, which was the original capital of that branch of the undertaking, was inadequate. In that opinion the Board entirely concurred, but they were glad to get the Government guarantee for the largest sum they could, and hence the capital was put down at £250,000, as they were told that was the sum the Government would consent to. The Board now came to the proprietors to raise an additional amount, with the view of completing and working the fleet, and if the proposition he had hinted on a former occasion for transferring the tug steamers and cargo barges to the Punjaub was carried out, the flotilla proprietors would be recouped the amount they had expended for those vessels and barges so transferred. He now came to say a few words with respect to the last link of the system in which they were interested, the Punjaub railway. It had been the desire of the directors from the beginning to meet as far as possible the views of the shareholders in raising the capital. Whenever the Board had made calls they had been most promptly responded to, and so far they had been most fortunate and successful in their financial arrangements. They had fully maintained the credit of the company with the Government; they had never been in a position to require any extraneous pecuniary advances; and if gentlemen imagined the call was a large one, he would state at once that he considered it of the greatest importance that they should be in possession of such funds that the Government should never have any grounds to suspend, and far less to abridge, any of their works. That had been his most anxious desire throughout, and at the same time to prevent any unnecessarily large accumulations; but the most expensive thing they could encounter would be the delay of the works for want of capital. Owing to the liberality of a large number of shareholders, paying their money in anticipation, they had been enabled to prosecute the works with great vigour. They had sent out or ordered nearly everything that was required, and had only called upon the proprietors for £5 a year. He considered that was a very moderate sum in conducting so great an enterprise; and they must have made calls at more frequent intervals if proprietors had not come forward as they had done and paid very largely in anticipation.

A PROPRIETOR asked what was the proportion of shares paid in advance?

The CHAIRMAN replied about 30,000 shares, or about two-fifths of the whole. He might state that there would certainly be no other call made this year. The engineer, after surveying upon the spot, estimated the cost at only £1,500,000, which estimate was supported by the powerful authority of Sir John Lawrence. Nothing had since occurred, that he was aware of, to alter that estimate in any way; the Board had never received any intimation that the million and a-half was likely to be exceeded. Everything had been carried on at a moderate rate. The only matter upon which they felt any alarm was with reference to the transport of the materials. They knew what the earthworks and masonry would cost, but as to the transport they were a little uneasy; but thanks to their agent (Mr. L. W. Raeburn), they had been able to effect the transport of rails and materials at a very economical cost. Some of the boats loaded with rails had been sunk, upon which Mr. Coates, the contractor, lost no time in procuring diving machinery, by means of which the whole of the rails were recovered. He was a person to whom they were under the greatest obligations, and he carried out his contracts in the most admirable manner. The Chairman concluded by moving the adoption of the report.

Sir HERBERT MADDOCK (Deputy-Chairman) seconded the motion.

Mr. W. BORRADAILE put several questions regarding the financial position of the Punjab Railway.

Mr. PRICE occupied the meeting for a considerable time by going into the subject of the dismissal of Mr. W. Brunton, late engineer-in-chief of the Punjab, and quoted extensively from the correspondence published by that gentleman, as also from his address to the shareholders, in vindication of his position.

The CHAIRMAN, in reply to Mr. Borradaile, stated that his opinion had invariably been that it would require £2,000,000 at least to complete the Punjab line, but that opinion had been overborne by the estimates of the engineer, backed as he had already said by the opinion of Sir John Lawrence. The principal portion of the £1,500,000 had been paid up. The present accounts were brought up to December, but since that time an additional £217,000 had been paid up, which would be sufficient to carry on the works till the close of this year. He thought it was a little unreasonable to ask the Board in what way they proposed to raise the remainder of the one million and a-half; they must be guided in that entirely by circumstances. He thought it probable, looking at the way in which money had been paid in anticipation, that very little would be left to be raised next year; but in whatever way it was done, the interests of the shareholders would be consulted as far as possible. The endeavour of the directors had always been to call in the money with as little inconvenience to the shareholders as possible, having regard to the requirements of the company. He might observe, with regard to his own estimate of £2,500,000, that he had calculated the earthwork at an average of nearly £500 per mile, whereas as far as the work had gone at present it had averaged under £200 per mile, and if the line was completed for £1,500,000, it would be the cheapest line in India.

Mr. BORRADAILE asked what sum would require to be raised after the share capital was all paid up?

The CHAIRMAN replied: None; if the estimates of the engineer and the local Government proved to be correct. After complimenting Mr. Price upon the zeal and ability with which that gentleman had advocated the cause of the late engineer upon a garbled and ex parte statement, the chairman proceeded to remark, in reply to Mr. Price, that the whole of the correspondence which had taken place upon the subject of Mr. Brunton's dismissal would be laid open to any shareholders wishing to read it. It had been his anxious wish that the shareholders should be in possession of the fullest information upon all matters affecting their interests, and that course, he said, would always be maintained so long as he held his present position. He would say at once, that if the shareholders interfered with the authority of the Board over their servants they would do themselves a frightful amount of mischief, and as long as he was chairman he would not allow it. If the Board had achieved success in the conduct of the business of this undertaking, and had stood well with the Government, it was owing to the great amount of support they had invariably received from the shareholders at every meeting that had taken place. With regard to Mr. William Brunton, he had no hesitation in saying that the Board had treated him with extraordinary indulgence, and as long as he considered that gentleman's conduct was deserving of praise, he had not hesitated to bring his merits before the public shareholders. He would say, so far from Mr. Raeburn having any animus against Mr. Brunton, he advocated and supported in every way he could the augmentation of that gentleman's salary from £800 to £1,500 per annum; so that if there was any bias upon the mind of Mr. Raeburn, it was favourable to Mr. Brunton. Why that gentleman had been dismissed was on account of grave charges which had been brought against him by Mr. Raeburn, the representative of the company in India; and that dismissal was unanimously decided upon by the Board after the most careful and anxious consideration of the whole of the correspondence on both sides—and not upon a one-sided statement such as they had heard from Mr. Price to-day. They did not want the Governor-General or any one else to interfere between the directors and their servants. The Board appointed them and paid them, and when they forfeited the confidence of the Board, as Mr. Brunton had done, they dismissed them; and he would add, that they had the sanction of the Government at home for the course they had adopted towards their late engineer.

Mr. WYLD put several questions with regard to the delay which had taken place in increasing the flotilla, as had been anticipated, to which the Chairman gave satisfactory replies.

Mr. GOETZ asked the chairman how far he agreed with the statement that a delay of three or four months in the execution of the works on the Punjab had been occasioned by the differences between the late engineer and agent?

The CHAIRMAN explained that the chief cause of the delay had been owing to the native contractors failing to supply the proper quantity of sleepers and ballast. From the severe drought that had prevailed in India the contractors were unable to float the sleepers down the rivers to the works. But by recent advices they were given to understand that those difficulties had been got over, and they might look forward to the line being completed from Lahore to Umritsir by the end of this year, and from Umritsir to Mooltan by the end of the next year.

The report was, after a further conversation, unanimously adopted.

A resolution was agreed to authorising the raising of £83,000 for the purposes of the Indus Steam Flotilla by the issue of bonds or debentures bearing 5 per cent. interest, payable at the expiration of five years. It had been made a provision that the holders of the bonds should have the option of converting the bonds into share capital; but as it was objected to by several proprietors, it was agreed to be left to the discretion of the directors whether such option should be exercised or not.

The retiring directors and auditors having been re-elected, the proceedings terminated, as usual, in the most satisfactory manner.

The Produce and other Markets.

COLONIAL PRODUCE.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, APRIL 5.

There has not been any further change in the Colonial Produce Markets, which keep very steady, and the reduction of the Bank rate to 6 per cent. yesterday imparted a firmer tone to business generally. Coffee fully supports the late improvement, no public sales having taken place during the week. The demand for Sugar is not quite so active as last noticed, but the recent advance was generally maintained to-day, when the importers brought forward liberal supplies of Mauritius. Molasses are only in limited request. The Spice sales have gone off without material change in value. Rice has been firm at the enhanced rates established last month. Salt-petre meets with limited inquiries, and Bengal offered on lower terms. The Tea market is firm, with a moderate amount of business passing in several descriptions. Supplies of Cocoa are coming in freely, and the market remains without improvement. The market for West-India Rum has remained without general animation, and the value has not been fully supported. Mauritius has brought 1s. 9d. 300 bags of Sago Flour, meeting low offers, were withdrawn. In Nitrate of Soda no further business has transpired. The Cotton market is quieter, but prices are about the same as last week.

THE TALLOW TRADE.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, APRIL 5.

The Tallow Market since our last weekly report has, upon the whole, continued in a very quiet state; and business has again been limited, almost entirely, to the very moderate demand for consumption, and at prices varying but little from those we reported last week. The only feature worthy of particular notice, in the speculative market, has been the final settlement (where this was practicable) of the March contracts. This took place on Saturday, the 30th ult., and (as we have for some time past predicted) with little disturbance of the current quotations; an advance of 6d. per cwt. towards the close of business being the extent of the movement; and even this, slight as it was, could only be attributed to the groundless, though somewhat natural apprehensions of those, who at the eleventh hour, were still in the position of buyers. After the settlement prices resumed their former position, and the market in general the inactive character which has so long constituted its chief (and very unsatisfactory) feature.

To-day the business in 1st sort Y.C. has presented no feature of importance, a general stagnation being its chief characteristic. Prices quoted, 58s. 6d. ready delivery, 57s. 9d. for the month; 57s. 6d. to 30th June; 55s. per cwt. October to December.

The arrivals, since our last report of the 28th ultimo, have been 562 casks; deliveries, 770 casks; stock, 71,954 casks; showing a decrease of 208 casks.

Town Tallow has been again in good supply, and during the week most of the melters have been sellers at something more than the usual discount, 53s. 6d. to 53s. 9d. per cwt. nett, having been generally accepted. The "Letter-price" to-day is unaltered, viz. 56s. 6d., or 54s. nett cash. Country melted tallow has been selling in London at 53s. per cwt. nett.

The following were the results of the public sales of yesterday:—

Odessa.—450 casks offered—350 casks sold. Fair to good, sheep, 55s. 6d. to 56s. 3d.; good mixed, 55s. to 55s. 6d.; lower quality, 52s. 9d. to 54s.; and good to fine ox, 52s. to 55s. per cwt.; the latter being extra pale. These prices show the "feeling" of holders as to the prospects of the market in general. We note here a decline in some instances of 1s. 6d. to 3s. per cwt., from last week's quotations.

South American.—But little has been done in this article since our last report. A few parcels (pipes) have been sold, 57s. per cwt. being paid for fine quality. This price can hardly be maintained.

Australian.—We hear of no sales of any consequence; the stock is now very small, and 53s. per cwt. might be obtained for fine ox. There is no sheep tallow offering. There was no South American nor Australian tallow for public sale this week.

East India.—135 casks and 68 cases were offered; 81 casks sold—good quality at 54s.; inferior to middling 49s. to 53s. per cwt. The demand for this Tallow is very inactive.

North American.—6 casks of good, and 33 casks of fine quality were offered, and were bought in at 53s. and 55s. per cwt. respectively.

Continental.—12 casks of Belgian were offered—quality very inferior—and no bid obtained. They were taken in quite nominally at 51s. 6d. per cwt.

Cocoa Nut Oil has continued to meet with a very fair demand, Sydney especially. The business of last week in Cochin and Ceylon, has been chiefly by private contract, 50s. to 51s. being obtained for the former, and 49s. per cwt. in general, for the latter. 229 casks Cochin, 218 casks Ceylon, and 333 casks Sydney, were offered for public sale yesterday; the two former were neglected, a few lots only of fair Ceylon selling at 48s. 3d. to 48s. 6d. per cwt. The Sydney oil was all sold, good to fine quality at 46s. to 48s.; middling, 43s. 6d. to 45s.; and very inferior at 41s. per cwt.

Palm Oil.—There has been a rather improving tone in the market during the week, and fine Lagos has been in demand at 44s. to 44s. 6d. At auction, yesterday, 44s. 6d. to 44s. 9d. were paid for fine Lagos, and 44s. 3d. to 44s. 6d. for fine Whydah. Buyers were found for about 250 casks during the day. Of 190 casks, low quality, chiefly Monrovia, only 7 casks were sold at 38s. per cwt.

Palm Nut Oil continues to bring relatively high rates. Three casks only were offered yesterday, and sold at 38s. 9d. per cwt., quality not fine. There are but few parcels in the market.

South American Horse Grease is not much inquired for; 10 casks, good quality, were sold yesterday by auction, at 38s. per cwt., out of 20 casks and 200 cases offered.—Furnished by Messrs. Culverwell, Brooks, & Co., Brokers.

LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET.

LIVERPOOL, FRIDAY MORNING, APRIL 5.

During the first three days of the week the market was quiet, and prices showed no variation. Yesterday, however, owing to the reduction in the Bank rate of discount, a better feeling was shown, and the purchases reached 12,000 bales. Prices, compared with those of the previous Thursday, were a shade in favour of sellers. Of the supply disposed of yesterday, 11,030 bales consisted of American, 40 Egyptian, 110 Pernambuco, 20 Bahia and Macero, 300 Maranh, and 500 bales Surat.

[BY ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH.]

LIVERPOOL, FRIDAY EVENING, APRIL 5.

The market has been very firm to-day; the sales amount to 10,000 bales, including 3,000 on speculation and for exportation, and the imports to 5,273 bales. Fair Orleans cotton has risen  $\frac{1}{4}$ d. per lb., compared with last Thursday, while Up-land and Mobile show no change. The sales of the week comprise 46,360 bales, of which 6,080 were taken on speculation, and 6,450 for export; the imports are 75,204 bales. The present stock is 942,600 bales.

The Corn Trade.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, APRIL 5.

The weather has been very unsettled in most parts of the United Kingdom throughout this week, the wind blowing principally from the south-west, the sky being almost constantly cloudy, with but little sunshine, and a low temperature for the season of the year. Vegetation is generally backward compared with other years, spring-sowing being at least one month later than usual. The sowing of spring wheat may be considered now concluded, with few exceptions. The state of the weather since autumn has prevented the sowing of the usual quantity of wheat, consequently from this reason alone, a smaller crop than an average may be expected. But there are also complaints, that a large portion of the seed, from its imperfect quality, has never germinated, that the frost has killed a portion of the plants, and that generally the wheat fields look patchy, that is, barren of plants. The fair presumption is, therefore, that we shall have another deficient crop of wheat, which is all the more serious, considering that the old stock of former years' growth has been completely used up. However, this year's experience has proved the enormous capabilities of foreign importation, which, though the wants were great, has turned out fully equal to the emergency. A large portion of land originally intended for wheat-growing is now being sown with barley and oats, with a fair chance of success. Potatoe planting is also in progress.

The supply of home-grown wheat has been gradually on the increase during the last fortnight, but the returns of barley show a falling off, whilst the quantity of oats delivered has remained stationary.

The latest official returns of the quantity of grain sold in England and Wales reports as follows:—Wheat, 732,734 qrs. at 55s. 2d.; barley, 37,116 qrs. at 37s. 11d.; oats, 13,579 qrs. at 23s. 4d. per qr.

IMPORTS.—The quantity of wheat is still vastly in excess of every other kind of grain imported, principally from the United States of America, and the South of Europe, with a fair proportion from the Baltic. The imports of barley and oats continue small, and the quantity of maize imported is but moderate.

Early this week 1s. per qr. advance was quoted in the price of wheat, but during the last few days the trade has ruled dull, and prices have tended downwards. The reduction in the rate of discount to 6 per cent., combined with the unfavourable weather, and the threatening aspect of political affairs in Europe and America, are in favour of higher prices. But, on the other hand, we have to consider that, if the wants of the country are extraordinarily large, the imports are equally large, and have lately become far in excess of the immediate demand—that the granaries in all the principal seaports are full, in some places to overflowing—that in America, with the opening of canal navigation, great efforts will be made for a large exportation—that shipments in the Baltic are in progress, and the same may be said of shipments now commenced or commencing in the Azof, the Black Sea, and the Danube, exclusive of what is on the way from Adriatic and Mediterranean ports. The present range of prices of grain, which, though not excessive, is yet considerably above the average, and therefore requires an extra pressure to raise it much higher, must also be borne in mind. These arguments, pro and contra, are nearly equally balanced, and when such is the case, fluctuations in prices generally tend downwards. The fair presumption seems to be, that though prices of grain may not descend much below present quotations—neither is there the probability of an important rise, unless events happen not at present apparent. Flour has continued this week in fair consumptive demand, but the supply being equal to it, prices have remained about the same as last week. Barley.—With a falling off in the demand, prices have receded 1s. to 2s. per qr. Oats have not been much inquired after, but the imports have been small, and prices have slightly given way. Maize is quiet, and in order to effect sales, lower prices had to be taken. Beans are quiet, but firm in price. Peas are rather cheaper.

In Mark-lane to-day the attendance of the trade was moderate, and the tone quiet. Wheat—English, retail sale, and unaltered at last Monday's prices. Foreign—quiet, at last Monday's rates. Flour—American, quiet, at last Monday's rates—Norfolk, 40s. per 280lb. Barley—slow sale, at last Monday's quotations. Oats—dull, at last Monday's currency. Beans—unaltered. Peas—slow sale, no change.

Imports of foreign grain and flour into London since Monday last:—32,390 qrs. of wheat, 10,296 qrs. of barley, 63,307 qrs. of oats, 600 barrels of flour, and 7,042 sacks of ditto.

[BY ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH.]

LIVERPOOL, FRIDAY EVENING.

With a fair attendance of the trade, wheat was in slow demand, but maintained in value. Flour was dull, but firmly supported. Maize was a shade easier.

At an extraordinary meeting of the Union Steam Ship Company, held on Tuesday, a dividend of £1 per share, free of Income-tax, being at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, was declared.

CHIEF OFFICES OF THE COMPANY—No. 42, POULTRY.

The Metropolitan Consumers' Coal Company (Limited) has been formed for what may be termed mutual purposes, its object being to supply shareholders and the public with good coals at a moderate price; and while thus courting general favour, at the same time to remunerate those who embark their money in the undertaking by a fair division of profits in the shape of dividends on their shares.

It is proposed out of the annual profits of the Association to allow to Shareholders taking Coals of the Company a preferential dividend on their paid-up capital, varying from 5 to 15 per cent., according to the amount of their consumption. Careful calculation shows, that notwithstanding the advantages thus offered to Shareholders who directly promote the Company's interest, the more considerable portion of profit will still remain for distribution among the proprietors generally. Inquiry as to the working of the above principle is especially invited, and every information will be afforded on application to the Company's brokers.

Applications for Shares to be addressed to the Broker of the Company, F. A. Helps, Esq., 21, Finch-lane, City; to the Manager, at the Company's Chief Offices, No. 42, Poultry, E.C.; or to the Solicitors of the Company.

Every application must be accompanied by a deposit of 2s. 6d. per Share, or the Bankers' receipt for the same; and in case of no allotment being made the full deposit will be returned.

TO the PROPRIETORS of the LONDON and BLACKWALL RAILWAY COMPANY.

LADIES and GENTLEMEN,—I beg to announce myself a candidate for the seat at the Board which has become vacant by the lamented death of our much esteemed director, Mr. William Haigh.

For several years I have had the advantage of being one of your auditors. The intimate practical knowledge of our affairs I have thus obtained, coupled with my deep interest in railway property, will, I trust, sufficiently vouch my eligibility for the office I now seek, and induce you to accord to me the same confidence as director which I have so long received at your hands as auditor.

In due course I shall do myself the pleasure of forwarding you a stamped proxy for signature.

I have the honour to be, Ladies and Gentlemen,
Yours faithfully,
CHARLES WHEATHAM.

MINES, RAILWAYS, BANK, STEAM-SHIP, and INSURANCE SHARES BOUGHT, SOLD, or EXCHANGED.

Capitalists who seek safe and profitable investments, free from risk, should act only upon the soundest information; the market prices of the day are for the most part governed by the immediate supply and demand, together with the operations of speculators without reference to the bona fide merits of the property.

Mines afford a wider range for profit than any other public securities, and pay dividends bi-monthly, varying from 15 to 30 per cent. per annum. Instances frequently occur of young Mines rising in value 400 to 500 per cent. The undersigned devotes special attention to the above, and affords every information to capitalists, and effects purchases or sales upon the best possible terms.

THE FALL IN THE VALUE OF MONEY.

ON the 21st March the Bank of England lowered their minimum rate of discount from 8 to 7 per cent.; on the 4th inst. from 7 to 6; and on Thursday last, the 11th, from 6 to 5. The fall amounts to no less than 3 per cent. in three weeks.

In our last impression we summarised a few considerations which, in our opinion, pointed to a speedy reduction in the Bank rate of discount to 5 per cent. As these features are still in full operation, we cannot do better than reproduce them in the order in which they were given on the 6th inst., viz:—

"1. The rise in the New York Exchange to 107½ puts a stop to the flow of gold to America. 2. The Continental Exchanges are at a fairly satisfactory level. 3. The demand for silver for the East exhibits, as yet, little or no revival. 4. A general contraction of trade is in progress, as evidenced by the decrease of no less than 21 per cent. in the exports for the month of February, and in the gloomy accounts from the manufacturing districts. 5. Although the April dividends are not yet paid, the rate of discount for the best bills in Lombard-street is fully ¼ per cent. below the Bank minimum. 6. The general market is indebted to the Bank for advances to a less extent than is usual at this period, and will have, consequently, to repay proportionately less to that establishment when the dividend money is released."

It will not be denied that upon the considerations above cited hinges the course of the money market during the next few weeks. Even during the last few days the facts which have occurred tend further to strengthen the belief that the market will yet become easier. Let us glance again at these several points in their order:—

1. During the last week the New York exchange has risen from 107½ to 108, and is described in the latest despatches as decidedly firm. A few thousand pounds in gold continue to be sent by each steamer from this side, but merely as a measure of precaution, or in execution of old orders held here. As an exchange operation, such transactions would, of course, leave a considerable loss. Should the exchange rise ½ per cent. further, it is believed that parcels of sovereigns would begin to find their way back. It is scarcely necessary to allude to the effect which this would have upon our market, coming in addition to the influx of gold from so many other sources.

2. The continental exchanges may fairly be expected to become less favourable, now that the value of money here has fallen to a reasonable point, and that we have added considerably to our stock of gold. In the natural course of trade, gold ordinarily flows through this country to the Continent, because many foreign balances are adjusted through our eminent banking facilities. This process has been latterly arrested. As affairs return to their normal condition, it will be resumed. The exchanges between this country and the continent being as yet, however high, a considerable decline must take place before gold will begin to leave us. Moreover, the outflow will be checked to the extent of the gold remittances which are coming forward to this country from Constantinople and the Levant—that is to say, as the exchanges fall further, the Levant gold which is due to England will stop in France in its passage through that country, and will go to discharge any "indebtedness" that we may have there. But, as yet, the arrivals of gold in England from Constantinople have not ceased. Some further considerable amounts are shortly looked for. Upon several occasions we have endeavoured to impress upon our readers the important—but not really unfavourable—influence which the embarrassments of the Greek interest must have upon the money market, both in France and England. We showed that the diversion of Western capital for employment at very high rates in Turkey would not only cease, but that a large amount of it would flow back, and in the most available form—that of specie. This anticipation has been verified to the letter. The hoards of the precious metal in Turkey—partly deposited there by the huge Crimean war expenditure, which may be said to have saturated the soil of Turkey with a stream of English and French gold coin—have been at last treasured upon. The increase in the bullion, both in the Bank of France and the Bank of England, has been promoted by these circumstances, in a degree of which the majority of observers are not aware. The dead-set which has been made against the Greek interest left them no choice but to realise their resources as fast as possible, in order to meet their Western engagements. The ordeal has been a most trying one. The public will never know the losses and sacrifices which have been uncomplainingly submitted to by the Greek houses in this country with the sole object of preserving individual credit, and saving their names from the stigma involved in even a temporary suspension of payment. The Greek interest as a body have weathered the storm nobly; and, with all who are acquainted with the facts, Greek credit stands now at a much higher point than before. Meanwhile, however, their engagements are reduced to an unusually low amount; and the withdrawal of large masses of their paper from the discount market is a strong point against those who have to employ money.

3. As regards the flow of silver to the East, there is as yet no new feature of importance. The demand will probably revive as money becomes easier. The last Calcutta packet, however, took not more than £91,616 in all; and the amount by the Bombay steamer this week does not exceed £146,535. There is, therefore, no ground for immediate apprehension on this score.

4. The evidences of the contraction of trade are more numerous than ever. Amongst other points, the effects of the check which has been given to the operations of the enterprising Greek firms are felt painfully in many departments of business. To suppose that trade will revive with the same readiness with which the rate of discount falls, would be absurd. The commerce of the country has had all buoyancy crushed out of it by the combination of adverse circumstances that has lately arisen, not the least of which was the rise in the value of money to a panic-point and the severe policy pursued by the Bank of England. Our traders have not yet recovered from the 8 per cent. infliction which was needlessly, as many think, put upon them by the Bank. The justice of this view is certainly confirmed by the swiftness with which gold has poured in and with which the value of money has fallen. It will not be contended, we presume, even by the Economist, that the additional one per cent. charged by the Bank has produced so marvellous a change. The simple fact is that the Bank directors went at least one step too far. The tide was already turning when they fixed their charge at 8 per cent. This, therefore, was an unnecessary severity, never warranted by the state of the Bank accounts, as we argued at the time. The diminution in the amount of bills offered in the discount market forms a prominent feature of the moment, notwithstanding the confidence which the fall in the value of money is calculated to inspire.

5. The April dividends are now paid, and the immediate effect has been a marked increase in the amount of unemployed money. It is a very significant fact that, although the Bank rate has been lowered 1 per cent. this week, the terms for the best bills in Lombard-street are still  $\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. below the minimum of that establishment.

6 and last. The quarterly advances which had been made by the Bank during the shutting of the transfer books have now been repaid. This obligation has been discharged with perfect facility; and, as already stated, the supply of money in the open market is still unusually large. There is, therefore, nothing whatever to interfere with the belief that, in spite of the alacrity now shown by the Bank in endeavouring to make their terms approximate to those of the other money dealers, the latter will continue to underbid them.

The examination of each of these points leads to a belief that the tendency of the money market will still be towards ease. The Bank will probably pause for a week or two; and, when they move downwards again, it is very possible that a reduction of  $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. at a time may be resorted to; but the course of the general market is unmistakable. It is not an unimportant consideration that several weeks must now elapse before the Government balances will begin to accumulate again to a large amount, and before the Bank will regain a powerful hold upon the currency.

We have not yet exhausted all the features which encourage the hope of an easier money market. The Australian mail, which will be delivered to-morrow morning, reports shipments of gold to the extent of £506,000—a larger amount than has been reported by late packets. As an additional sum of £252,000 is at sea, the total on the way hither is raised to £758,000, of which fully a quarter of a million is now due. This is a fact of some importance, seeing that the total of coin and bullion in the Bank is now as much as £13,122,432.

Moreover, it seems to us that sufficient importance has not been attached to the great improvement which has occurred during the last few weeks in the character of the commercial and financial accounts from America. From that quarter came the signal of disturbance; from it will probably come a signal of fresh relief. The idea of civil war is gradually passing away from the minds of the American statesmen and people. The necessity of recognising the independence of the Southern Confederation is becoming generally admitted in the North. The financial straits of both Governments are no small guarantee of peace. Let it not be overlooked that, under the influence of fear as to what the future might bring forth, America has accumulated a store of specie unprecedented in her annals. The New York banks hold close upon £8,000,000, or more than double the average amount possessed by them in ordinary times. This specie is not needed. The locking of it up is simply the effect of the excess of caution which has prevailed in every quarter. Let commercial confidence revive—and it will do so just in proportion as the prospect of war recedes—and it will not be long before America loosens her hold upon the superfluous portion of her existing stock of gold.

We do not pretend to the gift of prophecy, or to foretell what may be the course of the money market later in the year, particularly in the event of our having another bad harvest, or of war breaking out on the Continent; but, the latter contingency apart, we are justified in concluding that, for some time to come, the movements in the money market will be all that the commercial community can desire. It is very satisfactory in so trying a time to find one solid ground whereon to repose confidence.

LORD STANLEY AND THE REDEMPTION OF THE INDIAN LAND-TAX.—A NEW SOURCE OF CONFIDENCE TO THE HOLDERS OF INDIAN SECURITIES.

WE are encouraged, from the numerous communications we have received on the subject, to persevere in bringing before the attention of Government and of the public the advisability of that most important and feasible measure—the commutation of the land-tax of India. This tax now produces £18,502,400 per annum. The object must be to commute it at a given number of years' purchase, and to apply the proceeds to the development of India by means of railways, works of irrigation, and other reproductive enterprises, as well as to the redemption of the debt of India, and of the liabilities of the Indian Government in the shape of railway guarantees.

In the first place, the plan referred to is, in the opinion of the most experienced persons, perfectly feasible. It has already occupied the earnest attention of Lord Stanley, who, when in office, addressed the Governor-General of India as follows, in a despatch dated the 31st December, 1858:—

"It appears to me," observes Lord Stanley, "that the question of granting unoccupied lands in perpetuity, discharged from all demand for land revenue on the part of the State, is intimately connected with another question which has of late attracted much attention in this country—viz., the expediency of permitting the proprietors of estates subject to the payment of revenue to redeem the land-tax by the immediate payment of a sum of equivalent value. In those parts of India which are under perpetual settlement, such as Bengal and the Northern circars (so far as the estates originally permanently settled have not lapsed to Government, and are now under khas management), the difficulty of arriving at a satisfactory decision will be the least experienced. It is obvious that if a zemindar, bound to pay in perpetuity a fixed jumma of a certain amount per annum, is permitted to redeem that obligation by the payment of an immediate equivalent, all existing tenures and rights of occupancy being, of course, in no way injuriously affected by the transaction, and that the amount so paid is applied to the extinction of debt, the Government remains in precisely the same financial position, the balance of its receipts and charges being unaltered.

"The process in this case is simply the extinction of a permanent annuity by the payment of its value in a simple sum; but in estimating that value it must be borne in mind that, while the perpetual annuity is a fixed amount, liable either to increase or diminution, the interest on the public debt, which may be extinguished by the transaction, is of a fluctuating character, and that the charge on the State on its account may be hereafter reduced by judicious financial arrangements. But the political result of such a change cannot be overlooked. The fortunes of the zemindar, who has been allowed to extinguish his fixed annual liabilities by a single payment, are from thenceforth still more intimately connected than they are at present with those of the British Government. This is no slight advantage, and may be fairly held to counterbalance some inconveniences of detail which may arise in effecting an arrangement such as is here suggested."

Now, this despatch of Lord Stanley concedes the whole question as to the feasibility and the policy of the plan we recommend, and although that nobleman is no longer Secretary of State for India, we have no doubt if his lordship were to bring the subject under the consideration of the House of Commons he would do good service, the more especially as the subject of Indian finance, the extension of railways and works of irrigation, and, what is of pressing importance, the means of constructing them, will probably form the subject of more than one debate in the House of Commons during the present Session.

That the land would find a ready sale in India we have no doubt, and we are confirmed in this view by the Friend of India. That well-known journal warmly advocates this statesmanlike measure, although it despairs of the Indian officials ever voluntarily pushing it forward. Our contemporary says:—

"Indian officials profess to understand more than other men the peculiar habits and prejudices of Asiatics. Yet they have never discovered that what gold is to the miser of the West, land is to his brother of the East; that every Hindoo's love of land is such, that he will sell all he has and buy a field if he can but call it his own outright. They cannot see that such a tenure would secure the loyalty of the middle class just as the right of adoption does that of the nobles; that such a tenure is the only motive to accumulation and the only basis of the solidity of character which a stake in the country produces in the respectable classes; that thus only will the State ever be able economically to administer the Government of so vast a continent by leaving the people of the soil to govern themselves. They will not acknowledge that every rupee paid, in reducing the land-tax, while it cuts off future revenue, by so much diminishes present debt and interest, while the whole machinery of Government is simplified, and the development of the wealth of the soil is left to the natural law of self-interest."

We have little to add to views so clearly and ably enunciated. We rely confidently on their being ultimately adopted; because it is alike for the interest of the Indian Government and the Indian people to adopt them; and we feel a moral conviction that necessity, if no higher motive, will compel the Indian Government to take the matter up without delay.

India is at present subjected to periodical famines for want of works of irrigation. This must not be—neither can the Government be permitted to go on adding to the debt year by year, when a mine of wealth lies undeveloped at their feet in the shape of a land-tax, bringing an annual revenue of £18,502,400, and which the natives of India would willingly redeem at twenty or twenty-five year's purchase.

We need only point to the progress which Ceylon has made since the Government, at the suggestion of Sir William Colebrooke, permitted the land-tax to be redeemed in that now flourishing island. Here is a practical illustration of the working of the plan. We trust that the present Government will be induced to take the initiative by introducing a measure which will allow the present revenues from the land-tax to be redeemed by instalments at twenty or twenty-five year's purchase, the payment being taken either in cash, Indian Government debt, or railway bonds and debentures; or if the present Government will not do so, let Lord Stanley push the matter forward. We will venture to assert that whenever such a measure is brought forward, it will command the support of an overwhelming majority, both in this country and in India.

MODERN MILITARY EXPENDITURE: ITS INEVITABLE RESULT.

WE last week drew attention to the alarming scale of our public expenditure. It may be as well to cast our eyes over Europe, Asia, and America, and see what is going on there. The review is suggestive of deep regret and anxiety, for every Government seems to be competing with its neighbours in the policy of taxing the people to the uttermost for military expenditure.

The financial improvidence of France is matter of notoriety. We find the Government obliged, in the face of a fall in the value of money, to raise the rate of interest on Treasury Bonds to 4 and 5 per cent. Already the issues of these bonds amount to an enormous sum. It seems to be the object of the Government to prevent the precise state of French finance from being understood. Thus, they have one Budget for "ordinary," and another for "extraordinary" expenditure, and there is always a locus-pocus between the two; but that there is a large excess of expenditure over receipts needs no demonstration, and the deficit has been going on accumulating for years. Military expenditure is the immediate cause of the waste. Those who watch the financial position of France narrowly are of opinion that the ultimate collapse of the Imperial system will arise from financial causes. The present scale of the public expenditure in France is quite incompatible with the permanence of any dynasty.

Let us now turn to the new Kingdom of Italy. It is not to be doubted that a very serious deficit exists. A loan of very large amount will be absolutely necessary to bring about an equilibrium in the finances of the coming year. In some quarters a forced loan has even been spoken of.

It is needless to mention the state of finance in Austria and Russia. Austria is at her wit's-end to know how—we will not say to make both ends meet, for that is impossible so long as the present scale of military expenditure is maintained; but the difficulty with her is to find means for meeting the current expenditure from month to month. Russia, on her part, is an habitual borrower.

Prussia will, it is said, require a loan; and politicians are very uneasy respecting the trouble brewing between Prussia and Denmark; for should the former Power make any unprovoked attack, a French "army of observation" would probably be instantly massed on the Rhine as a first step.

Intelligence from Spain seems also to indicate that the mania for military expenditure has extended to that country. It will scarcely be believed that a nation which will not afford to pay the miserable debt due to British bondholders in the shape of confiscated overdue interest is contemplating an expenditure of no less a sum than £20,000,000 sterling on fortifications and other military waste. The professed object is, forsooth, to defend the neutrality of Spain!

In Portugal there is also a deficit; and an increased military expenditure by Spain will doubtless involve a similar proceeding on the part of Portugal.

As regards Holland and Belgium, we believe there is a deficit in both countries caused by military expenditure, fortifications, &c.; and this would assume still larger dimensions in the event of the advance of a French army to the Rhine.

We know from late revelations what the financial plight of Turkey is. By some means or other she will soon be obliged to raise a loan of £6,000,000 to £8,000,000 sterling to stop the gap.

Travelling further East we perceive the certainty of a large expenditure in our own Indian possessions for many years to come. Here, also, the military expenditure is susceptible of important reductions. But, apart from any deficit between revenue and expenditure, India will require for years an outlay of many millions per annum for railways and public works alone.

Then, again, if we go across the Atlantic, we find both the Northern and Southern Confederation greatly in want of money; and, we are sorry to add, for military purposes. The North at present requires £1,600,000, the South, £3,000,000.

The public may well ponder on facts of this pregnant kind. All the waste of capital arises from the same cause, viz., excessive military expenditure. The inevitable result of such a state of affairs, if it be permitted to continue is, in the long run, either national bankruptcy or war—perhaps both.

It is greatly to be hoped, however, that England, through its representatives, will not only raise a warning voice wherever it can, but will set a good example by discontinuing its present enormous expenditure. If we mistake not, the expenses of the China war will awake earnest reflections as to the cost of military expeditions generally. We agree with Lord Ellenborough, that, although circumstances are arising in various parts of Europe which may lead to many difficulties, there is nothing that can afford a justifiable cause of war. This journal has nothing to do with politics, save in so far as they affect finance; but we cannot shut our eyes to the ruinous tendency of this enormous expenditure. Its continuance will assuredly bring about such a distress of nations as will either generate internal revolution or foreign war abroad. In either case the world may be deluged with blood, and the march of civilisation retarded. Exhaustion would then bring about a curtailment of expenditure. Why cannot this be accomplished without any such ruinous and wicked ordeal? Have we no conscientious statesmen, impressed with a sense of their enormous responsibilities, and anxious to take friendly counsel with foreign governments, with a view to effecting, by common accord, a reduction in military expenditure? Or are international affairs to be conducted for ever upon that principle of mutual jealousy, distrust, and dislike, which we smile at witnessing in the case of two rival school-boys, but which seems to have become the recognised rule of policy in all the Foreign Offices of Europe? It is a terrible, lamentable system. In ancient times it always led to war; and, with all our boasted wisdom and experience, we seem to be hardly one jot advanced in the arts of bridling brutal international instincts, or of applying our accumulations of wealth to the purposes of national utility, enjoyment, and progress.

FRIVOLOUS, VEXATIOUS, AND UNPRODUCTIVE TAXATION.

RARELY has such a wail and lamentation gone forth from any body of men as went forth on Tuesday last from the merchants and traders of London against the penny tax on goods, packages, and parcels, on goods in bulk, by weight, by measure, and by number, and on all animals imported. Never, perhaps, was a juster memorial framed than that which these merchants presented to the Chancellor of the Exchequer. Certainly never in the annals of our trade has there been any infliction so grievous and so vexatious as these miserable penny taxes. To the national exchequer the amount produced is so trifling that it is not worth sticking for, while the amount of irritation caused by such trumpery imposts is so great that no minister ought to heed public opinion by their continuance. It is scarcely possible for the community at large to understand how very vexatious this penny tax on "goods, packages, and parcels" is.

cels, on goods in bulk, by weight, by measure, and by number," really is to merchants.

The system, as the memorialists describe it, requires "special calculation for every entry and the employment of a series of figures," which, under existing forms, have in each case to be repeated several times. It is the time it consumes and the annoyances and delays it creates that are most bitterly felt, and which to men of business are almost intolerable.

Let us hope, therefore, that some relief will be found in the wistfully-eyed Budget which Mr. Gladstone is about to unfold, though, sooth to say, we hardly expect it.

THE SUPPLY OF INDIAN COTTON TO ENGLAND.

We observe with great pleasure that the Government of India have seriously taken in hand the momentous question of the supply of cotton from India. The Government act, not by attempting to foster the growth of cotton by means of model farms, bounties, and premiums, or any of the unnatural means which have signally failed in every instance, after a trial of eighty years, but by a series of measures which, while they leave to private enterprise perfect freedom of action, aid that enterprise by judicious assistance and facilities. First of all the Indian Government recommend the mercantile community of the ports of India to visit the cotton-producing districts, and to do all they can to reduce the number of hands through which the produce passes between the place of production and the place of shipment. These operations are to be facilitated by affording them the aid of the Government Treasury in their banking arrangements in these parts of the country where, as yet, no banks have been established, by cashing their bills on the presidency, so that they should pay no more premium than the actual cost of conveying the coin. We may here suggest that this might be done by introducing the new note currency, proposed by Mr. Laing.

The next consideration is, (and it is one of paramount importance) when the cotton is bought, how is it to be conveyed to the port of shipment? This the Government propose to do "by facilitating existing means of communication, even though it be in a rough way, by improving the present country cart and hack bullock tracks, and thus extending the mileage over which an ordinary load of cotton may be conveyed at a rate of two and a-half or three miles per hour, so that the export of this season's crop may be most effectually aided."

It strikes us that in a country like India the traffic from the interior might be greatly accelerated by the adoption of some such simple plan as tramways, which might be laid down at the comparatively trifling expense of £1,200 to £1,500 per mile.

However, in the mean time the Governor-General requests that each local government will at once take measures to have the lines of traffic between the cotton-producing districts and the port of shipment, whether situate on sea or river, examined and reported on by a competent officer, with a view of bringing the existing country cart tracks up to the standard just described. He suggests that the nearest executive authority should be the one charged with the work; and, provided there be no authority at hand, that a special agency should be appointed, the only condition being that the works undertaken should be capable of immediate execution.

We perfectly agree that for such works as these, engineers of high attainments are not required. Any man of judgment, with a capacity for rapidly estimating the probable cost of the very simple works required, may stand in the gap. Whenever the outlay required is beyond the means of the local government, application is to be made to the general Government for a special grant. The Government also propose that the officers employed should be accompanied each by a member of whatever commercial community may be most interested in the produce of the district, who might observe and report on any obstacles other than physical which may appear to impede the cotton trade. The combined report of these two gentlemen, if well selected, will, unquestionably, furnish information of great practical value. In order to facilitate this plan the Indian Government will be prepared to bear the charge of the travelling expenses of any gentlemen who may be deputed by the commercial community to accompany their officers. It appears to us that the Government could not have adopted a more judicious plan than that described, to facilitate the cotton movement in India; it now remains with the merchants to do their part.

We have urged the Government of India to commute the revenue derived from land, in order to obtain the means for facilitating works of a permanent nature. The very sensible plan of the Government now before us admits that "the solution of questions connected with the tenure of land, and with the law regarding contracts for the delivery of agricultural produce" is intimately connected with increased production, and will have considerable effect on the investment of European capital in the cotton districts. But what ought to be impressed on the Government of India is, that they should not look to European capital for aid, when if they will only adopt a judicious plan they will find abundance of capital in India which now lies buried and unproductive. There never was such an opening as at the present moment when our manufacturers are really alarmed as to the supply of cotton from America. If India would but seize the opportunity, it might in a great measure step into a trade in cotton worth fifty or sixty millions sterling per annum. This requires more promptitude and energy than has been hitherto displayed. However, the Government have now decidedly taken a step in the right course, the more especially as they have abandoned antiquated notions, and have come to the sensible conclusion—"That no measure which places the Government in the position of the private capitalist, cultivator, or speculator, or which in any way interferes with private enterprise, can be otherwise than permanently injurious in itself and detrimental to the object in view;" and that, therefore, all attempts to stimulate cultivation or labour by any exertion of Government authority (save in the way we have described), either directly or indirectly, are quite out of the question. Consequently all ideas of model farms and experimental cultivation conducted by officers of Government are abandoned, we trust, for ever. We need only point out the progress that has been made by the Assam Tea Company since the Government made over its works and plant to them. We may also mention the progress which Indian railways have made since the Indian Government resolved to entrust those works to the management of companies. We may refer, too, to the report of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce which thus describes the unsuccessful efforts of the East India Company to promote the growth of American cotton in India. "They began," says the report, "in 1788, and have continued almost uninterruptedly for seventy-two years at a total cost of not less than £350,000, and, with one exception, their efforts may be regarded as having resulted in signal failure. The energies and intelligence of governors, collectors, commissioners, American planters, and painstaking amateurs have successively and at times simultaneously been directed to this great national object, viz., the growth of American cotton, but with one result—signal failure." And why?—We again quote from the report of the Bombay Chamber. Because there has been—1st. Indifference on the part of the managers and employés. 2nd. Ignorance and bigotted opposition on the part of the native cultivators. 3rd. Dilatoriness in forwarding the foreign seed by which the proper seed time was allowed to pass over, and the seed became useless. 4th. "Wholesale destruction of promising plantations by the inroads of cattle, in most cases, doubtless, with the connivance of their owners, who in dry seasons were not unwilling to fatten their cattle at Government expense;" and finally, and lastly, the continual change of collectors from those who took an active interest in the cultivation, to those who took no interest whatever.

Verily these are good and sufficient reasons for failure, and have nothing whatever to do with the question of the fitness of India to grow cotton. Let but the natives know they are growing it for their own especial profit, and we shall hear no more of "promising plantations being destroyed by inroads of cattle," or of "the proper seed time being allowed to pass over," or of one little blunder which we cannot refrain from noticing, as showing the observant capacity of those persons who superintended the growth of American cotton for eighty years at the East India Company's expense :—

"A remarkable circumstance (says the report of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce), however, has been observed regarding the American seed—viz., that although perfectly good in March, when it reached Bombay, it has been found in June to be next to useless, not more than 1 per cent. of the seed having come up: It is probable, therefore, that the vitality of the American seed may be limited to the period necessary for its reproduction in the United States, where the sowing is completed in April. It is by no means improbable that this simple circumstance may be one of the chief causes of the almost general failure of the American cultivation."

Could any more convincing proof be adduced of the folly of Government protection? A gardener might just as well expect to obtain a crop of peas at Christmas by sowing them in November. This little fact only shows that Government interference—save in promoting public works—is useless, and, indeed, pernicious.

We wish the Government good speed in the sensible, practical course upon which they have now entered. They propose to endeavour to ensure to the Indian grower of cotton an improved means of transit and access to a market. This is beginning at the right end. Let the native cultivator but find that to grow cotton pays him better than to grow any other article, and it will not be very long before we shall be relieved from our present almost complete dependence upon America for supplies of this important staple.

SURMISES CONCERNING THE COMING BUDGET.

[COMMUNICATED.]

THE commercial world fondly hoped that at least they should have one year of repose; but they did not take into consideration that we have a man of genius for a Chancellor of the Exchequer, and that it is one of the infirmities of genius to be restless. Although the wisest and most popular plan, after such a year of commercial and financial difficulty as the last, would have been for Mr. Gladstone to do nothing, except abolish the obnoxious penny taxes, and leave the measures of last year to develop themselves—before attempting anything new—it is greatly to be feared that anything so humdrum is held in utter contempt by him. Otherwise we should not have had two Cabinet Councils to decide on the propositions laid before them.

The universal question in the City is, what is Mr. Gladstone going to do? In the first place, it is generally admitted that the deficit of the year ending the 25th March, 1861, amounts to between two and three millions. The China war is stated to have cost between three and four millions more than the estimate. Consequently the deficiency, instead of being between two and three millions, has risen to between five and six millions. Thus, although the army and navy estimates show a reduction of a million, there is still a large gap to be filled up.

Rumour is malicious enough to say that Mr. Gladstone, so far from relieving the commercial world from his grievous penny taxation, is about to extend that blessing in all possible and even in absurd ways. Then, again, it is asserted that the tax on chicory and coffee is to be equalised, and that a fresh duty of 1d. per lb. is to be tried on tea and sugar. Per contra, 2d. in the £ is to be taken off the Income-tax. The result of these mutations will be, that Mr. Gladstone will land us in the year 1862 with a surplus of a million, without having any resort to an increase of the National Debt.

The abolition of the Paper Tax is to be postponed "to a more convenient season," and possibly a flourish of trumpets will be blown that it and a well-digested project of reform will be brought in together.

Of course, what we have stated cannot be otherwise than surmise, because the Cabinet is bound to secrecy. Taxing tea to pay the expenses of a China war is, we presume, meant as a sort of poetical justice; but how about the consumers? However, we shall not be kept long in suspense—and possibly the Budget, which rumour states to have been proposed to the Cabinet, may be modified—Monday night will show.

THE STATE OF TRADE.

(COMPILED FROM NUMEROUS LOCAL REPORTS.)

THE accounts received this week from the manufacturing districts report continued depression in most branches. Hopes appear to be entertained, however, that the improvement in the weather, and the important fall in the value of money, will occasion a partial revival of enterprise.

The accounts from Manchester describe the market as much firmer than on Friday, both for goods and yarns. The cotton market having again moved upward, spinners, who are still pretty well engaged with past orders, are asking  $\frac{1}{2}$ d. to  $\frac{1}{4}$ d. per lb. more for most kinds of yarn. There is a larger demand than at the close of last week, but the rise in prices prevents business, as sellers will only in some cases agree to give  $\frac{1}{4}$ d. per lb. advance. The cloth market, of course, participates in the hardening of rates, but there is no result in the shape of improved business. Buyers are induced to act with the utmost caution by the unsettled state of politics on the continent. The German houses are now restricting their operations to the narrowest limits. The meeting of manufacturers whose weavers are on strike, was held on Tuesday afternoon, but came to no decision, and was adjourned till Tuesday next.

At Leeds the markets in the cloth-halls have been slightly better than last week, and both light fabrics and plain cloths sold rather more freely. The weather having become warmer and more settled in appearance, spring goods will go into use, and better markets for the next few weeks may be anticipated, unless foreign affairs should take a change for the worse. The manufacturers and merchants are cautious in their operations, and the general tone of the trade is one of great quietness.

At Rochdale the flannel and wool trades have manifested little or no improvement. There was a fair attendance at market, but purchasers operated cautiously, and bought only small parcels, whether of goods or wools. The foreign trade is slack.

At Leicester most branches of the hosiery trade remain extremely dull for the time of the year, and business generally is very flat. As the weather becomes more genial, the demand for goods suitable for the season is expected to increase. The foreign demand is inactive. In the adjacent districts very little is doing, and both town and country hands are but partially employed. Stocks in the manufacturers' hands are pretty generally low.

At Huddersfield there has been a better feeling in the market to-day, consequent upon the fineness of the weather, and the reduction in the rate of discount.

At Nottingham there has been a little more doing in the silk branch of the lace trade this week, and more business is expected to be done shortly. As respects the cotton branch, there is no favourable change to notice; far from an average amount of business is doing in any branch. The hosiery trade remains without material change; business is, on the whole, very dull, and many framework-knitters are out of work.

At Birmingham many establishments were wholly or partially closed last week, and with very few exceptions the orders on hand are small. In all the light and fancy trades the depression is considerable.

The report from Wolverhampton states that the country trade in every department continues languid. The factors report that the orders coming in are as moderate as possible; the country ironmongers, not excepting those who are in agricultural districts, are ordering upon an average not more than half the quantity of goods they generally do at this season.

The quarterly meetings of ironmasters commenced at Wolverhampton on Wednesday. The attendance was small. As had been anticipated, it was a thoroughly quiet quarter-day, the transactions having been on the most moderate scale; at the same time, a feeling was prevalent that the trade is a shade better than it was prior to the preliminary meeting. It was stated at this meeting that many of the works are not running more than half time. As to the American trade, there were a few orders received by the last packet, and the opinion is that the New York houses will continue to order moderately; because, so long as there is a prospect of the Morrill Tariff Act being repealed or modified, the ironmasters will be slow to extend their works; moreover, the present price of iron here and the cost of freight are favourable for the shipment of iron to the States, even at the present high rate of import duty. The demand for pig-iron is slack; in that branch of the trade no improvement whatever was observable. A further reduction of the make is contemplated by three or four of the pig masters who are in a position to blow out their furnaces. The reports of all present were to the effect that trade all over the district is flat and money scarce.

BANK NOTES UNREPRESENTED BY GOLD.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MONEY MARKET REVIEW."

SIR,—Your correspondent "Mercator" evades my assertion that to compel the Bank to issue notes to all who choose to sell it gold at £3. 17s. 9d. per oz., and to supply every one with gold at £3. 17s. 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per oz., is not free trade in gold. He says "that as nobody is obliged to sell his gold to the Bank, there is perfect freedom in gold as regards sellers and buyers of that commodity." Now this I deny, so far as the Bank is concerned. If the market price of standard gold is above £3. 17s. 9d. per oz., of course no one sells it to the Bank; but if no one in the market will give more for it than £3. 17s. 9d., then the Bank are obliged to purchase it, and to issue notes for it. On the other hand, if the market price of standard gold is above £3. 17s. 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per oz., the Bank are obliged to sell gold, or to exchange their notes for gold, at that price.

What I should call free trade in gold would be this, that the Bank should be enabled to refuse gold, as well as to issue notes for gold, at £3. 17s. 9d. per oz., and then they would not have to raise the rate of discount so high when those notes were presented for payment in gold. This presentation occurs whenever its market value is above £3. 17s. 9d. per oz. It is this compulsory issuing of notes when money is already a drug (caused mainly by the circumstance that the Bank have the power, which they always exercise, of issuing £14,000,000 of notes unrepresented by gold) which fosters speculation by making money unnaturally cheap.

Can "Mercator" call the compulsory issue of notes free? That it is compulsory is clear, for the Act runs thus:—"All persons shall be entitled to demand from the Issue Department of the Bank of England Bank of England notes in exchange for gold bullion at the rate of £3. 17s. 9d. per oz. of standard gold." If the Bank of England were compelled to change standard bullion for coin at the charge of 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per oz., that is a very different thing from being obliged to issue their notes in exchange for standard bullion, because there would then be no notes to be presented at the Bank in exchange for gold when it was above £3. 17s. 9d. per oz.

Monetary crises would be as rare as they are now frequent, if for every note issued there were an equivalent in gold. This "Mercator" admits. But he denies that the making it compulsory for the Bank to issue notes against gold at £3. 17s. 9d. per oz. is, so far as the principle of free trade goes, just as reasonable as compelling a grocer to buy sugar of a given quality at 6d. per lb. and to sell it at 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. If we wish to draw a parallel case with the Bank we should compel that grocer to sell 14,000,000 lbs. of sugar more than he has got in stock if the public demand it of him. What would the grocer do were such a law to exist? He would do precisely as the Bank do. Whenever his stock became low, he would throw every impediment in the way of the public obtaining it, or if they persisted, then he would apply for a letter from Government telling him to issue promises to pay in sugar on the security, not of sugar, but of chicory, or any other goods he had in stock.

"Mercator" has faith that the Bank will itself abandon the issue of notes unrepresented by gold, and he cites as a reason for his faith the fact of the Bank refusing to discount for the discount houses. Will he be pleased to inform the public what end the Bank have achieved by refusing to discount bills of exchange merely because they are presented by the discount houses, save that of creating a greater pressure on the Bank itself by having to discount those very bills which the discount houses turned over to them (but without their guarantee as formerly), and thus raising the rate of discount at least 1 $\frac{1}{4}$  per cent. higher than it would have gone had no such foolish regulation been made, to the great loss of the mercantile community?

Lastly, what parallel can "Mercator" draw between the banks which failed in 1825, and the plan I suggest of allowing every bank to issue notes on the security of gold, as well as the Bank of England? Those banks failed because they had no gold: it was because they issued paper (as the Bank of England are permitted to do to the extent of £14,000,000) unrepresented by gold, that such ruin was caused; and it is because I recommend no issues by any bank save in gold or silver bullion, but that all should have the same privileges, that "Mercator" splits straws when he himself avows "that by the Bank issuing notes unrepresented by gold, this fictitious currency must, in times of ease, unduly increase the quantity and reduce the interest of money, and in evil times double the pressure, from the Bank's fear of having to redeem more notes than are represented by gold." This is so well put, that I only wish "Mercator" would carry out his own plan, which is the same as what I am contending for, with this addition—that every bank as well as the Bank of England may be allowed to issue notes on bullion, and on bullion only.

ANTI-MONOPOLIST.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "MONEY MARKET REVIEW."

SIR,—An error of your printer, who substituted the word "excuses" for "processes" in my letter of last week, affords me a pretext for a few more lines about the Bank of England.

Of the principles which guide the action of that institution we may be supposed to know little or nothing, but may assume that they differ widely from the rule of conduct observed by other banks, because the directors are sworn to secrecy, which implies mystery. If, then, an outer barbarian enters into discussions of this kind, he ought to do so with extreme caution, and may be mightily mistaken if he bases his judgment on appearances and the dictates of common sense.

Thus much, however, is certain, that the Bank has lent the bulk of its money to Government, and that this has been done at too low a rate of interest may be assumed from the equally well-known fact that the Government has ceded to the Bank the privilege, not conferred on other national creditors, of issuing a corresponding amount of paper money as a compensation for the great service implied in the cheapness of the loan. It is necessarily a bad bargain for the country, for it allows an indefinite extra remuneration for a definite sum of money borrowed and lent. It is as if a mortgagee, besides getting his settled interest, were allowed to kill game, cut timber, or extract minerals from the land which constitutes the security of his loan. The aggregate nation is the game, the timber, the minerals—it is the well into which the Bank has fixed its mighty pump, to draw out as many sweet waters as it can swallow with convenience and decency.

Now, this statement is either correct or it is not. If correct, then the system ought to be got rid of. The Bank ought to have its money back; and then chain down the pump handle. No other conclusion is possible or logical.—I am, Sir, yours obediently,

MERCATOR.

THE PERNAMBUCO RAILWAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "MONEY MARKET REVIEW."

SIR,—It is to be hoped that some arrangement will be very promptly made relative to the Pernambuco Company, for I am sure you will concur with me in thinking that anything like litigation between the Board and the Brazilian Government would be most injurious to the Company. To attempt to resist the course adopted by Brazil, and at the same time petition for an increase of guaranteed capital, seems to me to be inconsistent.—I am, sir, your obedient servant,

LEX.

Literature.

RAILWAY INTELLIGENCE. Compiled from Official Returns by Mihill Slaughter, Secretary to the Railways Department, Stock Exchange. Published by the Author. Part XI.

THE vast amount of capital invested in the various railways in this country may in some sense be looked upon as another national debt, with this exception, that the money originally invested in the National Debt has been all expended, and is lost. Nothing remains of it except the entries in the Bank books of the names of the existing stockholders. On the other hand, the capital invested in railways is, for the most part, represented by actual property in land, works, and rolling stock. Moreover, it ministers daily and hourly to the convenience of the nation and to the development of trade.

The work before us embraces the various English, Indian, colonial, and foreign railway companies, whose stocks and shares are negotiated on the Stock Exchange, alphabetically arranged. It comprises the particulars of their parliamentary or authorised capital, created, called up, and expended. It describes the privileges and contingencies attached to the several classes of shares, gives the details of the debenture debts, revenue, dividends, &c., the mileage in operation or constructing, engagements for leases, purchases, amalgamation, working agreements, Government guarantees to foreign companies, lists of directors, auditors, and other officials, and other information of a multifarious kind. The funds of a railway are generally divided into "Ordinary Capital," "Preference Capital," "Debenture Stock," and "Loans on Debentures," and it is in reference to these several divisions that the information conveyed will prove of especial value to investors. The subject of railway preferential shares, for instance, is very imperfectly understood. Mr. Slaughter also refers to the repeal of Sir John Barnard's Act, the 7th George II., cap. 8, which imposed unnecessary restrictions on the making of contracts for the sale and transfer of public securities.

The Appendix contains particulars of the number of Railway Acts of Parliament passed since 1846, together with the length of new lines; and much information concerning railway traffic, and accidents.

The miscellaneous information at the end of the volume includes various forms, such as forms of indemnity for lost dividend warrants, or other securities, letters of renunciation, &c., &c. These can hardly fail to prove useful to persons engaged in share business.

What stamps the value of the book is, that the whole is compiled from official sources, accessible to few but the author. It is, beyond comparison, the best compiled work of the kind in existence.

THE FRENCH TREATY AND TARIFF. Edited by H. Reader Lack, Secretary to the British Commissioners for Negotiating the French Tariff. Published by Cassell, Petter, and Galpin.

THE chief interest and commercial value of this work consist in the authenticity of the documents, and the accuracy of the details comprised in it. These are matters of the highest importance in such a book, and are vouched for by a gentleman, who, in the character of secretary to the British Commissioners, became thoroughly acquainted with the whole of the facts. The volume commences with a brief historical account of the past commercial legislation of France, and the circumstances under which the new tariff has been executed. A copy of the treaty, signed at Paris on the 23rd January, 1860, is also given, together with the various supplementary conventions and tables of duties. There are also the duties chargeable upon articles, under the general tariff of France, not included in the recent treaty. The technical terms of trade are given both in English and French; and there is a table of French moneys and their equivalents in English. The whole is arranged in a convenient form for reference, and must prove of the highest utility to the mercantile community both of England and France.

HANDY BOOK ON THE LAW OF PRINCIPAL AND SURETY. By Edward Lawrence, jun.: Effingham Wilson.

THIS is another of the many useful commercial handy books, which have during the last few years been furnished by this enterprising publisher. It contains a summary of a branch of the law in which a large portion of the mercantile world are at some period or another inevitably concerned. The wisest of men once said, "He that hateth suretyship is sure." This axiom might have answered very well when the commerce of the world was in its infancy; but in these times of universal credit, when one man is continually called upon to become liable for the payment of some debt, or the fulfilment of some duty by another, suretyship has become essentially necessary. The legal bearings of such engagements, and the customs which regulate them should, therefore, be generally known. This useful little Handy Book enters very fully into the subject, enumerating the various occasions on which surety is required, and the nature of the instruments of suretyship. The law of principal and surety frequently becomes of importance with reference to negotiable instruments, such as promissory notes and bills of exchange. In the latter case the acceptor may be said to be the principal; the holder or indorser, the creditor; and the drawer and indorsers, the sureties; and when the creditor assents to any proposition of the principal, for time or for part payment, without consent of the sureties, they are exonerated. As to surety for the faithful discharge of any particular duty, the author furnishes much useful information, together with forms of surety bonds requisite to the proper and legal indemnification of the party guaranteed.

THE ST. JAMES'S MAGAZINE. Edited by Mrs. S. C. Hall. Saunders, Otley, and Co.

THIS new monthly candidate for public favour, is produced under the auspices of a lady whose literary fame is a sufficient guarantee that its contents will tend to the refinement, amusement, and information of its readers. The proprietors, who are content that its fate should depend entirely on its merits, are fortunate in the choice of their title, if there is anything in a name, for "St. James's" is known throughout the world as the Court of our Sovereign, and is linked inseparably with the memories of heroic men and women, who have made their country renowned. The opening chapter is very appropriately descriptive of what "St. James's" was, and is. Few of our readers are, we apprehend, prepared to learn that "St. James's" was originally a hospital for incurable lunatics and other persons hopelessly afflicted. The contents of this first number may probably be accepted as a fair specimen of what its future will be. Most of the writers are well known, and we have no doubt that their contributions will both amuse and instruct. We wish the enterprise every success.

BOARD OF TRADE, WHITEHALL, APRIL 9.—The Right Hon. the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade have received, from the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, a copy of a despatch from her Majesty's Minister at Turin, reporting that British spirits will, in future, be admitted into Sardinia, at the same reduced rates of duty as those levied on Hanse Towns spirits under the Supplemental Convention between Sardinia and the Hanse Towns, of the 20th of September, 1860; viz.:—In casks, of strength exceeding 22 degrees, 10fr. per hectolitre; in casks, of or below 22 degrees, 5fr. 50c. per hectolitre; in bottles, not exceeding 1 litre, 10c. per bottle.

M. MARSHALL, Chief Cashier.

The above return, compared with that for the previous week, shows the following changes:—

Circulation Issue .. .. .	£26,848,700	.. Increase	£180,240
Circulation Active.. .. .	20,158,340	.. Increase	334,370

Notes in Reserve .. .. .	6,690,360	.. Decrease	154,130
Total Reserve (Notes and Coin) in Banking Department .. .. .	7,439,092	.. Decrease	212,068

These changes arise chiefly from the dividend payments, which commenced on Tuesday, the 9th. A large amount having been merely transferred to the private deposits, and the quarterly advances having been repaid to the Bank, the reserve has scarcely been trenched upon. As the Bank bought £406,000 of gold during the week, about £280,000 in coin must have been sent into the provinces, or carried away by accountants.

THE MONEY MARKET.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, APRIL 12.

The directors of the Bank of England, at their weekly meeting yesterday, reduced the minimum rate of discount from 6 per cent. (at which it was fixed as recently as the 4th inst.) to 5.

Although this measure was not generally looked for so soon, it was perceived that the rate could not be kept at 6 per cent. for more than a week longer. The concession at the Bank has produced a good effect in commercial circles, and will probably be hailed with great satisfaction in the manufacturing districts. That the measure is a proper one is indicated by the circumstance that in the open market this afternoon the best bills were discounted at  $4\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. Both at the Bank and in Lombard-street the demand at the reduced rates to-day was only moderate.

In the Stock Exchange to-day the supply of money was extremely large, and 2 to 3 per cent. was scarcely obtainable for short loans on English Government securities.

A sum of £56,000 in gold has been taken to the Bank since the date of the return given above, inclusive of £7,000 this day.

The Niagara took last Saturday £35,052 in specie for New York, and the City of Washington on Wednesday £13,000, making the total sent since the commencement of these remittances, £4,866,000.

The arrival was announced to-day of the Atrato, from the West Indies, but she has only £49,000 in specie.

The Melbourne advices report the departure of the undermentioned gold ships for England, viz., the Copenhagen, with 51,206 oz.; Empress of the Seas, 5,040 oz.; Owen Glendower, 14,157 oz.; Kleber, 8,872 oz.; Kent, 26,054 oz.; Marco Polo, 6,570 oz.; and the Peru, with 14,562 oz. The Kooria Moorla, with 10,000 oz., the Callianee with 31,513 oz., and the Southampton with 21,544 oz., previously referred to, are also still at sea, so that the aggregate in gold on the way hither is £758,000, of which £252,000 is about due.

As the fall in the value of money here has already affected the exchanges to a slight extent, it is probable that the influx of gold from the Continent will henceforward slacken materially.

The Ellora will take on Friday £100,635 in silver and £45,900 in gold for Bombay, making together £146,535.

In consequence of the alteration at the Bank, the London Joint-Stock Banks have lowered their rates for deposits from  $4\frac{1}{2}$  to 4 per cent. The London and Westminster Bank give only 3 per cent. for sums below £500. The discount establishments have reduced their rates for money at call from  $4\frac{1}{2}$  to 4 per cent., and at notice from 5 to  $4\frac{1}{4}$ .

THE BULLION MARKET.

With reference to the movements in bullion and in the Indian Government paper, Messrs. Pixley, Abell, and Langley report as follows:—

GOLD.—Gold continues to be sent into the Bank; the amount purchased by that establishment since the date of our last circular (4th inst.) being about £388,000; and, as there is not any demand for export, the stock of Bullion held by the Bank is likely to be further increased, more especially if some of the vessels now due from Australia should soon arrive. The Niagara has taken £35,052 to New York, making a total of £4,853,000 sent to America; the Magdalena £1,940 to Brazils, and the Ellora £45,900 to Bombay. The Athenian has brought £12,000 from the West Coast of Africa: and about £50,000 has been received from Constantinople.

SILVER.—The Bar Silver ex Tasmanian has been sold at 5s. 0 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per ounce standard, but the price is now firm, and we quote it as 5s. 0 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. to 5s. 1d. per ounce standard. The Magdalena has taken £14,500 to the Brazils, and the Ellora £100,635 to Bombay.

MEXICAN DOLLARS are in demand, and with scarcely any on the market, their value has naturally risen; we quote the price as 4s. 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per ounce nominally.

EXCHANGE on India for Bank's drafts at sixty days' sight is rather lower. We quote 1s. 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. to 2s. for Calcutta; drafts on Bombay, 1s. 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. to 2s. 0 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.; Madras, 1s. 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. to 2s.; Document Bills, 1s. 11d. to 1s. 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.

INDIA GOVERNMENT LOAN. NOTES continue nearly as quoted in our last, the Five per Cents. being from 93 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 94, and the Five-and-a-Half per Cents. 99 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 100 $\frac{1}{2}$ .

The report of Messrs. Haggard and Co., dated this day, observes:—

Since our last circular our market has shown considerable activity, the demand for silver and dollars having been much stimulated by the reduction of the rate of interest. The supplies of gold from the Continent have also been on rather a large scale, while the rise in the rate of exchange at New York will have the favourable effect of stopping shipments of bullion from this country.

The imports include the Oneida, from the Brazils, with £26,646; the Athenian, from the West Coast of Africa, with £12,000; and about £200,000 gold from Constantinople and the Continent.

The exports comprise the Niagara to New York, with £35,052; the Magdalena to the Brazils, with £14,500 silver and £1,940 gold; and the Ellora to Bombay, with £100,635 silver and £45,900 gold.

There has been a rather large arrival of gold from the Continent, which, however, is not likely to continue long; the amount sold to the Bank of England is £381,000.

There has been a good demand for silver to the East, and the price has risen to 61d.: the bars by the Tasmanian having, however, been sold at 60 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.

There has also been much inquiry for Mexican dollars, which have risen to 4s. 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.

THE EXCHANGES.

The Continental exchanges this week have experienced a general decline. The downward movement continued to-day. This is a natural consequence of the fall in the value of money here.

THE BANK OF FRANCE.

The monthly return of the Bank of France, made up to Thursday last, the 11th of April, shows the following results:—

Coin and Bullion .. .. .	Decrease	£720,000
Bills Discounted .. .. .	Increase	360,000
Notes in Circulation .. .. .	Increase	280,000
Treasury Deposits .. .. .	Increase	40,000
Advances on Public Securities .. .. .	Decrease	10,000

The decrease in the bullion is not serious, considering the large increase that has lately taken place. Probably, some of it has come to England. To move the bullion, more bills have been carried to the Bank for discount.

THE INDIAN LOAN.

An instalment of 30 per cent., leaving 30 per cent. still to be paid, fell due on Tuesday on the Indian loan of three millions, but, owing to the payments in advance, the sum actually paid on that day was only about £500,000, instead of £900,000, as it stood originally.

A RUMoured ITALIAN LOAN.

Letters from Paris and Turin mention a rumour of an intention to raise an Italian loan of £8,000,000.

AMERICAN AFFAIRS.

The latest accounts from New York report the exchange "firm" at 108, and describe a cheerful impression with regard to politics. In London the inquiries for American securities are increasing, and the supply of many descriptions is becoming exhausted. It was rumoured this afternoon that another packet, just arrived from New York, announces a fresh rise in the exchange to 108½.

THE NEW ARRANGEMENTS RESPECTING THE TRANSFER BOOKS.

It appears that no plan has yet been definitely decided upon at the Bank of England respecting the alteration in the arrangements connected with the transfer books of Government Securities. A suggestion has been made by the Bank to the chairman and committee of the Stock Exchange, and there the matter stands for the present. The proposal is that the transfer books should be closed about eight or nine days before the dividends are due, instead of six weeks before, as has hitherto been the case. But under the new arrangement, the closing, which would take place on the 1st or 2nd of the month, would be practically merely formal, that is to say, it would mark the line which would be drawn, in accordance with which the dividend warrants would be made out in the names then standing in the Bank books. On the following morning the transfer books would be reopened, but persons then selling or delivering stock would do so with the dividend off. The new plan will probably come into force on the 1st of June.

SPANISH FINANCE.

An auction of Foreign Redeemable (Passive) Debt of Spain is to take place at Madrid on the 29th inst.

AFAIRS IN BUENOS AYRES.

The annexed memorandum comprises the substance of letters received on Monday from Buenos Ayres:—

Letters have been received from Buenos Ayres to-day of the 25th February last, which state the aspect of politics to have much improved during the preceding fortnight; and even though not perhaps all that could be desired, yet there was at least no longer any apprehension of a resort to arms. There was again a good understanding between the Government and the President (Dr. Derqui), and the differences between General Urquiza and General Mitre were not of such a nature as to threaten a rupture."

RAILWAY TRAFFIC.

The Brighton Railway traffic return shows this week an increase of £842; the Great Western, an increase of £623; the Great Northern, an increase of £2,231; the London and South-Western, an increase of £327; the Eastern Counties, a decrease of £3,075; the Midland, a decrease of £1,356; the Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, a decrease of £423; the Lancashire and Yorkshire, a decrease of £944; the London and North-Western, an increase of £1,510; and the North-Eastern, a decrease of £2,634.

The traffic returns published this week are for Easter week this year, against Good Friday week of 1860.

The traffic on the 748 miles of the South Austrian line of the Lombardo-Venetian Railway Company for the week ending April 1, was £33,469, being £2,885 more than in the corresponding week of 1859 on 687 miles; and that on the Lombardo-Venetian line £4,499, showing a decrease of £630.

The traffic receipts of the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada for the week ending March 16 were £14,957 sterling, being £386 more than in the corresponding week of last year.

The traffic receipts of the Great Western Railway of Canada for the week ending March 22 were £10,781 sterling, being £1,731 more than in the corresponding week of last year.

RAILWAYS.

A special meeting of the Great Western Railway Company is called for the 17th inst., when various Bills pending in Parliament will be submitted for approval. One of these is for increasing the capital; another is to sanction agreements between the Victoria Station and Pimlico, Great Western, and London, Chatham, and Dover Companies; whilst another is for making a line from the Great Western Railway to Hammersmith.

An extraordinary meeting of the Calcutta and South-Eastern Railway Company is called for the 16th inst., to confirm the resolutions passed at the meeting on the 13th March, whereby the directors were authorised to borrow £50,000 on debentures convertible into shares.

The meeting of the Great Western Railway Company of Canada, held on Thursday, excited considerable interest, owing to the paper warfare which has been going on for some time past, and to the imputations which have been cast upon a Minister of the Crown. The directors' report was received and entered on the minutes; the dividend recommended was declared at the rate of 3 per cent. per annum; the committee of investigation appointed on the 4th of last April was discharged; and it was resolved that the expenses of the committee be sent in to the board and settled. They will doubtless be very heavy.

The report of the directors of the Antwerp and Rotterdam Railway shows a net profit on the 31st December last of £17,183, applicable to dividend, being £3,053, or 24 per cent., more than in 1859. This is after providing for the interest on the bonded debt. A dividend of 8 francs per share is recommended, leaving a balance of £1,113 in hand.

BANKS.

The following satisfactory report will be presented by the directors of the Agra and United Service Bank (Limited) at the twenty-seventh annual meeting on the 13th instant:—

The directors have the pleasure to place before the proprietors the audited accounts for the twelve months ended 31st December last, and to report that after making ample provision for all bad and doubtful debts, the net profits of the Bank for the year amount to £130,345. 14s. 4d.; this sum added to £12,302. 0s. 2d., the unappropriated balance of the preceding year, will amount to £142,647. 14s. 6d. Out of this sum the directors have declared, free of Income-tax, two half-yearly dividends at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum each, and have added to the last of these a bonus of £1 per share, thus making the return equivalent to 12 per cent. per annum on the paid-up capital of one million sterling. Out of the remaining surplus the directors have placed £10,000 to credit of the reserve fund, thus increasing that fund to £200,000. They have also placed such a sum to the credit of the super-annuation fund as raises that fund to £5,000. A balance of £12,647. 14s. 6d., as appears by the audited account, is carried to the profit and loss for the current year. The directors have to report that owing to the rapidly increasing business at Kurra- chee, they have established a branch of the bank at that port. Mr. Mackintosh Balfour, the manager of the Calcutta branch, has been appointed general manager, in place of the late Mr. Francis Robert Neilson, deceased; but before he assumes his duties, it has been deemed expedient that he should visit each of the branches, for the purpose of a thorough inspection of their business. In the meantime, Mr. William Shipman, the London manager, is officiating as general manager until Mr. Balfour returns to England. The proprietors will have to elect auditors for the ensuing year, and the present auditors offer themselves for re-election.

An extraordinary meeting of the shareholders in the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China is called for the 18th inst., to confirm the resolution authorising the directors to apply for a supplemental charter, sanctioning the issue of bank notes at Singapore and in the adjoining settlements.

The annual meeting of the proprietors of the National Provincial Bank of England is convened for the 9th of May.

Mr. Joseph Neale McKenna, hitherto General Manager of the National Bank, has been appointed to the seat on the direction vacant by the decease of the late Mr. Francis Spaight.

THE BANK OF ENGLAND.

On Tuesday last came on the election for Governor and Deputy-Governor of the Bank of England for the year ensuing. Mr. Alfred Latham was chosen Governor, and Mr. Kirkman Daniel Hodgson Deputy-Governor; and yesterday came on the election for twenty-four Directors for the year ensuing, when the following gentlemen were elected:— Messrs. Thomas Baring, Henry Wollaston Blake, Henry Hulse Berens, John William Birch, Travers Buxton, Arthur Edward Campbell, Stephen Cave, William Cotton, James Pattison Currie, Bonamy Dobree, Benjamin Buck Greene, George Joachim Goschen, James Alexander Guthrie, Thomson Hankey, John Benjamin Heath, John Gellibrand Hubbard, George Lyall, Thomas Masterman, Alexander Matheson, James Morris, Sheffield Neave, George Warde Norman, Edward Howley Palmer, and Thomas Charles Smith.

ASSURANCE COMPANIES.

A call of £1. 10s. per share is to be paid by the contributories of the Herald Life Assurance Society by the 13th inst.

The annual meeting of the Globe Insurance Company is called for the 25th inst.

THE ORIENTAL INLAND STEAM COMPANY.

It appears, by advices just received from Kurra- chee, that the water in the Indus has been lower this year than it has been known to be for many years past. The operations of the Oriental Inland Steam Company on the river, however, have not been for a moment suspended. The Sulej left Kurra- chee on the 26th February, on her sixth voyage to Moultan, with a good cargo, and the Government has paid over to the Oriental Inland Steam Company the amount of the first year's subsidy which this company is to receive for running its vessels on the Indus.

THE GREAT EASTERN.

A paragraph having appeared in some of the newspapers to the effect that the Great Eastern is to take out 1,200 Mormon emigrants, we have authority for stating that no such engagement has been made or is contemplated.

GEELONG AND MELBOURNE RAILWAY.

The share capital of the Geelong and Melbourne Railway Company has now been paid off, together with the first series of debentures falling due in London. There yet remains a mortgage, of which £41,000 is payable on 1st January, 1864, and £62,800 on 1st July, 1867. The Victoria Government was bound, under the Investment Act, to maintain the registers of all outstanding securities of the company, and although this has not been done since the company's office was closed in May last, arrangements have now been made to open a Transfer Book under the authority of the Board of Land and Works (Colonial) at the "London and Westminster Bank," where all transfers will be in future registered, and where interest and principal will be payable through the agency of the six associated Australian banks acting for the colony. Mr. Richard Potter, the Chairman of the Committee, has addressed the following handsome and deserved tribute to Mr. S. J. Cooke:—

My dear Sir,—The Committee of Proprietors on the London Register of the Geelong and Melbourne Railway have great pleasure in handing to you the sum of £900, being the amount subscribed by shareholders and bondholders in this undertaking, as an acknowledgment of your valuable services in conducting the affairs of the Company from the first introduction of the share and bond securities into this country, up to the final completion of the transfer and repayment by the Colonial Government. By this subscription the proprietors have answered the appeal of the committee, and I will venture to say, from long personal intercourse with you, and an intimate knowledge of the very critical and anxious duties you have had to discharge as the London agent, that you have fully earned this acknowledgment. During a period of discouragement and depreciation, when the guaranteed interest failed to reach those who were entitled to it, and the property was placed in serious risk, you enabled the committee to combine all interests, and to bring to bear enlightened public opinion against all attempts to escape from obligations contracted to the holders of shares and bonds in this railway.

Latterly your services were gratuitously rendered to the committee, and it will ever be a subject of congratulation to yourself, as it is to the committee, that you contributed materially to the repayment in full of a large amount of English capital invested in a distant colony.—I am, very sincerely yours,

(Signed) RICHARD POTTER,
Chairman of Committee.

To S. F. Cooke, Esq.

OTHER PUBLIC COMPANIES.

The half-yearly meeting of the Great Central Gas Consumers' Company is called for the 26th inst., when a dividend is to be declared.

The fifth annual meeting of the Acadian Charcoal Iron Company is convened for the 16th inst., at Sheffield.

The half yearly meeting of the Independent Gas Company is called for the 17th inst.

INTEREST AND DIVIDENDS.

The half-yearly interest is advertised on Panama Railroad bonds, and on City of Montreal Corporation bonds.

The guaranteed interest is advertised on Royal Danish Railway shares and bonds.

THE STOCK AND SHARE MARKETS.

The English funds have shown a tendency to improvement in consequence of the fall in the rate of discount. The upward movement, however, has been checked by the uncertain state of foreign politics, and by the competition of Indian and other securities. Wednesday was settling day in Consols. The supply of stock was ample, and the rate of "continuation" was 5-16 to  $\frac{3}{8}$  per cent. Consols, after touching 92 to  $\frac{1}{2}$ , fell suddenly to-day to 91 $\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{5}{8}$  for the 9th of May, owing to the circulation of some vague and unconfirmed rumours from the Continent. The closing prices were 91 $\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$  for money, and 91 $\frac{3}{4}$  to  $\frac{7}{8}$  for the 9th of May, being about  $\frac{1}{8}$  per cent. lower than on last Friday. The improvement in the weather and in the political and financial accounts from America form, however, very important features.

The official list of to-day's actual business in the English Funds and Indian Government Securities, is annexed:—

Three per Cent. Consols, for money, 91 $\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{5}{8}$ ,  $\frac{7}{8}$ ,  $\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{3}{4}$ ,  $\frac{1}{2}$ ; ditto for account (May 9), 92, 91 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Three per Cents. Reduced, 90,  $\frac{1}{2}$ , 89 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; New Three per Cents., 90 $\frac{1}{2}$ , 90; Bank Stock, 227; India Stock, 220 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; ditto Five per Cent. Stock, 100 $\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{3}{4}$ ,  $\frac{1}{2}$ ; ditto for account, 100 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; ditto Four per Cent. Debentures, 1858, 96 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; ditto, 1859, 96 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; ditto Bonds, 25s., 20s. dis.; Five per Cent. "Enfaced" Rupee Paper, 94; ditto Five-and-a-Half per Cent., 100 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; and Exchequer Bills, 4s., 5s., 2s. dis.

Exchanges from the English funds into the Indian Five per Cent. stock continue to be effected.

The scrip of the New Indian Loan was quoted to-day 100 $\frac{5}{8}$  to  $\frac{7}{8}$ , being  $\frac{5}{8}$  per cent. higher than last week; the Five per Cent. rupee paper, 93 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 94; and the Five-and-a-Half per Cent., 99 $\frac{3}{4}$  to 100 $\frac{1}{4}$ . India Bonds are rather better, at 25s. to 20s. dis.

Owing to the accumulation of unemployed money, a rise of 3s. has occurred in Exchequer Bills. The closing price to-day was 5s. dis. to par.

Mexican Bonds have been prejudiced by the accounts of the disorganisation that still prevails in the Republic, and of the difficulties experienced by the newly constituted Government. A fall of  $\frac{3}{8}$  per cent. has occurred. There has also been a reduction of  $\frac{3}{4}$  to 1 per cent. in Turkish. Other Foreign stocks are quiet but steady.

The nominal closing quotations of the principal Foreign Stocks this afternoon are given below:—

In the market for British Railway Stocks there have been numerous variations. This morning prices were considerably better than at the close, the market being agitated by the causes which prejudiced the funds. A comparison with last week's prices shows considerable steadiness. Preparations for Monday's settlement commenced this day. The supply of stock was generally scanty, particularly of London and North-Western. Nearly all the recent fluctuations, both upward and downward, have resulted from the active speculation which is kept up by a number of operators in the provinces. The traffic returns are closely watched, it being apprehended that the effect of the depression in trade is only now beginning to be felt, having been hitherto delayed by the execution of old orders. On the other hand, the fall in the value of money is decidedly in favour of this class of property.

The following shows the closing prices of the principal British Railway Stocks this day, and the result of the week's variations. The share list in detail will be found in another column:—

The stock of the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada has fallen 1 per cent., and the debentures have been depressed in consequence of the news that Mr. Carter, the Canadian Premier, has announced that the Government do not intend to propose any measure of relief to the Grand Trunk Railway during the present Session.

The fortnightly settlement in shares and foreign stocks commenced this day ("continuation day") and will terminate on Monday.

The closing quotations for shares in new undertakings to-day were as follows:—Ocean Marine Insurance, 3 $\frac{1}{4}$  to 3 $\frac{1}{2}$  prem.; Thames and Mersey Marine, 1 1-16 to 1 3-16 prem.; Universal Marine Insurance, 1 1-16 to 1 3-16 prem.; London and Provincial Marine, par to  $\frac{1}{4}$  prem.; East India Irrigation,  $\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$  dis.

THE PARIS BOURSE.

At Paris to-day (Friday) the Three per Cent. Rentes opened at 67.60, fell to 67.42 $\frac{1}{2}$ , and closed at 67.50 for money, and 67.55 for the account, being  $\frac{1}{8}$  to  $\frac{1}{4}$  per cent. lower than yesterday, and  $\frac{1}{4}$  per cent. lower than on last Friday.

THE VIENNA BOURSE.

At Vienna this day (Friday) the exchange experienced a movement of 1 per cent. in favour of Austria. This may be considered a hopeful political indication.

AMERICAN SECURITIES.

The position of the markets for American securities is noticed as follows by Messrs. D. Bell, Son, and Co.:—

During the past week there has been a more active business in American securities; some large purchases have been made of State Stocks, whilst the first-class Railroad Bonds are in good demand, with only a very limited supply.

The report of Mr. E. F. Satterthwaite, dated Wednesday evening, is annexed:—

We have again to note a very firm market in London for American securities, caused by the improved quotations received from New York. The market at present is very bare of first-class Railroad Bonds, and quotations of Erie Third Mortgage, New York Central, Michigan Central, and Pennsylvania Central, show an advance of 2 per cent. Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana Sinking Fund Bonds are much wanted, the price in New York having reached 87. In Illinois Central and Erie shares there has been an advance of 1 per cent., and New York Central of 2 per cent.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Mr. Joseph Tasker died suddenly on Monday, having broken a blood-vessel. Mr. Tasker, who was sixty-four years of age, had been connected for thirty years with various foreign, particularly Spanish-American, bondholders' committees, and was well known in City circles. He had been for many years a director of the United Mexican Mining Association.

The mails from Calcutta, China, and Australia will be delivered in London to-morrow (Saturday) morning.

Mines.

FRIDAY EVENING, APRIL 12.

During the earlier part of the week the mining market remained dull and inactive. The principal movement was in East Caradon shares, in which the variations were incessant. During the last two days, however, there have been some indications of a revival of business, and the market has presented a firmer appearance.

The mining market to-day, though not active, was steady. The principal business was in East Wheal Grenville and East Caradon shares, both of which were firmer. There were also inquiries for Wheal Uny, Marke Valley, Bryn Gwiog, Wheal Ludecott, Wheal Moyle, and Calvadnack.

The following prices are reported to us from the Stock Exchange this evening:—

Alfred Consols,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ ; Calvadnack, 3 to 4; Copper Hill, 85 to 90; East Basset, 101 to 103; East Caradon, 19 to 19 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; East Carn Brea,  $8\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ ; East Grenville,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{1}{4}$ ; East Russell,  $6\frac{7}{8}$  to 7; Herodsfoot,  $36\frac{1}{2}$  to  $37\frac{1}{2}$ ; Hingston Down,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Marke Valley,  $7\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ ; North Treskerby,  $23\frac{1}{2}$  to  $24\frac{1}{2}$ ; Providence Mines, 36 to 37; Silver Vein,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ ; Stray Park,  $36\frac{1}{2}$  to  $37\frac{1}{2}$ ; Treloweth,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  to  $3\frac{1}{4}$ ; West Basset, 17 to 17 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; West Rose Down, 11 to 13; Wheal Buller, 114 to 116; Wheal Clifford, 165 to 175; Wheal Ludecott,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ ; Wheal Margaret, 46 to 47; Wheal Trelawney,  $13\frac{1}{2}$  to 14; Wheal Unity, 7s. 6d. to 8s. 6d.

St. John del Rey and Brazilian Land and Mining shares have been inquired for. United Mexican are quoted lower, owing to the death of a large holder (Mr. Tasker). Nerbudda Coal and Iron are steady, as are also Australian mines.

The prospectuses of two new mining undertakings have been issued this week. One is the Bearzi Tin Streaming Company (Limited). Spanish mining has at various times attracted a good deal of English capital. One of the principal recommendations of the present undertaking is the inexpensive character of the workings proposed. The tin ore existing on the property (which is within thirty miles of Vigo) is reached by the very simple means of open cuttings, from six to eighteen feet deep. The ore being described as rich, it is not surprising to learn that the property has been continuously and successfully worked by the present proprietor for many years. Amongst other favourable points, the workings are now in productive operation; labour is abundant and cheap, and there is a ready market for all the produce that can be raised. The terms of the purchase are very fully embodied in the prospectus. Moreover, it is very properly promised that the directors will not proceed to the allotment until more than two-thirds of the capital is subscribed, and that, in case the company be not established, all the deposits will be returned in full. The capital is to be £20,000, in shares of £1 each.

The second new undertaking referred to is the Glan-y-Pwll Slate and Slab Company (Limited). The fine quarries owned by Lord Palmerston and other gentlemen in Merionethshire are well known. Those which this company propose to work adjoin their boundary, and are stated to be a direct continuation of their seam. The produce ought, therefore, to be of the same character and equal value. Especial stress is laid upon the natural facilities of the sett, which enable the workings to be carried on very economically. The water power available is ample at all seasons. Welsh slate quarries, in numerous instances, yield extraordinarily high returns. In the present instance it is satisfactory to observe that of the purchase money one-half is taken in shares, and that the directors bind themselves to return the whole of the deposit money, unless, at least, one half of the capital is subscribed for. The capital is £30,000, in shares of £5 each.

Existing shareholders in the South Devon Iron and General Mining Company (Limited) are invited by the directors to apply at once for the remainder of the 6,000 shares, bearing a preferential dividend of 10 per cent. per annum. Any of these shares that may remain unsubscribed for on the 16th inst. will be allotted to the public.

The directors of the Nerbudda Coal and Iron Company have received the following report from their managing agent in India:—"The coal continues to look well in the level, which, as well as the pit, is progressing satisfactorily. I have now about twenty tons of coal raised by merely driving the level, and shall be able to raise as much as is required on receipt of tools, plant, &c."

An extraordinary meeting of the Mariquita and New Granada Mining Company is called for the 17th inst., to authorise the directors to borrow £7,300 on debentures.

At the annual meeting of the Lusitanian Mining Company, on Thursday, it was resolved that, in consequence of the non-arrival of the balance of the ore raised prior to the 30th of September last, without which the profit cannot be determined, the meeting be adjourned to the 9th proximo. The retiring directors were re-elected, and the auditor re-appointed.

At a meeting of adventurers in North Wheal Trelawney, held at Liskeard, on the 3rd inst., the accounts for October, November, and December showed—Sales of lead ores, £438. 18s. 10d., and a reduction of the balance carried to the debit of the next account to £148. 11s. 7d. A call of 1s. per share was made.

An extraordinary meeting of the Huelva Copper Mining Company is called for the 15th inst., where the liquidators will report the progress that has been made in the winding up of the company.

At New Wheal Vor and East Wheal Metal meeting on the 3rd inst., a call of 10s. per share was made.

The Cwm Erfin Mining Company, on the 28th ult., declared a dividend of 15s. per share (£650. 5s.)

At the Wicklow Copper Mine meeting, on the 30th ult., the accounts showed a credit balance, being the profit for the half-year, of £15,104. 18s. The balance of assets over the liabilities was £37,526. 16s. 4d. A dividend of £2. 12s. 6d. per share, free of Income-tax, was declared, carrying over the sum of £1,602. 5s. 7d. to the surplus fund.

At Great Retallack Mine meeting on Wednesday the accounts showed a balance of assets over liabilities of £1,289. 19s. 4d.

The Tincroft Mine accounts, presented at the meeting on the 9th inst., showed a profit on the twelve months' working of £1,718.

At Bottle Hill Mine meeting on Wednesday the accounts showed a cash balance in hand of £378. 19s. 2d., and assets over liabilities of £349. 3s. 1d. The operations at the mine had been suspended for more than a month since last meeting, owing to the severe frost. Otherwise a larger quantity of tin would have been sold.

At North Robert Mine meeting, on Thursday, the accounts showed a balance of assets over liabilities of £751. 19s. 5d.

At the Vale of Towy Mine meeting this day, the accounts showed a credit balance of about £400.

From Pencreig (Llanrwst) United Lead Mine, April 8th, Captain Roberts reports as follows:—"Ten tons of lead ore raised from this mine have been sold this day at £12. 2s. 6d. per ton, net cash, and shipped free on board vessel at Trefrew. This, considering the very depressed state of the market, is undoubtedly a good sale. The lode in the fore-brest and bottom of the 28 still continues good, and improving as we proceed. A further quantity of ore is preparing for market."

An aggregate of £4,725 tons of copper ore will be put forward for sale at Truro on the 18th inst., viz.:—Devon Great Consols, 1,537 tons; Wheal Crelake, 401; Phoenix, 346; West Caradon, 325; Marke Valley, 300; Bedford United, 201; Wheal Edward, 198; Calstock Consols, 160; Wheal Emma, 155; Devon and Cornwall, 150; North Robert, 143; East Caradon, 140; Wheal Friendship, 125; Torpoint Regulus, 110; Kelly Bray, 102; South Lady Bertha, 75; Sortridge Consols, 69; Molland, 60; Bampfylde, 51; Trehill, 28; Cuddra, 25; and Brookwood, 24 tons.

The following telegram was received on Thursday from the agent of East Wheal Grenville:—"Shaft improving; worth full £30 per fathom for copper."

MERCANTILE EMBARRASMENTS.

The failure of Mr. James Warden, iron merchant, of Birmingham, has been reported. It was mentioned as impending at the time of the failure of John Plimley Edwards, last year, by whom Mr. Warden sustained a loss. The liabilities in this matter amount to £7,000; upon which a composition of 5s. in the pound has been offered. The creditors asked for security, which not being forthcoming, an assignment was required. The matter stands over.

On Saturday last it was made known in Wolverhampton that Mr. Joseph Gilbert, of Cradley Heath, chainmaker, is in difficulties. The liabilities amount to from eight to ten thousand pounds. The plant and all the available property is held by the Birmingham Banking Company as security.

Messrs. Cook and Greenwood, wine merchants, of Mark-lane, have stopped payment. The liquidation is expected to be unfavourable, but the liabilities are limited.

It is understood that the estate of Mr. James Crichton, of the Coffee-house and Dundee, stands in a much less favourable position than was expected. Although the liabilities (£90,000 or £100,000) are partly covered, it is considered questionable whether the ultimate dividend will be more than 10s. in the pound.

The following satisfactory circular was issued on Thursday, by Messrs. Ede and Co., who suspended payment in February last:—

16, George-street, Mansion-house, London, E.C., April 12, 1861.

Since the meeting of our creditors on February 26th, we have received intelligence from all our correspondents, fully verifying the anticipations we then expressed of a satisfactory liquidation of our affairs. Our Constantinople firm has likewise called a meeting, at which a resolution of adjournment to the 30th April was passed, to enable them to ascertain with accuracy the result of their current liabilities. We have further been advised that our Smyrna and other debtors have made arrangements either to meet their engagements as they become due, or to liquidate them within a reasonable period. Inasmuch, however, as the last of our engagements will not mature until the 19th instant, and the exact position of our Constantinople firm, upon whose movements we are mainly dependent, cannot be known on this side until the middle of May, we have to solicit your further indulgence until the 20th of that month, when we confidently anticipate being in a position either then, or at an early period, to liquidate all our engagements in full with interest. Trusting this will be deemed satisfactory, and meet with your concurrence—We are, yours very faithfully,
EDE and Co.

A meeting of the creditors of Mr. S. J. Hallé, merchant, who recently suspended payment, was held at Manchester yesterday. The aggregate liabilities are £25,987, and the assets £22,005. It was resolved to wind up the estate under inspection.

At an adjourned meeting of the creditors of Messrs. T. Brown and Sons, silk manufacturers, held at Manchester on Monday, the liabilities were stated at £23,432, and the assets at £12,430. It was agreed to accept a composition of 10s. in the pound, payable in instalments extending over sixteen months.

A meeting of the creditors of Mr. Leopold Samson, buying agent, whose suspension was caused by that of Messrs. J. G. Behrends and Co., East India merchants, of London, was held at Manchester, on Wednesday. The balance-sheet presented showed liabilities to the amount of £26,447, while the assets reach £25,266, leaving a deficiency of only £1,180. It was resolved to adjourn until the 19th inst., in order to allow Mr. Samson to offer a composition, and meanwhile a committee of investigation will act.

At the adjourned meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Schilizzi and Vuros, Greek merchants, held on Thursday, it was resolved to accept a composition of 10s. in the pound, 6s. of which is payable at once in cash, and the remaining 4s. on the 20th of October. Since the last meeting the liabilities have increased from £31,893. to about £34,500.

At the meeting on Friday of the creditors of Mr. P. Abraham, West India merchant, it was agreed to wind up the estate under inspection. The liabilities amount to £49,528, and the assets to £32,291, showing about 13s. in the pound.

In the Bankruptcy Court, on Monday, Mr. J. G. Sullivan, boot and shoe manufacturer, of Blackman-street, Southwark, passed his examination. His case presents some very questionable features, inasmuch as there have been no profits during the trading, whilst the trade expenses have been £15,266, the house and personal expenses, £2,339; and the losses, £19,711.

STOPPAGE OF TWO PRIVATE BANKS.

News was received on Wednesday of the stoppage of two private banks. The first and more important is the Preston Old Bank of Messrs. Pedder and Co. Until lately the bank had a good credit in London. It was established in 1776, and was not a bank of issue.

Although the liabilities are stated to amount to between £600,000 and £700,000, it will be seen by the subjoined circular, which has been issued by Mr. Henry Newsham Pedder, the surviving partner, who had not taken an active part in the management, that the estate is expected to pay, if not 20s. in the pound, a very favourable dividend. This conclusion is doubtless based to a considerable extent upon the large landed property of the firm. The senior partner, Mr. Edward Pedder, died on the 19th of March, and the subsequent examination of the books showed that he had overdrawn his account considerably. The money appears to have been expended in the purchase of land and the enlargement of his residence at Ashton Park, Preston, upon which he is said to have laid out £50,000. It is believed that rumours got into circulation respecting the result of the unfavourable inspection of the books, and that a run commenced; it was thereupon determined, in order to prevent any preference, prejudicial to the general body of creditors, to close the doors. Many of the creditors are farmers. To prevent law proceedings and to allow time for investigation, a petition under the private arrangement clauses was presented on Wednesday at the Court of Bankruptcy at Manchester. The circular issued by the firm is as follows:—

Old Bank, Preston, April 10, 1861.

Dear Sir,—In consequence of the sudden death of my late brother and partner, Mr. Edward Pedder, who had the entire management of the bank, I have been engaged for the last few days in looking over the accounts, and in trying to form new arrangements which would give satisfaction and security to the public. In this latter attempt, I am sorry to say, I have not been successful, and, after consultation with some of my best friends, I have come to the conclusion that, in justice to all parties, I had better close the bank, and have its affairs wound up. From the accounts, as they stand in the books, there would appear to be sufficient to pay all demands in full; but, in any case, there seems no probability of any serious deficiency. With great regret for any inconvenience this may cause the numerous friends of the bank, and with gratitude for all past kindness, I remain, dear sir, your obliged and obedient servant,

HENRY NEWSHAM PEDDER.

The acceptances of the Faringdon and Wantage Bank of Messrs. Barnes, Medley and Ansell have also been refused by their London agents (the Union Bank). It is hoped that the amount of the liabilities is only moderate. This bank issues its own notes, but the amount of its issue is restricted by law to a maximum of £8,977. The partners are Mr. John Barnes, of Charleywood, Herts; Mr. Henry St. John Medley, of Faringdon (brewer and banker); and Mr. James Henry Ansell, of Wantage. The cause of their embarrassments has not transpired.

THE SCINDE, INDUS STEAM FLOTILLA, AND PUNJAUB RAILWAY.

(From the Railway Times.)

The alarm excited some time ago in respect to arrest of railway works in India was promptly and judiciously dissipated by a public communication from Mr. Andrew, in so far at least as the magnificent works of these undertakings were concerned. Letters from the authorities of the other Indian companies speedily followed, and the matter was satisfactorily set at rest.

The directoral reports from the Scinde and its auxiliary enterprises now afford some practical evidence of the condition of affairs, and furnish a gratifying comparison with the state of the works as described to the previous half-yearly meeting. In every stage there has been more or less of progress, and in all combined a large advance made towards completion of the united undertakings. Practical operations in regard to traffic are now within view, and a new object of consideration is already in occupation of the attention of the Board—namely, are we keeping up to the mark in our supply of stores, including rolling stock, so as to be fully prepared for the exigencies of traffic on opening of the line? To be fully satisfied in this particular (which is the touchstone of order, progress, and success) is to pronounce a verdict in favour of the management, not merely in regard to past exertion, but as embodying the confidence of the proprietors for the future. Let us inquire, therefore, whether such a verdict can be safely, honestly, and prudently given.

The report adopted on Thursday began by detailing the information afforded in September, so that, from such data, shareholders could more readily form their own conclusions as to the amount of work since accomplished. This is a good example, and one which might be adopted and followed with advantage by some of our larger establishments at home. Several bridges have been completed on the Scinde since September; a great extent of permanent way has been laid; the ballasting and fencing were all but completed in the early part of February; and the whole line of 110 miles is, ere this date, ready for opening. Notwithstanding that the terminal accommodation must for some time be of a temporary description, the chief resident engineer had fixed the 15th of March, when all the works were to be in such a state of completion as to allow of the line being opened for traffic.

As a necessary accompaniment to this great achievement the Government works in the harbour of Kurrachee are being pushed on with energy, while the external and internal trade of the province continues to increase. With devotion on all hands—a devotion which has not been permitted to flag for want of funds—this noble enterprise has been completed, and will be opened within three years from the date of turning the first sod. Not much grass, it will readily be admitted, can have grown at the heels of any one employed during the interim. Despite all this incessant work, and its consequent enormous and rapid outlay, there is still to credit of the company a sum of £160,000 in the hands of the Indian authorities. No reasonable being could expect a better account of the stewardship of the Board than is thereby furnished; but it will be said, on the other hand, no one could expect anything else from the vigorous watchfulness, penetrating inquiry, and practical intelligence for which the head of the Board has made himself so remarkable.

With regard to the intervening link, the flotilla on the Indus, which occupies a nominal distance of 570 miles, while the actual steaming operations will extend over 800 miles, several passenger and tug steamers, as well as barges, have arrived at their destination, and made the trial voyage from Kotree to Mooltan with remarkable success. Here again, notwithstanding the constant drain upon the resources of the company to meet current expenditure, there is a surplus in hand of £37,000, with a new power to raise £83,000 on Five per Cent. Debentures. While acknowledging that there has been no difficulty in raising money for this spirited enterprise from its commencement, we need not descant on the probabilities or certainties of these debentures being taken up immediately on their issue.

The latest and perhaps most difficult—certainly not the least anxious—branch of the enterprise remains to be noticed. The Punjab is a line from Mooltan to Lahore of 218 miles, and thence to Umritsir of 32, making a total of 250 miles in a country but lately the furthest removed from European civilisation or English influences. Permanent way materials have been sent out in comparative abundance, and every description of iron work requisite either for construction or working is either contracted for or in course of shipment for India. Stations are advancing to completion, and the Umritsir section could be opened at an early date. The late call is acknowledged to have been so well responded to, and payments in anticipation continue to come in to such an extent, that no further demand on the shareholders will be made during the current year, the available balance being, at date of making up the accounts, no less than £217,000.

Such is a brief outline of the condition of this magnificent undertaking at the present moment—a description which, however accurate to-day, will fail to give an idea of its state to-morrow. Another year will not merely witness this system of communication in actual operation, but be occupied with discussions respecting the contemplated extensions from Lahore to Delhi (a further distance of 280 miles) on the one hand, and from Sukkur to the Bolan Pass (160 miles) on the other. Nor will the line from Seleucia to Bussorah be forgotten, albeit events in Syria indicate that years of tranquillity are not there yet to be looked for. When a route into the vast interior from Kurrachee is in profitable operation a more vigorous effort to shorten the distance between the Mediterranean and the Persian Gulf will become a matter of necessity. We have only to trust that the same vigorous conception which matured the plan, and has carried out three-fourths of its purpose, may be acknowledged by the State as best entitled to the concession, and most fitted to complete the vast design.

The Produce and other Markets.

COLONIAL PRODUCE.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, APRIL 12.

Business in the Colonial Markets has shown a gradual tendency to improvement, as the Bank rate was again reduced to 5 per cent. yesterday. The Coffee sales have gone off with spirit, full prices being generally obtained for Plantation, Ceylon, and East India descriptions. A steady demand prevails for Sugar, and notwithstanding the liberal supplies offered, full rates to 6d. advance have been paid for the better qualities. Good qualities of Molasses are wanted. Some few parcels of White Bengal Rice have sold upon slightly lower terms. Fine grades of Saltpetre attract more attention. No material change has occurred in Spice. There are few sellers of Pimento at the recent decline. Black and White Pepper continue steady. The public sales of Tea on Wednesday passed off at full prices; indeed, some kinds of Green realised higher rates. Easier rates have been accepted for Cocoa. There has been only a limited demand for Rum, at previous rates. Small Pearl Sago meets with a moderate inquiry. Tapioca remains steady. The demand for Cotton has been limited, and prices in partial cases are a shade easier.

THE TALLOW TRADE.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, APRIL 12.

The operations in the Tallow Market during the past week have been almost entirely of a legitimate character; and a fair amount of business has been transacted with the trade for immediate requirements, at prices which, considering the supply of Tallow actually in the market (1st sort Y. C. being still excluded), must be regarded as moderate; and but for the prospect of this supply being continuous, we might possibly expect improved quotations during the spring. The influx, however, of various descriptions of Tallow, especially Odessa, South American, and Australian, seems likely to continue for some months; and, as the goods are in almost every instance, at once on their arrival, submitted for sale, chiefly by auction, the owners adopting the principle of rejecting "no reasonable offer," we see no cause arising from the probable relation of supply and demand likely to interfere greatly with existing quotations; should this relation, however, meet with disturbance, it will most probably be from an excess of supply: which latter, we think, will be sufficient to maintain the stock for the next three months at least, at its present very ample proportions. Should this excess be established, the usual result on prices would, we think, be immediate. In connection with the Russian monopoly, no event of any importance has occurred during the week; and its only effect on the trade is to induce the smallest purchases sufficient for immediate wants, the constant supply of sorts rendering this a matter of facility.

To-day the business done in the speculative market has not been of any extent worth reporting. The quotations for 1st sort Y.C. are 58s. ready delivery, 57s. 6d. April to June, 55s. per cwt. October to December.

The arrivals for the week ending the 11th inst. were 595 casks; deliveries 887 casks; stock 71,662 casks, showing a decrease of 292 casks.

Town Tallow has continued in fair request, and the melters in general have had no inducement to offer more than the usual discount, although in some exceptional cases the ordinary allowance has been exceeded. The melt, upon the whole, seems to have been of an average character as to quantity. The "letter" price to-day is 56s. 6d., or 54s. nett cash. Fat, 2s. 11d. per stone.

The results of the public sales to-day were as follow:—

Odessa has, during the week, been again the chief article in demand with the trade, and very moderate prices have been accepted, the quantity on the market being large. To-day 537 casks were offered; and about 195 were disposed of (by auction); good to fine sheep at 54s. 6d. to 55s.; fine ox 52s. 9d. to 53s. 3d.; good to fine mixed 52s. 6d. to 54s. per cwt. Of 100 skins of Ibrail tallow of fair to fine quality, about half were disposed of at 52s. to 52s. 6d.—the best being held at 54s. to 55s. per cwt. 84 casks of unbracketed Y.C. were unnoticed, and were bought in at 53s. 6d. per cwt.

South American has not been in very active demand, and a few parcels of fine quality only have been disposed of. At auction to-day 322 casks and 324 boxes were submitted, but there was hardly any bidding, a few barrels of half-rendered tallow only were sold at 37s. to 37s. 6d. per cwt.; 56s. would be accepted for fine quality.

Australian has recently been rather scarce; only 44 casks were offered to-day, of which 12 casks good ox were sold at 53s.; and 7 hogsheads of middling greenish mixed at 50s. Fine ox is held at about 53s. to 53s. 6d. per cwt. There is no sheep tallow on hand.

East India.—The demand has been recently very moderate, although the stock is small. The excellent quality of many of the other kinds of tallow now on the market has placed East India below its usual relative position—147 hogsheads, and 68 cases were offered at auction to-day; 60 hogsheads being sold, middling quality rather wet at 49s. to 50s. 6d. Fair sound quality bought in at 53s. per cwt.

North American.—Of 118 casks offered, 78 casks of fine quality were sold at 53s. to 53s. 6d. per cwt.

Continental, &c.—25 casks of French, good quality, were sold at 54s. per cwt., 31 casks and one skin of Hungarian tallow brought 52s. to 53s. per cwt., quality very good. 7 casks very fine Gibraltar were bought in at 59s. per cwt.

Cocoa Nut Oil has experienced some decline in prices since our last report, owing to the pressure of the rather large parcels recently brought forward, and sales have been with difficulty effected at the late quotations. 700 casks Cochín and 650 casks Ceylon were offered for public sale to-day; and a considerable abatement of price being submitted to, a fair quantity (about 450 casks) was sold. Good to fine Cochín at 46s. to 48s., and good to fine Ceylon at 44s. 6d. to 46s. per cwt., prices being irregular. The bulk of the Oil was, however, withdrawn, prices being considered too low. Sydney.—Only 4 casks were offered, middling quality, which brought 45s. to 45s. 6d. per cwt. After the sales a better feeling prevailed, as it was discovered that the low prices resulted merely from the forced sale of a particular parcel, and on some of it an advance of 1s. 6d. to 2s. per cwt. was obtained.

Palm Oil during the week has been in rather better demand, fine qualities especially, and rather advanced rates have been obtained both here and in Liverpool. To-day 350 casks were offered, but the bidding was languid, 44s. 6d. to 44s. 9d. per cwt. was realised for 45 casks, very fine Lagos, the only parcel sold.

Palm Nut Oil.—15 casks were offered mostly good quality, but were withdrawn at 39s. per cwt.

South American Horse Grease has moved off very slowly in small quantities during the week, 38s. being the general quotation; 200 cases and 25 casks were offered to-day, the only lot sold being 5 casks rather foul, at 34s. per cwt.—Furnished by Messrs. Culverwell, Brooks, & Co., Brokers.

LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET.

LIVERPOOL, FRIDAY MORNING, APRIL 12.

The accounts from America on Monday of a short cotton crop, combined with the reduction (on the previous Thursday) of the Bank rate of discount to 6 per cent., caused much activity in this market, and, with sales to the amount of 20,000 bales, prices improved  $\frac{1}{4}$ d. to  $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per lb., compared with those of the previous Friday. The market has since exhibited rather less animation, but the above advance is maintained. The sales on Tuesday were 15,000 bales, on Wednesday 10,000, and yesterday (Thursday) 10,000.

[BY ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH.]

LIVERPOOL, FRIDAY EVENING, APRIL 12.

The market has been very firm to-day; the sales amount to 10,000 bales, including 3,000 on speculation and for exportation. There have been no imports to-day. The sales of the week have reached 95,030 bales (against 46,360 bales last week), of which 18,850 were taken on speculation, and 13,460 for exportation, and the imports 28,998 bales. The stock now stands at 875,000 bales.

The Corn Trade.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, APRIL 12.

The marked improvement which has taken place in the weather during the last fortnight has enabled farmers to make considerable progress towards completing spring-sowing, which is now fast drawing to a close. As the time has passed for wheat-sowing, a large area is now being used for barley and oats. Vegetation has made some advance, but the temperature has been too cold to allow of much progress being made. Some of the nights this week have been frosty, which had the effect of checking vegetation. The growing wheat crops are reported to have somewhat improved in appearance, but under the most favourable circumstances the crop is not expected to reach an average produce, since it is calculated that about a third less land than usual has been sown with wheat this year.

The supply of home-grown wheat has been at most corn markets in the United Kingdom to about the same extent as in the preceding fortnight, but less barley and oats have been brought forward. The latest official returns of the quantity of grain sold in England and Wales report as follows:—Wheat, 71,056 qrs. at 56s. 4d.; barley, 30,157 qrs. at 37s. 8d.; oats, 10,155 qrs. at 24s. per qr.

Imports.—Considerable arrivals of corn, principally from the Baltic Sea, have taken place this week. The imports show a vast increase, compared with preceding weeks, the largest proportion being still wheat, most of which is from the Baltic—a fair quantity from America, and some from the South of Europe. The returns of barley are this week also larger than for some time. Oats—For several weeks past the imports of oats have been insignificant, but this week large additions to our stocks have been made by liberal arrivals from the North of Europe. Maize—the imports remain moderate. Serious fears are entertained lest war between Denmark and Prussia may interfere with shipments in the course of the summer, and great efforts are being made to dispatch all the available stock at the seaboard—hence, during the next couple of months, the arrivals from the Baltic may continue rather large. The quantity of grain now afloat from the South of Europe is comparatively small—altogether only about 230 cargoes, say, 142 wheat, 36 maize, 33 barley, 11 rye, 7 beans, and 1 oats, bound for ports-of-call, and exclusive of direct shipments.

THE BRITISH CORN TRADE.—Under the combined influence of improved weather and large corn arrivals from the Baltic, the trade this week has ruled dull, and prices of almost every kind of corn have assumed a downward course. Wheat has declined upon the week to 2s. per qr. Flour, 1s. per barrel and per sack, Barley, 1s. to 2s. per qr. Oats, 1s. to 1s. 6d. per qr. Maize, 1s.; Peas, 1s.; Beans, unaltered. The reduction in the rate of discount to 5 per cent. making the supply of money more plentiful, will tend to maintain prices, and the present disturbed political condition of Europe will also contribute to strengthen the position of holders and importers of corn.

In Mark-lane to-day the attendance of the trade was moderate, and the tone dull, with continued large imports from the Baltic. Wheat:—English, slow sale, at barely last Monday's prices. Foreign, dull, at last Monday's rates, but to force a sale less money would have had to be taken. Flour:—American, quiet at last Monday's currency; Norfolk, 39s. to 40s. per 280lbs.; Barley:—Slow sale, at last Monday's quotations. Oats:—Difficult sale, and rather lower than last Monday. Beans:—Unaltered in value. Peas:—Slow sale, and rather cheaper.

Imports of foreign grain and flour into London since Monday last:—20,570 qrs. wheat; 7,010 qrs. barley; 68,720 qrs. oats; 1,210 barrels flour; 1,280 sacks flour.

[BY ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH.]

LIVERPOOL, FRIDAY EVENING.

With a fair attendance of the trade, wheat and flour was in slow consumptive demand at about 2d. per cental and 6d. per barrel decline from last Tuesday's rates. Maize, dull sale, and the turn lower in price. All other articles of the trade unaltered in value.

THE PENALTY OF MONEY-GETTING.—Though the death rate is low, the ages at which men die in the City are in strict accordance with the traditional opinion that City life is unfavourable to longevity. Partial statistics would lead us far from the truth in this matter, and it is only the quotation of a part instead of the whole truth, that "statistics can be made to prove anything." Dr. Letheby knows the value of complete statistical views, and he gives the proportions of deaths at various ages, and thus reveals the fact that the City is regularly supplied with bone and muscle, and mental energy, from the enterprising youth of all the counties of the island, who yield to the influences that war against longevity, and pay the penalty of early death as the price of fame and fortune, and the gratification of ambition. The greatest proportion of deaths occur at the middle periods of life, and especially so among the males, for the proportion is not less than 22 per cent. of persons between the ages of fifteen to sixty-five, while in all England the proportion at the same age is about 15 per cent. There is also an excess of male deaths over female deaths in the proportion of 129 to 100, so here we meet with the last enemy busiest among the vigorous, the hopeful, and the strong, assailing them with shafts that pierce the heart and the head, and that are tipped with the poison of anxieties, disappointments, and the care and care of money-getting. In all England, a man at twenty may expect to attain the age of sixty; in the City his expectancy is reduced to fifty-two, or less; so those who will have broad steps must be content with fewer of them in the ladder of life, and submit to the eternal system of compensation that runs throughout the universe as the profoundest and severest of necessities.—City Press.

COTTON FROM JAMAICA.—The owner of two sugar estates and several thousand acres of uncultivated land in Jamaica has addressed a letter to Mr. Bourne, the secretary of the Jamaica Cotton-Growing Company, in which he states that he had heard from the manager of an estate in that island, which had been once a cotton field, that he was one day in the field with a number of labourers picking cotton at 1s. for 50 lbs. in the seed. The proprietor of the estate visited the property, had the cotton they had picked ginned and weighed, and, declaring that it would not pay to pick cotton on such terms, as he valued the bulk at only 3d. a pound, ordered the people to cease picking. The cotton that had been ginned was sent to England, where it was sold for 1s. a pound. Reckoning 600 lbs per acre as an average crop, at 3d. a pound it would have been a dead loss, as the cost of cultivation, rent, &c., would have been at least that sum; but, although 600 lbs. at 3d. would only amount to £7. 10s., or somewhat less than the cost of cultivation, 600 lbs. at 1s. 3d. would amount to £37. 10s., and this price would have left a profit of £30 an acre, excepting freight and charges. Some of the abandoned trees have been picked during the last month. Some of the cotton has been sent home, and is valued by Mr. Bazley and Mr. Clegg at 1s. to 1s. 3d. per pound; by Mr. Kirkman and an American cotton-grower at 1s. 6d.; by Mr. Emmett, one of the Council of the Manchester Indian Cotton Company, and an eminent manufacturer at Oldham, at from 1s. 2d. to 1s. 6d.; and by Mr. E. Ashworth, jun., at 1s. 8d.

per pound. Directions have been sent out to this gentleman to plant all the seed of the same kind that he can collect, and there is good reason to hope that, before the end of the year, a great many bales of beautiful Jamaica free-labour cotton will be in the Manchester market. Although cotton of this description is too good for common purposes, it is exactly of that kind which neither India nor Africa can supply.

LONDON AND BLACKWALL RAILWAY.—By the death of Mr. William Haigh a vacancy has occurred in the direction of the Blackwall Railway Company. Mr. Charles Whetham, who, for several years, has been one of the auditors, comes forward as a candidate. No competitor has appeared, nor is it expected that any one will do so with any chance of success. Mr. Whetham is well known in monetary and commercial circles, and has a large holding in railway property.

GLASGOW CUSTOMS.—The duties received at the Custom-house, Glasgow, during the year ended March 31, 1861, amount to £906,895. 1s. 6d., being the largest revenue ever collected at this port in one year.—Civil Service Gazette.

The loan of the city of Naples, amounting to two millions and a-half of ducats (about £480,000 sterling) is stated by the Italie of Turin to have been taken by the banking-house of Magnus, at Berlin, at the rate of 80 per cent.

It appears from a document just published by the Committee of Coalpit Owners that the extraction of coal in France in 1857 was 7,900,000 tons, from 62 coal fields. Of that quantity six fields yielded not less than 6,485,200 tons. In 1852 the total extraction was only 4,900,000 tons, so that in the space of five years it has increased by 3,000,000 tons.

GUSTAVE AIMARD'S TALES OF INDIAN

LIFE AND ADVENTURE.

2. The GOLD SEEKERS. Now ready.
3. The INDIAN CHIEF. Now ready.
4. The TRAIL HUNTER. Now ready.
5. The PIRATES of the PRAIRIES. Nearly ready.

Other Volumes are in active preparation.

Notice.—Gustave Aimard was the adopted son of one of the most powerful Indian tribes, with whom he lived for more than fifteen years in the heart of the prairies, sharing their dangers and their combats, and accompanying them everywhere, rifle in one hand and tomahawk in the other. In turn squatter, hunter, trapper, warrior, and miner, Gustave Aimard has traversed America from the highest peaks of the Cordilleras to the ocean shores, living from hand to mouth, happy for the day, careless of the morrow.
Hence it is that Gustave Aimard only describes his own life. The Indians of whom he speaks he has known—the manners he depicts were his own.

CHIEF OFFICES OF THE COMPANY—No. 42, POULTRY.

The Metropolitan Consumers' Coal Company (Limited) has been formed for what may be termed mutual purposes, its object being to supply shareholders and the public with good coals at a moderate price; and while thus courting general favour, at the same time to remunerate those who embark their money in the undertaking by a fair division of profits in the shape of dividends on their shares.

It is proposed out of the annual profits of the Association to allow to Shareholders taking Coals of the Company a preferential dividend on their paid-up capital, varying from 5 to 15 per cent., according to the amount of their consumption. Careful calculation shows, that notwithstanding the advantages thus offered to Shareholders who directly promote the Company's interest, the more considerable portion of profit will still remain for distribution among the proprietors generally. Inquiry as to the working of the above principle is especially invited, and every information will be afforded on application to the Company's brokers.

Applications for Shares to be addressed to the Broker of the Company, F. A. Helps, Esq., 21, Finch-lane, City; to the Manager, at the Company's Chief Offices, No. 42, Poultry, E.C.; or to the Solicitors of the Company.

Every application must be accompanied by a deposit of 2s. 6d. per Share, or the Bankers' receipt for the same; and in case of no allotment being made the full deposit will be returned.

The object of this Company is to acquire by lease a valuable property within thirty miles of Vigo, in Spain, from Senor Merelles, the present proprietor, for which a favourable contract has been arranged by the Directors, and to continue and extend the working of the tin ore existing in Kaolin or China Clay (a band of friable and decomposed felspar) therein at a depth of from 6 to 18 feet below the surface.

Captain Francis Barratt, junior, of Cornwall, who has had great practical experience, especially in tin streaming, and who has been sent to examine the property, which consists of about 356 English acres, reports:—"I consider that if this property be worked upon an extensive scale in a skilful and efficient manner it will amply remunerate the Company for the capital which it will be necessary to expend upon it. It will be seen that I consider the estimate by Senor Merelles of the cost of raising and washing out the tin [£64. 14s. 8d. a ton] is higher than it will be found to be under proper working arrangements; and I believe that an outlay of £10,000, progressively and judiciously expended, will be amply sufficient to open out the workings and erect the requisite machinery at various points, and then with the employment of additional bands, 250 tons of tin per annum may be produced."

A ton of tin can be produced for sale at the works at a cost, including all charges, under £64. 14s. 8d.; but even that cost reckoning the selling price at only £125, will leave a profit of £60. 5s. 4d. per ton; or on a year's produce of 250 tons, as calculated by Senor Merelles, and confirmed by Captain Barratt, a net profit of £15,066. 13s. 4d. per annum, which would be equal to 75 per cent. on the whole of the proposed nominal capital of this Company.

No underground workings nor expensive machinery are required. Water is abundant.

The requisite supply of labour may be had at a shilling a day per man.

Charcoal is delivered at the works for smelting at £1. 15s. 5d. per ton.

As the rule of the Stock Exchange requires that two-thirds of the shares of companies be subscribed for prior to quotation in the public list, the Directors of this Company will not proceed to the allotment of any shares until more than that proportion shall be subscribed; and in case the Company shall not be established, all deposits will be returned in full.

Applications for shares must be made in the annexed form. Each applicant will be required to pay in to one of the Bankers of the Company 2s. 6d. per share on the number of shares applied for, in part payment of the deposit of 7s. 6d. per share; in exchange for which a receipt will be given. In the event of the directors allotting less than the whole number applied for, the amount paid in to the bankers will be applied towards the deposit of 7s. 6d. per share payable on the number allotted.

Full prospectuses, plans, reports, forms of application for shares and of bankers' receipts for deposits, may be had of Thomas Fenn, Esq., stock and share broker, 3, Royal Exchange-buildings; at the City Bank; or the Offices of the Company, 17A, Sise-lane, Bucklersbury, London.

OFFICES—5, Warrford-court, Throgmorton-street, City.

The object of this Company is to work the Glan-y-Pwll Slate Quarries, situated in the parish of Festiniog, in the county of Merioneth, North Wales, and on the same mountain range as those magnificent quarries owned by Lord Palmerston, Messrs. Huddart and Mathews, and Mr. Holland. This sett adjoins their boundary, is a direct continuation of their seam, and consequently produces slate rock of precisely the same character and quality.

This property is held under lease for 40 years, on the following favourable conditions:—viz., for every ton of slate, flag stone, or other stone, of the first quality, a royalty of 2s. 6d.; and for every ton of second or other slates, a royalty of 1s. 3d., subject in the meantime to an annual rent of £10 merging into the royalties.

From the position of this sett it is, perhaps, unequalled in Wales in natural facilities. The workings are about 250 yards from the level, and the slate rock crops out from the top of the mountain. From the works an incline, at a comparatively small cost, may be laid down for the conveyance of slates in railway trucks direct to the main line, running within 100 yards of the mountain, to the quay at Port Madoc. The carriage is about 3s. 6d. per ton. Another very important advantage is the space afforded for the deposit of waste or debris sufficient for an unlimited period. The water-power is at all seasons ample for any work that may be required.

From an estimate recently made, it appears that slate rock may be broken down and manufactured for market at 21s. per ton; the market value is from 40s. to 50s. per ton. With a capital of £10,000 it is estimated that 600 tons of slate can be made per month, the value of which at 40s. per ton is £1,200, or £14,400 per annum, which, allowing for working expenses, royalty, cartage, and agency, will yield a net profit of £4,010, or at the rate of 40 per cent. These returns may be considerably increased as the operations extend. Mr. Robert Hunt, F.R.S., has recently made a calculation as to the average of the profits from the workings of slate quarries in Wales; he gives them at upwards of 50 per cent., and some of the large quarries, it is confidently affirmed, realise as much as 100 per cent. So great and increasing is the demand for slates, that the supply is not equal to half the demand.

The following quarries are said to return annual profits as under:—The Penryn from £100,000 to £120,000; the Llanberris from £70,000 to £80,000; Lord Palmerston's upwards of £30,000; and those adjacent to the Glan-y-Pwll in the same proportion.

The annexed reports are from good practical men of business; as extensive quarry managers, their testimony to the value of the Glan-y-Pwll sett, with regard to the many advantages already referred to, will be read with interest, and leave nothing to be urged by the directors.

Such is the confidence entertained of the value of this property, and the favourable conditions on which it is held, that some of the directors have individually taken, and now hold an interest in it; but which, including the lease, the plant, the slates now on the quarry bank, and the benefit of the work already done, it has been agreed to purchase for £10,000. A most favourable arrangement has been made, by which £5,000 only in cash will be required in instalments, and £5,000 in shares of the Company, as follows, viz.:—1,000 shares paid to £2 per share, and 1,000 shares to £3 per share.

The capital of the Company will consist of £30,000, in 6,000 shares of £5 each. Deposit £1 per share, 10s. on application and 10s. on allotment. No further payment on shares for six months.

The Company having been completely registered with limited liability, no shareholder can, under any circumstances whatever be made responsible for a greater amount than the shares to which he subscribes.

There are no special Articles of Association, Table B under the Joint-Stock Companies' Act of Parliament having been adopted in its entirety.

To ensure subscribers from any loss, which often arises when a sufficient number of shares are not subscribed for, the directors bind themselves to return the whole of the deposit money, unless at least one-half of the shares be taken.

A considerable portion of the required capital has been already privately subscribed.

Plans of the quarry, together with reports and samples of the slates, may be seen at the Office of the Company.

Applications for the remaining shares to be made to the Bankers, Solicitors, Brokers, and the Manager, at the Office of the Company.

SUBMARINE TELEGRAPH COMPANY'S DEBENTURES.

THE DIRECTORS HEREBY GIVE NOTICE, that they will receive APPLICATIONS from the public for the remaining portion of the PROPOSED ISSUE of £70,000 DEBENTURES, one-half of the amount having been subscribed by the Shareholders. The Debentures bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum for five years, but are redeemable at the option of the Company in three years.

The French Government has renewed the concession of exclusive telegraphic communication with France for thirty years, and a Royal Charter from the British Government has been obtained for the same period. The Company now possess six separate cables, containing twenty-two wires, uniting France, Belgium, Hanover, and Denmark, with Great Britain. The Company are taking steps to lay down another cable to France, the wires of which will be placed in exclusive and direct communication with the principal commercial towns of that country, such as Marseilles, Bordeaux, Lyons, Havre, &c. These Debentures form the first charge on the revenue of the Company. They will be issued in sums of £50 and upwards at 7 per cent. interest, commencing from the date of payment.

Further information will be afforded and applications received by the Secretary, at the Company's Office, 58, Threadneedle-street; and the Brokers, Messrs. Foster and Braithwaite, 68, Old Broad-street.

Capitalists who seek safe and profitable investments, free from risk, should act only upon the soundest information; the market

prices of the day are for the most part governed by the immediate supply and demand, together with the operations of speculators

without reference to the bona fide merits of the property.

Mines afford a wider range for profit than any other public securities, and pay dividends bi-monthly, varying from 15 to 30 per cent. per annum. Instances frequently occur of young Mines

rising in value 400 to 500 per cent. The undersigned devotes special attention to the above, and affords every information to capitalists, and effects purchases or sales upon the best possible

Despatches dated Turin, April 13, say:—"General Fanti has presented to the Chamber of Deputies a project of law for levying 18,000 men in the Neapolitan provinces." "The Official Gazette of Turin publishes a decree ordering the formation of a volunteer corps, to comprise three divisions, in which the Garibaldian officers will hold rank."

News from New York to April 4. President Lincoln had become severely indisposed from constant exertion. The Government forts at Key West and Tortugas had been reinforced. The Southern Commissioners for Europe embarked at New Orleans on the 31st of March. The Haytian papers publish a proclamation against Spanish aggression, stating that the only way to save the country is by revolution. The Morrell tariff came into operation on the 1st of April, and created trouble, confusion, and annoyance. The New York Bank Returns show an increase in specie of nearly two million dollars. Fort Sumter is on the point of being evacuated. The Secretary of the Treasury refuses to receive any bids for the new loan under 94. Extraordinary activity prevails in the navy yards. It is said that Fort Pickens will be reinforced at all hazards. Exchange, 108½. Stocks lower.

APRIL 17.—The Paris Moniteur of Tuesday morning publishes the official notification of the blockade of the coasts of Albania, from Durazzo to the neighbouring frontiers of Austria. Turkish vessels are ordered to regularly maintain the blockade, which commenced on the 13th of April, 1861.

APRIL 19.—News from New York to April 6. The New York Herald states that warlike rumours and the naval preparations of the Government created intense excitement throughout the city on the 5th inst. A panic prevailed among stock operators. The Federal Government had received no intelligence from Fort Pickens for several days. This caused the belief that the Fort had been attacked and telegraphic communication cut off by the secessionists. The Washington correspondent of the New York Herald says the country is on the brink of a civil war. According to the New York Times General Beauregard had declared to Major Anderson that he must evacuate Fort Sumter or it would be shelled within forty-eight hours. Major Anderson's supplies were to be cut off immediately. The United States frigate Powhattan was fully equipped for sea. The Illinois would sail immediately, under sealed orders.

It states that the total amount will be 1,250 millions of piastres, which will be issued by March next. In the meantime, the issue will be at the rate of thirty millions per month. An exchange bank, with a capital of 375 millions of piastres, is to be established. The new notes are to circulate all over the empire, and are repayable in eighteen years. The French Ambassador demands the execution of the Hatti Humayoun."

According to the Globe, a telegram from St. Petersburg states that Prince Gortschakoff has demanded that a permanent commission should be constituted at Constantinople for the protection of the interests of the Christian population of Turkey, and the general supervision of the administration of the territory of the Sultan. The representative of England opposed these demands.

The Bombay mail brings fresh details of the progress of the famine.

The Italian Budget, showing a deficit of £10,000,000, is published.

A CHANGE IN THE BULLION MOVEMENT.

DURING the last two or three days several features have arisen which tend to diminish the prospect of any further speedy fall in the Bank of England rate of discount. A relapse in the Continental Exchanges was certain, as the rates of discount here fell from their recent extraordinarily high range. This movement, therefore, though of a very decided character, has not excited any uneasiness. But there has been a simultaneous relapse in the American Exchange; and the political advices from that quarter have resumed a threatening character. What is much more important in its effect upon our money market, there has been a strong revival, during the week now closing, of the demand for silver for the East. The price of bar silver rose ½d. yesterday (Friday), making a total advance of ¾d. during the week. Contracts for the despatch of £200,000 by the next Bombay steamer have already been made; and, as the supply of silver in London (apart from that held by the Bank of England,) is limited, the quantities required must either be imported from the Continent or purchased from the Bank. Accordingly, there was witnessed yesterday a feature which has not been presented for some time past—namely, a demand for gold for remittance to the Continent. The bulk of any supply of gold that may come in from Australia will, therefore, in all probability be at once re-exported, while the influx of gold from the Continent will at the same time cease.

THE BUDGET.

THERE never was a Chancellor of the Exchequer who had so much faith in his own powers of calculation as Mr. Gladstone. He is, indeed, a mighty conjuror at figures. Calmly and deliberately he proceeds to repeat the process upon which he ventured last year—namely, that of throwing away, on the one hand, a vast amount of revenue, and calling into existence, on the other hand, another large amount, the result being that he balances his calculations upon the basis of an estimated surplus of moderate amount, to be realised at the end of the financial year 1861-2. So perfect is Mr. Gladstone's confidence in the accuracy of his numerous delicate calculations, that he proposes, with a degree of seeming nonchalance which strikes observers almost with astonishment, entirely to repeal from the 1st of next October the paper duty, which brings in a revenue of £1,330,000 per annum, and to remit for three-fourths of the year one penny of the Income-tax, which penny brings in £1,130,000 per annum.

But, perfect though Mr. Gladstone's faith appears to be in the correctness of his estimates, ordinary minds find it impossible to cast out the apprehension that it may prove presumptuous. Nor is this apprehension lessened by the fact that our present gifted Chancellor of the Exchequer was equally confident last year, and that his estimates have proved in no small degree erroneous. Let us glance for a few moments at the statement which was submitted by Mr. Gladstone on last Monday night, in a speech of surpassing ability. From his figures it appears that the revenue and expenditure of 1860-61 were as follows:—

Expenditure .. .. .	£72,842,000
Revenue .. .. .	70,283,000

Deficiency .. .. . £2,559,000

This deficiency arose in round numbers from the following items:—

Excise { Hops .. .. .	300,000
Malt .. .. .	800,000
Spirits .. .. .	910,000
Customs .. .. .	125,000
Drawback on Wine .. .. .	350,000

£2,485,000

And it appears to have been met as follows:—

Diminution of Balances in the Exchequer .. .. .	£1,450,000
Issue of Exchequer Bonds .. .. .	600,000
Increase on Stamps, Taxes, Income-tax, Post-office, &c. .. .. .	85,000

Making .. .. . £2,135,000

Moreover, Mr. Gladstone has still in hand £400,000 Exchequer Bonds, which, added to £2,135,000, makes a total of £2,535,000; the deficiency of 1860-61 being, as already stated, £2,559,000. Such is, in a concise and succinct form, the result of the Budget of 1860-61, extracted from what Mr. Gladstone rightly terms "a wilderness of figures." If we remember correctly, Mr. Gladstone calculated on a surplus of £450,000. His financial scheme for the past year has ended in a deficit of £2,559,000, so that there has been a total difference between his estimates and the result realised of £3,009,000. After allowing for the unforeseen expenditure which arose during the past year, we may ask—Would not this result make any man, less confident than Mr. Gladstone, pause before he gives up revenue to the extent of £2,460,000 per annum?

Before, however, we examine the Budget of 1861-2, we would draw attention to a few interesting facts which deserve serious attention. First of all, let us commit to heart the moral of the cost of "a little war." If we mistake not, when the China war first commenced, a credit was asked for of £900,000; in 1860, a further credit was required of £3,800,000; in 1861, a further credit will be asked for of £1,000,000; and Mr. Gladstone calculates on receiving from China £750,000; making a total of £6,450,000. But we should be glad to be informed whether this sum, large as it is, forms anything like the total cost of the China war? Perhaps some honourable member, before it is decided to part with £2,460,000 of revenue, will obtain a full reply to this question.

We have frequently drawn attention to the vast military expenditure which is going on not only in this country but throughout the world, and which, if not arrested, has a direct tendency to bring about either war or discontent and revolution. Mr. Gladstone very forcibly alludes to this matter. He observes that—

In 1853-54 the imperial expenditure in this country was under ..	£56,000,000
„ the local expenditure was under .. .. .	16,000,000

Making together .. .. . £72,000,000

In 1860-61 the imperial expenditure was .. .. .	£73,000,000
„ the local expenditure was .. .. .	18,000,000

Making together .. .. . £91,000,000

Or nearly £20,000,000 per annum increase in the space of seven years! We quote Mr. Gladstone's own words:—"I do trust this will be remembered and considered. (Cheers.) Let us think what is the meaning of it. We have nothing to do but to reflect in order to take a wise and becoming course, and all I am anxious for is, that we should reflect, and reflect in time. (Hear.) What are the annual savings of this country? May we take them at £50,000,000? Enormous as that sum is, I believe it may be taken as the amount which the skill, and the capital, and the industry of England lay by every year. If it be so, and if we take this £50,000,000 for a space of eight years, we get a total capital of £400,000,000. Now, if we put upon that sum of £400,000,000, taking all kinds of investments together, an interest of 5 per cent., the result is, that it gives us the £20,000,000 as the aggregate result of the whole savings of the nation for eight years, completely absorbed and swallowed up in the grave of this expenditure. (Cheers.) I cannot help thinking that there is some degree of relation between the enormous and inordinate growth of expenditure and the diminished elasticity of the revenue. (Hear, hear.)" We are truly glad to find these warnings so eloquently and so truly stated. It is to be hoped that they will be pondered on, not only in this country but in every country in Europe, for military waste is absorbing the vital energy of every one of them.

Great interest attaches to another topic touched upon by Mr. Gladstone. We refer to the enormous importation of corn.

In 1859-60 the importations of corn and flour amounted to ..	£17,384,000
In 1860-61 .. .. .	38,159,000

The figures represent, according to Mr. Gladstone's estimate, more than double the amount of the previous year, the percentage of increase being 119½ per cent. It is interesting to observe, also, the increase in the imports of the following articles now admitted duty free:—

	1859-60.	1860-61.
Butter .. .. .	£2,362,000	£4,122,000
Cheese .. .. .	1,097,000	1,592,000
Eggs .. .. .	345,000	497,000
Rice .. .. .	890,000	1,142,000
	£4,694,000	£7,353,000

Mr. Gladstone also pointed, in a tone of triumph, to the large increase in the importations last year of those articles (corn excepted) which he has admitted duty free, as compared with those of articles which were left untouched.

In 1859-60 the imports of untouched articles amounted to ..	£138,158,000
In 1860-61 ditto ditto ditto .. .. .	137,406,000

Whereas the imports of articles which were admitted duty free amounted

In 1859-60 to .. .. .	£11,346,000
In 1860-61 to .. .. .	13,323,000

Showing an increase of 17½ per cent., whilst the rest of the trade was stationary. Mr. Gladstone further stated that, although the Treaty with France has as yet only partially come into operation, the trade with that country already shows an increase of £9,000,000; and he passed a glowing eulogium on the manner in which the French Ministers have laboured to give full effect to the terms and principles of the Treaty.

We now come to the Budget of 1861-62. It is lamentable to observe that, notwithstanding the eloquent warning given by the Chancellor of the Exchequer himself, the total charge for military expenditure, ordinary and extraordinary, will amount this year to the enormous sum of £28,285,000. The grand total of revenue for 1861-62 is estimated at £71,823,000, and the expenditure at £69,900,000; leaving an estimated surplus of £1,923,000. This surplus, as already stated, is to be applied for taking off a penny from the Income-tax; that is to say, the Income-tax for one quarter of the year 1861-62 is to be levied at the same rate as at present, and for three-quarters at the reduction of a penny. Consequently, the remission this year will amount to £850,000. The paper duty will be repealed from the 1st October; therefore, the loss to the present year's revenue will be £665,000; making £1,515,000; and leaving an estimated net surplus of £408,000. But it must be remembered, and we hope, above all, that the House of Commons will be—

Income-tax, per annum .. .. .	£1,130,000
Paper duty .. .. .	1,330,000

Total loss .. .. . £2,460,000

Now, apart from the narrow view of the benefit which would be conferred upon journalism by the repeal of the paper duty, we confess that we should regard with much uneasiness so serious a reduction in the revenue, as long as the expenditure is estimated at the rate of seventy millions per annum. Considering the great curtailment that has taken place in trade, we may be permitted to doubt whether the Customs, or Stamps or Excise, or Income-tax will be as productive this year as they were last year; and as Mr. Gladstone has assumed that the ratio of the produce of each of these taxes will remain in statu quo, we feel bound to ask whether he estimates the revenue from corn will again amount this year to £866,000, which was £366,000 more than in ordinary years. Such a revenue can hardly be gained, unless in the event of a second bad harvest, and this would be an evil so serious that every branch of revenue would fall off greatly.

Lastly, we think if it were put to the people whether they would prefer the remission of a so-called tax on knowledge, or a partial remission of the taxes on tea and sugar, considering that knowledge is now imported at the rate of 1d. for a daily broad sheet, there cannot be the slightest doubt as to which way their verdict would incline. We fear much that Mr. Gladstone in remitting these taxes before the anticipated surplus is in hand must have had himself in view when he quoted the lines,—

"He took away the tax,
And built himself an everlasting name."

For our own part, we will not quote from Tennyson, but we will cite a homely saying occasionally heard among men of business—namely, that "A bird in hand is worth two in the bush." The lesson is, that it will be quite time enough to remit taxation when the revenue actually exceeds the expenditure, and not till then. In any case, if there really is room to lop off some revenue, and if the demoralising operation and unjust incidence of the Income-tax have made that impost so unpopular that the public and Parliament will grasp eagerly at the opportunity of getting rid of even one-tenth of it, the next best thing to do is to keep in hand the paper duty, by way of insurance against the too probable falling off in the produce of other branches of revenue. Finally, if the sum derived from the paper duty can be really spared, it is not the paper duty that ought to be remitted at present, but other taxes which weigh much more heavily upon the mass of the community, such as those on tea, sugar, and other necessities. Or what can be more unsound in principle, or pernicious in practice than the tax upon that most laudable form of providence—fire insurances?

THREATENED OPPOSITION TO THE BUDGET.

SINCE the above was written we learn that an opposition, headed by one of the leading members of the mercantile community, will probably be made to Mr. Gladstone's Budget. The grounds are—1. That it is very hazardous to remit taxation on the strength of an assumed surplus before that surplus is realised. 2. That, assuming the surplus to be realised, the public would prefer taxes to be remitted on the necessities of life, such as tea and sugar, rather than on paper. 3. That a reduction of the duties on tea and sugar would be a positive benefit which every one would feel, whereas the abolition of the duty on paper might or might not be felt as a benefit, according to the extent of the supply of rags. If the price of rags rose in consequence of the increased demand, the paper manufacturers would not be able by so much to lower the price of paper, whilst the revenue would in any case lose a large sum which, once taken off, could not be again levied. These are cogent reasons for applying the surplus, should any exist, to the lowering of the duties on those articles of consumption which have become necessities of life. Moreover, a considerable portion of the revenue that might be remitted on tea and sugar, would probably be regained by the increased consumption which would be encouraged. This is always the effect of reducing the imposts on articles in universal use.

It is further objected that Mr. Gladstone is over-sanguine in assuming that the Income-tax will yield in the same proportion as last year. Great losses having been incurred by the agricultural interest in consequence of the bad harvest, the incomes derived from land will be curtailed, whilst owing to the contraction of trade the incomes of the manufacturing and trading community will likewise not be so large as in former years. These considerations render Mr. Gladstone's policy in throwing away the paper revenue additionally venturesome.

Such are the grounds of the opposition that will be made to the Budget—with what effect remains to be seen.

THE NEW AMERICAN TARIFF—ITS CONDEMNATION IN AMERICA.

THE New Tariff has now come into operation in the United States—that is to say, in the Northern Confederation. Its introduction has been attended with a vast deal of confusion, annoyance and hindrance to business. Nor will the effect of these annoyances cease, for the vexatious and complex nature of the provisions of the new Tariff is one of its most prominent characteristics. Not only is it impossible for importers in many instances to know what rate of duties will be charged, but it is a complete puzzle to the Customs authorities themselves. Believing, as we do, that since the date of the formation of the American Confederation no more absurd and pernicious a piece of legislation has been adopted than the Tariff Act of March 2, 1861, we are sure our readers will rejoice to notice the almost universal condemnation which is passed upon it by all the principal exponents of public opinion in the United States press. Of the eleven daily journals in the city of New York, there is but one that ventures to uphold the Bill. It is noticed that even certain papers which have hitherto stood by the protectionist party have forsaken them now that they see the preposterous extent to which they will push their pretensions. Most of the principal journals are persistently crying out for a repeal of the Act, and for a restoration of the law of 1857. Amongst others, the United States Economist declares that "one of the foremost political and commercial necessities of the day is the prompt repeal of the Tariff Act of March 2, 1861." There is strong ground to hope that the practical experience of the injurious impediments to trade occasioned by this unreasonable law, will give an additional stimulus to such complaints, and that at no distant period a special session of Congress will obliterate the obnoxious Tariff from the statute-book. The following excellent remarks on the subject are from the United States Economist. They will be perused with equal interest and gratification by the trading community here, who have viewed with the deepest regret the retrograde step lately taken by the legislature of a country with which it is our interest and earnest wish to cultivate the closest and most friendly relations:—

"Rarely, if ever, has an Act been written on our statute-books so incongruous in itself, so unfriendly to our domestic interests, or so irksome to our foreign relations. It was enacted in no response to a general desire of the people, but in opposition to the views of at least a three-fourths majority of the country. It owes its existence to a party triumph unworthily seized in the hour of the nation's misfortune and danger. It is, in fact, a fraud upon the country, committed by its own representatives, who meanly took advantage of the absence of certain of their fellow Congressmen under circumstances of federal disruption which should have excited in them the greatest caution and fraternal consideration. It is essentially a sectional Bill; the supposed protection of Pennsylvania manufactures and the reward of the Pennsylvania Presidential vote being the whole and sole scope of its purpose; and that at the expense of every other State in the Union. It is intolerably oppressive in its bearing on the trading community, as well as on the whole population of consumers. Professing to be a measure for the increase of the national revenue, it yet in reality constitutes the chief danger of our becoming involved in the dishonour of national bankruptcy. It puts an embargo on an already shattered commerce, and stops consumption by an exorbitant taxation of consumers already impoverished by the prostration of trade. By such a method it is that this sapient measure proposes to enrich the national treasury! It is, therefore, no matter of surprise that during the short period between its ratification and its actual operation there should have arisen throughout the whole country a feeling of strong reprobation of this Act, already shaping itself into a stubborn demand for its prompt repeal."

Many of the New York newspapers recommend importers to enter their goods under protest.

AMERICAN PROSPECTS.—COTTON CULTIVATION.

In the circular of a leading New Orleans cotton house, we are glad to find the following reassuring paragraph respecting the prospects of cotton cultivation in America:—

"We again repeat what we mentioned in our last report: 'That we consider the culture of cotton in no way endangered by our political controversies.' Tightness of money may prevent planters from opening as much new land and buying as many negroes as they would have done otherwise; but beyond this there will be no curtailment, and under favourable circumstances the production of the South will be such as to keep pace with the consumption of the world."

This view accords entirely with that which we have ourselves expressed on previous occasions. It is perfectly right that measures should be taken to relieve England of her at present almost entire dependence upon America for supplies of cotton. When it is considered how frightful an effect would be produced upon our home industry by a stoppage or material curtailment of these supplies, such as might arise from one really adverse season in America, it becomes more than ever important that England should not remain dependent upon any one single field of production. In this sense, the efforts which are being made to stimulate the cultivation of cotton in other parts of the world—particularly in that most suitable and illimitable field, India—are deserving of hearty support and encouragement. But to imagine, as many persons, probably not with the most disinterested views, have argued, that, because the Southern States of America have broken their federal union with the Northern, the production of cotton must necessarily decline to an extent threatening inconvenience to our home interests, is really absurd. It would be well were apprehensions of this kind to be subjected more closely to the simple test of common sense. Do the cotton alarmists wish us to assume that, because the Southern States have seceded, in defence of what they consider their slave-holding rights, they are disposed to let their slaves leave off work? If there be excitement among the white population, is it to be imagined that there will be on that account one single hour's remission of labour among the blacks in the cotton plantations? The sound old maxim, that constant occupation leaves no room for mischief, is assuredly not likely to be overlooked by the Southern slavemasters. The slaves will be kept to their work just the same as heretofore. To suppose that the cotton planters would permit their plantations to run wild, their slaves to horde together in mischief-breeding idleness, and their immense invested capital to lie unproductive, is as strange an idea as could well be broached. It was not for this that the white inhabitants of the cotton States have banded themselves together, and have gone to the length of standing prepared, weapon in hand, to defend the new commercial no less than political position which they have taken up. Yet it is by apprehensions of this vague and inconsequential sort that, at a time of distrust, commercial calculations are occasionally in no small degree swayed. Manchester may rest assured that, if any material check be given to the American cotton production, it will arise, as heretofore, from the vicissitudes of the seasons, and not from political movements. The cotton States have not quitted the Union with the idea of suspending the cultivation of the article, but rather with that of increasing their means and appliances—their machinery, human and otherwise—and of thus growing more. In no country is the pursuit of wealth more eagerly followed than in America. In no country are the paths of trade more closely trodden, or new ones more swiftly explored. In this respect the South is scarcely behind the North. In the former, as in the latter, the passion for the acquisition of wealth will cause ordinary commercial pursuits to be followed with the usual keenness, now that political passion is subsiding. And those who know how deeply the American people of both sections of the Union are attached to trade, and how greatly they are disinclined to shedding blood, and most of all to that most frightful form of bloodshed, civil war, have always cherished a steadfast hope that the consideration of the material interests of both parties will yet avert so dreadful a calamity.

WHAT WILL BE THE LEADING INVESTMENTS DURING THE PRESENT YEAR?

ASSUMING that the peace of Europe is maintained, there is every probability of an easy money market for some time to come, and as there is no likelihood, under such circumstances, that the Imperial Government will make any addition to the national debt, and as accumulations go on in this country at a rate which, at a moderate computation, leave a surplus of from £20,000,000 to £30,000,000 per annum for investment in public securities, it may not be uninteresting to consider the channels into which this large surplus is likely to flow. The usual objects of investment of this class are:—

1. The English funds.
2. English railway securities.
3. American securities.
4. Other foreign funds and railways.
5. Colonial securities.
6. Indian securities.

1. It is not likely that the English funds will attract any large amount of fresh capital, paying, as they do, little more than  $3\frac{1}{4}$  per cent. per annum, whilst Indian and colonial securities pay upwards of 5 per cent. Moreover, no new creation of English Government securities is in progress. Our present Chancellor of the Exchequer is especially opposed to the policy of adding to the national debt; and he has just presented a Budget which establishes an equilibrium between revenue and expenditure without resorting to any such abnormal measure.

2. English railway securities deservedly meet with a large degree of favour, and we have no doubt they will maintain their position in the public estimation. The almost surprising manner in which railway traffic keeps up in face of the dulness of trade must tend to give a degree of encouragement to holders, which, probably, not even the large increase in railway expenses will impair. But in this class of investments there is likewise no creation of stock of an amount sufficient to absorb the large surplus savings of the nation. The preferential and guaranteed stocks are especially scarce in the market, and it is, indeed, impossible to purchase them in any large amount.

3. It is unquestionable that many kinds of American securities, both state and railway, have been depressed to prices quite out of proportion to their intrinsic merits. They can be bought to pay high rates of interest. It will be admitted, too, that American railway property, as a whole, was never in a sounder condition than at present. It has been purged of much financial unsoundness. Some American railway securities—such, for example, as those of the Illinois Central Company—appear to hold out to investigators and investors the promise of an ultimate return such as has rarely, if ever, been equalled. American Government securities are, furthermore, in course of creation almost as fast as they can be absorbed. For several reasons, however, we are of opinion that there will not be any heavy draught upon our reserves of capital in this direction. In the first place, the threatened civil war in America deters investments. Buyers and holders do not leave out of account the immense rebound which would follow any settlement of the existing difficulties, but as long as those difficulties are not settled the permanent investor will feel no confidence. In the next place, the Americans themselves promise to be, for some time to come, the keenest competitors for their own securities. They can best appreciate their value, and they are so overloaded at present with unemployed money, arising from the stagnation of trade, that they are exceedingly likely to seek a temporary employment for it in their own securities.

4. As regards other foreign funds and railways, apart from an occasional speculative impulse, such as that lately witnessed in the case of Mexican Bonds, we can perceive little or no sign of an appetite for them on the part of the English investing classes. There can, indeed, be no confidence in foreign securities until Continental politics take a decided turn for the better.

5. Colonial securities are well held, and the inquiries for them have latterly increased. There will always be a supply of a certain amount from the young and rising communities which we have planted. For example, this week another batch of £2,000,000 of Victoria Government Debentures have arrived in London, although they are not likely to be offered at present. But the supply of Colonial securities will only partially satisfy that quiet but constant demand for investment which, lately checked by the disturbance in the money market, will probably revive now that the rates of interest have fallen again to a reasonable point.

6. It is reasonable, therefore, to suppose that our surplus capital will for the most part seek employment in Indian Government stock, railways, and debentures, which yield a minimum of 5 per cent. interest, guaranteed firstly from the revenues of India by the Indian Government; secondly, from the traffic of the railways themselves. The debentures, at all events, have this double security. Now 5 per cent., amply secured, is a very satisfactory rate of interest, and quite as high as is compatible with safety as an investment. Those persons who seek a higher rate generally run great risk of losing their principal. At all events, 5 per cent. as a minimum, guaranteed by a perfectly solvent Government, constitutes a very eligible investment. It is true that most of the Indian railways at present under construction will cost more than the original estimates, but it was always pretty well known that they would do so, and they have this inestimable advantage, that, whatever they may cost, the Indian Government must either guarantee the amount, or in some other way find the capital to complete them. If any evidence were wanting on this head, we have only to refer to the advances which the Indian Government are at the present moment making to some of the lines—and to the fact that the last 5 per cent. Government loan of £3,000,000 was raised less for the wants of the Indian Government than to assist Indian railways. It will be remarked, also, that the Indian Council has given special authority to the Indian Government to continue the works at present under construction, in spite of any financial difficulty. Such is the importance attached by the Government here to the completion of Indian railways, as the best means of developing our Eastern Empire, and curtailing its military and other expenditure, that, were it to become necessary, even an Imperial guarantee would not be withheld, in order to enable the Indian Government to finish the important works now in progress. We have on former occasions urged the Indian Government to aid the extension of the railway system in India by commutting the land-tax, and taking in payment Indian securities of every description, whether Government stocks or railway stocks or debentures. Such a measure would unquestionably give an immense impetus to the desire of the natives to invest in Indian securities generally. So complete is the identification between the Indian Government and the railways that, should the latter be unable to place their shares or debentures as rapidly as is required, the former will undoubtedly be obliged to issue more 5 per cent. Government stock, and lend the money to them. It is understood that they are fully prepared to do so. To this extent the Government will ultimately become investors in their own railways, just as they are now their guarantors. Upon the last occasion when £3,000,000 of Indian Government 5 per cent. stock was offered, £13,000,000 was applied for, and the loan is now at a high premium. There will, therefore, be no lack of money. The only question is as to the form in which it is to be raised.

Taking everything into consideration, we are inclined to think that the public will invest largely this year in Indian securities. At all events, no others, in the present political and financial state of the Continent, seem to offer equal advantages, comprising, as they do, excellent security and a high rate of interest.

THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILWAY.—THE EVIDENCE OF AN EYE-WITNESS.

LETTER No. 1.

It may be interesting to those of your readers who have invested money in the Illinois Central Railway to have a rambling letter from one who has spent a few years in Illinois, in what you and they will admit was the best possible position to judge of everything relating to that State. I filled what we would call here the City Department of a Chicago daily paper, my duties being to chronicle and to speak of transactions of all kinds, to watch the movements of produce, and to endeavour to direct Western farmers when to sell and Canadian and New York purchasers when to buy. One year I was a candidate for the office of Superintendent of the Chicago Board of Trade, the duties of that office being the getting up of those elaborate annual trade reports and figures for which the North-west has been so long famous. Lastly, I have traversed the whole State of Illinois, gone over every acre of the Illinois Central Railway lands, and spent many happy days amongst the farmers. Such have been my opportunities; and I beg of you and your readers to understand that I have no pecuniary interest in anything relating to Illinois or to any other State, and desire merely to promote the ends of truth.

The opinion I have formed of the Illinois Central Railway is, that neither in the United States, nor in Canada, nor in England, is there another railway of half so much promise. It is a railway which, before many years are over, will have cost the shareholders nothing, and which, in the end, will produce an enormous and constantly-increasing revenue. The unsold lands, the value of which in some degree increases as settlement proceeds, will more than pay for the construction of the railway and the rolling stock, and leave in the hands of the shareholders a long and well-equipped line, which for ever will practically monopolise a large portion of the carrying trade, not of Illinois alone, but of Missouri and the Southern States. Were the Southern States now to be blockaded, the best, and perhaps the only, outlet for cotton would be by the Illinois Central Railway to Chicago, from which there would be the cheap water transit of the Lakes and the St. Lawrence down to Montreal. And for the Western States and Canada, the shortest and the cheapest route for sugar, molasses, and other articles from Cuba and the West India Islands, is by way of New Orleans and Cairo and the Illinois Central Railway, to Chicago. This last trade has been in course of development for several years, and will progress with the growth of Canada and the Western States.

Whatever takes place in the United States, the Illinois Central Railway is at least secure. Removed a thousand miles from the seaboard, upon which the strife of civil war will be waged, if waged at all, those who have settled on the lands will remain undisturbed in the peaceful cultivation of the soil. Civil war, even, inasmuch as it would withdraw many from agricultural pursuits in the Northern and the Southern States, would increase the demand for everything that Illinois has to sell, and rather tend to increase settlement than lead to any diminution. And were the Northern States to undertake operations on the Mississippi River against the seceding States, the map of Illinois has only to be consulted for us to be assured that there is but one highway for the transport of material and of troops, and that is the branch line of the Illinois Central Railway from Chicago to Cairo, at the junction of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers.

But it is in peace, and not in war, that the resources of Illinois, and particularly of the Illinois Central Railway, will be best developed. Civil war can hardly fail to exercise a pernicious influence on emigration, and in the absence of emigration the growth of the North-Western States will be comparatively slow. So well authenticated, and so generally known, are the superior advantages of Illinois as the future home of intending emigrants, that the great majority of those emigrating direct their footsteps to that State, and were emigration checked Illinois would be the first to suffer. Hamlets, villages, and towns would for a time cease to spring up under the enchanter's wand, and the populations of the old-established towns continue to be doubled in a year or two. New impulse would be wanting to develop the resources of the State, and to add to its population in an ever-increasing ratio; but the present ratio of increase would of course be maintained. Without the influx of other settlers, those now inhabiting Illinois would still put forth their energies, and still be rewarded by the same bounteous hand; and the prosperity of the State, without further external aid, would therefore be abundantly assured.

The agricultural advantages of Illinois over all the other States and over Canada, admit of no dispute. Canada is covered with impenetrable forest, which yields only before the axe, and when the trees have been felled and burned the stumps remain until they have rotted out. In this bush-work tens of thousands of Englishmen have had broken hearts, and tens of thousands of English families have lost their lives from ague and fever. All this is spared by settlement on the grassy plains of Illinois. There is no forest to be cleared—no stumps in the way of ploughing for ten or a dozen years, and no appropriation of the cleared land for the growth of feed for cattle. Illinois is like a vast English meadow, interspersed with narrow belts of trees which give beauty to the landscape; and what the Illinois farmer has to do on settling is simply to construct a fence that cattle may be kept from trespass. He is in a single day in much the same position as the Canadian farmer after ten years of unremitting labour. He has only to turn over the thin sod, scatter on the seed wheat, and in a few weeks afterwards he reaps an abundant harvest. Nor is it necessary that he should devote a single acre for the cultivation of grass and hay. The boundless prairie is around him upon which his cattle roam at large unchallenged, and from the prairie he may cut as much hay as his cattle throughout the winter may require. In Illinois the producing cost of wheat is not more than one shilling a bushel; in Canada, in Ohio, in New York, and other States, the producing cost is perhaps not less than two shillings or half-a-crown. The Illinois farmer has the advantage also of feeding herds of hogs and cattle, which may be said to cost him nothing, and these advantages speedily enable the man of intelligence and enterprise to farm several thousand acres, while elsewhere his operations would almost have been as circumscribed as they are at home.

To the settler the lands of the Illinois Central Railway have recommendations which are peculiar. The title to these lands is unquestionable, and an honest man overtaken by misfortune has never had to complain of forfeiture. Upon no other lands is there so great security; upon none is so much indulgence given. Strangers buying lands elsewhere, run more or less risk from defective title, and the rule is that, unless the deferred payments are made regularly, the land is forfeited. Can it be doubted, therefore, that were these great advantages made known among intending emigrants, and were the Illinois Central Railway Company to bring their lands prominently before all classes in the United Kingdom, no great time would elapse before every acre was sold and settled? Not only do these lands invite the grazier and the farmer, but the market gardener. Market gardening is still in its infancy in Illinois, and I have myself on more than one occasion in Chicago paid two shillings for a cabbage which in Covent Garden might have been had for less than twopence. In fact, Chicago receives the bulk of its common household vegetables from Cincinnati—a distance of several hundred miles, because that class of settlers are still wanting who will be content to settle down and grow them.

But I am afraid I have already trespassed too much upon your space.

In another letter I will speak of the commercial prospects of Illinois and of the social condition of the settlers upon the Illinois Central Railway lands.
P. B.

THE STATE OF TRADE.

(COMPILED FROM NUMEROUS LOCAL REPORTS.)

The accounts from Manchester describe a considerable increase of firmness. The continued high prices of cotton cause an upward tendency in the quotations of all descriptions of goods suitable for India. There has been a rather better inquiry for shirtings suited to the East, and in some few instances advanced rates are obtainable, but the amount of business has been limited by the firmness on the part of manufacturers. In T-cloths and longcloths there is still to be remarked a slightly improved demand. Printing cloth remains very much depressed. The market for yarns has been very firm, and there has been a good deal of business done at the hardening prices. The chief purchases have been for China and India. There have been a few sales of yarn for Germany. The home trade houses are also buying yarns to a fair amount, but the extreme rates demanded stand very much in the way of transactions. On the whole, the market presents a stronger aspect.

At Leeds the appearance of settled weather continues to impart more cheerfulness to trade, and causes some signs of animation both in the drapers' shops and in the wholesale warehouses. There has been a moderate attendance of merchants at the cloth-halls this morning, and, though no large extent of business was done, there was more disposition to purchase than for some time past. The plain cloth trade, however, is sluggish, and stocks generally, both in the hands of makers and merchants, are larger than is desirable. On the whole, the prospects of the home market seem to be reviving, although trade is likely to be conducted with great caution throughout the summer.

At Rochdale there has been a good attendance in the wool and flannel trades, with a slightly improved feeling, and a little more business has been done. There is a hopeful feeling that they will soon improve. The stocks are not large.

At Leicester there is a little improvement in the demand for goods suitable for the season, and prospects are becoming more cheering. The warehouses continue to do rather more business. Manufacturers are still keeping down stocks. In the adjacent country districts there is also a slight improvement.

At Nottingham there is a better feeling in the lace trade this week. A little more is doing in cotton goods. There is also more doing in silk goods. The fineness of the weather is favourable to the demand for many classes of goods. In hosiery there is rather more doing, and prospects generally are more cheering. Stocks are, however, being kept low, and goods made, for the most part, to order. Many hands are yet out of employ.

From Birmingham we learn that a slight but general reaction has taken place in the trades of the town and district since our last report. The favourable change in the weather has had the effect of stimulating the home trade.

At Wolverhampton much dullness still exists in business. On the Stourbridge side depression prevails.

In North Staffordshire trade is bad in every department. At the coal and iron works of Lord Granville notices of reductions of wages have been given, which expire on the 23rd inst.

THE AGRA AND UNITED SERVICE BANK (LIMITED).

On Saturday last, the 13th April, the twenty-seventh annual general meeting of proprietors was held at the head office, Cannon-street, Major ROBERT GUTHRIE MACGREGOR in the chair.

Mr. W. SHIPMAN (the officiating general manager), having read the advertisement convening the meeting, the report of the directors (which has already appeared in this journal) was taken as read.

The CHAIRMAN said the report, he was happy to state, showed that the business of the bank continued to progress satisfactorily, and the result of their operations at the head office and at the different branches might be considered, and he hoped would be found by the proprietors, successful. The audited accounts for the twelve months had been submitted to the proprietors in abstract, and the details of those accounts were in the books upon the table. With regard to that point he might mention that it would be pleasing to the shareholders, and merely carrying out the views of the directors, that a detailed statement of accounts, drawn out as fully as was considered desirable, should be laid upon the Board-table one week before the general meeting, so that every proprietor before such meetings would be able to obtain any information which he desired. The net profits of the year were something less than those of the preceding year, which arose from several causes, of which he need only mention one, namely, that the rate of money in India, in Bombay particularly, had during the greater part of the year been very low indeed. They had large balances unemployed, and it had not been thought desirable altogether to refuse the receipt of further deposits, so that they were, in some degree, exposed to the payment of interest beyond what could be put out in business at the usual profit. The result of that state of things, consequently, had not been so favourable as otherwise it would have been. They had been obliged to invest more than usual of their capital in Government securities, which, although at a fair interest, had not produced so much as if the same capital could have been employed in the ordinary general business of the bank. With the reduction, which that explanation accounted for, it would however be seen that the net profit of the past year was within a small amount of what it was the previous year, and that it had enabled the Board to give the proprietors a dividend of 10 per cent., and a bonus of 2 per cent., making 12 per cent. per annum upon their paid-up capital. That amount of dividend was given upon a capital of one million sterling. He thought some notice should be taken of the amount of their capital, inasmuch as some proprietors were in the habit of measuring the value of their dividend without reference to the amount of capital paid-up. The greatest institution of the kind in India—which commanded the greatest money market in India, and where centres the greatest trade between India and the home country and between India and our other Eastern colonies—with all its advantages, a note circulation of three millions, giving no interest, and holding large Government balances, paid only 6½ per cent. It would be seen from the report that the directors had placed to the credit of the reserve fund the sum of £10,000, by which that fund was increased to £200,000. It might, therefore, be interesting to the proprietors to know what were the views of the Board with regard to further increasing that fund. The Board were of opinion that for the present the reserve fund should remain at the amount at which it at present stood. (Hear, hear.) Of course, if the business of the bank very greatly increased there might come the time when it would be considered expedient to recommend a still further increase, as the Board were strongly in favour of the principle that as the business of the bank increased to the same proportionate extent should their reserve fund be also increased, as it was much fairer to measure it by their trading capital than by their paid-up capital. Now, upon their paid-up capital their reserve fund was 20 per cent., but upon their trading capital, reckoning it prospectively at £4,000,000, it would be 5 per cent.; but their trading capital had not yet reached that sum, as the balance-sheet showed that it amounted to £3,300,000. In the last paragraph of the report allusion was made to the provision which the Board considered it necessary to make for bad and doubtful debts. There was one claim, the circumstances connected with which had already been before the proprietors—he referred to the claim upon the London and Eastern Bank. That claim was now reduced in the bank's book to £16,433, and the amount they held on security was £13,040, leaving a difference of £3,393. There was no doubt a much larger sum than that would be recovered from the London and Eastern Bank shareholders. That was the chief of the doubtful debts, and the others being much smaller in amount he would not detail them. That was a debt of considerable amount in the commencement, and therefore it was satisfactory that it had been reduced to its present dimensions, and for which dimensions they had an equivalent security, yielding an interest until they chose to realise it. Another paragraph of the report stated that Mr. Balfour, the manager of the Calcutta branch, had been appointed general manager in the place of the late Mr. Neilson, deceased. Mr. Balfour having for a series of years managed the Calcutta branch very much to the satisfaction of everybody with whom he transacted business, the Board felt that they were performing a duty to themselves and to the shareholders in appointing Mr. Balfour to the office of general manager. Before assuming his duties, however, the Board had deemed it expedient that he should visit each of the branches, for the purpose of a thorough inspection of their business, and moreover, his presence in India at the present time would, no doubt, be of essential assistance to the bank. The cessation of further appropriations to the reserve fund might induce proprietors to expect an increase of dividends for the future, and he hoped the Board would be able to declare them, but he would not go further than express a hope, because they had a great deal to do—they had to reinforce their Indian staff, they had to meet various expenses with regard to their new branch at Kurrachee, and also the expenses of a permanent inspector. But shareholders might rest perfectly satisfied that the Board would keep down their expenses to the lowest possible limit consistent with efficiency. Another point which the directors might mention, was one in which they felt confident they would carry with them the sympathy of the shareholders. It had been seen by the newspapers that efforts were being made towards raising a fund for the relief of the sufferers by the Indian famine. The bank, besides its contributions in India, had contributed to that fund the sum of £300; and when they considered the extent of the suffering occasioned by the famine and its probable duration, when they considered that theirs was still in a great measure a quasi Indian institution, that most of those present were of Indian service or connection, and that to India many of them owed almost everything, he thought he did not too strongly express the opinion of that meeting when he anticipated, as the directors had anticipated, the concurrence of the shareholders in subscribing that amount. (Loud cheers.) He knew it was, to a certain extent, beyond the authority of the Board, but they would not hesitate adopting the same course on any similar occasion, though it might be beyond their immediate authority, if they considered that by so acting they were promoting the character of the institution and the wishes of the proprietors. (Hear, hear.) He concluded by moving that the report and statement of accounts be adopted.

Mr. GEORGE GORDON MACPHERSON, the deputy-chairman, seconded the resolution.

The question being put, the resolution was unanimously carried without any discussion.

The CHAIRMAN said the next business was the re-election of the retiring directors.

Colonel BAZETT with much pleasure proposed the re-election of the retiring directors. He believed their directors were doing their duty most conscientiously, efficiently, and thoroughly. In them he had the greatest confidence, and therefore it was that he had much pleasure in proposing the re-election of those members of the Board who went out of office by rotation.

The motion was seconded by Colonel MARSHALL.

Dr. RICHARDSON believed there was no bank in London conducted upon better and sounder principles than their own, and there was no body of directors in whom he had more confidence than the Board of the Agra Bank; but what he wished the directors to do was to waive their right to fill up vacancies that might occur in the Board between the general meetings, and allow those vacancies to be filled up by the shareholders.

The CHAIRMAN said that the question referred to by the hon. proprietor had some time ago been considered by the Board, and had the question been put in the shape of a substantive motion the probability was that the Board would have to a very great extent been in favour of the opinion expressed, but there were some reservations to be made. For instance, to fill up a vacancy occasioned by the retirement of a service director belonging to a presidency where our field of choice was comparatively limited, from our having fewer proprietors there than in Bengal, and also of a commercial member, it was very desirable that the qualifications of the persons proposed to be elected should be known; and to know which the Board had better opportunities than proprietors outside. In such cases, though the Board would probably be found willing to waive the power of actual appointment, they would indicate to the proprietary any such persons whom they were inclined so to recommend. The proprietors having confidence in the Board, would, he thought, give them credit for recommending only such a person as would best fill the vacancy, and represent the proprietors' interests. Having done so, they would in such a case leave the actual election to the proprietors; and in all other intermediate vacancies it would be left to them entirely.

Colonel CHARLES HUNTER proposed an amendment to the effect that the vacancies created by the outgoing directors should not be filled up, not from any ill-feeling, for he entirely concurred in every acknowledgment of their good services for their attention to the duties of the bank, but simply with a view of reducing the number of directors upon the Board.

Mr. MORLAND entirely concurred in the sentiments expressed by Colonel Hunter, but should vote against the amendment because no notice had been given. It would be scarcely fair to the outgoing directors to be so summarily treated—(hear, hear.)—without any sort of notice.

Mr. W. NEWMARCH was strongly in favour of the resolution, upon the ground that the extensive and intricate business of their bank was very different from the business of an ordinary bank in London, and therefore their present Board was not too numerous. They must not forget that the Agra Bank was continuing to make a satisfactory progress among the British public as a commercial institution, and upon that ground alone he thought the amendment should not be put.

Colonel WESTERN opposed the amendment, feeling quite satisfied that if it were adopted a very great injury to the marketable value of their shares would be the result.

The amendment being put was negatived, there being but three hands held up in its favour. The resolution was then put and carried, with three dissentients.

Mr. J. THOMSON, in a few appropriate remarks, acknowledged the compliment on behalf of the retiring directors. He would rather refer to the past as an evidence of the future, and prefer accepting the confidence of the proprietary, which he hoped he might be permitted to accept, both for himself and colleagues, by what they had done, rather than by any promises—however truthful and sincere—of what they would do in time to come. He could conscientiously say that they took the warmest interest in the bank, knowing it to be a solid, sound, and substantial institution; and it paid them a satisfactory, if not a handsome return for their investments. If those dividends were honest, which they certainly were; if their capital was intact, which it certainly was, and if their reserve fund now amounted to £200,000—being equal to one-fifth of the capital stock, free and unfettered, and the field of their operations large and improving, he thought every one acquainted with the commerce of India would agree with him that their operations were likely to become largely extended. Looking at all those circumstances and facts, he thought they had all good reason for satisfaction and ground for congratulation both with regard to the position of the bank and with regard to its future prospects. He was assured they had every reason to regard that bank upon a higher basis than upon the mere selfish reasons that it served their purpose, for it served the purpose of the public. (Hear, hear.) He would take that opportunity of referring to the nature of their business—as compared with what it was in its early days. He knew it was termed a United Service Bank, that it had derived its capital from the services, and that it had been of essential benefit to the services, which had creditably performed all their obligations. The business of the bank became so prosperous that Agra did not afford a sufficient field for its operations. A branch was then opened at Calcutta, and there an extensive and profitable field was found in the commerce of the country; and from that hour the bank became an important commercial institution, and its business gradually increased—so important indeed, that in course of years it was deemed expedient to remove the head office from Calcutta to the great mistress of the world, London, and from that time up to the present moment their bank had been mainly a commercial bank, as now only one-tenth of their business consisted of service business, the remainder being purely commercial business, and therefore the same proportion of profits realised resulted from commercial transactions. That change had come to pass by force of circumstances and passing events. When they looked at the state of the commerce—at the commercial intercourse between England and India, and when they considered that the business, the trade, and commerce of India must gradually expand year by year, being now almost in its infant state; and therefore they should congratulate themselves that they were not now so dependent upon the business of the services, and that they had got a firm hold of the commerce of that important empire—India. (Cheers.)

A resolution was then passed re-electing the auditors (W. Newmarch, Esq., and J. H. Williams, Esq.), and increasing their remuneration to £300 per annum.

A unanimous vote of thanks was then passed to the Board of Directors, which was acknowledged by the Chairman.

Thanks were then accorded to the manager and officers of the bank, which was acknowledged in a few graceful remarks by Mr. W. Shipman (the officiating general manager).

After some discussion a special resolution was passed by a majority of 37 to 7 (the directors not voting) increasing the remuneration of the directors from £200 to £300 per annum each.

A vote of thanks was then passed, which brought the proceedings to a close.

SHIPS LYING IN THE LIVERPOOL DOCKS.—In consequence of the crowded state of the Liverpool Docks, the inconvenience of which is considerably enhanced by the large number of empty ships lying in the port, the Mersey Dock Board on Thursday resolved to raise the rate for ships lying in the docks beyond three months, from 2d. per ton per month to 2d. per ton per week; the solicitor being instructed to take the necessary steps to carry the resolution into effect.

The payment of the dividends has now been completed, and has caused the reserve to be slightly trenced upon, notwithstanding the fresh decline in the "other" securities. The amount of gold bought by the Bank during the week was £95,000, but sovereigns to nearly an equal amount must have left the establishment for the purposes of the home circulation.

THE MONEY MARKET.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, APRIL 19.

The discount market this week has shown even increased ease. The supply of money in all quarters has been fully equal to the demand. Accordingly, the best bills have been discounted at  $4\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. (being  $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. below the Bank minimum), and in exceptional instances at  $4\frac{1}{4}$ . The applications at the Bank of England have been very limited.

To-day the demand for money has been slightly brisker, but there was no change in the rates.

In refraining from reducing the rate of discount yesterday, the Bank were doubtless influenced by the fall which has taken place in the Continental exchanges, and by the impulse which (as mentioned elsewhere) has been given to the demand for silver for the East. The resumption of remittances of silver to India on Government account, after a long suspension, is deserving of notice.

In the Stock Exchange there has been almost a glut of money, owing partly to the withdrawal of a large amount of New Three per Cent. Stock by the London and Westminster Bank. Loans on English Government securities were obtainable to-day at 3 per cent.

To-day the demand for silver for the East having increased, the price rose  $\frac{1}{2}$  d., being quoted 5s.  $1\frac{1}{2}$  d. £200,000 worth has been purchased for the next Bombay steamer, and has yet to be procured from the Continent or from the Bank of England. A demand for gold for the Continent has accordingly sprung up to-day, and the whole of this remittance will probably be sent away.

The remittances of specie and bullion by the Calcutta and China steamer of the 20th inst. are £244,570 (viz., £24,138 gold and the rest silver), showing a considerable increase, compared with those by the packet of the 4th, which took only £91,616. Of the amount by the present opportunity, however, £163,100 is silver on Government account. The particulars are as follows:—For Calcutta, £192,100; Madras, £4,359; Singapore, £3,879; Hong Kong, £27,497; Shanghai, £14,485; and Foo-choo-foo, £2,250.

There have been no shipments of specie to America since our last report.

Only £22,000 in gold has been bought by the Bank since the date of the return given above, this sum having been taken there yesterday. There were no operations to-day (Friday).

The Paris letters mention that there is a good demand for money in that city at 5 per cent. The anticipated reduction in the rate of the Bank of France, which is now 5 per cent., is therefore improbable.

THE BULLION MARKET.

With reference to the movements in bullion and in the Indian Government paper, Messrs. Pixley, Abell, and Langley report as follows:—

GOLD.—Since our circular of the 11th instant, the arrival of the Kooria Moorla, from Melbourne, has been announced; she brings £80,000 in gold, and not £40,000 as before notified; the gold will not be in London for a day or two. About £68,000 has been sold to the Bank of England since the 11th instant. The Atrato, from the West Indies, has brought £9,500; and some considerable amounts in coin have been received from the Continent. The shipments to the United States have been almost entirely discontinued.

SILVER.—The Atrato, from the West Indies, has arrived with £36,500 in silver; this has been sold at 5s.  $1\frac{1}{2}$  d. per ounce standard. The market has been firmer during the last day or two, and we quote prices 5s.  $1\frac{1}{2}$  d. to 5s.  $1\frac{3}{4}$  d. per ounce standard. £25,000 has been despatched by the Tasmanian to the West Indies. With the exception of about £160,000 on Government account, the shipments to the East by Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamer from Southampton of 20th instant, will be of moderate amount.

MEXICAN DOLLARS have been in demand during the last few days. The quantity on the market has been very limited. Sales have been effected at 5s. per ounce,—this we quote as the closing price. It is supposed that the West India steamer, due on the 29th instant, will bring a very considerable amount of dollars and bar silver.

EXCHANGE on India for Banks' Drafts sixty days' sight, we quote 1s.  $11\frac{1}{2}$  d. to 2s. for Calcutta; and 1s.  $11\frac{1}{2}$  d. to 2s.  $0\frac{1}{2}$  d. for Bombay; Madras, 1s.  $11\frac{1}{2}$  d. to 2s.; Bills with Documents, 1s. 11d. to 1s.  $11\frac{1}{2}$  d.

INDIA GOVERNMENT LOAN NOTES are a shade better than last week; we quote Five-and-a-Half per Cents. 100 to 100 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; and Five per Cents. 93 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 94.

The report of Messrs. Haggard and Co., dated this day, observes:—

During the past week our market has again been rather active, and prices have again undergone some important alterations, more especially as regards Bar Silver and Mexican Dollars.

There has not been much activity in Gold, the supplies from the Continent being limited. The amount bought by the Bank of England is £67,000.

Bar Silver has been in considerable demand, and owing to the short supply in the market, prices have risen considerably. The Bars by the Atrato were sold at 61 $\frac{1}{2}$  d., but a higher price has been obtained for some small parcels.

Dollars have also been in considerable demand, and, being very scarce, have risen to 5s. per ounce; at this price, however, there are no sellers.

THE EXCHANGES.

The Foreign Exchanges this week have experienced a further considerable fall, owing to the ease in our money market. Gold will now begin to flow to the Continent. Subjoined is a list of the rates current this afternoon:—

AFFAIRS IN AMERICA.

The private commercial telegrams from New York show that in commercial circles there was nothing like the feeling of panic described in some of the New York papers. The exchange, however, has declined to 107 $\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$ .

THE BANK TRANSFER BOOKS.

The following notification, which has just been issued by the Bank of England, describes the new arrangements decided upon with reference to the transfer books. As before explained, there will be, practically, no closing of the books for the dividends at all; but, on the evening of Saturday, the 1st of June, a line will be drawn, and the dividend warrants will be made out in favour of the persons whose names then stand recorded in the Bank books. On the following Monday (the 3rd) stock will be transferable ex the July dividend. These arrangements will tend greatly to the convenience of fundholders:—

Bank of England, 18th April, 1861.

Notice is hereby given, that in order to prepare the dividends due on the 5th July, 1861, the balances of the several accounts in the following funds will be struck on the night of Saturday, the 1st June, viz., £3 per Cent. Consolidated Annuities; New £3.10s. per Cent. Annuities, 1854; New £5 per Cent. Annuities; New £2.10s. per Cent. Annuities; Annuities for Terms of Years; India £5 per Cent. Stock.

On Monday, the 3rd June, the above-named funds will be transferable without the dividend due on the 5th July next.

N.B.—When the day for closing the accounts for the dividends shall fall on Saturday or Monday, it will be regarded as a public transfer day, and no fee required for tickets placed in the boxes before one o'clock.

THE FARINGDON AND WANTAGE BANK.

At a meeting of the creditors of the Faringdon and Wantage Bank of Messrs. Barnes, Medley, and Ansell, held at Faringdon on Tuesday, Mr. R. P. Harding (of the firm of Harding, Pulein, Whinney, and Gibbons) explained the causes of the failure and the present position of the estate. A composition was agreed to of 10s. in the pound, 5s. payable by the 4th May, and the balance secured. The total liabilities are about £96,900, of which about £45,500 are expected to become claims against the estate. The assets available for distribution, including amount from the separate estate of Mr. Barnes, are estimated to produce about £22,500.

THE PRESTON OLD BANK OF MESSRS. PEDDER AND CO.

With reference to the stoppage of the Preston Old Bank, the Manchester Examiner says:—

We are informed, from a reliable source, that further investigation into the affairs of the bank does not materially alter the opinion already expressed, that if forbearance on the part of the numerous creditors be shown, the liquidation will prove a favourable one. Our readers will be surprised to learn that the creditors number above four thousand, a large proportion of whom are for small amounts, the largest not exceeding £12,000. This fact is sufficient to indicate the extent of the inconvenience and present embarrassment which necessarily result from the suspension of an old-established concern like the one in question. Messrs. Deloitte and Halliday, accountants, Manchester, are now engaged in investigating the affairs of the bank, preparatory to making a statement, which will be presented to a meeting of the creditors, to be held at Preston as early as possible.

DISAPPEARANCE OF ANOTHER PRIVATE BANK.

It is announced that the old established and respectable firm of Craddock and Bull, of Nuneaton, have transferred their business to the Coventry Union Banking Company, Mr. Craddock's age and infirmities having induced him to retire from the banking business.

THE RUSSIAN THREE PER CENT. LOAN.

Messrs. Thomson, Bonar and Co. announce the half-yearly dividend, due the 1st May, on the Russian Three per Cent. Loan.

RAILWAY TRAFFIC.

The Brighton Railway traffic return shows this week an increase of £584; the South-Eastern, a decrease of £1,388; the London and North-Western, an increase of £911; the Great Western, an increase of £1,940; the Great Northern, an increase of £2,401; the London and South-Western, an increase of £1,435; the Eastern Counties, an increase of £570; the North-Eastern, an increase of 1,119; the Lancashire and Yorkshire, an increase of £532; the Midland, an increase of £412; and the Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, an increase of £406.

The traffic receipts of the Great Western Railway of Canada for the week ending March 29 were £10,450 sterling, being £919 more than in the corresponding week of last year.

The traffic returns now published are for an ordinary week this year, as compared with Easter week in 1860.

RAILWAYS.

The Stock Exchange committee, acting upon an application made to them by the directors of the Ottoman (Smyrna to Aidin) Railway Company, on Thursday ordered this company's shares to be reinstated in the official list, from which they were removed on the 15th Feb., 1859. This announcement has been received with great satisfaction by the shareholders.

It appears from the third report of the directors of the Great Southern of India Railway Company that the engineer-in-chief anticipates that the line between Negapatam and Trivalore, a distance of 14½ miles, will be ready for opening in May, and the whole line throughout to Trichinopoly in September. The railway will thus be completed and equipped in the short space of two years from the commencement of the works. The directors express their confidence that the capital account of the first section of the line will be closed for a sum not exceeding £7,000 per mile.

The half-yearly report of the directors of the West Flanders Railways Company, adopted at the meeting this day, recommended a dividend of 4s. 6d. per share, carrying forward a balance of £733.

The half-yearly report of the directors of the Sambre and Meuse Railway Company, adopted at the meeting on Wednesday, recommended a dividend of 2s. 6d. per share.

A call of £1, making £3. 10s. paid, is to be paid on the Metropolitan Extension capital of the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway Company, by the 20th of May.

The annual meeting of the East Indian Railway Company is called for the 30th inst., and will be made extraordinary to authorise an increase of the capital by the creation of new shares.

The half-yearly meeting of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company is called for the 26th inst.

The annual meeting of the Great Southern of India Railway Company is called for the 23rd inst.

A special meeting of the Metropolitan Railway Company is called for the 24th inst., to approve three Bills about to be introduced into the House of Commons. One of these authorises the company to make certain improvements in their communication with the Great Northern Railway, and with the metropolitan meat market at Smithfield; a second authorises the extension of the Metropolitan Railway from Smithfield to Finsbury-circus; whilst the third is for making a line from the Great Western Railway to Hammersmith, to be called the Hammersmith and City Railway.

A special meeting of the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company is called for the 24th inst., at Manchester, to approve four Bills now pending in Parliament, which authorise the company to make various branches and extensions.

BANKS.

At the meeting on Thursday of the shareholders of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China, the resolution passed on the 28th ult., authorising the directors to apply to Government for a supplemental charter, sanctioning the issue of bank notes at Singapore and the adjoining British settlements, was confirmed.

The annual report of the Oriental Bank Corporation, to be presented on the 22nd inst., states the net profit for 1860 to have been £214,757. The dividend and bonus of 7 per cent. for the half-year ending 30th of June, already paid, have absorbed £88,200 of that amount, leaving £126,557 for present distribution. This sum it is now proposed to appropriate to the payment of a dividend of 5 per cent. for the half-year ending 31st of December, 1860, and a bonus of 4 per cent., which together will require £113,400, and leave a balance of £13,157 to be carried forward.

The half-yearly meeting of proprietors of the Bank of Victoria was held at Melbourne on the 5th of February, when the management submitted their sixteenth half-yearly report. The net profits of the half-year amounted to £33,596. 12s. 7d., which it was proposed to apportion as follows:—To dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, £25,000; to reserve fund, £5,000; to bank premises (creditor account), £3,500; to balance to profit and loss, £96. 12s. 7d. The report was unanimously adopted, and thanks were voted to the board of management for the satisfactory manner in which the affairs of the establishment have been conducted during the past half-year.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Bank of Ireland is called for the 16th of May.

ASSURANCE COMPANIES.

An extraordinary meeting of the English Widows' Fund and General Life Assurance Association is called for the 29th inst., to receive from the directors a "statement of the proceedings in reference to the dissolution of the association."

THE CHINA COASTING AND INLAND STEAM COMPANY.

We understand that a company is shortly to be brought before the public, called the "China Coasting and Inland Steam Navigation Company," by Mr. Thomas A. Boulton (formerly of China), under influential auspices. Its object is the opening of the river Yang-tse-kiang, to trade by means of steam communication. A large traffic is carried on over a populous and fertile space of 2,000 miles.

OTHER PUBLIC COMPANIES.

A call of £10 is to be paid on the scrip of the Falkland Islands Company by the 7th of May.

The report of the directors of the Foreign Vineyard Association, to be submitted at the general meeting on the 25th inst., recommends from the net profits on the ordinary trading a dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, less Income-tax. Reviewing the progress of the company for the seven years during which they have carried on operations, the directors draw attention to the large increase in the extent of their transactions, as well as to the fact that the dividends paid to the shareholders have averaged 10 per cent. during the whole period on the paid-up capital, whilst £3,400 has also been paid off the purchase account for leases, good-will, &c.

The directors of the London Ropery Company (Limited) invite applications, until the 6th of May, for the new issue of shares. Existing shareholders are to have a preference. A dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. for the past year is advertised as now payable.

THE PARIS BOURSE.

At Paris to-day (Friday) the Three per Cent. Rentes opened at 67.80, and closed "firm and rather animated" at 68.25 for money, and 68.20 for the account, showing a fresh improvement of fully ¼ per cent. since yesterday, and a total advance of nearly ¾ per cent. since last Friday.

THE STOCK AND SHARE MARKETS.

The English funds have been favourably influenced by the ease of money, by the fine weather, and by the advance on the Paris Bourse, which is considered a hopeful indication with regard to the course of foreign politics. An impulse was also given on Wednesday by a purchase by an influential broker of £350,000 New and Reduced Three per Cent. Stock on banking account (as referred to below). On the other hand, there has been a continued supply of stock from bona fide sources, with a view to re-investment in other securities, particularly in the Indian Five per Cent. Stock. Consols, which closed last Friday at  $91\frac{3}{4}$  to  $92\frac{1}{2}$  for the 9th of May, have gradually improved, and left off to-day at  $92\frac{1}{2}$  to  $93\frac{1}{4}$ . For money, the last price was 92 to  $\frac{1}{2}$ . The rise since last Friday is  $\frac{3}{8}$  per cent.

The new Indian Loan has been in very active demand for investment, and the scrip has risen to  $101\frac{3}{4}$  to  $102\frac{1}{2}$ , being  $1\frac{1}{4}$  per cent. higher than on last Friday.

The Rupee Paper has likewise been more inquired for to-day, and has advanced about  $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. The Five per Cent. was last quoted to-day  $93\frac{3}{4}$  to  $94\frac{1}{4}$ ; and the Five-and-a-Half per Cent.  $100\frac{1}{2}$  to  $101\frac{1}{4}$ . India Bonds have improved to 15s. to 10s. dis.

There has been this week some renewal of bona fide investments, consisting partly of the April dividend money. In addition to the large purchase of English Government Three per Cent. Stock above referred to, there have been increased inquiries for many other securities, including the Rupee Paper, India Bonds, Exchequer Bills, Colonial Government Bonds, and some kinds of American securities, the floating supply of which has of late diminished.

The London and Westminster Bank have just invested £500,000 in the funds. Of this amount £350,000 was purchased on Wednesday. £100,000 of the total is placed in Consols, and the remaining £400,000 in New Three per Cents. and Reduced.

The official list of to-day's actual business in the English Funds and Indian Government Securities, is annexed:—

Three per Cent. Consols, for money,  $92\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{1}{4}$ ,  $92\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $92\frac{1}{2}$ ; ditto for account (May 9),  $92\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{1}{4}$ ,  $92\frac{1}{2}$ ; Three per Cents. Reduced,  $90\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{3}{4}$ ,  $\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{1}{4}$ ; New Three per Cents.,  $90\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{3}{4}$ ,  $\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{1}{4}$ ; Thirty Years' Annuities, 1885,  $15\frac{1}{2}$ ; Bank Stock, 229, 229, 231; India Stock, 223, 222; ditto Five per Cent. Stock,  $101\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{3}{4}$ ,  $102\frac{1}{2}$ ; ditto for account,  $102\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{1}{4}$ ; ditto Four per Cent. Debentures, 1858,  $96\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{1}{2}$ ; ditto, 1859,  $96\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{1}{2}$ ; ditto Bonds, 13s., dis.; Five per Cent. "Enfaced" Rupee Paper,  $94\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $93\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $94\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $93\frac{1}{2}$ ; ditto Five-and-a-Half per Cent.,  $100\frac{1}{2}$ ; and Exchequer Bills, 2s. dis., 2s. prem.

Turkish Bonds have been rather flat during the week, but to-day there was a sudden demand for the Loan of 1858, which rose fully  $\frac{3}{4}$  per cent., closing at  $54\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$ . The rise is understood to be based upon a belief that the scheme of financial reform pressed upon the Turkish Government by the English Minister, and accepted by them will have important results. The Loan of 1854 has not participated in the improvement. Mexican Bonds are slightly better than last week. Most other Foreign stocks remain steady but quiet.

The market for British Railway Stocks, though sensitive, and subject to almost continual fluctuation, according to the character of the foreign telegrams, has shown a decided tendency to improvement this week. Nearly every stock on the list has advanced to a greater or less extent. There is an extremely limited amount of floating transactions. The "account" is, in fact, so much confined to speculations between the London and provincial markets that considerable changes occur occasionally in prices upon slight grounds. The market generally has derived great support from the satisfactory progress of the traffic. London and North-Western stock has continued scarce, owing to investments. South-Eastern is exceptionally flat, being held to some extent on speculation.

The following shows the closing prices of the principal British Railway Stocks this day, and the result of the week's variations. The share list in detail will be found in another column:—

Colonial Government Bonds are in better demand for investment. A rise has taken place in several descriptions. Victoria Government Bonds are only restrained from improvement by the prospect of fresh issues.

AMERICAN SECURITIES.

The position of the market for American securities is noticed as follows by Messrs. D. Bell, Son, and Co.:—

The market for American securities continues very firm. There has been during the past week a steady demand for the various State stocks, and also for the first mortgage bonds of the leading railroads, and prices of both have generally improved.

The report of Mr. E. F. Satterthwaite, dated Wednesday evening, is annexed:—

The market in London for American securities remains very firm. There is a good demand for Federal Bonds, and we note more inquiry for various States stocks.

First-class Railroad Bonds are much wanted, and very scarce. Transactions have taken place in Atlantic and Great Western Bonds (New York section) from 77 to 77 $\frac{1}{2}$ .

The accounts from the Oil Wells close to, and in the vicinity of, the line traversed by this railroad, continue of the same extraordinary character, and the products promise to add largely to the traffic now awaiting its completion to Columbus and Warren.

Erie, Illinois Central, and New York Central shares are steady, with a fair demand.

The London agents of the Illinois Central Railway Company on Tuesday received the following report from New York:—

Office of the Illinois Central Railroad Company,
New York, April 2, 1861.

Gentlemen,—We regret to advise a falling off in traffic towards Chicago; the warehouses are full, and business must await the opening of navigation. There are to-day 5,000,000 bushels of grain at Chicago, of which one-third is stored in the warehouses at our depot. A steady and increasing business in freight south gives a small gain over March of last year—232,887 dols. 83c. for the month, against 209,994 dols. 20c., a gain of 22,893 dols. 63c. In the land office a larger business is doing. The sales for March were 179,653 dols. 87c., making 479,900 dols. 58c. for the first quarter, against 98,919 dols. 57c. for first quarter last year. The collections are 61,130 dols. 47c., making 184,826 dols. 82c., against 122,439 dols. 46c. for first quarter last year. Our lands are widely advertised this spring, and the commissioner has been obliged to employ extra force to reply to the numerous letters of inquiry. Several thousand letters have been received since January 1, and, with genial spring weather, it is probable that more parties will visit the lands in person. The great abundance of grain in Illinois speaks volumes in its behalf. Upwards of three and a-half millions of bushels of grain have passed over our line this first quarter.—Yours respectfully,

(Signed)

THOMAS E. WALKER,

Messrs. Robert Benson and Co., London.

Chairman Ex. Committee.

The Henry Miller has arrived from China with 491,600 lbs. of tea, and the Minerva and Patrician with 1,910,900 lbs.

THE NATIONAL DEBT.—The Lords Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury having certified to the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt that there was no surplus of actual revenue over the actual expenditure of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland for the year ending the 31st of December, 1860, the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt hereby give notice, that no sum will be applied by them on account of the Sinking Fund, under the provisions of the Act 10th George IV., cap. 27, between the 1st day of April and the 30th day of June, 1861.—A. Y. SPEARMAN, Controller-General, National Debt-office, April 12, 1861.—London Gazette.

CIVIL SERVICE ESTIMATES.—On Tuesday morning the estimates for "Law and Justice" for 1861-2 were issued. The total sum required is £2,673,458, being a net increase over last year of £90,307. The total for England is £895,325, which is an increase of £120,532; for Scotland, £117,521, or a decrease of £23,430; for Ireland, £873,696, or a decrease of £14,120; for prison and convict services at home and abroad, £786,916, or an increase of £7,325. In addition, the following sums are chargeable on the Consolidated Fund, under the head "Courts of Justice," viz., England, £438,766; Scotland, £111,787; and Ireland, £150,296.

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.—Another week of continued dry weather has been experienced, greatly to the delight of the farmers, upon whose prospects the constant wet had begun to tell most seriously. Very gloomy accounts were beginning to prevail in all quarters, and not without reason. A large breadth of land remained unsown—and in many cases scores of acres originally intended for wheat were found to be in such a condition as to render their appropriation to some other purposes wholly inevitable. The weather of the past ten days has, fortunately, put a check to the mischief that was going forward. Farming operations have been prosecuted with great vigour, and not a day has been lost. The grass is everywhere looking fresher and giving indications of growth.—Sussex Advertiser.

BANK NOTES UNREPRESENTED BY GOLD.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "MONEY MARKET REVIEW."

SIR,—Although your correspondent "Anti-Monopolist" still maintains that the Bank is obliged to sell gold, I can assure him that no Bank director is aware of the circumstance. In paying its notes, which for now forty years the Bank has always readily done, it only adheres to the conditions on which the public takes them, namely—a promise clearly stated to pay in sterling money on demand. It is the fear of the possible non-fulfilment of this promise, and the belief that the Bank must have occasionally recourse to measures of injurious stringency to escape the necessity of such payment, which originated your correspondent's complaints. To that circumstance I may revert on some other occasion. When bank reformers will advance as facts the fancies of their imagination, the directors of that great institution may well laugh in their sleeves and throw reform to the dogs.

In a previous letter it was stated by me that the Bank might be compared to establishments who, having lent all their money on mortgage, still contrived, by hook and by crook, to keep up the appearance and carry on business as if they had plenty of ready cash; and last week I showed that the Government had made the singularly bad bargain of allowing the Bank to extract, beyond the fixed interest for a sum of money borrowed and lent, an indefinite additional compensation for that loan by means of the issue of paper money from the community at large. Assuming these two assertions to be correct, the question arises, to what grievances do they lead? Who is injured? The answer may be difficult, and will require so much of your space that, instead of attempting to exhaust the subject now at full length, I shall, with your permission, devote a series of short letters to it.

There is one class of persons who most assuredly have cause to complain, I mean the possessors of real money—those who, by dint of hard work and great parsimony, have accumulated small or large sums of the extent of which the thirty-eight millions in the savings banks and the forty and odd millions deposited with the joint-stock banks may enable us to form some conception. The annual value of these accumulations must surely be deteriorated by the creation, as it were by magic, of a large amount of Bank of England money, not the fruit of labour and frugality, but of ladies' dresses, shifts, and petticoats, exalted by the paper manufacturer and the printing press into rivalry and unfair competition with the offspring of untiring industry, and with the result of ages of abstinence, self-restraint, and saving. That the possessors of real money should not have long since protested against these unreal and shadowy intruders, and raised a clamour for compensation for the injury unceasingly sustained, is really surprising.

In preference to attempting to convince "Anti-Monopolist," I would much rather devote my time and your space to anatomical processes of more importance; the old woman in Threadneedle-street is a capital subject, as surgeons would say, for the scalpel, and the dissecting knife may here be applied to some purpose. Points fully understood soon find their satisfactory solution. Great effects may be expected if we stick to the truth and set it forth in impressive and convincing clearness.

GRAND TRUNK OF CANADA RAILWAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MONEY MARKET REVIEW."

SIR,—The proposal of Mr. A. P. Macdonald on behalf of himself and friends to lease the Grand Trunk line, the particulars of which are probably known to your readers, is liable to very serious objections on the part of the bond and share holders—the principal one being that no provision is made for the payment of the floating debt of the company, amounting to upwards of £2,000,000.

The total capital raised up to December last, including the lines leased by the Grand Trunk Company, and which are comprised in Mr. Macdonald's proposal, but exclusive of the Government loan and bonds hypothecated was £10,784,362, and the amount over which the proposed guarantee is to extend is stated at £10,833,333, so that it is evident the present liabilities are altogether left out of the question.

But supposing this difficulty surmounted by the lessees raising the amount required to pay off the debt, and accepting ordinary bonds for the advance, and the guarantee extended over the whole amount, say £13,000,000, the bondholders would have to wait a considerable time before receiving even a very trifling dividend.

Taking for instance the first period of five years, the amount received from the lessees, viz.: 2 per cent. on £13,000,000, or £1,300,000, is liable to the following deductions:—

Interest on leased lines, at £109,564 per annum .. ..	£547,820
Rolling stock and other necessities to be provided, estimated by directors at £500,000.—Interest on cost at 6 per cent. allowed to lessees at £30,000 per annum ..	150,000
Office and miscellaneous charges, including half salary to joint engineer at £5,436 per annum .. ..	27,180
	725,000
Leaving a balance of only .. ..	£575,000
In the second term (the annual charges remaining the same) the balance would be .. ..	1,225,000
In the third term the balance would be .. ..	1,875,000
In the fourth term the balance would be .. ..	3,175,000

Or an annual average during the whole period of 20 years of .. ..	£342,500
The capital over which this would be divided being .. ..	13,000,000
Less leased lines already provided for .. ..	1,676,075

Or .. ..	£11,323,925

It is evident that the above sum would give an average of little more than 3 per cent. per annum for the whole term of 20 years; and this, viewing the matter in the most favourable light.

If, on the other hand, Mr. Macdonald's proposal, as it now stands, should be accepted, and the judgment creditors for the £2,000,000 were to be paid out of the guaranteed interest as it accrued, the bondholders would have to wait no less than thirteen years before receiving any dividend, and at the end of the lease there would be a sum of £4,685,065* due to them for arrears of interest. It would be difficult to say at what date the shareholders would receive any return for their investment, and under these circumstances the stock, which is now quoted at twenty pounds, would not be worth twenty shillings.

Surely the company can work the line to better advantage by keeping it under their own control. When the rapid progress now being made in Canada and the certain development of the resources of the country by means of railways are considered, together with the increasing traffic on all the Canadian lines, it would be a great error on the part of the company to accept so unfavourable a proposal.

Taking the average receipts for the present year at £15,000 per week, and the working expenses at 60 per cent., there would be a net revenue of £312,000; but with an adequate supply of rolling stock and a reformed system of management an immediate increase in the net earnings might be fairly anticipated.

As nearly the whole of the capital of the Grand Trunk Railway is held in this country, and as in the present state of affairs great interest is naturally felt in the undertaking, I trust you will pardon my trespassing upon your valuable space.—I am, &c.,

London, 16th April, 1861.

Mining.

FRIDAY EVENING, APRIL 19.

THE Mining Market this week has been generally quiet; but there has been a good deal of movement in a few descriptions, including more especially Wheal Grenville and East Wheal Grenville. The late rise in East Caradon shares is well supported. Dividend stocks have met with less than the usual demand.

In the mining market to-day business was not active. The principal transactions were again in East Wheal Grenville shares, which fluctuated between 45s. and 50s., showing a decline. East Basset, Marke Valley, and North Basset shares were inquired for. North Buller and Wheal Moyle also met with attention.

The following prices are reported to us from the Stock Exchange this evening:—

Alfred Consols,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Camborne Vean,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  to 3; Cook's Kitchen, 16 to 17; East Basset, 100 to 102½; East Caradon, 19½ to  $\frac{3}{4}$ ; East Carn Brea,  $8\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ ; East Grenville, 49s. to 51s.; East Russell,  $6\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Herodsfoot,  $37\frac{1}{2}$  to  $38\frac{1}{2}$ ; Hingston Down,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ ; Lady Bertha, 17s. to 19s.; Marke Valley, 7 to  $\frac{1}{4}$ ; New Seton, 42 to 44; North Downs,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  to 4; North Treskerby,  $23\frac{1}{2}$  to  $24\frac{1}{2}$ ; Par Consols, 8 to 9; Providence Mines, 37½ to 38½; Rosewarne United, 23 to 25; South Frances, 140 to 150; Silver Vein,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ ; St. Ives Wheal Allen,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  to  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; Stray Park,  $36\frac{1}{2}$  to  $37\frac{1}{2}$ ; Tolvadden, 2 to  $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Treloweth,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  to 3; Trumpet United, 15s. 6d. to 16s. 6d.; West Caradon, 74 to 75; West Frances, 10 to 12; West Rose Down, 11 to 12; West Seton, 340 to 350; West Stray Park,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  to  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; Wheal Arthur, 5s. 6d. to 6s. 6d.; Wheal Basset, 95 to 100; Wheal Buller, 114 to 116; Wheal Clifford, 180 to 190; Wheal Cupid, 20s. to 22s. 6d.; Wheal Grenville,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ ; Wheal Harriet, 38s. to 40s.; Wheal Ludcott,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$ ; Wheal Margaret, 46 to 48; Wheal Mary Ann, 11 to 13; Wheal Unity, 8s. 6d. to 9s. 6d.

A large amount of business has again been done in United Mexican Mining shares, and a fresh rise of 10s. has taken place. There have also been increased inquiries for St. John del Rey. Colonial Mining shares are steady.

The shares of the Labuan Coal Company were quoted to-day 3 to  $3\frac{1}{2}$  prem.

The Nerbudda Coal and Iron Company have by to-day's mail received the following from their agent, Mr. Blackwell:—"Everything is going on here satisfactorily. I have about 50 tons of coal raised from the level, and within a month of receiving the stores and tools can supply coal in considerable quantities." The latest advices from Calcutta announce the arrival of the ship containing the above-mentioned tools, &c.

The directors of the St. John del Rey Mining Company (Limited) have received by telegram from Lisbon the following report, dated Morro Velho, March, 1861: "Produce for February, 36,640 oitavas; cost for ditto, £8,601; profit for ditto, £5,236. Produce ten days of March, 11,466 oitavas."

The Central American Mining Company have received letters, dated March 2, which state that a temporary suspension of the barrels had taken place, owing to a defect in the crushing mill water-wheel, which, however, had been repaired. Three days' work had reduced 15 tons of ore with very satisfactory results, the produce in silver being about 90 lbs. avoirdupois. Fifty-seven tons of ore were raised in February, averaging 90 ounces of silver in the ton; 199 tons of poor ore were sent to the hacienda in February, making the stock amount to 1,000 tons of all classes. The mines, although not rich, present a very encouraging appearance, and there are now four mines yielding ore. Fifty-seven bags of rich ore arrived at Southampton.

The United Mexican Mining Association have received via the United States advices from their commissioner, dated Guanajuato, March 12, as follows:—

Mine of Jesus Maria y José.—The two frentes of La Trinidad and San Pantaleon have been subject to some variation; in the former a mass of rock has appeared in the vein, reducing the width of the ore to  $1\frac{1}{2}$  vara and the quality of the ore in the latter has deteriorated, but both have considerably improved in the last few days. The frentes of San Roberto and La Providencia, as well as a pozo near the latter, are exceedingly good. The frente of San Andres has reached nearly as far north as the point at which the frentes in the San Pantaleon works were first commenced, and ore is appearing. In the last two weeks the "hacienda" sales have produced 12,315 dols.; and the Buscones 4,028 dols., giving together 14,329 dols. on account of the mine. The profits during the last month were rather above 20,000 dols. The raspa from Dolores was sent into the mint to-day; its value (not yet accurately ascertained) is about 15,000 dols. A conducta is to leave for Tampico the first week in April, when I expect to be enabled to remit to England 40,000 dols. Will you therefore have the goodness to obtain in London an open policy to insure about that sum (say 50,000 dols.), to be shipped from a port on the east coast of Mexico? It is possible that the destination of the conducta may be changed from Tampico to some other port. Mine of La Trinidad.—I will pay every attention to the wishes of the directors respecting outlay in this mine; but the present cost of the company is under 100 dols. per week. That sum, I presume, may be considered as well expended on the prosecution of so promising an undertaking. One frente only is at present being driven, and that in the direction of the good ore in Jesus Maria.

At Dolcoath Mine meeting, on the 8th inst., the accounts showed a credit balance of £3,247. 14s. 9d. The profit on the two months' working was £2,800. 4s. 10d. A dividend of £8 per share (£2,864) was declared, leaving £383. 14s. 9d. to the next account.

The Penhauger Mine accounts, presented at the meeting on the 11th inst., showed a debit balance of £305. 18s. 9d. A call of 1s. 6d. per share was made.

At Wheal Seton meeting, on the 8th inst., the accounts showed a credit balance of £627. 11s. 10d. The profit on the two months' working was £11. 8s. 3d.

At Willow Bank Mine meeting, a call of 6d. per share was made.

The Boscundle Mine accounts, presented at the meeting on the 8th inst., showed a balance of assets over liabilities of £45. 11s. 2d.

At Trumpet United Mine meeting, on Tuesday, the accounts showed a balance of liabilities over assets of £464. 1s. 11d. A call of 3s. per share was made.

An ordinary general meeting of the Devon Union Mining Company (Limited) was held on the 13th instant. The balance-sheet and report were adopted, and the directors were vested with power for procuring, if necessary, certain neighbouring setts."

At the adjourned meeting of the shareholders in West Wheal Providence Mine, held on Wednesday, the report and recommendation of the special committee were adopted, and referred to the committee of management to be carried out.

At Wheal Union meeting a call of 4s. per share has been made.

At West Wheal Margaret meeting on Thursday, the accounts showed a balance of liabilities over assets of £787. A call of 3s. per share was made.

At Great North Tolgus meeting held on Thursday, the accounts showed a balance of assets over liabilities of £539.

At Hingston Downs two-monthly general meeting the accounts showed a balance in hand of £140. 2s. 4d., and an estimated balance of receipts over payments of £21. 0s. 2d. The next sampling will be about 300 tons.

From Pencraig United Lead Mine, Captain Roberts reports (April 15):—"I continue to cut down the ore on the back of the 28. The lode is very open in the bottom, and for about two yards above the top of the level, beyond that height it becomes more hard and close, which makes me think there must be a good body of ore in depth. My object will be to drive a level to come under the whole of it."

The following reports are from Australian Mining Companies:—

ENGLISH AND AUSTRALIAN COPPER.—The directors have advices from their manager, dated the 23rd of February. — There were eight furnaces at work, and the smelting operations were proceeding very satisfactorily. The quantity of coal at the works on the 16th of February was 4,552 tons, and of wood 5,105 tons. The quantity of coal at Kapunda on the same date was 500 tons.

PORT PHILLIP AND COLONIAL.—The directors have advices from their resident director, dated Melbourne, the 22nd of February. The quantity of quartz crushed during January was 2,236 tons, yielding 1,945 oz. of gold. The receipts on Clunes account were £3,342, and the expenditure £1,326, leaving £2,016, of which £301 had been applied for extra items. The machinery was all working very well, and the erection of the Chilean mill, engine, and melting-house was proceeding, the latter being so far finished that a commencement had been made in melting gold. The Clunes Mine was proceeding satisfactorily and a large 50-horse power engine had been purchased for the main shaft, together with new pumps, &c., to enable them to further open out the mine. A remittance of £1,500 has been received by this mail.

SCOTTISH AUSTRALIAN.—The directors have a communication from the superintendent at Sydney, dated the 19th of February, with a report from the Good Hope Mine up to the 14th of that month. The sinking of Dickson's shaft was being continued with the view of cutting the lode at the 30 and 40 fathom levels. Mr. Morehead, the superintendent of the company, writes to the board as follows, viz:—"I now enclose balance-sheet to 31st of December, 1860, with the accompanying accounts, also the usual monthly report and cost sheet from the Good Hope. All these, though I think they will be considered satisfactory under the circumstances, possess little of the interest that usually attaches to such documents in consequence of the stage which this company's affairs have reached. I trust our balances will soon be more interesting and more productive in their results. . . . With respect to the operations at the Good Hope property during the half-year recently concluded, it is enough to say that Dickson's shaft has progressed satisfactorily, though scarcely so quickly as we anticipated. . . . I have, as will no doubt be anticipated, nothing new to report with reference to the Wellersley coalfield. It will afford me sincere satisfaction to learn that an agreement for a lease has been concluded, for the more I consider the subject in all its bearings, the more I am satisfied of the advantage which the company will derive from this lease."

BON ACCORD.—The directors have communications from the Committee of Management at Adelaide, dated the 23rd of February, with reports from the mine up to the 18th of that month. Captain Jeffery reports:—"I by all means recommend to sink engine-shafts to the 50 without any delay; the deeper we go the more promising the ground is looking, and in my own mind I have no doubt we shall shortly come to something good if indications can be taken as a criterion." The chairman of the committee writes as follows, viz:—"I visited the mine last week, and found everything on the surface regular and in order. I am very much pleased with the change into such very kindly country at the 40, as also with the character of the winze lode at the depth of 31 fathoms, and I am more sanguine now than ever of cutting ore at depth, in which opinion I think Captain Roach (of the Burra) agrees."

KAPUNDA.—The directors have advices to February 22 from their manager in Adelaide. Since his last, the shaftmen had completed the retimbering of the two shafts that had been injured, and they are now reported as completely repaired and secured, and in constant use by the tributers. No further crushes had occurred, and all was going on safely and steadily, the average yield of ore being fully maintained. On weight and assay the December ores proved to be 250 tons of 22-641 per cent. average produce, equal to 56 tons of pure copper, and the yield for January, 1861, was estimated at 280 tons, also of good produce. Since the date of the last advices (25th of January) 14 tons of copper had been shipped per Kent—Melbourne to London—31 tons forwarded, and about 20 tons ready to forward to Melbourne, also for transhipment to London. The smelting furnaces were all in good working order.

WORTHING.—The Worthing Company have received the following advices from their acting manager, dated February 23rd:—"I think by the present appearance of the lode at the 33 fathom level, south of Legg's shaft, that it will give three to four tons' ore to the fathom, and the lode is looking very kindly to improve as we drive south. It is about 5ft. wide, yellowore, coated black, quartz and mundic. Twenty-three fathom level, south of Hocking's shaft, is driven six fathoms. We have had a good lode here during the month, worth on an average six tons to the fathom. In the 12 fathom level, north of old engine-shaft, we have sunk the north, or No. 1 winze, as deep as we could for water; lode 4ft. wide, solid black and yellow ore, and gives about eight tons to the fathom. We are now sinking No. 2 winze about 10 fathoms further south at same level; lode not so large, but of same quality as in No. 1, and worth about five tons to the fathom. We have four men working in the south part of the mine raising carbonates; we have a good paying lode, and find the carbonates very profitable to mix with our ores for smelting. Our smelting operations are progressing very favourably. Regulus and ore on hand as per last account equal to 28½ tons copper, since sampled and weighed 101 tons ore, equal to 12 tons copper, making equal to 40½ tons copper on hand. In addition to this we have many tons not sampled, and a very large quantity ready for the crusher. We forward per this mail bills lading of 23 tons, per Hamilla Michell."

NORTH RHINE.—The directors have advices, dated Adelaide, 23rd of February. Captain Barker reports:—"Driven the Eastern-cross cut 4fms. 4ft. distance east of Cope's 32fms. 4ft.; expect daily to reach the lodes. Driven south on large lode 1fm. 5ft., making the end 42fms. 5ft. south of Cope's; here we have a very nice branch of black ore, about 12in. wide, in the bottom of the level, worth two tons of ore per fathom. We have four men driving here, and are putting the end stuff away to pile in one mass. Two men are raising ore in the back of level, or the black ore vein. We will stoop back north as far as the vein of black ore, and as we open more ground continue to stoop. We have taken down 2½fms. of the lode, which proves to be 5ft. wide. We have about 12 tons of ore at grass, taken out of about 2½fms. of the lode. This improvement as we go south, and the difference in size of the black ore vein, prove that depth only is required to make the North Rhine one of the first mines in the colony."

GREAT NORTHERN.—The advices from the local committee are dated Adelaide, February 23. They state:—"We have now the pleasure to advise you that the Walrus has arrived from Port Augusta with 90 tons of copper ore; this we have arranged to ship to London via Melbourne, and you will, therefore, declare this interest in your open policy—viz., at £30 per ton per Ellen Lewis. The Walrus returns again to Port Augusta, by which time the drays on the road should have arrived, so as to give her another 50 tons of ore." The superintendent's report, dated Nuccaleena, January 31, is as follows:—"The mine here is as usual, better, if anything, going down. A good lode is coming in in the main shaft, the adit level winze is as good as ever, and in the upper winze we have also rich ore coming in, and there can be no doubt that our next low level from the bottom of the main shaft will be the most productive we have yet had, so that we fully anticipate raising a large quantity of ore through the year. We shall load two more drays to-day, which will make 17 this month, and I hear there are six more near, which will make 23 drays in the height of the summer month, showing that a large number may be expected to be on the road in the winter. As Captain Pascoe and myself are off to-morrow to go and examine the workings at the eastern mines, you will have no communication from me next week."

WHEAL ELLEN.—A despatch has been received from Mr. Abraham Scott, dated Adelaide, February 23, informing the directors that after due examination into all the details of the mine he had, in pursuance of the powers transmitted to him, "taken delivery of the property on behalf of the company, subject to the confirmation of the London Board." He states "that it is known beyond question that the reserves of ore are at present very considerably in excess of the quantities named in the reports of Captains Prisk and Tonkin, made in December, 1859, and January, 1860." These reports are those printed with the prospectus of the company.

DUN MOUNTAIN.—The directors have received the following intelligence from the committee and manager, dated Nelson, New Zealand, February 9:—"We have invited tenders for the construction of the first four miles of railway, and from what we learn already we are in hopes that Mr. Doyne's estimate will be considerably reduced by the plan adopted of making the line in small sections at a time. Mr. Fitzgibbon has the superintendence of the railway; he will now set out the remaining portion of the line between the Wairoa Saddle and Brook-street. Being relieved from all uncertainty as to the exact line to be adopted we are pushing on the works with as much energy as possible, and Mr. Fitzgibbon is of opinion that the railway can be completed within a year. We have this day purchased by auction the whole of the Crown lands between the mine and the suburbs of the town of Nelson, so that our railway will now pass entirely through our own freehold until it arrives at the outskirts of the town, where we shall have to negotiate with a few proprietors for a right of way, about which we anticipate no difficulty. We have shipped by this steamer fifteen tons of chrome ore, and intend making small shipments as opportunities offer until the completion of the railway."

MERCANTILE EMBARRASMENTS.

The Manchester journals announce the failure of Mr. Henry Walmsley, an extensive cotton spinner, of Firs Mills, Failsworth, with liabilities stated to be large. Losses on the importation of cotton and on shipping transactions are believed to be the cause of the stoppage.

It has been announced that Mr. Joseph Ketley, railway carriage builder, and in the coal and coke trades, at the Soho, near Birmingham, is in difficulties. A petition has been filed under the private arrangement clauses. The liabilities are estimated at £20,000; serious losses in trade have brought about the casualty. Some of the principal creditors are in the North of England.

A meeting took place on Monday of the creditors of Messrs. J. G. Behrends and Co., East India merchants, who failed on the 23rd ult. The balance-sheet presented by Mr. Quilter, the accountant, states the liabilities at £25,668, whilst the assets are estimated at £11,709, showing a deficiency of £13,959, which is likely to be further increased, some of the assets being considered very doubtful. The proximate cause of the stoppage was the absence of remittances from India, combined with the illness of Mr. J. G. Behrends, who had a paralytic stroke in December last. The house is of old standing, having existed during the greater part of a century. The unsatisfactory results shown caused dissatisfaction, and two creditors spoke in favour of bankruptcy proceedings. It was decided, however, to adjourn until the 23rd inst., to allow the accounts to be examined. Should the account between the Calcutta firm and Messrs. Behrends not turn out more favourably, the estate will probably be put in the Court of Bankruptcy.

A meeting was also held on Monday of the creditors of Messrs. Pietroni and Draper, in the Mediterranean trade. The liabilities were stated by Mr. Coleman, the accountant, at £20,822, and the net assets at £7,155. Mr. Pietroni accepted a concession for making a railway in Tuscany, and entered into negotiations for another in the same country. The affair was subsequently upset by the revolution, and Mr. Pietroni is now pressing his claims upon the Government of Italy for loss of time, &c. It was decided to wind up under a deed of insolvency, which provides that the claims of Mr. Pietroni in connection with the railway schemes shall receive the attention of the inspectors.

At the adjourned meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Dalton Brothers, calico printers, held at Manchester on Tuesday, it was resolved to accept a composition of 5s. in the pound—3s. of which is payable in six months, and 2s. in nine months.

A meeting of creditors of Mr. B. de Cuadra, Spanish merchant, who suspended on the 1st inst., was held on Thursday, when a very favourable balance-sheet was presented by Messrs. Hart, the accountants. It estimated the liabilities at £97,838, and the assets at £117,905, showing a surplus of £20,066, exclusive of private assets. The suspension is attributable to the absence of remittances from Havannah. From his resources in hand Mr. de Cuadra could have gone on for some time longer, but the moment he found that he might have to stop at a later period he thought it better to call his creditors together at once, and request an extension. Since the 1st of April the cash in hand has increased to £10,990, and of the £267,000 liabilities on the date of the stoppage expected to be retired by other parties £74,000 have been provided for. The estate may also be relieved of the claim for £7,590 on bills drawn. The whole of the debts due it is estimated will be recovered. The only case in which there was any doubt was one of about £11,000 from a failed Havannah bank, but it appears that the establishment in question has a surplus of £100,000. After a short conversation it was resolved to adjourn to the 20th of June, when the greater part of the liabilities will have run off, and Mr. de Cuadra will be able to offer an arrangement for paying 20s. in the pound, with interest.

An adjourned meeting of the creditors of Mr. S. Ziziniyas, Greek merchant, fixed for Thursday, was further adjourned sine die.

In the Bankruptcy Court on Wednesday, Mr. Frederick Dimsdale, described as a dealer in iron and a share dealer, of King's Arms-yard, passed his examination. His balance-sheet exhibits some heavy items.—Messrs. Skeen and Freeman, timber merchants, of Old Broad-street, whose case has previously engaged attention, have likewise passed.

From the Continent various loose and reckless statements have been received respecting an alleged commercial difficulty at Marseilles. It will suffice to say that no failure has been reported from that city.

The Sydney advices mention the failure of Messrs. Raymond and Co., with liabilities for £78,000.

The Produce and other Markets.

COLONIAL PRODUCE.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, APRIL 19.

Sugar—An active and more general demand has been experienced since our report of Friday last, and notwithstanding increasing firmness on the part of importers, large transactions have taken place at improving rates, which now mostly show an advance of about 6d. per cwt. Coffee—Landed parcels continue in fair request, and prices with slight exceptions are fully equal to those quoted in our last. Cocoa attracts little attention. Rum—Only a partial inquiry continues to prevail for West India descriptions, but the few transactions effected have been at steady rates. Moderate parcels of East India have been taken at firm prices. Rice—This market has remained in a languid condition since our last, and the transactions, which have been chiefly confined to Bengal, have been only practicable at again lower prices. Pepper.—The business in this article has been extremely limited, owing partly to the lightness of supply. Pimento has been purchased in only retail quantities at previous rates. Ginger—At public sale, 405 bags African met low bids, and were withdrawn, 45 cases common Scraped Cochin were partly sold at 45s. to 47s. Mace - 24 cases found buyers at about former quotations. Nutmegs have been taken off pretty freely, but at rather moderate prices. Saltpetre—The demand has been principally for the fine qualities of Bengal, which have been dealt in to a fair extent at full rates; other sorts being of heavy sale at barely last week's prices. Nitrate of Soda is without particular inquiry. Cotton—The market which remained quiet until Wednesday has since become rather animated, caused by the accounts from America being more warlike, and business has resulted at a slight advance.

THE TALLOW TRADE.

LONDON, FRIDAY EVENING, APRIL 19.

The Tallow Market during the past week has exhibited a more animated appearance, both as regards the business for consumption and the operations in the speculative department. Much uncertainty still prevails as to the relative position of parties directly or indirectly connected with the Russian monopoly; but it would seem that the prevailing impression at present is, that some considerable sales for April to June have yet to be covered; this idea has had a rather marked influence during the week, and more demand having arisen for 1st sort Y. C. Tallow, for delivery during the period in question, an advance of about 1s. per cwt. has been established. We believe the purchases made have been, in nearly every instance, to cover previous sales; nor do we think, that under existing relations, much further advance in prices can be established. A rather active demand for Tallow for consumption has prevailed during the week, and the market has been cleared of several large parcels, chiefly Odessa, holders of sorts still continuing to meet the trade in a liberal spirit, and the impression founded on the recent improvement in speculative quotations, that the monopoly will be maintained for some months, has induced consumers to buy rather more freely.

To-day the operations in the speculative market have not been important, the quotations for new 1st sort Y.C. are 59s. ready delivery, and the same for April to June; 55s. 3d. per cwt. October to December.

The arrivals for the week ending the 18th were 686 casks; deliveries, 1,151 casks; stock, 71,197 casks; showing a decrease of 465 casks.

Town Tallow has been in steady request, and the melters have had no difficulty in disposing of their produce at the nett quotation. The general character of the home melt is satisfactory, both as to supply and quality. The letter price to-day is unaltered, viz.:—56s. 6d., or 54s. per cwt., nett cash. Fat, 2s. 11d. per stone of 8lbs.

Below are the particulars of the public sales of to-day:—

Y.C.—580 casks of 1859 brack were offered, of which only 36 casks were sold; quality, second-rate, at 53s. 6d. per cwt. These attempts thus to dispose of the old Y.C., if continued, must have some effect in weakening the hands of the monopolists.

Odessa has sold freely during the week, a rather large quantity having been taken for consumption at about our last week's quotations. At auction to-day 307 casks were offered, of which 277 casks were sold; fair sheep at 54s. 6d. to 54s. 9d.; good mixed, 53s. to 54s., for fine: good to fine ox, 52s. 9d. to 53s. 6d. per cwt.

South American has met with some demand; fine quality in pipes being inquired for, the stock of which is small, the bulk of the tallow on hand being of a second rate character. Only 16 casks were offered to-day; they were bought in at 52s. 6d. to 55s. per cwt., being of dark yellow to fair average quality.

Australian Tallow.—Of this article the stock is very small, but some arrivals are at hand. There is a little fine Ox held for 53s. per cwt., but Odessa displaces it at this figure, in most instances. There is no sheep tallow in the market, and no Australian was offered to-day.

North American.—14 casks were offered, and 5 casks very fair quality, rather off colour, were sold at 51s. 6d. to 51s. 9d. per cwt., a finer description being held at 54s.

Ibail.—105 skins offered; 25 sold at 52s. 6d. to 53s. 9d., good sound quality; colour, mostly bright yellow. The sheep tallow of this description was bought in at 55s. per cwt.; quality very good.

[For remainder of Produce Markets, &c., see page 326.]

East India.—In this very little business is doing, supplies are scanty. 47 casks, mostly of fair average quality, were offered to-day. 20 hogsheds were sold at 51s. 6d. 7 hogsheds, rather inferior (dreggy), were taken in at 50s. per cwt.

Continental, &c.—Fine French has brought 54s. to 55s. 6d. during the week. 37 casks of Trieste were submitted to-day of very fair quality, but some of it old and bleached; it was sold at 51s. 6d. to 52s. 9d. per cwt.

Palm Oil has continued to meet with an improving demand, fine qualities having been in especial request, and the market has been cleared of many parcels, mostly at full quotations. To-day 489 casks were brought forward, and 212 casks were sold; fine Whydah at 45s. 3d. to 45s. 6d.; good red Oil 44s. Lower qualities are still difficult of sale; a few casks were disposed of at 36s. 6d. to 42s. 3d., more or less damaged. Fine Lagos is quoted 45s. 6d. per cwt.

Palm Nut Oil continues scarce, 38s. per cwt. has been obtained during the week for a few small parcels of good quality, which is the current quotation, but some few parcels are held for 39s. owing to the improvement in Palm Oil.

South American Horse Grease has not been in active demand, 38s. per cwt. being the general quotation. 228 cases and 2 casks were bought in to-day at this figure.—Furnished by Messrs. Culverwell, Brooks, & Co., Brokers.

LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET.

LIVERPOOL, FRIDAY MORNING, APRIL 19.

On Monday the market was quiet, although intelligence was received from America of diminished receipts and hardening prices. The accounts, received at the same time, of large shipments of cotton to this country, however, prevented the activity that would otherwise have been observable. On Tuesday and Wednesday there was a better feeling. Yesterday a decided improvement took place, owing to the warlike news from the States, and the sales amounted to fully 20,000 bales. Present prices show an advance of  $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per lb., compared with those current on Friday last. The fall in the value of money increases business in this market.

[BY ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH.]

LIVERPOOL, FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

The market has been very firm to-day, and the sales amount to 15,000 bales, including 6,000 on speculation and for exportation. The imports to-day are 20,296 bales. The sales of the week comprise 68,640 bales (against 95,030 bales last week), of which 15,400 have been taken on speculation and 5,430 for exportation, and the imports 47,001 bales. The stock now stands at 874,200 bales.

FRENCH WINES.

To the Editor of the Money Market Review.

SIR,—The Chancellor of the Exchequer having quoted me in the House of Commons as selling good sound French wine at 14s. per dozen, and subsequently called my attention to a letter in the Times, signed "Sitiens," inquiring the name and address of the wine merchant in question, may I request you to say that I am the merchant alluded to.

As the Chancellor of the Exchequer has kindly authorised me to state this fact publicly, I beg to annex an extract of a further letter which I have received, dated—

"11, Downing-street, Whitehall, S.W., March 23rd, 1861.

"I am desired by the Chancellor of the Exchequer to say that he has no objection whatever to your stating that he alluded to your wine."

Good wholesome Claret is, I am aware, a novelty in this country at 1s. 2d. per bottle (bottle included); nevertheless, there is no reason why it should not be sold at that price.—I am, sir, your obedient servant,

H. R. WILLIAMS.

112, Bishopsgate-street Within, London, E.C., April, 1861.

RELATIVE IMPORTATION AND CONSUMPTION OF COCOA, COFFEE, TEA, AND SUGAR DURING THE FIRST TWO MONTHS OF 1861.—Of the above four articles, those which have been most favourably affected this year by the respective results of supply and demand are Cocoa and Coffee, especially the latter. While there has been a falling off of 32 $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. in the arrivals of Cocoa, the consumption shows a diminution of only 10 $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. The Coffee totals are still more worthy of notice, since, in the face of a diminution of 10 $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. in the importations, there has been an increase of 3 $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. in the quantities taken into use. In the instances of Tea and Sugar, a large increase is shown in the arrivals, and although the consumption has likewise increased, it has not been to a corresponding extent, and there has been a proportionate pressure on the market. The importations of Tea increased 15 $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent., while the consumption increased 10 per cent., and the importations of Sugar increased 25 per cent., while the consumption increased only 8 per cent.—Messrs. J. Travers & Sons' Circular.

TEA.—The Newspapers and Price Currents

daily report that common Teas are dearer, and fine are cheaper. What is the reason of this? Because common (and not fine) is sold to the public.—STRACHAN and Co. guarantee that their Black Teas, from 3s. 8d. to 4s. 2d., consist only of the fines descriptions.—26, Cornhill, E.C.

The Corn Trade.

LONDON, FRIDAY AFTERNOON, APRIL 19.

THE WEATHER IN THE UNITED KINGDOM.—The favourable change in the general character of the weather, which took place a fortnight ago, has continued since, almost without interruption. Farmers have taken advantage of the dry weather, and have been busily engaged in the completion of spring sowing—principally Barley. The low temperature has checked the progress of vegetation—still, the appearance of the Wheat-fields has somewhat improved, but the plants are generally backward in growth, and thin on the ground. Some rain is now wanted for the seed recently sown.

SUPPLY.—During the last eight days the supply of home-grown Wheat, Barley and Oats has shown a considerable falling off, compared with preceding weeks, which may be accounted for by farmers having had their attention absorbed in spring sowing. The latest official returns of the quantity of grain sold in England and Wales are as follows:—Wheat 61,837 qrs. at 56s. 10d., Barley, 26,242 qrs. at 37s. 5d., Oats, 10,155 qrs. at 24s. 1d. per qr.

IMPORTS.—The imports have continued this week on a large scale, but within the last few days the arrivals have slackened. The imports have been this week again in excess of the preceding week. Wheat still takes the lead on the list of arrivals. The largest portion reported this week arrived from the Baltic, a fair quantity from America, and a moderate ratio from the South of Europe. The imports of Barley have been to a fair extent. Oats have continued to arrive increasingly till within the last few days, nearly all from the North of Europe. Most of the spring shipments from the near, and less distant ports, may be reckoned to have now arrived—the wind having been fair for arrivals. A pause in the arrivals may therefore be expected. Maize—The imports continue to a moderate extent.

The British Corn Trade has moved somewhat irregular this week. Under the influence of a bright sky, buyers have acted cautiously, but the conviction that, though the improvement in the weather has been beneficial to the growing crops, a small crop of wheat is to be expected, owing to the small extent of the ground sown, and has prompted holders, especially of fine sorts, to exhibit more confidence and to maintain prices with greater firmness than in the preceding week. Wheat.—Superior sorts being scarce, commanded the highest recent quotations, but for all inferior sorts the sale was slow, and prices irregular, 1s. to 2s. per qr. lower. Flour has been more difficult to sell, buyers fearing that at the approach of the hot weather most of the flour made of this year's wheat will not keep sound. Sales have been made of American at 6d. below the rates current a week ago, other sorts have also been 1s. per sack cheaper. Barley.—With a very dull demand, prices are about the same as last week. Oats have recovered partially from last week's depression, and have sold more freely at improved prices. Maize has met with a slow sale, at about last week's rates. Beans have been in increased demand, and are dearer, say, 1s. per qr. over last week's rates. Peas are also more inquired after, and slightly dearer.

In Mark-lane to-day the attendance of the trade was moderate, and the tone quiet. Wheat—English, quiet, at last Monday's prices. Foreign—unaltered, at last Monday's rates. Flour—American, held at last Monday's currency; Norfolk, 38s. to 39s. per 280lbs. Barley—In improved demand, at last Monday's quotations. Oats—Steady, and more inquired after; selling freely at last Monday's rates. Beans—Held firmly. Peas—Unaltered in price.
